QUIT LOSING!

What's the use of sticking to anything that is continually causing you loss? If your credit customers are the source of the greatest loss to you, why not try the ONE way to make them a safe, profitable ASSET? You can do this by adopting the Allison Coupon Book System, which has proved its worth to hundreds of progressive merchants all over the country.

Allison Coupon Books

systematize credit accounts, simplify collections, please the customers and eliminate arguments. They cost but little and pay for themselves many times over.

HOW THEY WORK

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10 — No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best.

For sale by the jobbing trade everywhere. Manufactured by Allison Coupon Company. Indianapolis, Ind.

To The Grocers of Canada

Dear Sirs,

While you are visiting the Canadian National Exhibition this season you are cordially invited to visit our factory.

You will also favor us greatly by visiting our Exhibit---The Model Store ---in the Manufacturers' Building at the Fair grounds. As a practical merchant, an expression of opinion regarding our Exhibit would be highly appreciated.

Yours very cordially, lemons are good for your health—your customers' health, etc., yet as you are not in biz. for your health entirely, you unquestionably have not this admirable point in view each time you purchase a box of lemons. Nevertheless, that is most likely the only object you are accomplishing if you are buying some of the various brands you may find on this market—they look good from the top, yet may show 30 to 40% culls before you finish—that's the point to think about.

Canadian Pears and Peaches Bring Good Prices

With Berries Almost off the Market Trade is Centering About Peaches, With Pears Coming Along in the Rear—Lemons Have Dropped to $5.50 on Account of Recent Weather Conditions—Good Steady Trade in Vegetables—The Production of Tomatoes Promises to be Well up to Average—Fish Market Steady.

The season's fruits and vegetables are meeting with the demand that was expected. As far as can be learned there is but a small production of the goods handled going to waste and the amount of goods that are passing through the markets of the Dominion is reaching a vast figure. In the newly settled parts there is the beginning of trade that will grow steadily and in the well settled parts there is even increased business.

With the passing of raspberries, and with cherries and currants practically done, the demand for preserving is not as great as a few weeks ago. There are still Lawton berries and blueberries but the past two weeks were really marked by a quieter feeling. Now, peaches and pears are coming in and the prospects are for a good season.

Pineapples are scarce and are quoted at a high price. The demand is only fair. Lemons have fallen off in demand. The quality of those offered is good. The weather will determine the condition of this market. Oranges are running along before a fair trade. Regarding the peach market—and pears too—it is now coming into its height and grocers who are handling fruit will do well to watch it closely.

The vegetable trade is also brisk with tomatoes probably a feature. It is expected that a pretty good crop will find its way through the hands of the big wholesalers. The business in the ordinary vegetables is good but with no special feature.

The fish market is firm generally. The report from Montreal states that the first news from the codfishing fleets is not encouraging. Canned lobsters are high and an advance is looked for.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Blueberries and melons are occupying the centre of the fruit stage this week. Arrivals of the former have been numerous during the past few days, and they still continue to come. The quality does not seem to be any too good as yet, the berries being small.

Montreal melons are still high, $12 to $15 per doz., but the demand is good for those on the market. Cantaloupes are about the same as last week, but the demand is rapidly increasing.

Green apples are somewhat more plentiful and a little easier in price.

Delaware grapes are more plentiful and easier in price. Malagas are now commencing to appear. The quality of first arrivals is better than last year.

Vegetables.—Old potatoes are practically gone, but the deficiency has not been felt, owing to the good supply of first-class new ones.

Tomatoes are cheaper, selling for $1 to $1.25, even at that the sale seems to be dwindling. The poor quality of arrivals undoubtedly has had a great deal to do with this state of affairs.

As a whole the vegetable market is much improved over last week, and dealers feel much better over the whole situation.

Fish.—Lake fish continues scarce and the reports are that haddock will be scarce this week. There is plenty of halibut and steak cod.

Labrador salmon in pickle are now offered, prices being a little higher than last year, due to a short crop. Reports from codfishing points are not encouraging, but as the season is not far advanced as yet, it is hard to estimate the outcome.

Canned lobsters are high, and an advance is looked for; so far only the foreign market has been supplied, and supplies remaining are low.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—Toronto wholesale fruit men are receiving large shipments of Canadian peaches now, and although there are still some California peaches coming in, the home grown article is getting by far the brunt of the trade. They appear to be of good quality and from all reports the production is heavy. Lawton berries have enjoyed a good demand and this fruit has been of splendid quality and brought a good price. Red currants are off the market and black currants are practically done. Blackberries are also a fruit of the past as far as this year is concerned. Blueberries are not yet done and are quoted a little higher this week. Canadian cantaloupes are also on the market now. They are larger than the imported variety. They are offered for sale in baskets and crates. Canadian pears are also finding their way to the market together with the new peaches.

Canadian Peaches

As in season's past, we will be very heavy receivers, handling the products of the best Queenston, Niagara and St. Catharines Shippers.

Direct cars are loaded every evening at the big peach orchards, and landed fresh to us in the fruit market every morning, and in time for early distribution.

This fruit is shipped in ventilated cars, fitted with shelves to prevent bruising of fruit. The Canadian peach business, while large, is only in its infancy, as some of our large shippers already have railway sidings in their orchards and expect to ship cars daily themselves.

360 LEMONS

The wholesale were obliged to buy this size in a somewhat limited quantity, as the lemons are not as large this season. We know that you prefer 300's, but our 360's are packed in good size boxes and are very desirable at the price you are asked for them. They are splendid value. Order them.

There is a good trade in oranges and some of the stock lately received is of the premier kind. Lemons are easier in price, owing to a falling off in the demand, but as pointed out recently the season has not yet spent itself, and return of real warm weather will make a big change in the lemon trade. It is believed however that the real sultry days are pretty nearly done. September in other years has brought good business to lemon dealeres and the present trade has not yet spent its entire strength. A glance at the fruit displays proves that business is centred around peaches and for some time to come they are expected to be the feature of the market. The demand for new Canadian apples is good. They are sold in baskets and include the general early varieties.

Vegetables.—The vegetable trade is running along smoothly with a demand that is general. Tomatoes are being shipped heavily and are meeting a brisk demand. Their quality is good. The members of the trade do not speak of any particular difficulties these days. Large consignments of Spanish onions have been received of late. The quality of the potatoes that are coming in are of the best and the supply is plentiful.

WINNIPEG.

Green Fruits.—A quiet market on all fruits is reported this week. It is unlikely that anything lower will be quoted this season. The output is heavy locally for immediate use, but the quantity for preserving is light. The distribution throughout the west has been light so far this season. Currants and watermelons are off the market. Lemons are still at a high figure.

HAIL DAMAGES TOBACCO.

Injury Not so Bad as First Reported—Some Sections Untouched.

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 18.—It is difficult to give an exact estimate of the damage done to the tobacco crop in the Southwestern Peninsula by the severe hailstorm which visited the Leamington district on Wednesday of last week. The hail lasted only about 20 minutes, the worst damage being done immediately south of Leamington, the district affected being about four miles from east to west, and extending south as far as the Lake Shore. Among large growers J. Askew & Son and Peterson & Lendon, the latter with 35 acres, are the heaviest losers. Their tobacco, as well as that of many small growers, was badly riddled and practically ruined. Crops immediately north of the town escaped damage.

Later reports from the devastated districts are much more optimistic than those at first received. One grower whose tobacco was considerably injured by the hail, next morning was able to contract for his entire crop at the highest figure.

Leamington is one of the leading centres of the tobacco growing industry in this section, but the district actually affected by the storm is only a small portion of the entire tobacco-growing section, though it produces much of the best tobacco. Tobacco is grown all the way from Amherstburg to Dutton, the tobacco belt, following the Lake Shore, being from 5 to 15 miles in width. This year's total crop is estimated at upwards of 8,000 acres, while the average yield in past years has been about 1,100 pounds to the acre. Though in places held back by the drought earlier in the season, the crop looks excellent, save for the damage by hail in the Leamington district.

Reports from the Blenheim section state that the crop is in splendid condition. Following reports of damage to the Essex crop, growers in the Blenheim section are said to be contemplating a combine for the purpose of boosting the price, though the likelihood is that the project will fall through.

Early Jun e Peas

IT IS A FACT that you can make a greater profit by selling our finer grade peas than you can out of the lower grades. A little extra selling talk with your good customers as to the superior flavor and tenderness of the better grades will land a trial order in nine cases out of ten. Generally, customers of fair means who have been persuaded once to try the better grades will never again be content with lower priced lines. As the profit is greater, and the satisfaction of the customer is unfailing, why not push our better grades of peas? Ask your wholesaler for our Early June (sifted) and Sweet Wrinkle (extra sifted).

An Oyster Proposition—No Strings Attached

THIS Vacuum Insulated Oyster Display Cabinet has the double merit of being the handsomest and most practical Display Cabinet made.

It stands 27 inches high, with a diameter of 15½ inches, and holds 5 gallons of oysters. The ice-tank sits in the centre, with three gallons of oysters in the tank below and two gallons in the one above. The vacuum between the inner and outer walls causes it to need only one-eighth of the ice consumed in any other cabinet and to maintain an even temperature all the time.

Independent Grocers---Note This

We sell you these Cabinets outright at $17.00 each, f.o.b. Toronto. While we are anxious for you to handle our "Coast Sealed" Oysters, we do not try to coerce you by leasing or loaning our Display Cabinets. We sell our purely upon their own merits.

"Coast Sealed" Oysters

are all Northern grown in our own grounds in Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York. We open no oysters until they are 4 years old and every carrier is packed and sealed at the Coast. The seal remains unbroken until you break it yourself and every oyster is clean, fat and fresh with the delectable sea tang unimpaired.

You will handle "Coast Sealed" Oysters this season because they are the highest in quality and our cabinet proposition will please your independent spirit. Write us now for prices and particulars.

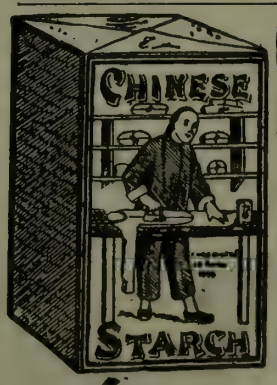
QUIT LOSING!

What's the use of sticking to anything that is continually causing you loss? If your credit customers are the source of the greatest loss to you, why not try the ONE way to make them a safe, profitable ASSET? You can do this by adopting the Allison Coupon Book System, which has proved its worth to hundreds of progressive merchants all over the country.

Allison Coupon Books

systematize credit accounts, simplify collections, please the customers and eliminate arguments. They cost but little and pay for themselves many times over.



HOW THEY WORK

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10 — No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best.

For sale by the jobbing trade everywhere. Manufactured by Allison Coupon Company. Indianapolis, Ind.

Keep in mind the dominant fact that mankind from its first appearance on the earth has been schooled by nature to look for signs; for invitations to taste; for suggestions as to what to wear. Tell your story briefly, forcibly, truthfully, and address it through the proper media and you can successfully apply advertising as a means to increased distribution.

FACTS ABOUT ADVERTISING

By The Advertising Manager

Fundamentally, advertising might be described as anything that comes under the head of "Telling the people you want to sell, who you are and what you want to sell them."

Advertising is a good many other things besides, but this may be regarded as the foundation upon which these other things must be built up.

Every business man who puts a sign over his door, by doing so establishes his belief in advertising.

John Smith has a sign on his warehouse which reads: "John Smith, Wholesale Grocer."

He must figure that it pays him or he wouldn't have it.

Then, by following out John Smith's own reasoning, we must conclude that he believes it would pay him if he could place that sign where all of his customers and probable customers would see it.

He can do this—and at very reasonable cost—by reproducing his sign in The Canadian Grocer.

He can establish a "traveling sign" that will go into every city, town and village from ocean to ocean, fifty-two times a year, and appear prominently before almost every dealer whose buying power amounts to anything.

While admitting the value of such a service, do not forget that it represents a mere introduction to the possibilities of advertising in The Grocer.

We'll tell you more about these possibilities later.

SHORTAGE OF THE PEA CROP

One way to solve the Pea Shortage Question is to handle "1761" brand of Imported Marrowfat Peas.

The "Canadian Grocer" of August 15, had the following editorial on the Pea Situation:—

CANNED PEAS SHORT

There has been a big grab for canned peas, and still jobbers are short. The trouble is that there was no sufficient quantity packed to supply all demands and there is not the remotest chance of prices coming down. One jobber states that he could only secure 250 cases out of every 1,000 ordered. Another says that there will be no more than a 60 per cent. delivery.

In Toronto this week some wholesalers didn't have a case of peas to sell for present delivery, so low have the old stocks been run.

Retailers, therefore, who have not contracted for their canned peas, should delay no longer. Prices are sure not to be lower and there is every possibility of them going up. Of course there is the limited price when stock will be imported.

Demand for peas has rapidly been soaring in recent years and retailers should pay particular attention to this article.

A few years ago the Canadian Trade ridiculed the idea of importing Marrowfat Peas from England into Canada, and it certainly at first sight appears as far fetched an idea as "Shipping Coals to Newcastle," but to-day we are sending our Marrowfat Peas from Coast to Coast, and the public are beginning to realise that a 10c package of "1761" Brand of Marrowfat Peas make, when prepared—full directions for which are on each package—more Peas than the contents of two cans, and what is more important—EQUAL TO FRESH GARDEN PEAS.

Our "1761" Brand of English Crown Marrowfat Peas contain in addition to the choicest hand picked Peas, a steeping tablet impregnated with mint, as well as a boiling bag, for use when preparing.

Ask your Wholesaler to enclose with your next order, trial case of these goods, or write us direct for Prices.

Maritime Questions Before East's Business Men

Chatham, N.B., the Scene of the 16th Annual Convention of the Maritime Board of Trade—The Big Problems Affecting the Provinces Down by the Sea are Discussed—Resolutions Passed and Rejected—Members Very Optimistic Regarding the Future—Moncton, N.B., to be Meeting Place in 1911.

Staff Correspondence.

Chatham, N.B., Aug. 25.—For the sixteenth time in its history, the Maritime Board of Trade met in annual session on August 17 and 18. Chatham, the place of meeting, was in gala dress, and the well-equipped town hall served as a splendid meeting place. Not only was the gathering notable for its representative delegates from all parts, but the platform was graced by Lieutenant-Governor Tweedie; Dr. J. M. Robertson, chairman of the Royal Commission on Technical Education (who attended at the special request of President Snowball); R. A. Snowball, mayor of Chatham; W. S. Loggie, M.P. for the County of Northumberland; H. Logan, ex-M. P., Amherst; E. N. Rhodes, M.P. for Cumberland, of Rhodes, Curry, Ltd., Amherst, and others, including aldermen and ex-presidents of the Maritime Board.

President Snowball called the meeting to order at 10 o'clock, but the Lieut.-Governor was not present, owing to some important official engagement. He came after 11 o'clock, when he delivered an address of welcome. An ovation was given Mr. Tweedie. He extended the freedom of the City of Chatham. The people of the district were famed for hospitality, and he hoped they would be pleased with their visit. He noted the programme showed a formidable list of subjects of great interest to the country. He complained of the express service, which was on the list of subjects. No attention was paid to delivery in Chatham, and poor service was the rule.

Opposed the Tunnel.

Re the tunnel to the Island, he was quite opposed to it. He thought its possibility was in the far distant future. Large warehouses at points of transit would be his remedy. He was hopeful of having direct communication with the Island from Chatham.

As for immigration, he thought they were all of one opinion. The call for immigrants to the west could not be well checked just now. It would be changed in time, just as the tide of the river changed. He believed young men would return from the west. Many of our industries in the east were almost at a standstill. The Maritime Provinces were not taking advantage of their own resources. In the matter of grazing and butter producing, New Brunswick had not taken advantage of her best interests. He hoped they would deal with the questions energetically and intelligently, and also that Chatham would do herself proud in entertainment. (Applause).

Mayor R. A. Snowball then delivered an address of welcome. He emphasized the honor done the town, and pointed out why it offered them every possible help to enjoy their stay. He was greatly applauded.

Changes Wrought by Time.

W. S. Loggie, M.P., extended further welcome. As a former president of the Maritime Board, he accentuated the changes in the personnel of the delegates. Only one of the old delegates was noticed who was at the meeting when last they met in Chatham. He referred to the iron ores so near them; to the excellent improvement in dock accommodation, and the general improvement in shipping. He believed the time was fast coming when there would be a reaction on the rush to the west. The potent protector of the Maritime Provinces was Jack Frost. They were fortunate in having open ports the year round. That was the strongest attraction of trade for the east. The time would come, he believed, when all British goods imported into Canada would come through the Maritime Provinces.

He praised the Chatham harbor. He said he did not believe there was a better harbor in the world. They were having the Miramichi dredged and would soon have a shipping waterway second only to the St. Lawrence. He again welcomed the delegates, and wished for a profitable meeting.

L. D. MacLachlan, vice-president of the Chatham Board of Trade, added his welcome to that extentded by others. Mr. MacLachlan made a brief speech, which was much appreciated.

Address of the President.

The president then delivered his address, which was received with great applause.

"Gentlemen of the Maritime Board of Trade,—I take this opportunity of thanking you for the honor conferred upon me in making me the president of this important organization. I ask your assistance in making this a most successful gathering. We are the parliament of the Maritime Provinces, true, without the power of making enactments, but yet we can discuss together matters of general interest to our provinces by the sea, and use our influence to have our views so impressed on the Parliaments that they will be embodied in their legislation. The time is fast coming, with the rapid growth of the west, when we must act together for our mutual good if we want to maintain our influence in the affairs of our Dominion.

"Since we last met we have lost by death our genial and much-beloved secretary, Chas. M. Creed. While he had reached a ripe old age, yet he was young in spirit, and we all enjoyed his happy ways. He was interested in our work, and nothing appeared too much trouble for him to make our gatherings successful.

Appeal for Harder Work.

"The Maritime Provinces are awakening. We can see evidences of this all around us. The people have become dissatisfied with the past and with the easy-going methods and lethargy that has prevailed. Gentlemen of the Maritime Board, help the spirit that is animating our provinces, and strangle and kill the one that is pessimistis and ready to decry our eastern heritage.

"We have a grand portion of the Dominion; one that has rendered in many cases too easy returns from her forest, fisheries, mines and farms. The surface has been used for prompt, ready return, and the waste that has been permitted because of inexperience, thoughtlessness and indifference to the future has been phenomenal. But still these provinces hold good things for us that may be used for our benefit and handed on to generations yet unborn, if handled with prudence, forethought and consideration.

"Look at the waste of our forest by careless clearing as the anxious settler removed his great enemy, the trees. The ravages of fire, not realized at the time, and not capable of estimation to-day—the indifferent methods of logging, and the waste of the log after it reached the sawmill. All these are being slowly stopped. We must stop waste to make any enterprise pay to-day, and the lumberman of to-day is learning the lesson.

A Plea for Economy.

"We must have the closest possible manufacture of our natural product of wood done within our country, whether it touches the sawmills, rossing mills, or pulp mills. The people of these provinces should have, and should insist on having, the greatest benefit from this resource, whether from Government-owned or from granted lands. The greatest good to the greatest number and ever increase that number, should be our cry.

"Waste of by-products at mills should be stopped and turned into a source of revenue and employment, whether is be slab edgings and saw dust, or uncooked pulp, chips or acid. And the rossing of wood for export to keep industries in foreign countries going should be prohibited.

"On the farm waste has been going on to such an extent that everywhere we see deserted farms and dilapidated farm buildings. The stability and prosperity of our country is dependent on the farming industry. We are glad to see what is being done to educate this important portion of our population to the dignity of their calling, as well as in improved methods to coax from Mother Earth her most bountiful yield. We, in the town centres, will prosper as we are surrounded by healthy, contented, prosperour tillers of the soil. We were told by Professor Robertson, at the conservation commission meeting that Quebec's shipment of 1,000 tons of hay, returning to that province about $14,000, took more of the elements of fertility out of this country than did the $50,000,000 of butter shipped from Denmark. The difference in return is enormous and is certainly worth considering as how it may be remedied.

Eulogy for the Farmer.

"Encourage anything that will promote farming, as we need the farmer. We have in every county of these provinces abandoned farms—not always deserted because they have run out, but by the spirit of some years ago when the young people went to the States and the older ones dying off left the places to grow up; their children not being accustomed now to farm life prefer to leave them as they are. It would be well if the Dominion Government could be urged to send some responsible parties through the provinces to take note of these and get information about the owners, and then devote some of the energy and money they have been expending on the west in getting a good class of farm settlers for the east. We have our advantages in nearness to Britain, in easily-reached home markets, in schools, churches and neighbors that would appeal to some who might not care for the solitude of the western provinces. Too much attention has been given the west, and our turn should now have arrived.

Heritage of the Water.

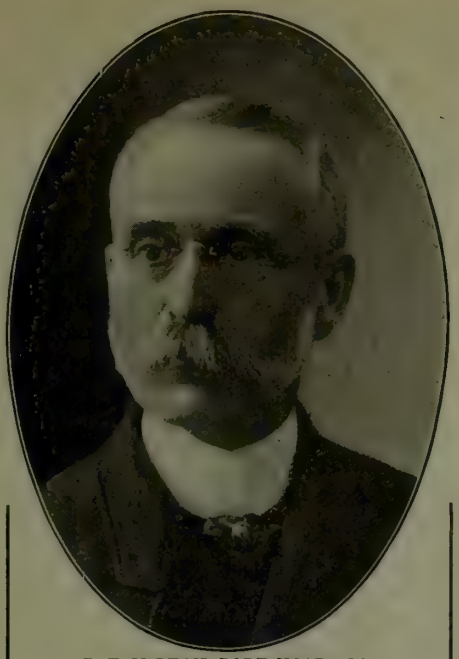
"Then we have our fisheries—so important to these provinces. Are we getting all we should from this heritage of river, and lake, and sea? Can we improve our methods and enforce our laws and enact new laws that will preserve to us our salmon, lobster, codfish, mackerel, smelt and other fish in steady supply, rather than a diminishing quality and quantity?

"Our coal, iron and other mines should be conserved to our people, and the export of ore from our provinces should be stopped, so that industries asking iron and steel and using these products may grow up in our midst. This should be possible where coal, iron and lime are all available. Large preparations, which we hope to show you before you leave, are now being made on this river to ship ore from the Drummond mines, in Gloucester County, to the United States, Germany and England. This will not give much employment to our people, and only a small revenue to our province. They may require to do this for a year or two to test the ore fully and to get some return for the heavy investment made, but this should not be permitted to continue many years.

"The Transcontinental coming down through our provinces and reaching out through new country to Winnipeg and the farther west, will open up new territory for manufactured articles that should be as readily manufactured and supplied by our people as by those of Ontario and Quebec, and we should prepare to capture a fair portion of that trade.

Encourage Small Industries.

"We are pleased to see the activity of the St. John Board of Trade to bring their city to the front and to increase industrial activity in their midst. May their efforts be an inspiration to the rest of the boards. I would suggest to towns in these provinces the encouragement of small industries natural to the place, started, if possible, by local men that know the business, and that will grow naturally, rather than big industries induced by bonuses, grants and exemptions, that often fail and leave the place worse than before. Encourage your own people and you will have more permanent results. Make a point not to over-tax industries and deal leniently with them through your civic control, remembering that they are the nerve tonic of your community, and while a little bitter at times, are a necessary evil for the hearty, vigorous growth of the place.



"We have in our provinces people with money who could go into the manufacturing trade that would build up our provinces in population and increase the value of properties, but they selfishly prefer investing in bonds, stocks, lands in the west and get-rich-quick schemes. They should be more loyal to our provinces and start industries here when land value would improve and we would have a boom in the east. Talk to them and show them their duty to their province.

Money to Mail Order Houses.

"Too much money is being sent out of our provinces to the large departmental stores of the western cities. Our people should have it impressed on them that where money is earned it should be spent, as far as possible, if they wish to advance the prosperity of the towns in which they live. We need the merchants, and they need the customers, and only as they help each other can both prosper. The merchant must cater to the wants of the community by keeping what goods are required at reasonable prices, and the community should patronize home merchants if they want good shops. Money kept in circulation in a town does good in that place, but send it away and it helps the other place. We also have too many idle dollars in banks and stockings. Idle dollars and idle men are both useless to the state.

An Insurance Lesson.

"I am sure we all sympathize with the Town of Campbellton in the great disaster that has overtaken that thriv-

D. F. McLEAN, PORT HOOD, N.S.

Mr. McLean was first vice-president of the Maritime Board in 1910. He gave way to the pressure of Nova Scotia to give the presidency to New Brunswick for another year.

D. F. McLean is a strong character. He is a Highland Scotchman, born, however, at West Bay, Cape Breton, N.S., Dec. 30, 1847. He is over six feet in height, and the heather is written on his face. That he was big enough mentally to give up his chance for the presidency owing to a peculiar exigency was a mark of his strength. The condition of the Board of Trade was such that a certain plan of action had to be adopted which precluded a Nova Scotian from taking the chief office. To this Mr. McLean acceded with good grace. At Port Hood, his place of residence, he is one of the first citizens in every way. He owns and edits a neat weekly paper, called "Greetings"; he sits in the mayor's chair, and he holds the presidency of the Board of Trade. Business versatility and business acumen are his outstanding points. During thirty years of life in the arena of commerce he has dipped successfully into many branches. He calls himself a "general merchant," but the shingle over his office door reminds his fellow citizens of Port Hood that in addition, he can be called upon to discharge the functions of fishery officer, Lloyd's agent, notary public and insurance agent. He is an acknowledged authority on trade down east. No doubt he will be president at some future date.

ing town. Such a catastrophe has never overtaken any other town in our province. We feel for them in their present difficulties and hope that provincial and Dominion aid toward their bonded indebtedness may be forthcoming until they are again in a position to shoulder the responsibility.

"From this calamity we should learn a lesson on insurance. Those who have property owe it to themselves and others dependent on them, as well as the place in which they live, to keep properly insured, and if Campbellton had had reasonable insurance there would not be the privation we see to-day. Merchants should be insured for the protection of those from whom they buy, as well as themselves. I remember one large firm of manufacturing clothiers used to have on their invoices in red, "Are you insured?" and it is a reasonable question for them to ask, even although the buyer may be well rated.

HON. L. J. TWEEDIE,

Lieut.-Governor of New Brunswick, who Entertained the Members at a Banquet on the first night of the Convention.

"The Intercolonial Railway is being diverted from Nelson to Chatham, to follow a route near the river, and through the Town of Chatham, along the river front. This will open up opportunities for industries along the bank of the Miramichi, giving both rail and water shipment, and this improved facility should prove benefical to both Chatham and the Government railway, by inducing industries to establish here.

Technical Education Coming.

"We have discussed at many of our meetings technical education and the necessity of branches along these lines being established in our schools. We will, therefore, be pleased to note that the Dominion Government has taken the matter in hand and that a commission is now touring our provinces taking evidence, and with such an enthusiastic educationalist as Dr. J. W. Roberston as chairman, we will look for practical results.

"Never lose an opportunity to speak well of your town, your province and your country, and if you can't say anything good—keep quiet.

"I hope our deliberations may be productive of much good to our provinces and that a cordial feeling of friendship may be engendered, that petty rivalry may be eliminated, and all work together for the advancement of the Maritime Provinces of Canada."

Using Our Possessions.

Dr. Robertson was then called upon. He expressed his pleasure at being present. The commissions upon which he was serving were important. The basis of national life was the conservation of what belonged to the people, as a country and individually, on the one side, while technical education on the other side, had a primary mission of helping men to do their work by being educated along practical lines.

The reason for the conservation commission was to take stock of what the country possessed. Our enormous resources were unknown in detail.

This commission was not only to seek what we had, but how we could make best use of those possessions. He illustrated how badly arranged was some of our knowledge. The people should be well informed as to the best way of mining coal, as an example. He, in an attractive way, pointed out how property owners were so responsible to all the people for improving that property. The conservation commission had a mission to teach property owners how to make the best of their heritage, subject to the will of the people.

We owed a great deal to our neighbors in the United States. They were one of the originators of the conservation commission. The commission was a perpetual organization, founded by Act of Parliament. He named over the various series of committees announced by Parliament. He happened to be chairman of the committee on land. They co-operated with the various provincial governments. They had authorized a survey of a hundred farms to find out if the land was as productive as it was ten years ago; whether new weeds had made their appearance, or if the farmers were holding their own.

Health Conditions Investigated.

In many cases weeds had beaten farmers out of their property.

They were also investigating the water supply, such as old-fashioned wells, which often absorbed sewage and filth of all kinds. He likened the farms to the days of Sodom and Gomorrah. If they could uncover three farms out of these hundred, that could be models, it would be worth while living to see it brougt about.

In fisheries the same thing is being done. The same principles are being applied to all branches of industry. Oyster beds were almost disappearing, owing to ignorance. The commission had found remarkable losses on the fisheries.

The commission on industrial training and technical education was all-important.

In passing he mentioned that tariff for protection was only a temporary arrangement—make it a thousand years if necessary.

In the provinces the people were most efficient in many ways. They were efficient politically. He did not say they were always right. The commission was out to find to what extent the people everywhere were efficient industrially. Leading men everywhere had been generous in offering co-opration. They were gathering information as to what opportunities existed now for industrial training.

Nova Scotia a Good Example.

Nova Scotia had a system of industrial training that would surprise most men. It had schools for training men to mine coal. Every sub-foremen, every head of the men had to be trained now. The stories some of these men told the commission were wonderful. He cited how men developed themselves before the Government came to their assistance on technical schools in 1886. They found only one man in all their enquiry who worked in coal mines who was not a native-born Canadian. All were educated in Nova Scotia. As a result they found that there were fewer accidents and less loss of life in the coal mines of Nova Scotia than in any other place in the world. (Applause).

He noted the different schools of Nova Scotia, and found that at Liverpool, N. S., there were 250 teachers from different parts of the province spending five weeks of their holidays and $25 of their own money to improve their teaching efficiency.

He was pleased to see the fine industries growing up in small places. The idea of dragging workers into the cities was ridiculous. Any work which did not give the worker's children a chance for health and education was not desirable.

The boys leaving the farms was all right, but the boy staying on the farm should have as good a training industrially as the boy who leaves. The farm and city should work together. He cited Sackville's stove factories, where men, owing to the fine air and good surroundings, did better and longer work on that account. They were shipping stoves west and competing with others because of their energy and courage.

The commission had discovered that small towns were the places for great industries, which would have all Canada for a market. The small town would not hurt the big city. The lure of the city and the lure of the west had heard its loudest call. (Applause).

What Education Is.

Before closing, he gave some points for thought, mentioning that nothing he said was private. He referred to the elusive character of the meaning of education. Most men who came before them thought that all knowledge obtained outside of schools was not education. That was a mischevious idea. A school was only a human device to get an experience. Telling things was not teaching. All education meant simply a series of experiences, aiming at increased intelligence.

They had asked men why they wanted education. The answer generally was so as to be able to earn a living. Then, should not the schools be readjusted so that they would meet that desire? They surely should be made to help the child not only to make a living, but to make life worth living. He did not think the three "R's" were enough for education —not by any means. He gave some delightful illustrations of how years of life in childhood could be saved by simple, natural teaching.

Reading, as a teacher of children, had been much magnified. Observation was the essence of clear thinking. School gardens, manual training, and household science were the fundamental principles of education. This was not new, but a return to the oldest and best methods of motherhood. This all meant no hostility to higher education and so-called culture. Higher education, so-called, covered a multitude of shams.

Culture of farms meant pushing away ignorance—weeds and the useless and unbeautiful. He illustrated the culture of apples, and showed that beauty came from care, suffering and work. That was what culture meant everywhere.

Manual Training Before Classics.

Classics were all right, but he did not think that they should be pushed upon children at the time when manual training was so necessary. He believed the Canadian people would in time dominate the human race, if the resources of the half-a-continent were evolved intelligently. (Applause).

Mr. Snowball extended a hearty vote of thanks to the doctor, who was compelled to leave on the noon train. It was moved by Hance Logan and seconded by W. S. Loggie. The doctor replied briefly in acknowledgement.

Report of the Secretary.

The secretary's report was then read as follows:

"In opening this report, it is with regret I refer to the death of Charles M. Creed, secretary, which occurred on the first day of January of this year.

"Subsequent to his death, your president, Mr. Snowball, asked me to take charge of the books and papers, in connection with this board, which I accordingly accepted, thus becoming acting-secretary.

"From what little correspondence Mr. Creed left, I gather that the resolutions, etc., passed at the last meeting were forwarded to those intended to receive them, same being acknowledged, and I have since had some correspondence in connection. One of the subjects followed up by me is of particular interest to the three provinces, viz., 'The acquiring of the steam service between Prince Edward Island and the mainland by the Intercolonial Railway," and from correspondence with the Minister of Railways, I have reason to believe that the matter is receiving the serious consideration of the board of management. Should this issue be successfully carried out, it will probably mean a reduction in freight rates to Prince Edward Island and a benefit to all concerned in the trade of that province.

"The matter of Maritime union, discussed at last year's session, does not appear to have much progress, and there is apparently nothing to report at this time.

"At last year's session in Charlottetown, fifty-four delegates registered and the programme was satisfactorily carried out, all the subjects being well discussed and resolutions passed accordingly.

"At the close of the session at Charlottetown, the delegates were treated to a delightful afternoon at the Riverside Driving Park, where the Caledonian games were being carried out.

"The St. John Board of Trade, through one of its members, J. N. Harvey, gave notice of withdrawal from the board, but were asked to reconsider their action and from correspondence I have had with your president, I had every reason to believe they would be with us this year. This, I know, would have been pleasing to all.

"During the past six months I have had considerable correspondence with the different affiliated boards, and have, during the past three months, sent out, in all, seven circulars calling attention to this session and asking their co-operation in making it a success.

"There is good work here for your secretary, getting these affiliated, organizing new boards and re-organizing old ones.

"The thanks of the board are due to the MacLean Publishing Co., of Montreal, for sending representative, C. D. Cliffe, to report this and other board meetings; also for printing the minutes of the last session, since distributed. Also the press of the province for the way in which they reported our sessions.

"In closing this report, I wish to thank the president for his very great assistance in the way of corresponding with different boards in connection with this annual meeting; W. L. T. Weldon, corresponding secretary, and members of boards who assisted in supplying subjects, etc."

"A. E. SAUNDERS."

"Halifax, Aug. 16, 1910."

Correspondence was then read, including a letter from F. D. Black, as follows:

"W. L. T. Weldon, corresponding secretary, Maritime Board of Trade, Chatham, N. B.,

"Dear Sir,—Prof. W. W. Andrews and myself were, at the Halifax meeting of the board, appointed a committee to inquire into and report upon the effects upon prosperity which may fairly ly be credited to the traffic in intoxicating liquors. Prof. Andrews is in the western part of Canada and will be unable to attend the board meeting at Chatham. Owing to business engagements I shall not be able to attend, so that we will not be able to make any formal report to the board. Through an oversight, this matter was not included among the subjects for discussion by the board, so that it is quite possible that no report will be expected this year. I may say that we have made very general enquiry among the employers of labor throughout the Maritime Provinces and have received a very great number of replies. We are also making inquiries from the other side of the question; that is, from those engaged in the liquor traffic. As yet we have received very little response from them. We wish to have a fair presentation on both sides of the question before making any report, and we do not anticipate being in possession of full information for this purpose until next year.

"I am writing this explanation and would ask you to read my letter to the board in case Prof. Andrews has not already made a report along similar lines.

"F. B. BLACK."

"Sackville, N.B., Aug. 13, 1910."

Withdrawal of St. John Board.

The following letter was received from the St. John Board of Trade:—

W. B. Snowball, President Maritime Board of Trade, Chatham, N.B.

Dear Sir:—In reply to your favor of 20th ult., our Board had not considered the question of again joining the Maritime Board for the reason that we had understood you would like to meet with us some day when you would be in our city. Your letter has now, however, been considered by our council and the unanimous feeling of those present was that, while they would like very much to co-operate with you and felt loath indeed to forego the pleasure of a visit to Chatham, they could see no good results to be accomplished by again joining the Board.

We have not, in the past, been able to see that the Maritime Board has accomplished much, if anything. The difficulty has seemed to be to find subjects general enough in character to be dealt with by representatives of the three Provinces, and yet personal or local enough to bring out a good attendance. The interests of the three Provinces, as far as Boards of Trade are concerned, are quite different. Many questions that affect one province do not affect the others; and furthermore many of the questions which Boards of Trade are interested in must come before the Legislature. In this respect the Maritime Board has but little influence, as the New Brunswick members can be of no assistance to their confreres from Nova Scotia or Prince Edward Island in matters affecting those Provinces, and vice versa. It is only on questions coming before the Federal Parliament on which we can unite. In these cases the other Provinces of the Dominion are usually equally interested, and to accomplish anything their co-operation is needed.

It seems to me personally, without speaking for our Board, that the only Board of Trade organizations which can be effective are Provincial Boards from which perhaps representatives could be nominated to constitute a Dominion Board.

W. E. ANDERSON,
Secretary.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 2, 1910.

Both of the above communications were laid on the table without comment.

JAS. PATON,

One of the Representatives from the Charlottetown, P.E.I., Board of Trade.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

After dinner the Board resumed its sittings. D. F. McLean, vice-president, opened the session by referring in complimentary terms to the splendid address of the president. He had pleasure in moving the adoption of the president's address. C. E. Bentley seconded it. (Carried.)

The president announced that automobiles were at the disposal of delegates who wished to visit the big manufacturing industries of the town and neighborhood, including pulp mills, rossing works and lumber mills. Loggieville, a neighboring town would also be well worth visiting as several fine industries were located there.

Mr. Williams, of Moncton, was unanimously chosen auditor.

Freight Rate Reduction.

The question of the reduction of freight rates over the I.C.R. and government subsidized railways, and the advisability of the government taking over all such subsidized railways, was taken up by D. F. Hood, of Port Hood, C.B. He pointed out that the rates for passenger and freight service had been increased on the I.C.R. He found that any surplus in earnings went over to the general fund of the nation.

A resolution was moved by Mr. McLean and seconded by C. E. Bentley, the seconder urging that the latter part of the resolution with which the Board had already dealt with. Mr. McLean agreed to the suggestion.

Jas. Paton, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., thought no reference should be made to any surplus.

Captain Read, of Summerside, P.E.I., spoke in favor of the resolution as amended. He spoke of the government having abolished canal tolls. He said the talk of surplus on government railways was all clap-trap. None of these systems should pay.

Hance Logan did not think the passenger rates were excessive. He thought perhaps local freight rates were excessive. He cited instances in his own town, of excessive freight rates. On the other hand, the freight for long distance hauls was very low. He would advise naming something specific in the resolution, such as mentioning the local freight.

Mr. Williams referred to the increased wages occasioned by union aggression, and hence the railways were compelled to increase their rates. He also pointed out that as a rule the rates were in no way excessive. He did not believe there was any real surplus on the I.C.R. He was treasurer of that road for years and he was in a position to know.

James Nicoll, Chatham Board of Trade, did not think their neighborhood was suffering. However if others were suffering, some way of helping them out could be arrived at.

D. A. Morrison did not think the freight rates of the I.C.R. were in any way excessive. He had businesses in three different points and found all the rates fairly reasonable. The only point he thought of was import rates which were excessive. Some isolated cases might be discovered but these should be dealt with in some other way.

W. S. Davidson, of Halifax, agreed with Mr. Logan that none of the general rates were too high.

Resolution too General.

W. B. Snowball, president, vacated the chair, asking the vice-president to take it. He thought the resolution was too general, and that the mover should have come with a tabulated list of the excessive rates, etc. He noticed one speaker said we should be able to run a railway as cheaply as they could in the United States. That was wrong. We had not the population and no railway could be run on the same expenses as in more populous countries. He would like to see the resolution changed so that details would be given.

Mr. McLean, the mover, then stated that he was possessed of data to prove his case, but had left them at home in error. He could see that the consensus of opinion was against his resolution and he was willing to leave the matter over until anothet year or to a committee. He would then qe fortified.

"Whereas the freight and passenger rates of the Intercolonial Railway have within the last decade been materially increased which is inimical to the interests of the people of the Maritime Provinces.

"Therefore resolved that this Maritime Board of Trade urge upon the Government of Canada the necessity of reducing the existing freight and passenger rates."

Mr. Logan moved, seconded by W. S. Loggie in amendment, that this resolution be referred to a committee of three and a report made next meeting. (Carried.)

Messrs. McLean, Williams and Bentley were chosen as this committee.

Question of Good Roads.

"Permanent Roads" was the subject taken up by the Moncton Board. Mr. Williams dealt with the subject in the absence of Mr. Robinson, president.

He claimed that there was no system in vogue for looking after roads. Most of the supervision of these roads had been left to people who had little knowledge of what good roads meant. Autos and fine vehicles required better roads than old timers. Mr. Campbell, deputy minister of railways, was known as "Good Roads Campbell." In Ontario very practical efforts were being exercised in good road building.

Good roads were vital to good life in business of all kinds. He referred to what motor leagues were doing in the other provinces. Lack of skilled knowledge was the chief fault in New Brunswick. He quoted from a magazine an item stating that immense sums were being spent in New York State.

The great point for good roads was drainage.

He gave details of the condition of the fine roads of France and Britain. Moncton's idea was that the co-operation of the Provincial Government could be obtained and skilled supervision, as well as some funds to make the main roads better. This meant that officers should be employed to see that whatever money was expended should be done wisely, and that repairs should be watched continuously. He hoped the meeting would support the resolution and give it consideration. The resolution was :

"Resolved that in the opinion of this Board it is advisable that the provincial governments of the Maritime Provinces take steps to provide for the establishment of provincial roads between the main centres of the several provinces with a view to having such roads established and maintained of a uniform and permanent nature.

"And further resolved that in the opinion of this Board such roads can best be established and maintained by having them withdrawn from the operation of the ordinary highway acts and placed under the control of a skilled expert or experts by each province."

Strong Plea for Action.

E. Rhodes, M.P., said the resolution was obvious. He traveled all over the provinces.

He did not believe there was a civilized country on earth, that had such poor apologies for roads as the Maritime Provinces. He had seen mud on the roads of Cumberland county nine inches deep, and at certain periods of the year, some farmers were practically marooned.

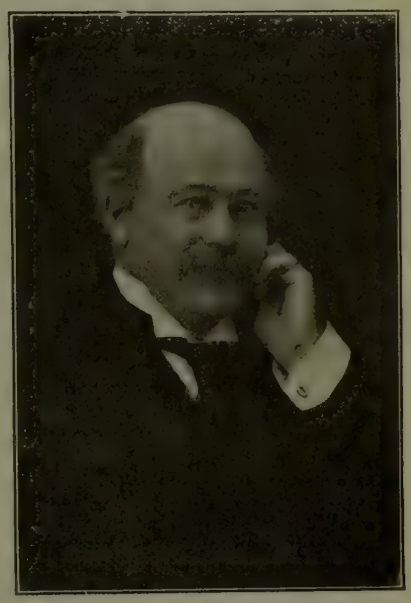
He was astonished that the Maritime people tolerated the road nuisance. If the Maritime Board did nothing else, but to begin a movement to help getting improved highways, it would be a grand blessing. (Applause.)

W. E. Bentley, of Charlottetown, said they had in P.E. Island, practically just what they would have if the resolution passed and materialized. Still that system was not successful. "We have no money to build roads." is usually the cry. How are the roads to be bettered ? Let the Board not stop at this, but go farther and get some means of obtaining money for the roads. Most people were unaware of the need of better roads. It was a matter of education. Why not arrange some means of educating our people ?

Mr. Williams said certainly it was education that was necessary. He advised the utilization of the local press and that would be a beginning. Mr. Paton supported the resolution.

D. F. McLean thought they were all unanimous over good roads being desirable. He suggested that a strong committee be appointed to get an appropriation for roads.

Roads too Narrow.



W. B. Snowball, as a user of roads, both with autos and horses was most interested.

The great fault in New Brunswick was that the roads were far too narrow. He felt sure that any government expenditure would be welcomed which would help for better roads. He agreed that education was the need and recommended the committee idea and hoped the resolution would carry.

The resolution carried unanimously.

Mr. Nicoll then moved that a committee be appointed, including a representation from each province, so that the first resolution might prove effective. Captain Read seconded the motion and it was carried, it being left to the president to choose the committee.

Before bringing up the next question, Mr. Davidson offered apologies on behalf of seven members of the Halifax Board who were detained at home unavoidably.

W. B. SNOWBALL, Chatham, N.B.,

Retiring President of the Maritime Board of Trade.

Quick Mail Despatch.

W. S. Davidson then submitted the following resolution :

"Whereas the Canadian Government pays a very large subsidy for the quick despatch of the English mails to Canada, specifying the speed the steamers shall be capable of, and whereas that portion of the mails for the Maritime Provinces, for the past two years have been subjected to very great delays at Rimouski and Campbellton, during the period from the opening of the Gulf of St. Lawrence route until the second daily through train is put on from Montreal to Halifax, thus defeating the object for which the subsidy is given,

"Be it therefore resolved that the Maritime Board memoralize the Government asking that arrangements be made for the next and subsequent seasons, for the immediate despatch of said mails and passengers by special train during the said period."

He dealt with the delays of mails at Rimouski and other difficulties which were embodied in the motion. There was no special train bringing mails east from Rimouski in summer, while there was a special for the western mail.

Captain Read in seconding the motion said he felt sure more attention should be paid to special trains bringing mails to the east. There was a ridiculous excuse made by one government department to another that they could not afford a special train, etc.

J. L. Stewart, of Chatham, thought that Dr. Robertson's reference to the political efficiency was right as the people got very little to benefit them. He cited a case where a woman from Chatham was detained at Rimouski 24 hours. He heartily endorsed a resolution that would give the public a service they deserved.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Want More Attention.

L. E. Rhodes spoke on the necessity of greater attention being paid to the Maritime Provinces by the Department of Immigration at Ottawa.

He believed a great deal of the tendency of ruination to the Maritime Provinces was that more attention was paid to politics than to the country. It was a delicate matter for himself perhaps as a Tory politician to discuss these questions, but there was in fact no element of partizanship in this matter. He then read a few notes on the beauties and area of the provinces. Mr. Rhodes did not agree with the Lieut,-Governor that the stream of immigration could not be diverted. He believed it could be diverted and they should do it. He quoted an interview given by Beckles Wilson, English journalist who said that in the Dominion Government offices in the Old Country scarcely any data was available about Nova Scotia.

"According to the census of 1901 the population of the Maritime Provinces amounted to 893,953 and of this number all but 14,732 were British born; that is to say, all were British born except 1.6 per cent. and of all the total Maritime population, 93.1 per cent. were born in the Maritime Provinces. Mention is made of this fact to show that it has been little if any disturbed by immigration. Comparing the area of the Maritime Provinces with that England we find Maritime Provinces 51,163; and England 50,903 square miles. Yet England has a population of 605 per square mile and the Maritime Provinces 17 persons per square mile; that is to say, England, with the same area has from 16 to 17 times more people. The significance of these figures, having regard to the future possibilities of this country, must be readily perceived; because in every respect the Maritime Provinces compares favorably with England. Our climate perhaps is not so equable, but we have the advantage in moisture and in quantity of sunlight enjoyed; while comparing our climate with that of Scotland, we perhaps have the advantage in every respect. In natural wealth it is fair to say that we are at least equal in every way.

"To my mind, in many respects we have superior resources. Our soil in many places is of unequal fertility. Under a similar system of cultivation to that employed in England, our fields would yield as plentifully as the richest in England. A practical demonstration of this fact has been afforded in many portions of the provinces. Our average hay crop, with interior cultivation, is the equal of that of the British Isles. Wheat for example, when carefully and properly cultivated, has been known to yield from 40 to 50 bushels to the acre. The fruit growing possibilities of these provinces have been amply demonstrated. For example in the year 1907, one-sixth of the total exports of apples from North America to the United Kingdom went from Nova Scotia alone. Our timber resources are well known. Our mineral wealth shows almost boundless possibilities. Our coal deposits are practically inexhaustible and each year new areas are being discovered. Iron is little less plentiful than coal. The recent developments in Albert County give every every promise of an abundant yield of oil and natural gas. We have gold, silver, lead, manganese and copper. Our fisheries are a great source of wealth and each year grow more profitable. In view of these facts, it must be abundantly evident that we have room for more people and that we would be more prosperous with a larger population.

How to Get the Capital.

"The great question is, how are we to increase our population and thus add to our wealth and prosperity? Could the fact be brought home to the possessors of Old Country capital that we have these tremendous resources, located a full day's journey nearer to them, I believe that a portion of the stream of capital yearly flowing into the Dominion could be turned our way. The time at my disposal and the intelligence of the body which I have the honor to address forbid me to enlarge upon the benefits which would accrue to these provinces by reason of immigration or the influx of new capital and I think I can fairly assumed that the sole question for us to consider is how it is to be secured.

Up to Federal Government.

"In view of the limited resources at the command of the local governments and the fact that the Dominion Government has ample funds, it does seem to me that it alone is the proper agent to bring about this much desired result. A prosperous and contented settler in the Maritime Provinces is as great an asset to Canada as is one located in any of the Prairie Provinces. Then again, the Dominion Government has the machinery at hand and in working order. With little extra effort attention could be paid to securing immigrants for us in common with the whole Dominion. As a business proposition I hold it is the duty of the Dominion Government; as a matter of justice, it is much more so. In the earlier years of Confederation we paid our full portion of the price of confederation in the securing of the addition of the Province of Prince Edwarh Island and British Columbia and of the acquisition of the North West Territories. We sent our men to fight the country's battle during the North West Rebellion; a share of our money went to the building of the Canadian Pacific and more recently to the Grand Trunk Pacific and I firmly believe that we have not in these Maritime Provinces received a fair return for the resources and energy we have expended in the upbuilding of what should be our common country.

"In fact we have been hewers of wood and drawers of water for the whole Dominion. For years an advertising propaganda has been carried on in Great Britain and elsewhere, partly with our money and the fruits have gone towards the building up of other provinces. If this alone were the result, the condition would be regrettable, but by reason of this advertising and the consequent development of the Prairie Provinces our own sons have become unsettled and we have found it difficult to hold our own. It does to me seem extraordinary that all of these years we have remained quiescent while for a period of six months each year a constantly increasing stream of immigration has been passing through our ports of St. John and Halifax and we have hardly lifted a hand to help divert some of it, which is I believe rightly ours.

Themselves to Blame.

"No blame is to be attached to the Dominion Government. I believe we have nobody to blame, if blame there be, but ourselves. The condition thus crudely pointed out is apparent to outsiders."

He then quoted from an interview given recently by Beckles Wilson, journalist and author, to the Amherst Daily News.

"I would suggest," he said, "that an active committee of this Board be appointed to gather statistics and to put the issue in concrete form, acting if possible in conjunction with representatives of the Provincial Governments; and when the matter assumes practical form that it be laid before all the Maritime members of parliament in convention, to the end that the attention of the Dominion Government may be demanded in Parliament."

The following resolution was moved by E. Rhodes, and seconded by H. Logan:

> That this Maritime Board of Trade demands that more attention be paid to the Maritime Provinces by the Immigration Department at Ottawa to the end that these provinces may receive their fair proportion of immigrants coming to Canada.
> And further that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Maritime whips at Ottawa, with the request that the matter may be vigorously dealt with in parliament.

Hance Logan said there was one need that struck him forcibly and that was that the Government of Canada should be reminded that there was an east as well as a west. He did not envy the west. He wanted to know what was practical in this matter. Referring to his farming operations he found it almost impossible to get farm help. He would like to see the intelligent small farmers of central and north of England, of Ireland and of Scotland.

He found the British press was loud in praise of the Maritime Provinces. He did not believe there was a man in the immigration department in London who knew a single thing about the Maritime Provinces. They all lived, moved and had their being, west of Winnipeg.

He suggested that Mr. Rhodes' resolution be brought before the whips at Ottawa, so that something should be done for immigration in the provinces.

Holding What They Had.

Mr. Bentley, of Charlottetown, said that while he admired the resolution they ought to devise some method of keeping their young people from leaving the provinces. That was more vital than getting new people.

He found some of the immigrants from England were unsatisfactory. They were too slow and were unaccustomed to maritime methods of farming. The farmers on the Island who were making money were those who utilized all the products of their land to feed animals and poultry.

English immigrants had come over to the island and some had returned disappointed. It was therefore necessary that all immigrants should be told exactly the conditions existing out here. Every detail must be supplied and then some satisfaction might be obtained.

James Paton said he had gone to meet some of these immigrants. They were good people. No farms had been selected for them and farmers having land to sell, certainly did not lower their prices.

He was glad to say that the majority of the immigrants were delighted with the island. Only a small percentage had been disappointed. He often asked westerners if they were happy in the west. Ten out of twelve told him that they were not pleased with the west. Any man who lived in the beautiful east, and who denounced the provinces, ought to be put in the penitentiary.

He paid a glowing tribute to the provinces and was loudly applauded.

Municipal Indebtedness.

"Municipal Bonded Indebtedness" was the next subject. It was brought forward by the Moncton Board. Mr. Williams referred to the terrible fire at Campbellton, a happy and prosperous town of about 6,000 inhabitants, which in a few hours was a heap of ashes, only 7 or 8 homes being left of what was a busy, thriving place.

"St. John, Quebec, Hull, Windsor and other towns have had their conflagrations," he said, "entailing great destruction of property, but in their cases the destruction was only partial. Larger portions of those towns or cities were saved, and many of their industries untouched, while in the case of Campbellton all were swept away, making the disaster complete.

"Like most modern towns, Campbellton had its water supply, sewerage system, schools, etc., in payment for which a bonded indebtedness of some $300,000 had been incurred, with an annual interest charge of $13,000. With the destruction of the town default had to be made on 1st inst. of payment of the half year's interest on the bonds; and the town is now supplicating the Dominion and Provincial governments to take care of the interest charge, the Dominion $8,000, and the Province $5,000, of the amount, for a period of 15 years, or at least until the town is in a position to assume the interest again.

"Now what has been the fate of Campbellton may at some future time be the fate of Chatham, Newcastle, Moncton or other Provincial towns given the same conditions.

A Remedy Suggested.

"Such being the case, it behooves the business men of these Provinces to give the subject consideration and if possible make provision to meet contingencies of this character. It appears to me that this could be done in the most effectual way by the Province guaranteeing the principal and interest of municipal and school bonds issued under Acts of the Local Legislature. At the present time school districts and small municipal bodies little known in financial centres have to issue bonds bearing a larger rate of interest than those of large centres better known to the financial world, and yet the smaller municipality may be much better security for repayment of the loan than a larger municipality swamped with debt. The Provincial guarantee would tend to place all the municipalities on an equal footing, and enable them to secure loans on much better terms.

"The guarantee fund could be accumulated by setting aside from the proceeds of each loan bearing the Provincial guarantee ¼ or ½ of one per cent. of the principal sum, to be invested and interest added half yearly or yearly. At the maturity of each loan if no call had been made on the fund by the municipality the amount at credit would be paid over.

Would Enhance Bond Value.

"As the Provincial Government's guarantee would enhance the value of municipal bonds more than the ¼ or ½ of one per cent. taken for the guarantee fund, the guarantee practically costs the municipalities nothing.

"If a disaster as far reaching as the Campbellton one occurred in future the guarantee fund could be drawn upon to pay the interest charges until the municipality was in a position to assume its interest charges again, and the money thus advanced would be recouped by the guarantee fund by assessments spread over several years.

"In view of the destruction of the security and the default in payment of interest in the case of Campbellton, it appears to me that provincial towns and cities will in future have a difficulty in floating bonds on as good terms as in recent years unless some satisfactory guarantees can be given.

Sinking Funds.

"Going carefully over the returns issued by the New Brunswick legislature of the bonded indebtedness of towns, cities, and counties, I find that in earlier years the provision relating to sinking funds for paying off the bonds in part or whole at maturity did not obtain, with the result that bonds aggregating upwards of $3,000,000 will have to be renewed in full.

"In Nova Scotia better provision has been made with respect to sinking funds, but there one of its towns is $34,000, and another $9,000 in arrears with these funds.

"Besides the fact that amounts for sinking funds are assessed annually is no guarantee that the amount will be there at the maturity of the bond. When a re-organization of the finances of St. John city took place a few years ago it was found, I think, that several of the sinking funds had been encroached upon to meet emergencies; and I am told that in the case of Campbellton the assessments had been made annually, but the amount treated as current revenues and used to pay current expenses. What has happened in these instances has no doubt occurred in other municipalities as a full investigation, if had, would establish.

More Direct Control.

"A Provincial guarantee would carry with it of necessity a Sinking Fund for each loan and government management of the Sinking Fund.

"From the fact that the New Brunswick government has been called upon to come to the assistance of Campbellton in the way of paying its interest for a term of years seems to me to make the present an opportune time for the several Provincial governments to review the situation with respect to Municipal Bonded Indebtedness and in the interest of the municipalities take a more direct control and supervision of the bond issues."

Shipping at Chatham, N.B., where the Convention was held.

The following resolution was presented:

"Whereas the almost total destruction of the town of Campbellton by fire has removed to a large extent the security on which bonds to the extent of some $300,000 have been issued and has placed it out of the power of that municipality for a number of years to pay the interest charge on same, necessitating an appeal to the Dominion and Provincial governments to assume for a lengthy period the payment of that charge;

"And whereas this disaster may prejudicially affect the sale of municipal bonds in future;

"Therefore be it resolved that it is the opinion of this Board that all future issues of municipal bonds, city, town or county, under authority of the local Legislatures, shall be guaranteed by the special provincial governments, both as to principal and interest; and that a guarantee fund be provided by each province from the proceeds of sale of such bonds to meet calls upon them arising from extraordinary emergencies similar to the Campbellton fire."

Captain Read said the Islanders would never stand for that resolution.

D. A. Morrison spoke in favor of memorializing the government regarding the regulation of bonded indebtedness.

The government should keep a stronger check on the lending of money to towns, etc. The borrowing was an easy matter on bonds and this step if evolved properly would be highly beneficial to the Province.

The following committee was selected by the president to place the matter of good roads before the respective governments:

New Brunswick—F. W. Sumner, F. B. Black, D. P. MacLachlan.

Prince Edward Island—Jas. Paton, J. E. Birch, Captain J. Read.

Nova Scotia—C. E. Bentley, H. A. Logan, A. M. Bell.

The nominating committee was appointed as follows: W. E. Bentley, E. W. Jarvis, C. E. Bentley, Jas. Nicol, Thomas Williams. They were instructed to select officers for ensuing year and report at Thursday's session.

P. E. Island's Problem.

D. W. Bentley then voiced the subject of the Charlottetown board. He detailed many of the difficulties of the Island in the way of transportation. He suggested that a committee should be formed of representatives of the different Provinces who would go before the government, with the claims of the Island. One means of benefiting the different provinces, and of enlarging the efficiency of the Maritime Board was to have a vigorous committee appointed.

Jas. Paton spoke in favor of Mr. Bentley's suggestion and he was sure if the board made it a point of staying with the government till they got what they were after, it would be a blessing to all concerned.

The president called attention to the resolution regarding the betterment of steamship service, which was passed last year, should be reaffirmed as he had a man in sight who was most likely to do something in the way of establishing a service from Chatham to Charlottetown, Summerside and other points. Mr. Bentley said he would be willing to move that the resolution of last year re the steamship service should be reaffirmed.

D. A. Morrison said the resolution looked ridiculous. Few boards would undertake to pay their expenses to Ottawa. The president said the resolution was already carried, but that Mr. Bentley was willing to reconsider it as long as necessary.

HOTEL TOURAINE, Chatham, N.B.,

Where the Banquet given by Lieut.-Governor Tweedie was held.

F. W. Sumner thought a resolution ought to be made to make an appropriation for defraying expenses.

W. S. Loggie thought a committee could be formed of members of Parliament and no outlay would be necessary.

C. E. Bentley also thought the expense part of the resolution was absurd as the board had no funds to send any committee anywhere.

Should Back Up Resolutions.

D. W. Bentley remarked that the whole question was one of expense. If representative business men could not afford to pay expenses to Ottawa then the institution was of little importance. Last year St. John men said the board was engaged in resoluting and it looked that way to him. Surely there was some way of finding the money to back up the resolutions. The expense was an overwhelming thing and so they would eliminate the expense clause.

W. H. Edgett agreed with Mr. Bentley, and that matter of expense was the crux of the situation. Some means of backing up these resolutions must be devised. He agreed also with Mr. Loggie, and suggested a committee of five members of Parliament.

Mr. Davidson said the Halifax Board was paying $60 of the Maritimes Board's revenue and any extra expense would be turned down.

H. Logan sympathized with the resolution and as an experienced parliamentarian he could not agree with Mr. Loggie. There would be no force like the small committee, which would go to Ottawa or elsewhere, much in earnest about the work. Mr. Bentley's resolution re expense was not safe. It would tend to lessen the membership. The president of this board owes the members something. He should be able to go to Ottawa and put the case before the members. He suggested that Mr. Bentley give a notice of motion re the expense side. If the president would not pledge himself to go to Ottawa then they would refuse to elect him.

D. F. McLean, vice-president and by usual order president elect, jumped to his feet and said he agreed with Mr. Loggie in full.

Mr. Bentley then changed his motion as follows:—

Resolved, that the Council of the Maritime Board of Trade be authorized from time to time to appoint a special committee to present to the respective Departments of the Government of Canada such matters advocated by the United Board as are under Federal control.

Moved by W. E. Bentley—seconded by Jas. Paton.

Banquet to the Visitors.

On Wednesday evening His Honor Lieut-Governor Tweedie gave a magnificent banquet at the Hotel Touraine, in honor of the Maritime Board. The dining room was tasefully decorated, and the menu was of the kind that produces good appetites.

His Honor presided. There were a number of short witty speeches and some long ones. The principal toasts were the Dominion of Canada, the Maritime Board and United States. The occasion of the toast to President Taft was the presence of Mr. Adams, of New York, as guest of Mr. Tweedie, and to which he responded.

The speakers included W. S. Loggie, M.P., E. Rhodes, M.P., H. Logan, ex-M.P., D. F. McLean, and W. B. Snowball, the president.

W. F. Sumner proposed a toast to the Lieut-Governor with a vote of thanks which was heartily presented. His Honor gracefully replied.

St. John Board of Trade would most likely have been interested in some of the speeches, as they came in for some criticism.

Good singing, accompanied by an orchestra, combined to make a great success of a signal honor to the visiting delegates. The excellent arrangements made for the banquet were creditably carried out in the capable hands of the Governor's A.D.C., Lieut.-Col. J. D. B. F. Mackenzie.

THURSDAY MORNING SESSION.

The president called the meeting to order at 9.30 when Bonded Indebtedness was the continued subject.

Capt. Read considered that Prince Edward Island could not be induced to take up the matter. If he thought that it would benefit Campbellton or any other town should a similar disaster occur he would assist the matter in every way. He considered that some scheme of municipal insurance could be worked out on a very low rate.

The president proposed a resolution of sympathy for the people of Campbellton.

Regarding the question he (the president) considered it too large to determine quickly. He thought that perhaps Moncton would withdraw it from the present session and give notice it would be brought up at the next.

Mr. Williams considered that the matter should be taken at once, but if desirable would give notice of motion as suggested by the president.

Mr. Bentley (Truro) considered it a very important matter. He thought that if the governments could be induced to guarantee the bonds the scheme would be a good one but feared the political aspect in the matter.

Capt. Read (Summerside, P. E. I.) moved the following resolution:

"Whereas, the local freight rates on the Government Railways are in many cases exorbitant, and ,

"Whereas, the freight rates on goods to and from Prince Edward Island and points on the mainland served by the Government railways are subject to three short haul rates which, when added together, puts the Island province of far removed from the consumers and producers of the sister Maritime provinces in point of cost of transportation as is Ontario, and

"Whereas, the people of the Maritime Provinces freely and generously submitted to the abrogation of canal tolls for the benefit of the Maritime Provinces, including Ontario and Quebec.

"Be it therefore resolved, that the government of the Dominion of Canada be urged to so readjust the rates on the Intercolonial Railway and Prince Edward Island Railway and connecting links as to relieve the unequal burden of transportation suffered by these Maritime Provinces so as to give one long haul rate between points in the Province of Prince Edward Island and the mainland, conforming in a reasonable degree with the long haul rates obtaining on carriage from points in Ontario and Quebec."

This was seconded by D. F. McLean and carried. Capt. Read explained the short haul rates that P. E. I. was obliged to pay and claimed the Island was paying too much in proportion to the other provinces. He made an emphatic speech saying that the East had done a great deal for the West and it was time that the Maritime people got some consideration from the government.

Killing of Sheep By Dogs.

"Dog nuisance in regard to sheep raising," then came up, being brought forward by Bear River, N.S., board.

Mr. Williams explained the damage dogs had done to sheep-raising in his territory near Moncton. He moved the resolution as it appeared on the agenda paper as follows:

"Whereas, sheep-raising was formerly a very important industry in the farming districts of the Maritime provinces;

"And whereas, there is being a largely reduced number of sheep raised than formerly and the reason given for this unfortunate condition is that the ravages of dogs make sheep-raising practically prohibitive.

"Therefore resolved, that the provincial government be urged at their next session to take this matter into consideration and place a suitable tax upon all dogs in the provinces, with the expectation that this course will cause the disposal of many destructive animals.

"It is further resolved, that the several Boards of Trade in these provinces and the Maritime Board of Trade be requested to unite with this board to support this movement in urging this course upon the said Legislatures, and also that the several governments be urged to encourage as far as possible the rais-raising of sheep."

C. E. Bentley spoke in favor of the resolution, and said there were good opportunities for profitable sheep-raising in the provinces.

D. F. McLean handled over a thousand sheep in a year and he sympathized with the resolution.

J. Nichol spoke of the advanced price of lamb and mutton generally.

Relations with the U. S.

"Better trade relations with the United States," was taken up by the Summerside P. E. I. board.

Captain Read led the debate. He said the leader of the Federal government had pronounced his policy in favor of better trade relations already and there was little use of passing the resolution. He believed that reciprocity would be a great blessing for the Maritime provinces, that was provided it was satisfactory and on natural products only. The reason that they had put this subject on the list was because Montreal and other cities had passed resolutions denouncing reciprocity in any form.

He mentioned the unique suitability of potatoes for food and especially were the provinces suitable for growing potatoes.

He spoke at some length pointing out his reasons why reciprocity would be a benefit. He remembered the old reciprocity treaty with the United States. Trade had never been so good since. The population of the Island doubled. Everything was more prosperous. It was simply marvellous the new life that the treaty put into the Maritime Provinces. The time to make a treaty was when the makers were independent.

Mr McArthur, of Summerside, supported Captain Read.

D. W. Bentley read some extracts from the daily press, showing that the matter in the resolution was already arranged by the government.

Captain Read said he thought perhaps is was as well to let the resolution drop.

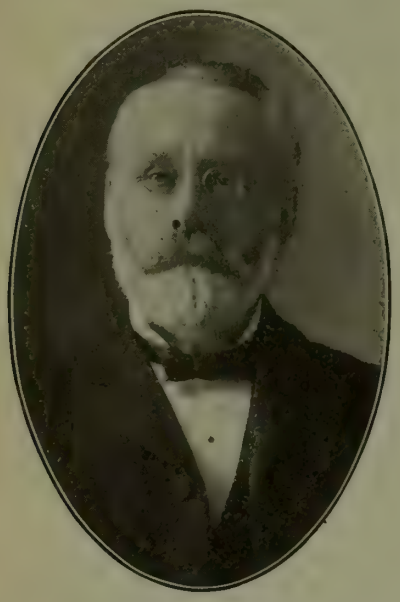
"The protection of inlet and coastal fisheries and the encouragement of the fishery industry" was dealt with briefly by D. F. McLean, Port Hood. He decided, owing to the complexity of the subject, he would leave it over for another meeting.

Protection of Resources.

E. W. Jarvis, Yarmouth, then brought forward the following resolution which was carried:

"Whereas, the conservation of its Natural Resources is of paramount importance to every country, and

"Whereas, the Maritime Provinces possess in their forests, their water powers, their sea fisheries, their inland fisheries, and their game animals and birds, very valuable resources, which have been more or less diminished by unwise and often selfish exploitations, ed together, puts the Island province as vast increase, and



"Whereas, it is a matter of notoriety that in many districts the enforcement of the laws designed for the conservation of the said resources, and especially those relating to the fisheries, has been so wilfully neglected as to have become more or less a farce, and

"Whereas, protecting our country from the ravages of individuals or corporations who, under the pretence of using vested interests may be persisting in courses which must eventually work more harm to it than would its occupation by a hostile army. Is not socialism but the first duty of patriotism?

"Therefore resolved, that in the opinion of this Maritime Board of Trade, much more attention should be given to the protection and development of all our natural resources than they at present receive, keeping in view the great benefit the country will receive from each advance toward the finished product in manufacture within the Maritime Provinces of the products of the said resources, and that all laws on the statute books, designed for their conservation, should be strictly enforced without fear or favor, and that party politics, in or out of Parliament, should not be allowed to interfere with the presevation of our natural resources."

Mr. Jarvis dwelt upon the importance of the conservation of natural resources. He referred to neglect of fishery laws.

In connection with sea fisheries Yarmouth was near, in fact the whole of Nova Scotia was near to the big market of United States. Violations of fishing laws were common, especially the lobster laws. He dealt with many other resources and went fully into the question so elaborately detailed in the resolution.

W. S. Loggie said the fishery question was one that required some explanations It was a tremendous subject. Commissioners have sat and discussed protection to the lobster industry. Perhaps Mr. Jarvis was unaware that a government committee had agreed to repeal the lobster laws as to size limit, excepting St. John County and Charlottetown. The live lobster trade was a big factor. He referred to Captain Wakeham who had taken evidence regarding the live lobster catch. He recommended that the canning industry be abolished west of Halifax and the size limit of lobsters be nine and a half inches.

The department authorized inspectors last year to measure lobsters. The result was that it was recommended to abolish the size limit with the exceptions noted. He thought the Federal Minister's hands should have been strengthened by resolutions from local boards of trade. A great amount of time had been given by the government to the lobster question. He believed that after January, 1911, some new laws would be enforced by the government, regarding catching lobsters in the spawn.

Mr. Jarvis said what was wrong with the fishery troubles was the same as in the case of the roads—it was party politics. What Mr. Loggie said emphasized more than anything else that they must see to it that legislation be enforced to protect all natural industries.

Mr. Jarvis read a telegram from the Yarmouth Board of Trade asking that the next meeting should be at that place.

To Moncton Next Year.

Mr. Williams invited the board to Moncton. He was supported by Mr. Edgett who urged that the meeting should be held in New Brunswick.

D. F. McLean offered his invitation to Port Hood.

H. Logan said he would like to have the board meet in Amherst but he recommended that Moncton for special reasons be selected as the next meeting place. Mr. Logan made a motion to this effect, and was seconded by Mr. Jarvis, and it carried.

New Officers Elected.

The nominating committee then made its report as follows:—

President, W. F. Sumner, Moncton, N.B.; first vice-president, Capt. Augustus Cann, Yarmouth, N.S.; second vice-president, James Paton, Charlottetown;

R. A. SNOWBALL,

Mayor of Chatham, N.B., who Extended a Cordial Welcome to the Delegates.

corresponding-secretary, Lea B. Read, Moncton; secretary, Thos. Williams, Moncton.

This report was adopted.

It was decided that letters should be drafted to the different affiliated boards asking them to reaffirm the resolutions passed at the Maritime board.

D. F. McLean moved, seconded by Captain Read that votes of thanks be accorded the Chatham Board of Trade, the Mayor, and the Press generally for all courtesies.

Captain Read referred to the sacrifice made by D. F. McLean, 1st vice-president in giving up the presidency under the circumstances.

There were many peculiar circumstances which made it necessary to have the board's chief officers come from New Brunswick.

Mr. McLean said he was only too delighted to make the sacrifice in favor of the Maritime Board.

The president paid a compliment to acting secretary Saunders, of Halifax.

A vote of thanks was tendered Past President W. B. Snowball. It was moved by W. S. Davidson seconded by J. Paton.

Mr. Sumner, who had been absent for a time was found and absolutely declined the position of president of the Maritime Board of Trade. He could not undertake the position in justice to the board and he did not think he would be in Canada next year. He appreciated the honor.

The nominating committee was called upon to get together and select a new president. They returned shortly with a new man chosen, in the person of Captain J. E. Masters, of Moncton, in the place of Mr. Sumner.

Motion to Raise Fee.

Mr. Bentley, of Charlottetown, gave notice of motion that next year the fee be raised to fifty cents per capita.

The board of delegates rose in a body and sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," in honor of the retiring president, W. B. Snowball.

Mr. Snowball replied briefly saying he had done his best to promote the interests of the board.

New President Takes the Chair.

Captain Masters, the new president was called to the chair.

He appreciated the unexpected honor and said that whatever time he could give to the board would be freely at its disposal. He had taken part in founding the first Board of Trade in Moncton. He believed with the assistance of the other officers that great work could be accomplished in the next year. The board would go on to bigger things, and he hoped that all the big boards would come back again making one big, harmonious success.

Hance Logan made a speech of compliment generally on conclusion, noting that a fine set of new officers were chosen; better, bigger subjects were dealt with and a splendid new life seemed looming up for the Maritime Board of Trade. He believed they should unite to make Moncton meeting the best on record. He moved, seconded by Captain Read that a vote of thanks be put on record to His Honor, the Lieut.-Governor, for his splendid banquet given Wednesday evening.

On Thursday afternoon the Chatham Board of Trade took the visitors on a delightful trip down the Miramichi River. Refreshments, music and speeches lent an attraction to the outing and the members and guests returned to the city, pleased with the open-handed hospitality of the Chatham officials.

HEARD ON THE SIDE.

Captain Read is the greatest master of hundred million figures that ever happened. He was a splendid force at the meeting and also at the banquet. It was a pity that some of those speeches at the banquet could not be published verbatim. Some of the speakers would never believe they said it.

The Snowball family seemed to be in pleasant evidence. R. A., the mayor, was waiting on the guests on the steamer like a hero. He is a fine example of a good fellow and his brother, the past president of the board, had hard work keeping up with him.

Mr. Benson, of the Commercial, is a princely entertainer and was a power of help to President Snowball in the way of driving guests about the pretty places every day.

Colonel Mackenzie, A.D.C. to the Lieut.-Governor, is also one who deserves great praise for his thoughtful carrying out of the Governor's wishes not only at the banquet, but in every little detail.

Moncton next. President Masters is a strong character and he is promising great things. Although Moncton is inland, they have many attractions that are sure to please.

Hance J. Logan and E. Rhodes the M.P. for Cumberland, were fine representatives and livened up everything by their speeches and knowledge of parliamentary procedure.

Secretary Saunders, of the Halifax board, won golden opinions. He is an experienced organizer and deserves credit for taking over the work of the late lamented Charles Creed at short notice.

The St. John board sent a strong letter but not one word was uttered aye, yes or no and this was the finest of taste. If any member of the St. John board were present, he would surely have admired the attitude of every one of the delegates. No unkindness was heard, no extravagant speeches—in fact, just silence.

D. B. Bentley, of Charlottetown, is one of the ablest young men who ever addressed the board. His speaking ability ought to find its appreciation in some good parliamentary honor.

W. B. Snowball is the most fluent speaker in Canada, it is said, outside of W. S. Fielding and others, but he speaks at the rate of 200 words a minute and says something all the time. They say he is to be the next candidate for political honors in the Federal House. Who knows?

W. S. Loggie is a cool deliberate speaker and as M.P. for Northumberland and a descendant of one of the finest old Scotch families in Canada, and whose great grandfather founded Loggieville, acted with the greatest modesty. Chatham has some fine business men. All speakers.

Lieut.-Governor Tweedie was voted a princely entertainer and the Maritime board certainly was never more royally entertained.

A Pen Picture of Manitoba Crops by a Staff Traveler

By M. Moyer.

When I reached Manitoba about seven weeks ago I traveled for several weeks in the southern part of it. From the appearance there, it would lead an eastern man who is used to small things to come to the conclusion that the entire western wheat crop was a failure.

Notwithstanding the fact that for at least a hundred miles, the crops were burnt up from the excessive heat and drought, this sinks into insignificance when you travel through hundreds and hundreds of miles of prairie where, in some places, the crops are excellent and on the whole are fairly good.

While there are localities here and there for miles in southern Manitoba that are looking well, the most of it is not worth cutting until you get west of Souris and then it gradually improves. When you reach Regina you find one of the best crops they ever had. Again from Regina all along the main line of the C.P.R. east as far as Portage La Prairie or in fact to Winnipeg there is comparatively little grain that will not be cut.

It may also be a surprise to those who are not familiar with the western conditions that even in southern Manitoba all along the railway lines there are thousands of acres which never have been touched with the plow.

With all the drought in many parts, the district north of Portage La Prairie to Gladstone and farther north has had plenty of rain and the crops are above an average yield. Binders are busy and what a few days ago was a vast sea of wheat is now changed to countless shocks which are again rapidly disappearing to build up the stacks ready for the thresher. All through to Neepawa and Minnedosa, the place from which I am writing, the country is in good shape, the farmers are busy, and the merchants look forward to a good fall trade.

Chatham, N.B., an Important Industrial Centre

Has Splendid Shipping Facilities — Lumbering is the Most Prominent Industry—A Delightful Residential Town.

Staff Correspondence.

Chatham, N.B., Aug. 26.—Chatham, where the Maritime Board of Trade held its sixteenth annual meeting, is the largest town in the northern half of New Brunswick. It is admirably located at the threshold of the Miramichi, tapping the largest lumber producing region of the province. It offers good facilities for all industries directly or indirectly allied to the trade.

Chatham has fine deep water facilities and when the deep dredging is complete it will be a port worthy of call for the largest ocean traffic. In fact in the exportation of lumber and other kindred products, including pulp-wood, Chatham has risen to be the third largest exporting port of New Brunswick, and in this special line is surpassed only by the commercial capital of the Province—St. John.

The population is only six thousand, but the variety of manufacturing plants located in the town is so great that one would think it had four or five times the population. Within a radius of two miles of the town there are two large pulp mills—The Miramichi Pulp & Paper Co., and the Dominion Pulp Co.'s mill, employing the year round four hundred men. Four lumber mills, including the J. B. Snowball Co.'s plant, the Miramichi Lumber Co.'s saw-mill (formerly the Hutchinson mill), the Damery & MacDonald's mill, and the Lyman mill, operated by the J. B. Snowball Co.

Two wood-working factories, those of the John A. MacDonald Co. and Walsh Bros., have large outputs and are to be further extended and equipped.

The Miramichi Lumber Co. also operates two large rossing-mills, the output of these mills being so large that a pulp mill is employed requiring twelve hundred men.

Directly opposite the town is the shingle mill of Turnbull and Monroe; and right in the town itself are two foundries—The Miramichi Foundry & Machine Works and the Miller Foundry.

In addition to these the W. S. Loggie Co. own a fish packing and canning factory, as well as a freezing plant. The fishing industry upon which this and other canneries depend for their supplies is also of great importance and contributes largely to the wealth of the inhabitants. Spring fishing alone, extending from January to March, is worth thirty thousand dollars to the fishermen outside of those who work in the canning-factories or are otherwise engaged. The principal fish include smelts, salmon, bass, tom-cods, as well as the crustaceous clams and lobsters. The oyster output is also considerable, second only to P.E.I.

At present the Dominion Government is being tendered for the entrance of the railway into the town, same being a new route which will open up to deep-water frontage a large stretch of land heretofore almost untouched by railway facilities. The manufacturing possibilities are great. The authorities are willing to give all possible encouragement to all industries locating there and even in the event of no exemption being given, taxation is light, the assessment being made on a low rate. The action of the Federal Government in putting the I.C.R. through the town is considered one of the greatest accomplishments that could befall the town. W. S. Loggie, the member for Northumberland, is given a great deal of credit for getting the railway to Chatham, he having considerable influence.

Chatham is the divisional point of the public works department in the northern and eastern portions of New Brunswick. It has handsome churches, good schools (a new grammar school having been erected recently), splendid bank buildings, good newspapers and fine exhibition grounds. Several amusement houses are in the town and the Miramichi Natural History Association is a wide-awake body. It has a fine museum and has recently completed the building and furnishing of a large edifice. Hotel Dieu is one of the best equipped hospitals in the province and a new addition has recently been made to it. As a place of residence, Chatham is delightful. Located on the southern slope of the Miramichi river about twenty-five miles from the Gulf, gives it immunity from fog, and insures it enjoyable warmth and cool nights.

The Miramichi Steam Navigation Co. have an ample service during the summer months, both up and down the river, giving a frequent service between Newcastle, Douglastown, Nelson and Chatham. The hotels of the town are all good.

Father Morriscy's Remedies.

The terror of medical practitioners all over the world to-day is what is known as indigestion. A man is just as strong as his stomach. Ninety per cent. of the ills of life are attributed to stomach troubles of some description. A happy, clear headed person at once signifies a healthy, well regulated stomach. Often the nostrums of the fakir take the eye of the ignorant but experience alone is the teacher as to each respective stomach. Many years ago there lived in Chatham, at Barti-bogue, a good priest, who ministered to the spiritual wants of his people and went further by treating them for physical disabilities largely with the stomach complaints. This priest was Rev. Father Morriscy, who became so fascinated with the comfort he was able to give his patients that he studied the theory of medical therapeutics and materia medica with startling results. He made with his own hands some tablets which he called No. II. Thousands of people used his remedy for the stomach illness. He received grateful letters from all parts which since his death have been published. To-day No. II is known in the four corners of the universe as Father Morriscy's remedies. One tablet will digest one and three quarters pounds of beef, which is more than the average person can consume at one meal. The insufficiency of the digestive fluids which causes indigestion, is overcome by these tablets which supply in a natural way just what is wanting. When the famous priest died he left his secrets to the Hotel Dieu of Chatham. The sisters were given control of the remedies and now a strong company has been formed with capable men at the head who are disseminating the splendid cures for indigestion all over the world. The company is known as the Father Morriscy Medicine Co. and is located in a handsome brick building in the town near where the magnanimous priest lived serving as monument to his life of sacrifice and holiness. To-day the management of the company is entrusted to Lieut.-Col. J. D. B. F. Mackenzie, one of the most prominent citizens of the town. He is A.D.C. to Lieut.-Governor Tweedie and during the stay of the Maritime Board in Chatham was prominently identified with the entertainment given the delegates by the governor. Mr. Mackenzie holds a commission in the local militia. He is a member of the local Board of Trade and is a progressive, wide awake citizen.

Father Morriscy was a native of Halifax, N.S. The church which was his at Barti-bogue is still standing about six miles from Chatham and it was pointed out to the Maritime Board when they made a trip down the Miramichi.

W. S. Loggie & Co., Limited.

One of the leading merchants and most prominent citizens of Chatham is W. S. Loggie, member of the Federal House for Northumberland County and head of a large canning industry, including preserving hermetically sealed fresh canned lobsters and blueberries, using Golden Crown and Golden Keys trade marks on lobsters and Golden Diamond brand on blueberries; also catchers and packers of frozen sea fish.

The wholesale dry goods department is an important branch distributing goods to the surrounding counties by means of traveling salesmen.

A general warehousing business is done also.

The name Loggie is so strongly interlaced with the country that a few miles from Chatham is the town of Loggieville, named after the family. W. S Loggie is a member of one branch of this family. He began the canning of lobsters in a comparatively small way many years ago and has steadily grown from year to year. The secret of his success has been based almost exclusively on putting quality into the package canned. Every modern facility for improving the lobster packing and catching was carefully watched by Mr. Loggie in person. He enlarged his factory as his goods became more popular and added the canning of blueberries to his work, which was carried on on the same high plane of superiority. In fact the name of "Loggie" on a package at once is a testimony to its quality. The brands "Golden Keys" and "Golden Crown" lobsters and "Golden Diamond" blueberries are known all over the world. Another branch of W. S. Loggie's manifold interests is a splendid freezing plant which he has built at great cost in the town. The capacity of the plant is very great and to illustrate that they have now in storage about twenty tons of smelts. Mr. Loggie was six years ago elected member of the Federal House.

A. & R. Loggie, of Loggieville., N. B.

Five miles down the beautiful Miramichi river from Chatham lies the thriving town of Loggieville. Fully ninety per cent. of the business of the place is owned or controlled by A. & R. Loggie, who without the slightest exaggeration have an immense organization. Their handsome general store is what first strikes the visitor. The store stretches along about a length of 500 feet and is a hive of activity. Everything imaginable in dry goods, groceries, produce, hardware, boots and shoes and toilet requisites, is carried and thousands of things impossible to detail here. Then they have their own post office right in the building, own private telephones, all the latest cash carrier systems and handsomely equipped offices. This however is merely a beginning. Glancing about within a stone's throw are immense buildings including a can-making factory where millions of cans of all sizes and shapes are made for their immense fishing industries. There are warehouses of many sizes stretching away over hundreds of acres all needed in this manifold industry. The large saw and lumber mills cover a wharf frontage on the Miramichi of a quarter of a mile while of course for miles the front is owned by the Loggies. All the latest machinery is employed in the mills and anything in lumber may be obtained here from the tiniest shook box wood to the largest spruce lumber which is so much prized in the Old Country. Warehouses and wharves and sidings of railway cars all at their doors make this place a small country in itself, with life and character and tone all its own. Their great business is as dealers in all kinds of fish, fresh and frozen, and packers of the "Eagle" brand of canned goods, lobsters, blueberries and clams.

Nova Scotia's Capital and its Trade Importance

A Business Awakening There and Trade is Excellent—Beauties of the Historic Capital—An Educational Centre of Outstanding Prominence—An Active Board of Trade.

Staff Correspondence.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 25.—A business awakening has taken place in Halifax. The doings of the past with those military traditions have now faded and the business men are developing a belief in activity generally. A large percentage of the business men of Halifax are wealthy. It has become their hope to take life easy, devoting a large portion of their time to the enjoyment of life. Everywhere reports are that business is good in Halifax this year, and this is only a reflection of the conditions existing all over the Maritime Provinces. The city itself is noted for its magnificent harbor; the shipping facilities are good and the local authorities offer encouragement to all new industries.

The newest thought of stimulant which has struck Halifax is the taking over by the C. P. R. of the Dominion Atlantic Railway. This has engendered a new hope everywhere, based on the assumption that the great Canadian railway, which has made the west, will whip new life into the east. Halifax is the centre of probably the finest educational facilities in Canada. It has splendid schools, all equipped for the best of education; they include military schools, business colleges, medical schools, two theological schools, two conservatories of music, the Ladies' College, seven convents and a university for higher education.

The port is open in winter, and the accommodation is excellent. At the Maritime Board this year mention was made on the movement on the part of the C. P. R. to get hold of the D. A. R. No reference to the eastern provinces could be made without mentioning the beauty of the Halifax harbor and the city. The public gardens are said to be unequalled anywhere; they cover seventeen acres, and a magnificent display of flowers and trees delights the eye.

The Northwest Arm is one of the most delightful spots in the world, where can be seen bathing and other sports for young and old throughout the season. The Waegwltic Club have developed a strong social establishment and privileges are made more difficult to obtain than formerly, thus giving an exclusive tone which will be the making of the club. Halifax is essentially a city of tone everywhere, and the wealthy class is notable to all visitors.

The Board of Trade.

The Halifax Board of Trade is one of the most active in Canada. It is well illustrated by the fact that in a city of slightly over a population of 50,000 there is a board of about 600 persons. They have moved their attractive quarters down the street, and Mr. Saunders, the secretary, is still in charge. He has added to his duties, temporarily, lately, those of the secretary of the Maritime Board of Trade.

Moirs Limited.

Moirs Limited is one of the most thoroughly up-to-date confectionery and manufacturing houses in Canada. The business began in a small way, covering the Maritime Provinces, which has grown and under good management they have gone over a large territory, and now sell all over Canada. They have been exceedingly successful in the west, and especially in Montreal and western cities. They manufacture, in addition to confectionery, many varieties of biscuits of excellent quality, all backed by guarantee. The plant is modern in every particular, and is fitted with the latest machinery required in their business. They make a splendid variety of holiday goods, and travelers are now out for this trade. Some novelties will be available.

I. C. R.'s Halifax Man.

During the first week in August there was a quietness about the I. C. R. offices in Halifax which was noticeable because the assistant passenger agent, J. B. Lambkin, generally known as "Jim," was absent. On the first Saturday of the month he returned from Newfoundland, where he had been with a party of Methodist ministers, and he was welcomed heartily by a number of friends. "Jim" Lambkin is still making friends, and he seems to look younger for it. On the train, returning from Newfoundland, he was presented with an elaborate testimonial, signed by every one of the ministers present, telling Mr. Lambkin how much they appreciated his thoughtfulness. This is not wonderful when it is remembered that Mr. Lambkin was in the employ of the C. P. R. and has received testimonials from royalty there, as well as from Li Hung Chang, the Chinese celebrity, and hundreds of others all over the world.

Cox & Graham.

"Tip Top" is the name of a new tea which has been put on the market in Halifax. The firm is composed of two experts. L. Cox has been employed by T. H. Estabrooks, St. John, and H. Graham has been over 20 years in the tea business. They are importers and blenders, and are handling about 3,000 pounds of tea a day, so that they cover the province thoroughly. Both members of the firm have a strong connection in trade. Mr. Cox is a curler of repute, and is active with the prominent social life of both Halifax and St. John.

Wood & Sons, Sackville, N.B.

The wholesale grocery store of Wood & Sons was established by the grandfather of the present owner of the business, away back in 1828. His name was Mariner Wood. His son, Senator Josiah Wood, continued the business for many years, and he has been succeeded by H. M. Wood. They carry on a wholesale job business all over the provinces, and have made a specialty of quality in all their groceries. They have a branch at Sydney, Cape Breton, which goes under the name of Wood & McConnell. They make a specialty of covering the Provinces of New Brunswick and Cape Breton. They are large exporters of hay, and have a strong connection at all points in the Old Country, as well as in the States.

About the Capital of the "Garden of the Gulf"

Charlottetown is Recognized as One of the East's Most Beautiful Cities—Dairying One of the Island's Prominent Industries—No Automobiles Allowed There.

Staff Correspondence.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Aug. 26.—Charlottetown is known as one of the most beautiful cities in the Maritime Provinces. It is the third in size of the eastern cities and is admirably located on the sheltered side of Prince Edward Island. It was in 1768 that Morrison Deschamps founded the place, and it was incorporated in 1855. The harbor is one of the finest in the world. It is open to the ocean and is located at the confluence of three rivers—York, Eliot and Hillsboro. The island is well named "The Garden of the Gulf," and Charlottetown is the capital of the "Garden" Province. It is also the principal city and a thriving business is carried on during the summer months. Steamship service is adequate, and it is the headquarters of the Charlottetown Steam Navigation Co., whose boats ply between the island and the mainland. It is a regular Mecca for tourists and for half a century it has been known as one of the healthiest spots in Canada. Tourists flock to the island in increasing numbers every year. Everywhere it has a beautiful appearance, and the town itself is a "garden" indeed. It is so surrounded by water that it is never hot, even in the extreme heat of summer weather. All the streets are regularly laid out and are lined with trees. In the heart of the city are public gardens, which are a credit to the city. Good lighting system, the best of water, and modern sanitation make Charlottetown an ideal place to live in.

An attractive place in the neighborhood, is Warren's Farm, near Rocky

The Riley Building, owned by Wholesale Manufacturers of Tobacco, T. B., & D. J. Riley, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Point, just opposite the city, and within a few minutes' trip by ferry. This was formerly Point LaGoie, the former capital and residence of famous French officers under the French regime. This fort was first settled by the French in 1720; but was allowed to decay. In 1749 the fort was revived and new buildings erected. The principal fort, which was designed and laid out by the French, and afterwards made over by the English, was called Fort Amherst. Victoria Park is one of the finest to be seen anywhere, having an area of 60 acres. From Fort Edwards, located in the park, a fine view of the harbor and the rivers is available. For automobiling, the beautiful drives would be attractive, but for some reason, wise or otherwise, these are entirely forbidden on the island. Splendid golf links are located near the town, and the local Scotchmen claim that they are only surpassed by the St. Andrew's links in the Old Country.

Carvell Bros.

Carvell Bros. have one of the oldest established and representative grocery houses in the east. Their headquarters is located on Queen Street, and is a scene of activity at all times. A specialty is made of high-grade goods at reasonable prices, and a guarantee is always given of prompt delivery. A competent staff of travelers is always kept on the road, and a large range of staple and fancy groceries is carried.

W. H. Aitken is head of the firm, and is actively interested in the city's welfare at all times. He is a member of the council and local Board of Trade.

J. A. Farquaharson & Co.

J. A. Farquaharson, son of the former Premier Farquaharson, is head of one of the most extensive business ventures in the city. He carries on a wholesale grocery business, as well as being a large exporter of eggs and produce. He represents a special brand of flour called "Five Diamonds," and also sells a large variety of fruit and specially prepared articles in the way of delicacies for the table; a specialty being made of jams and other kindred preparations. He is a large exporter of eggs to Upper Canada, as well as to England. In connection with this work he has an excellent cold storage room with a large capacity. He deals extensively in potatoes, hay and oats, and has several warehouses for this trade. Mr. Farquaharson is a young man closely identified with the best interests of the city, and is a thoroughly representative business man.

Charlottetown Condensed Milk Co., Ltd.

One of the notable industries of Charlottetown, and, in fact, the Maritime Provinces and of Canada, is the Charlottetown Condensed Milk Co., Ltd. The factory is a large, well-equipped building beautifully located about a mile out of the city in one of the prettiest spots to be found anywhere. It is in the heart of the finest dairying section of the whole Dominion, ensuring a steady supply, winter and summer, of rich, pure, new milk from farmers who are expert dairymen, and who make a specialty of raising milch cows. The plant is equipped with all the latest machinery for use in a condensed milk factory, which means that the milk does not experience the touch of human hands from start to finish. This assures perfect cleanliness. The leading brands are Canadian Milk, Oak Coffee and Empress Cream. These are all sold under the guarantee of the company, and the 15-ounce tins are unsurpassed anywhere for neatness, convenience of size and copious lasting quality. The company was founded many years ago, and has developed, by careful management, to be one of the representative Canadian manufacturing plants.

The president is Francis L. Hazard, who is not only Premier of P. E. I., but is one of the ablest public men in the east. He has always been identified with the best interests of the island, and his family are among the most honored and capable in the east.

H. Winchester is the general manager, and he is a keen, careful, expert in this business.

The Condensed Milk Co. is composed also of prominent business men of Charlottetown, including S. W. Crabbe, N. Rattenbury, A. E. Ings, F. Bovyer, and is in every way a credit to the city.

St. John's Method of Obtaining New Industries

Exemption From Taxes and Nominal Rental Charged Providing They do Not Conflict With Present Industries—Shipping Facilities Good.

Staff Correspondence.

St. John, N. B., Aug. 25.—St. John is known as one of the leading business cities of the east. Why this knowledge was established is based on the enterprise and energy of her merchants and manufacturers. The city is the terminus of two great trunk railways—the Canadian Pacific and Intercolonial—with another, the G. T. Pacific soon to be installed there. It has excellent river navigation, and is the great Atlantic winter port of the Dominion. Raw materials can easily be obtained and the finished product shipped under the best conditions. The climate is healthy and the long cool summers attract tourists. The local authorities invite industries of all descriptions and offer generous inducements to manufacturers to locate in the city.

To new industries coming to the city which do not conflict with those existing, St. John has power to lease land at a nominal rental and to exempt them from taxation for ten years. Some of the industries which at present have to do with the advancement of the city are the manufacturing of cotton, the pulp industry, lime quarry, fruit and produce trade and the fishing industry. Many varieties of wholesale trade are carried on, the leading factors being hardware and grocery lines.

G. E. Barbour & Co.

One of the leading wholesale grocers in the Maritime Provinces, is G. E. Barbour & Co., St. John. This firm has won the name of being one of the easiest and most satisfactory with whom to do business in the east. They make a point of quality in all their various products and guarantee satisfaction. They are importers and dealers of sugar, molasses, fish, flour, provisions and fruits, staple and fancy groceries. They are manufacturing flower extracts, icings and grocery specialties. In addition to this they are wholesale exporters of "Gold Bond" canned goods, "Hartley" jams and marmalade, "Goodwillies" fruits, "Leas" home-made pickles, "Pride of Canada" maple goods. Their watchword is quality and quality again and their slogan is to the effect that grocers who build their trade on the sound foundation of quality will reap their reward in the continuance of satisfied customers. It is always a pleasure to do business with the Barbour Co. One of the characteristics of the house is unfailing courtesy.

Thomas McCready & Sons.

One of the finest vinegar factories in the Dominion is that of Thos. McCready & Sons, of St. John. They also manufacture pickles and spices and make a specialty of the purest cider vinegar; they claim it is the best on the market. It is over a quarter of a century since this business was founded and it ranks in the front of the vinegar industry. They make Worcester sauce, fruit syrups and mustards, all of which have a growing trade all over Canada. The plant has been extensively enlarged during the past year and the capacity much increased, while the shipping facilities have been improved. Much of the success of the business is due J. C. McCready, general manager and secretary. He is a hard worker and takes great pains to satisfy his customers.

The White Candy Co.

The White Candy Co., has survived all its competitors in St. John, and notwithstanding the new concerns which bob up occasionally, striving to rival it, this organization has won its way. Their success is due to good management and the particular knowledge of the candy business possessed by Thomas White, the owner. Mr. White has especially a reputation for reliability and quality and this means much in the candy business. The firm makes a large variety from cheapest penny goods to the more expensive boxes and holiday goods. Purity in the manufacturing and fair dealing at all times are the characteristics of the house. Mr. White has considerable ambition to expand his business and if the promised co-operation of St. John business men is carried into effect, the White Candy Co., will be one of the greatest candy businesses in Canada. Certainly The Grocer joins in wishing Mr. White good luck in his new venture.

The Harris Grocery House.

The name of Harris means much in Moncton and the vicinity. Not one citizen who knows anything of the city but knows what the elder Mr. Harris did for Moncton. John L. Harris' name is interlaced with the water works, the sugar refinery, the cotton mills, the Board of Trade and the modern comforts of the place which now do it so much credit. It would take long to detail the history of the distinguished gentleman whose family in different branches are identified with different successes in the locality. It is of the grocery house of J. H. Harris which we wish to speak here.

The head of the business is familiarly known in Moncton as "Jack" Harris who started the present wholesale business some sixteen years ago.

The business is marked by progressiveness in every department. A general wholesale trade is done all over the provinces and it has steadily grown from year to year, thanks to the capacity and energy of Mr. Harris himself. He makes a specialty of quality in all goods and of prompt accurate deliveries. It is no trouble to guarantee his goods to be just as represented because he supervises everything in person. The headquarters of the firm are admirably located in a large stone building of their own on the main street and from basement to attic it is fitted up with every modern convenience for carrying on a large and growing business. A staff of travelers is kept on the road and owing to the central location of Moncton an excellent delivery service to all parts of the province is one of the strong features of this business. Mr. Harris is identified with all the movements of Moncton and the East, which make for the betterment of the people. He is active and alive and is easily one of the leading merchants of the provinces.

Reed Co., Limited.

One of the thriving and up-to-date wholesale grocery houses in the eastern provinces is that of Reed Co., Limited, Moncton, N.B. The original firm was established in 1891, and the original founder has long since passed away. One of the partners, J. W. Y. Smith, and a traveler for the house, J. F. Edgett, latterly formed a stock company, and have carried on the strong connections of the founders in a most aggressive and capable manner. New life has been whipped into the concern from one end of it to the other, and even some of the young ladies in the employ have stock and are active officials of the directorate. A straight wholesale grocery business is conducted, including a number of fine agencies that are accessory to up-to-date groceries. A specialty is made of attention to the smallest detail of an order and no matter what the order is, a complete personal supervision is guaranteed. No actual or possible customer has reason for complaint because prompt, polite and expeditious attention is given to everyone. In Moncton the house is known for its variety of stock and its progressiveness generally. The individual members of the firm are identified with the best interests of the city, and the province—in fact, the whole eastern section of Canada. Mr. Edgett was for years a commercial traveler and has a grasp of the exact business peculiarities of the east. Mr. Smith is prominent in social and business circles. Both are keen, energetic and popular.

Chatham Merchants Close Their Doors for the Big Picnic

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 25.—Tuesday, August 16, was the date, and Erie Beach—the popular summer resort within an hour's ride of the Maple City—was the scene of the third annual Chatham merchants' picnic. Upwards of 2,000 people from the city and surrounding country attended the big event, which grows in popularity every year.

At 12 o'clock practically every store in Chatham closed for the balance of the day. This was followed by the parade, headed by the Kent Mills band, from the market square to the C. W. & L. E. depot, where the merchants and their friends were entrained for Erie Beach. Here cool breezes, bathing, boating and other attractions were supplemented by a goodly programme of sports, entries in the latter being encouraged by a liberal prize list.

A Close Ball Game.

An outstanding feature of the programme was the five-inning baseball game between the grocers and a picked nine from the other clerks. Lenover, on the slab for the grocers, pitched a winning game, save for the first innings, when the picked nine secured their two runs. Harry Johns twirled for the latter, the grocers securing their lone tally in the third session. In the final innings, it looked as if the grocers might pull a win out at the last moment. They succeeded in getting three on bases, but with two out the next batter hit a weak grounder to second for the third out. H. G. Hodges held the indicator. Following were the teams:

Grocers—Hillman, c; Lenover, p; McQuaig, 1b; Burr, ss; Jewess, 2b; Gillies, 3b; E. Wanless, m; Johnson, r; McDonald, l.

Each team fell heir to a box of 50 cigars.

A lacrosse contest between those oft-matched and well-matched opponents, Blenheim and Chatham, ended in a tie.

Some Lucky Winners.

A host of races, including a race to see which of a number of contestants could down the largest amount of pie in the briefest space of time, contributed their quota of amusement and excitement to the jolly afternoon. There were lots of competitors. F. H. Brisco captured first in the fat man's rate, Mr. Glover and Harry Jacques taking second and third. First place in the merchants' race ensured Percy Parrott a new pair of trousers, while E. C. Brisco's countenance will adorn some handsome photos, and E. J. Wanless will smoke the pipe of peace as a result of capturing second and third. Among the drivers, Campbell, Hyslop and Smith romped home in the order named. Winners in the clerks' race were Brisco, Broad and Burr—three B's.

Tea and coffee were served free on the grounds by the merchants. Several merchants treated their clerks to launch rides on the lake, while on all sides the spirit of fraternity and good will was manifest.

Ald. Wm. Potter, the Queen Street grocer, was the head of the committee in charge of the big event, to whom, and to his capable and hustling fellow-workers, all praise is due for the success of the event, which is rapidly coming to be the one great event of the year for Chathamites. Financially, the R. M. A. will benefit considerably, though the picnic aims solely to provide a big, wide-open day of enjoyment for merchants, clerks and customers.

Work in the Hands of the British Columbia R.G.A.

This Association has Been Taking up Protected Prices, Competition of Peddlers and the Question of Wholesalers Selling to Consumers—Wholesale Trade Promise to Distribute to Retailers Only — Organizing Against Delinquents — Address of the Secretary.

Vancouver, B.C., August 25.—The opening day of Vancouver's first exhibition was marked by the holding of the third annual convention of the British Columbia Retail Grocers' Association, and so pleased were the delegates with the treatment they received that they decided to hold next year's event at the same time and place, turning down the applications of Victoria and Nanaimo. The association represents a membership of several hundred retailers and nearly 250 were present on Monday.

The address of welcome was delivered at the morning session by F. W. Welsh, of Vancouver, and at the same time he introduced Lovatt M. Wood, editor of the Trade Register, Seattle, who on different occasions has addressed the grocers in this city.

Report of The Secretary.

R. D. Dinning, secretary of the Vancouver association, who is also secretary for the mainland, reported, in part, as follows:

"There never was a time in the history of our Association when it was so necessary that every member and delegate should sit and listen attentively to what is being said; and when anything is under discussion to be prepared to stand up and take part in that discussion. There is so much at stake, so many things before the retailers of the province to-day, that demands his time and attention, and must have it. We are here to-day to present our views on conditions as we have found them during the past year.

"I know that the great question in your minds just now is—What have we done? Has the association grown? Have its influences been extended? There are a great many things that you can do, a great many things that you can assist in, but you know it is the easiest thing in the world to find fault and the next easiest thing to stand by and look on while others are striving to attain the objects for which this Association was inaugurated.

"Since the last convention it has been my privilege, as well as duty, to help our worthy president, F. W. Welsh, in the publishing of the Retail Grocers' Review, the official organ of this exchange and through the columns of which we have been able to get in touch with over 1,000 retailers in the province. This has brought to my office comp'aints affecting the grocery trade from many retailers in the upper country, and I might say, more than we have visiting delegates here to-day. In every instance we have been only too pleased to give them a hand in trying to straighten out their difficulties and have invariably been able to remedy the evil complained of.

Wholesalers Selling Consumers.

"Your executive on the mainland and the executive of the local association have attended 47 meetings during the past year, when a considerable amount of work has been done and I feel sure that if the efforts which have been put forth are maintained the results cannot fail to be beneficial to the trade as a whole.

"The question of wholesalers supplying consumers was vigorously taken up early in the year and after several meetings with the members of the Wholesale Grocers and Produce Exchanges, we were successful in persuading the wholesalers to cease catering to the hotel and restaurant trade, small camps, tug boats and specially favored private individuals, with the result that notices were issued by the wholesalers that even their own employees were not to be supplied with their requirements from their warehouses on and after March 15, 1910.

R. D. DINNING, Vancouver.
Re-elected Secretary for the Mainland of the British Columbia Retail Grocers' Association; he is also Secretary of the Vancouver Association.

Fixed Sugar Price Didn't Last.

"We have been dealing in a persistent manner for the past 3 years with this sugar question and we succeeded in persuading the refinery to put a protected price on their product last August. The agreement was withdrawn by them in January, with the explanation that the retailers were not living up to the agreement, in so far as handling their product only was concerned. We have since had several meetings to discuss this problem and although both your executive and the local members of the B. C. Wholesale Grocers' Exchange had interviewed Mr. Rogers of the refinery, we have, so far been unable to induce him to give the agreement another trial.

Protected Flour Prices.

"The flour question has also received a considerable amount of attention and after repeated meetings with flour and feed merchants, wholesale grocers and flour mill representatives, we were successful in persuading practically all the manufacturers of the leading brands of flour to put a protected price on their respective brands.

To Get After Peddlers.

"The peddlers evil has also been taken up, but owing to there being several changes in the license officers at the City Hall, we have not been able to do very much. But I have the assurance of Alderman Ramsay, that he has been using his best effort to have this evil remedied and he hopes now that Mr. Jones the recently appointed Inspector of trade licenses has got into harness, that this matter will be dealt with almost immediately.

"As regards the membership, I have pleasure in stating that we have in our local association during the year, elected close on 35 per cent. more members to the association than we had on the roll when taking over office, and have only had 3 resignations. Ten members have sold out their places of business and with the exception of three of these, their successors have all joined the association.

Influence of the Association.

"I have now answered your two questions: What have we done and has the association grown? Now for: Have its influences been extended? I should say it has. Apart from the communications I have received from various parts of the province, already referred to. I have also had several letters from E. M. Trowern, of Toronto, and also from as far east as Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, where the retailers have just recently formed an association. Coming further west, it was some 6 weeks ago I had a letter from Edmonton asking for copy of our by-laws and from a letter to hand last week, I see they have formed a Retail Merchants' Association. Coming nearer home I had the pleasure of forwarding to Kelowna a copy of our by-laws and I presume they have since also formed a local association.

Should Attend Meetings.

"I should like to say to the members of those newly organized associations and also to the members of the Victoria and Vancouver associations, that it is your duty to attend each and every meeting of your local association, for the association is what its members make it. The association itself can do nothing; but the members with their undivided interests can make it a success, and that is a duty that each and every one of you owe to one another.

"You talk about organizing; what good does it do to organize unless you co-operate with one another? Don't let a few carry the burden for all; don't think that your officers have any more time than yourself to devote to association work. The educational influence of the association teaches us the necessity of knowing familiarly the cost of goods, as well as the cost of distribution and I feel sure you will all agree that if every merchant educated himself along these lines, that much of the demoralization and failure now prevalent would be obviated.

What Blind Competition Is.

"The old saying that competition is the life of trade is erroneous. Blind, ignorant, pernicious competition, is bad, and brings nothing but disaster. Clean stores, good methods, polite attention—that kind of competition is good, and will bring nothing but the best results. Meeting often together of men in the same line of business is as much a necessity as it is to unlock the door of your stores in the morning to do the business of the day.

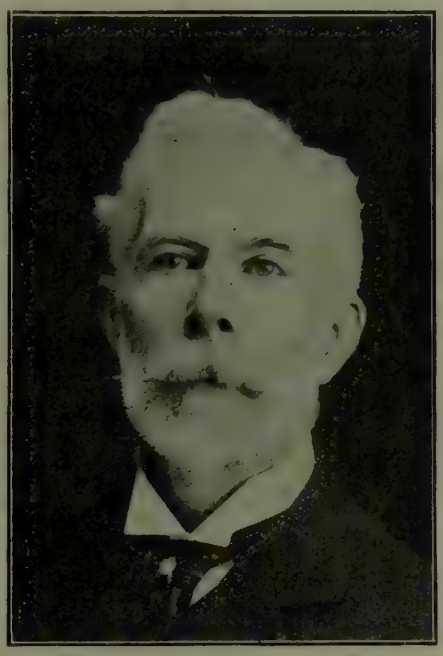
"In closing I should like to say that your executive have been constantly in close touch with the members of the wholesale exchanges, various brokers, and representatives of manufacturing and milling houses whose products are handled by the grocery trade, and it is a great satisfaction to be able to state that all our negotiations with these varied interests have been carried on in a friendly spirit and we have had repeated evidence from these sources of the readiness to help us to remedy existing evils."

The secretary for Vancouver Island, T. S. Futcher, also reported along similar lines.

W. Clark spoke briefly as to what he considered the necessity of manufacturers fixing a protective price on their products. The wholesalers of this province were well protected by a fixed price and it was essential that the retailers receive the same consideration.

E. J. Wall, of Victoria, vice-president, also addressed the association on the matter of protective prices.

To Go After Legislation.



Three committees were apointed, one to devise a scheme for extension work throughout the province, consisting of W. H. Walsh, E. J. Wall and G. M. Thrift; another to bring to the notice of the provincial government the necessity of giving grocers legislative protection from peddlars, composed of T. F. McDowell, T. Reading, and T. S. Futcher; and the other, to obtain from the government a retailers' credit act, comprising W. Clark, S. J. Heald and A. Tait.

A letter of condolence was sent by the association to A. Macdonald, of A. Macdonald & Co., wholesale grocers, sympathizing with him upon the untimely death of his son who was drowned recently at Montreal.

Grocers Were Welcomed.

The afternoon session was opened by an address of welcome from J. J. Miller, president of the Exhibition Association. Ald. McTaggart, a director, also spoke a few words of welcome on behalf of the city and recited the fact that the first meeting of the association was held in the grocery store of Thos. Duke. Later, Mayor Taylor assured the convention that it was welcome.

Ald. James Ramsay, of Ramsay Bros. & Co., was to have read a paper on "protected prices from the manufacturer's point of view," but was not able to be present.

T. S. FUTCHER, Victoria, B.C.
Secretary for Vancouver Island of the B. C. R. G. A.

H. W. Robinson, of the Empress Manufacturing Company, gave a paper on "Reasons why British Columbia Merchants should support British Columbia Manufacturers."

"The Cost of Doing Business, How It Should be Computed," was the subject of a paper by James Foran, who laid stress on the necessity for a thorough business training. He also went into the technicalities of the amount of capital required to start business, its apportionment and the proper rates of profit and how to arrive at them.

Officers were elected as follows: President, F. W. Welsh, Vancouver, re-elected; vice-president, E. J. Wall, Victoria, re-elected; directors, W. Clark, T. F. McDowell, W. H. Walsh, A. G. Main, Vancouver; T. Redding, A. Tait, Victoria; G. N. Thrift, Hazelmere; treasurer, L. P. McTaggart, Vancouver; secretary for the mainland, R. D. Dinning; secretary for Vancouver Island, T. S. Futcher, Victoria, the secretaries being re-elected.

Dinner was tendered the visitors at the Commercial hotel.

At the closing session in the evening, reports were made by the committees appointed in the morning. The extension committee recommended the appointment of delegates to extend the work of the association as soon as possible, naming E. J. Wall for the Island and W. H. Walsh and James Foran for the Mainland.

An Eye on Delinquents.

The committee appointed for the consideration of the formation of an exchange of records of delinquent debtors throughout the province submitted a proposal for the interchange between the various local associations of their several lists of delinquents. The report was referred to the central executive to be elaborated and put into operation as soon as possible.

The committee appointed to go into the subject of legislation restricting street peddling reported that the result of the deliberations had been the discovery that there was considerable difference of opinion as to whether the matter was one for legislation or for municipal action. The majority thought the latter and the local associations in Victoria and Vancouver will bring it before the civic authorities in those cities.

Lovatt M. Wood made a plea for harmony between the manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer in the grocery business. He showed how better results could be obtained if differences were settled with little bickering. As a means towards this end he suggested the formation of a committee composed of three of the grocers and three of wholesalers who could adjudicate on disputes. There was no questioning the benefits to accrue from unity among the component parts of the trade.

The convention closed with the usual votes of thanks.

If you won't adopt modern business methods, don't sit back and claim that you never did have any luck anyway.

Don't allow yourself to be persuaded, bamboozled or inveigled into buying goods that you do not want. If the smooth salesman insists upon larger quantities than you want, excuse yourself and go to work.

The final decision in all your buying rests with your judgment. If you allow that to become warped or prejudiced, or if you neglect to use it, you may expect to get "stuck."

You will never achieve any success by the great things you are going to do. Anyone can dream dreams. Success is in carrying them out.

The man who never makes any mistakes is a man who never does anything. He is a stand-patter, and while a stand-patter may get somewhere in politics he will never get ahead in business.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Sugar—Firm.
Filberts—Scarce.
Canned Meats—Advance from 10—15c.

Montreal, Aug. 25, 1910.

Plans for the entertainment of the out-of-town visitors to the Congress are proceeding rapidly, and already the advance guard has commenced to arrive. Local dealers are making their visiting customers at home in their places of business, and all report that the prospects for a large volume of business, both locally and outside, are bright. Even now trade shows the stimulus received, and the restaurant men report fine business.

There is to be a big dairy show for Montreal if the plans of its promoters do not slip up. It is to be held in the Arena, Nov. 7th, to last a week, and will be called the Canadian National Dairy Show, being held under the auspices of the society of that name.

The refined sugar situation is attracting a great deal of attention just now. It seems to be the consensus of opinion that an advance is not far off, but still there is a strong desire evinced to hold back for a time and see how matters develop.

The advance in canned meats this week has given considerable stimulus to the buying of these lines, although they already had their full share. Camping and outing parties have made free use of this line of goods of late, if retail sales are any indication.

Trade with the country round about presents the astonishing feature of the week. It would not be strange if city trade were to show a sudden increase, but to have a big jump in the out-of town shows that there must be a healthy condition of affairs throughout the province.

Sugar—Rumors are flying regarding the prospects for a sugar advance in the near future, and from present market conditions this seems to be the logical outcome. Refiners will make no prophecies at present, however, and it is hard for the outsider to guess which way the cat will jump. The raw market shows added firmness this week, and New York refiners have recently made an advance. This all goes to show the general trend of prices is upward.

Syrups and Molasses—Considering the time of year, the demand for both molasses and syrups is good. The feature of both is steadiness. This is unusual at such an early date. Country buyers are already buying molasses in considerable quantities, and there is a constant flow of small city orders. Prices are unchanged.

Tea—Jobbers report a strong demand for all grades of Japans. Rather an unusual feature of the Japan market this season has been the number of orders placed for United States standard, to be delivered in Canada. Import orders are going out freely, and the teas which have so far arrived compare favorably with last year's crop. Other lines of tea are still having a steady sale, particularly Ceylons.

Coffee—Trade at present in coffees is light, and will likely continue to be so until some time next month. In spite of this situation there is a very firm undertone to the market, particularly in Rios. The reason seems to be the uncertainty as to the new crop. However, this has as yet made no difference to the retailer.

Dried Fruits—Stocks are getting low in most lines, and this fact has taken away largely the interest of the trade in this market. However, Valencias still continue in good demand, and those appearing find a ready sale. Reports from Greece state that the currant market is a firm and advancing one, owing to heavy crop shortage and extensive buying by consuming countries. An advance is also prophesied for figs by some of the best-informed importers.

Nuts—Locally, there is a notable falling off in the demand for all lines of nuts, except filberts. These continue to be firmly held and are scarce. Reports from Naples say that the crop this year will undoubtedly be small, and futures are held well up. The total receipts from Brazil in England up to the present time are only 2,376 tons, as against 4,789 tons same time last year. This makes it seem almost certain that part of the Canadian arrivals will find their way over, thus making a comparative shortage here. Every indication seems to be towards a higher market. Walnuts in France are away up, as far as price goes, and importers are holding off for a time. Other lines are about the same.

Rice and Tapioca—There is a noticeable improvement in the demand for both rice and tapioca this week. Undoubtedly this is partially due to the preparations being made for the Eucharistic Congress early next month. This has caused a firmer feeling in both markets. No advance is looked for in either, as the demand is only expected to last for a few weeks.

Evaporated Apples—Until the new crop comes on the market there will be a decided shortage of first-class stock. For this reason there has not been much interest evinced of late. It is thought that this year's prices will ranges somewhat lower than last year, on account of the failure this year of the buying public to buy, as was expected last year.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—The buying public are beginning to realize that the recent advance in canned vegetables was no bluff, and as a result sales are rapidly on the increase. This has caused prices to firm up slightly, though no change has taken place to the retail trade.

Canned meats are up. The main advances are in corned beef, veal loaf, pig's feet, and roast beef. Some other minor articles are up. The cause is said to be in the high cost of the dressed article.

Fruit demand is satisfactory. In fish the feature of the market is the heavy sale of salmon. Cheap sardines are also in good demand.

TORONTO.—There has not been much change in canned goods during the week.

The prices of new corn and tomatoes have not been given out yet, and there is something of a rumor to the effect that the supply of tomatoes will not be enough to entirely fill the orders, and that the surplus of corn will be meagre.

It seems rather early to make these predictions, in view of the fact that the pack is only nicely under way. However, it was passing the rounds. At any rate, it is felt that both corn and tomatoes will open higher than last year.

The stocks of salmon are light and with weather similar to that which has been felt of late the demand should not spend itself yet awhile. The new pack will hardly reach the trade until about the end of next month, and by that time it is expected that the old stocks will have been well cleaned up.

The pack of canned lobsters is likely to be small this year, judging by reports from the fisheries along the eastern coast.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Nuts—Advance in some prices.

Raisins (Valencias)—Opened at high price.

Sugar—Advance expected by some.

Toronto, Aug. 25, 1910.

Higher prices seem to be the order of the day in more than one of the ordinary grocery lines and probably this tendency is most manifest in regard to dried fruits.

Valencia raisins according to a late cable is the smallest crop in nineteen years with old stocks pretty well wiped out. Advanced prices over those which opened the market last year are now quoted and there are some who believe they will be held at the present quotation. Advices from Smyrna indicate that Sultanas are not by any means a full crop and California seedless have apparently suffered if recent despatches from the western coast are true. Currants are showing unmistakable signs of strong prices and the opening, speculative though it is, shows prices above those of last year at the same time. Prunes and apricots are firm. Likewise Persian dates are said to be a short crop and Smyria figs have suffered a loss of about 15 per cent. in comparison with last year.

These reports are of course estimates, but in almost every case they seem to be well founded and particularly in the case of raisins and currants. Olives are also short this year and low prices can hardly be expected.

Nuts are also unusually firm and prices have already been advanced. In fact some dealers are looking forward to much higher figures, as they claim that from authentic reports there is not a supply of nuts sufficient to go around.

Trade in general now is healthy and steady. Sugar is attracting attention from the fact that prices have been advanced in New York. Coupled with this is the knowledge that September is a good sugar month and that there is going to be a fairly abundant supply of fruit. Spices are in good demand, although the pickling season has scarcely opened.

There is but little change in canned goods. Not a few of the houses say that all their peas are already gone. There is a rumor to the effect that corn may not be sufficiently plentiful for the orders now on the books, but this is not known to be really authentic.

Sugar—While the sugar market can scarcely be called active from a local standpoint, the trade is unanimous in declaring it strong. The outlook they contend is bright and there are some who even expect an increase in prices before long. The peach, pear, plum and other late fruits have hardly reached their best season yet, but the reports indicate a good average yield, particularly in peaches, and there is every reason to believe that the demand for sugar during September will be keen. It seems that retailers are carrying light stocks and once the new fruit sales begin to increase, sugar will take on a new activity.

Sugar is strong in New York. Since refined sugars were advanced ten cents a week ago the refiners are trying to get more raws, but they have to buy them at a considerable advance over the price of raws previous to the recent brace the market took. It is held that if this new price has to be paid, refined sugars will likely go higher and in such an event Canadian sugars are bound to be influenced. For various reasons, some of those intimate with the market look for higher prices in the not distant future. Others while admitting the strength of the market just now state that they cannot see the advance as plainly. There is always a good demand for sugar in September and it is stated that the effects of the new crop will not be felt until early in October.

Dried Fruits—According to the latest news from Spain an estimate of the new crop of Valencia raisins has been placed at 280,000 cwt. By comparison with a table showing the production of Valencias for the last 19 years it will be found that this is the lowest figure. Last year the output was 477,105 cwt. and the lowest for other years was in 1906 when only 333,685 cwt. were produced. The opening price is three cents a pound higher than that of a year ago. Were these conditions to prevail it would mean that Valencia raisins are going to be high. But there are some wholesalers who believe that a lower price will be reached in spite of the small estimated crop. It will be remembered that in this column from time to time news has been printed in regard to the crops and this latest report bears out the former assertions. There are those who maintain that Valencias are not going any lower but that they will reach a higher price and they point to past years to bear them out. The trade is not showing any great eagerness to buy at present and it will be interesting to follow the events for the next while. The first raisins should be shipped about September 1st.

Currants are also strong and opened about 1 1-3c a lb. higher than last year. There is as yet but little apparent material interest from the jobbers.

The advances in Greece are due to a decided shortage in the crop as a result of damage by rains falling during the drying season, and the anticipated increase in consumption as a result of the extreme shortage in the Smyrna Sultana raisins.

Prunes are also firm and indeed the dried fruit situation is one of more than ordinary strength. From the present view it looks as if the Christmas cake and pudding this year will cost a little more than those of 1909.

Nuts—Even conservative reports in regard to nuts indicate a strong market. Reference to this has been made before and the stage is now reached where prices are beginning to show the effect of the reports of short crops in the primary markets. The quotations of from 28 to 33 cents for shelled walnuts has been relinquished and 35 cents is more like the general price, although they are also at 33 cents. Almonds are also higher. A recent despatch says that the operators seem to be so sure of their position that they are making no effort to sell except at their own figures. The future will depend upon the quantity required for actual consumption. The same tone is found in a report regarding filberts: "The Sicilians are not anxious to part with their holdings and seem to think they have a gold mine owing to the fact that other nuts are on a high basis. The control of the situation is in the hands of the growers and a further advance must in all probability be expected." This market it will therefore be seen is exceedingly firm and is worth watching.

Teas—First crop Japans have been marketed. The market has been active and prices ruled 1½ cents above those of last year. Second crop teas are arriving and the price continues firm. Stylish and tight rolled leaf is reported scarce due to using machines for rolling the green leaf, an operation formerly performed by hand. The cup is made fully as good as last year, but the style is said to be inferior.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Firm.

Dried Fruits—Soaring.

Rolled Oats—Advanced.

Canned Goods—New season prices out for vegetables and fruit.

Winnipeg, August 25, 1910.

Jobbers and retailers each report that the mid-summer dullness is apparently over, and business is becoming much more active. The crop situation is now pretty accurately understood, and the scare in wholesale circles is over. Taking the west as a whole, while some districts have suffered severely, the general result is good. While the average yield per acre is less than last year, the total crop, owing to increased acreage, will not fall far short of last year's figures. The fears of the early part of July have not been realized and there is now no reason for much anxiety as to the coming business year.

Sugar—The sugar market is reported firm, with no change from last week's prices. Quotations are:

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, Aug. 25, 1910.

Although this is the time of year when eggs are generally easy, if not plentiful, the supply of really freshly laid eggs in Vancouver is not by any means equal to the demand. The price has gone up from 40c and 42c to 45c, which means 50c retail, but even at this figure all who want them cannot get them. With the supply small at this season of the year, it means that there will be a big call for eggs from the east and south during the winter months. When the eggs arrive from the east, the very best are selected and sold, in some instances, as locals. They are not named as such, but special names are applied, which give the inference to the customer.

Prices of hams and bacon are hovering around the high mark they reached a week or two ago, with little sign at present of reduction. Orders are being taken by the wholesalers for Christmas fruits, etc. As an inducement, a slight reduction is offered early buyers.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 25, 1910.

The volume of trade in general lines is good. Quite a number of price changes are reported. Rolled oats have scored another advance and are now quoted at $5.50 per barrel, and $2.60 to $2.65 per bag.

Lard is also firmer and has been advanced ½c per pound.

Sugar is steady. It was thought that possibly the price would be increased in sympathy with the advance in New York this week, but so far dealers have not been notified of any change.

Pork is easier, there being a decline of $1 per barrel in both bean and clear backs. They are now selling at $26 and $28, respectively.

New canned peas arrived on the market this week and are going to the trade at $1 for standards, and $1.15 for Early June.

The floating supply of canned salmon is pretty well cleaned up, and dealers are asking from 25c to 50c per case advance in the stocks held here. This will about represent the prices for the new salmon stocks, which are due to arrive in October.

There is a heavy demand for fruit, but prices at present are high. California pears are quoted at $4 per box. Large quantities of fruit from Ontario arrived here this week and it found a ready sale. Plums and peaches were the chief varieties. Some tomatoes from Ontario also came along and found a ready sale. Dealers say that more Ontario fruit could be sold here if the freight charges were lower.

Butter continues in good supply. The receipts of dairy butter continue heavy, but despite this fact the prices hold remarkably well.

There is only a fair demand for eggs, and the receipts are light. With the increased receipts of potatoes the price is easier, and will continue to go lower from now on.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 25, 1910.

Several changes were recorded this week in the local market, and others are daily expected. Ontario flour declined 20c, and is now selling at $6.15. Pork became slightly easier, and in American clear there was a little reduction, the price falling to $26 to $26.50. Plate corned beef and canned, as well, seem to be rather scarce, and each took a jump this week, the price for the former now being $21 to $21.50, and for canned, $2 a dozen for 1's, and $3.35 for 2's.

Canned lobsters were also included in the increase, advancing $1 a case. Dried fruit became higher, currants and raisins being dearer by a fraction of a cent. Beans took a slight increase, and hand-picked are now selling for from $2.25 to $2.30. New York sugar went up 10c in all grades, and the market is strong here.

DESSERTS IN DEMAND.

In getting his share of the summer trade the grocer should not forget the dessert portion of the midday meal.

On his shelves he has arranged ice cream powder, corn starch, tapioca, custard powders and jelly powders of all flavors; he also has rice and various other articles of this kind. People want to eat these light desserts. The time for suet dumplings, plum puddings, etc., belong practically to winter. The weather is too warm for them now.

Therefore, in the average house there is a demand for goods of the description above and it is a good chance for the grocer. Of course, he buys these articles, for the traveler points out to him the business that can be built up from handling them, but is the grocer doing his share? Is he satisfied to run along easily handing out a package of this and that, when some one asks for it or is he creating a demand?

The days are already beginning to get shorter. Summer will be waving its hand from the distance in a short time. It will then be too late to cut into the tidal wave of summer business. Plunge into it now; in other words grasp the opportunities of the present.

IT PAYS TO STUDY THE ADVERTISEMENTS.

It will pay the dealer to read and study the advertisements in this issue of The Grocer, for the reason that they contain many profit-making suggestions. In this connection it is interesting to note that one merchant recently told us he had made $200 within a comparatively short time through reading Grocer ads.

$100 A MONTH CLERKS.

There is a vast difference in the usefulness of clerks in retail stores.

In some stores you enter you observe two or three indolent fellows who have no energy whatever in them. You walk up to the counter, but nobody makes a move to serve you. Then you make a circuit about the store and look at various articles, but the same indolence prevails. Not until you pick up an article and carry it to one of them does he make any effort to assist. They are simply machines; they wrap up the parcel and take your money.

These are every-day occurences and particularly in small towns and villages in various parts of the country.

In other stores, however, there are clerks waiting to serve you the moment you step inside the door. They are polite, active, and anticipate your wants. They suggest new and seasonable articles; they are cleanly dressed and invite custom.

This is the class of clerk that is worth something to the proprietor. He is usually ambitious, of an inventive nature and actually makes money for his employer by attracting more custom through interior and window displays, etc., and by means of little inventions which aid in carrying on business more economically.

The Grocer knows of one clerk of this character who is receiving $100 per month in a Canadian grocery store, which goes to show that an employer will recognize ambition and genius.

Mere machines cannot expect to rise very high in the commercial world—youths of ambition and who are careful in their work, are those who become successful.

WHY TEA WILL BE DEAR.

The displacement of tea plantations in the far East by rubber is likely to have a serious effect upon the production of the world-famed beverage. As everyone knows tea has gone up in price considerably during the last couple of years. This extra cost of course, has not been borne by the retailer or consumer, or if any very little of it. It is due to the increasing demand for tea in the East and England, in Russia and North America while an increase in the production has not been proportionate. In fact we may expect a decrease in the acreage in the future as long as the present price of rubber obtains.

There is a good reason for this. One of the largest tea plantation companies of the East recently issued its annual report showing that a number of their plantations yielded $25 an acre profit and an extra good one $35. Of this they were extremely proud.

But how does this compare with rubber? The profit per pound for the growers on rubber is estimated at 37 cents. Taking 400 lb. to the acre this profit runs up to $150 or six times that on an acre of tea. The rubber figures represent a poor year for rubber and the tea figures a good year for tea.

In other words, therefore, an acre of rubber yields as much profit as 6 acres of tea.

From the present outlook the prospects for rubber in the East are good and sound and there does not appear to be anything that will equal the profit made by the growers on it.

An eminent financier of London, Eng., says that India and Ceylon have not been increasing their outputs of tea in a reasonable ratio to the demand, while owing to rubber interplanting some 70,000 acres of tea are going out of bearing.

There is no liklihood therefore, of tea becoming cheaper for the next few years. On the other hand firmer prices will probably rule.

TWO IMPORTANT ITEMS.

Cleanliness counts. Begin in the morning by cleaning the floor and chase the dust from counters, shelves, etc. Where water is needed apply it. A clean neat store is an advertisement that cannot be expressed in money.

Keep a close eye on your credit sheets. The grocer who is thoroughly modern has a sheet which at a glance furnishes him with complete information regarding what he owes and what others owe him; what business he did yesterday and what the week before and he can also compare it with last year. This serves him in the same manner as the steam gauge warns the engineer.

In trying for quick delivery the traveler must not spoil things by sending in such hurried and abbreviated orders that the house cannot make them out clearly. Mistakes are worse than delay in shipment. Travelers must write out their orders clearly and distinctly so that there shall be no confusion. Taking care does not mean taking undue time, and the traveler can make his connection, whether he writes his order out carefully or whether he scribbles it, under the idea that he has not a minute to lose.

Grocers at times read of suggestions of what to do now and then, but never act upon any of them. This is a business sin of omission. New departures now and then brighten up the store and generally draw attention which would not be gained by following the same old methods that were in use forty years ago.

REVIEW OF THE FRUIT CROPS.

The crop of peaches this year promises to be well up to the average. The Crawford and its kindred varieties should reach the market about the first week in September although there may be arrivals before that. The bulk of the shipments will be received about the time of the National Exhibition and will continue for some weeks. A visit to a 140 acre orchard at Jordan, Ont., recently found a splendid yield of peaches slowly ripening. The prices should be fairly reasonable.

As stated in a previous issue, the fruit crop in British Columbia is a heavy one.

In regard to Ontario apples the crop in the Lake Huron and Georgian Bay districts is not at all good. It is estimated that it will be only from 10 to 25 per cent. of the usual crop. One man last year shipped 20,000 barrels. This year he is in doubt whether he will have one car load. That may be taken as a criterion of the district. In the central part the outlook is brighter and in the eastern end of the province apples will be variable. The apple crop is not going to be anything like the average considering the entire yield. In Nova Scotia it is also poor. Just what the winter apple crop will amount to it is yet difficult to estimate.

The demand for early apples has been heavy this season and there should be money awaiting those who grow early varieties. The price has been about sixty cents a basket to the consumer until recently and just what that would mean with a good crop is not difficult to estimate.

There is going to be a good crop of pears if present favorable conditions prevail. The crop promises to be fairly abundant and prices are likely to be lower than last year. Plums are also looking well and a good yield is expected. A prominent fruit man looking over the situation declared that he believed prices would be reasonable this autumn, with the exception of apples. The other crops will likely be fairly abundant and should have the effect of maintaining easy prices.

MARITIME MAIL ORDERS.

W. B. Snowball, past president of the Maritime Board of Trade, touched the right key when in the course of his address at the annual convention in Chatham, N.B., last week, he referred to mail-order competition.

He is one of New Brunswick's big business men and knows the effect that the continuous sending of money out of a community will have on that community. This is what he said:

"Too much money is being sent out of our provinces to the large departmental stores of the western cities. Our people should have it impressed on them that where money is earned it should be spent as far as possible, if they wish to advance the prosperity of the towns in which they live. We need the merchants and they need the customers, and only as they help each other can both prosper. The merchant must cater to the wants of the community by keeping what goods are required at reasonable prices, and the community should patronize home merchants if they want good shops. Money kept in circulation in a town does good in that place, but send it away and it helps the other places."

He has pointed out that both the prosperity of the community and of the merchants are interdependent and must be always associated if ultimate success is to be reaped. The merchant, however, must fill the desires of the consumer at reasonable prices, quality, quantity and service considered.

Just now one of the large mail order houses is sending or preparing to send some 400,000 catalogues—fall and winter goods—from Toronto and 350,000 from Winnipeg to householders all over Canada. If no energetic plans are worked out by the merchants to counteract these books, how much money is going to go from all parts of the country to this mail-order house?

This is a problem to be looked squarely in the face.

HIGH HONEY PRICES EXPECTED.

In regard to the new honey prices information obtained from the Bee-Keepers' Association would indicate that the figures already named are likely to hold. In the western part of Ontario the yield has not been heavy, but in the eastern section of the province there has been a good crop. The trade must now take into consideration the demand from the west which has been growing larger every year. Manitoba and parts of Saskatchewan obtain the majority of their supplies from the east as there is little honey produced in those provinces. Further west the supplies are nearly all received from the western states.

In recent reports published it was stated that the number of new apiaries was increased this year by 60 p.c. This should have been that the number reporting to the association was greater by that percentage. Wholesalers state that they will have to raise their prices if the quotations the keepers have selected are adhered to. It would therefore seem that honey is to become dearer unless the holders change their plans.

Buckwheat honey will soon be offered but only a small portion finds its way to the general market. The most of the yield goes to the various lumber camps in the north. The quality of the clover honey that has as yet found its way to the market, is claimed by the association to be good.

A POOR ADVERTISEMENT.

Newspaper space as an advertising medium is either valuable or not. It depends on the size of the space and the quality of the copy used in it. A small space can be made profitable and a larger one in proportion. Of this there is no doubt, because we have thousands of examples to point to.

Imagine a space 4 inches by 4½ inches used to give the following information to the public: "Watermelons, 2½c a pound; special for Friday and Saturday; J. E. Merryfield, Third Ave." These words were printed in four lines with from a half to an inch and a half space between each. This ad was run in a newspaper which lies before the writer.

The only redeeming feature is the fact that the price is given. How much better would it have been from a financial standpoint had there been an attractive talk! For instance, there was enough space to have said something like this: "Special price for Friday and Saturday" in fairly heavy black type as the first line and followed by: "This is the season for eating the cool, juicy and refreshing watermelon. We have them fresh and thoroughly ripened. On Friday and Saturday we are offering a special price of 2½ cents per lb." The price should be printed in blacker type than the words before and after.

Retail advertisers who pay no attention to their copy cannot expect to reap much benefit from their advertising. The space in itself is valueless; it depends on what is said and how it is displayed.

BENEFIT OF GOOD ROADS.

There is one work that the merchants of the country villages and towns should take up, and that is the movement for good roads. The merchants ought to co-operate with the farmers in this work and aid in every way to get the roads, especially in the country, put and kept in first-class shape.

Country roads are the means of personal communication not only between the farmers and the retailers in the delivery of country produce, but between the retailers and the consumers. Everything that can be done to bring the country towns into closer contact with the country people should be done. Bear this in mind, and if there is a campaign on foot to better the roads in a community, merchants there should get busy and help.

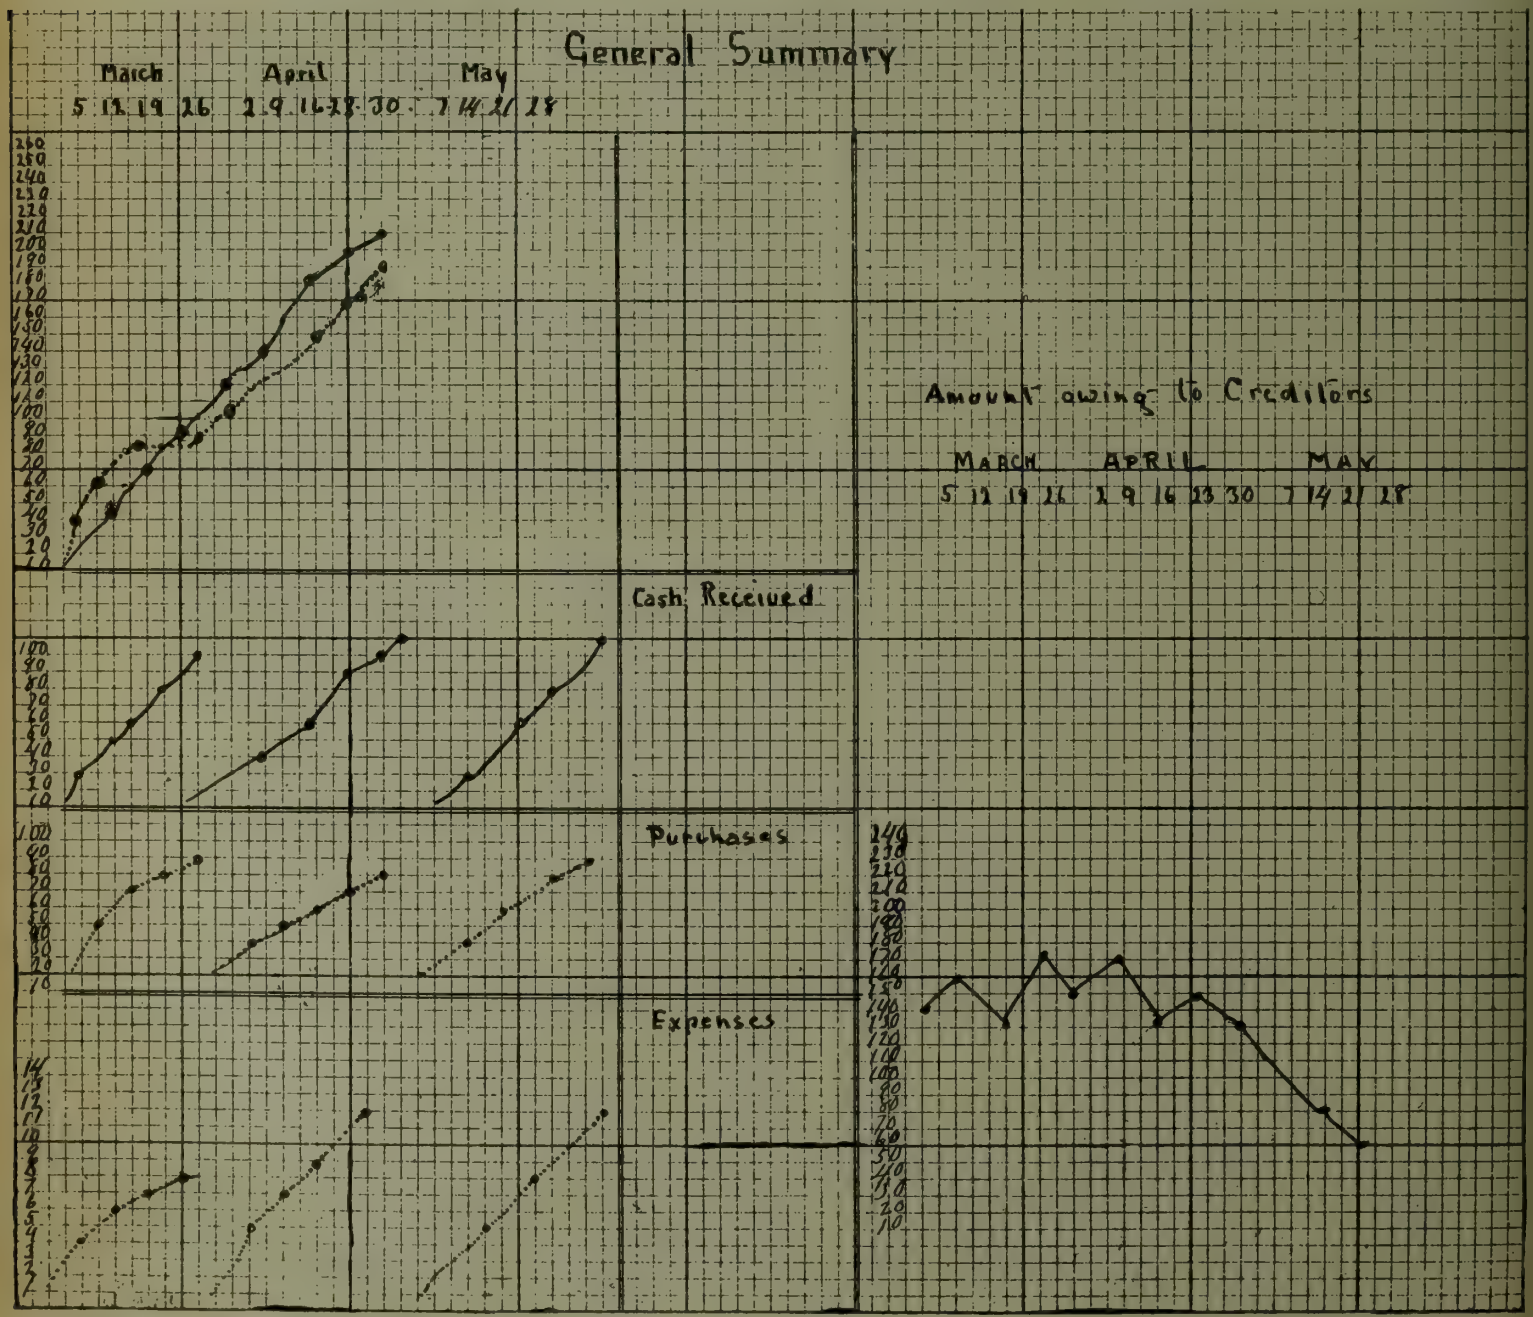
Chart that Shows Receipts and Expenditures

Novel Method For Illustrating Receipts, Expenditures and Liabilities So That They Can Be Seen at a Glance—A Check Upon Getting Beyond His Means, Says The Originator—Description of How it Operates.

Of all the methods merchants use to keep tab on receipts, purchases and expenditures probably the most unique on record is shown by the accompanying chart.

This method is not in use on the North American continent so far as known; it comes from London, England.

It is used by W. R. Walden, grocer, 315 High Street, North, East Ham, who is one of the London readers of The Canadian Grocer.



In reference to his plan Mr. Walden writes: "I have enclosed a rough copy of a chart I have in use in my business, the use of which I have found of valuable assistance as it helps to keep a check on expenses versus incomings, also a watch on liabilities."

The chart can be worked out to suit any business. The original of Mr. Walden's is drawn on ruled paper, size about 24 x 36 inches. He fits it to a disused show frame which makes it convenient for reference.

How Chart is Made Out.

The plan of the originator is as follows: On Mondays after finishing his books for the previous six business days he tallies up his expenses including what money he draws for himself for the week gone by and marks this down under the section for expenses as indicated in the illustration.

By taking a look at the expense section on the chart this can be made more clear. For instance, at the end of the first week of March his expenses were $4; at the end of second week of March they were $6; at end of March 19 they were $7 and for the whole month $8. (These figures, of course, are imaginary as they are simply used to illustrate the working of the system.) Mr. Walden represents all outgoings with red ink and incomings with black ink. On the accompanying chart the outgoings are represented by dotted lines in place of red ink.

The Chart illustrating how the merchant can tell just where he is at the end of each week, month and quarter with regard to receipts, expenses and liabilities.

Following up the expense account for the next month we see that the total for April is $12, making a total expense for the two months $20.

Next look at the "purchases section. As this is money going out the original is marked with red ink. It will be seen that the total purchases during March amount to $90 and during April $80 making atotal of $170. The amounts for each week are shown by the points or heavy dots in the dotted lines. The grand total of purchases and expenses is therefore $20 plus $170, equalling $190.

The "General Summary" section shows the totals every 3 months or quarter. It will be observed that the end of this first two months the total outgoings is represented in this section by the blot opposite the $190 mark, the original being in red ink. This must tally always with the sum total of the "expenses" and "purchases" sections.

Money Received Also Indicated.

The same explanation applies to the money coming in. At the end of the first month the total "cash received" was $100; April showed receipts up to $110 making a total of $210, which is shown in the "general summary" by the black unbroken line.

It should be clearly understood that the three under sections are kept monthly; the top or general summary is continued from one quarter's balancing to the next.

In the section headed "amount owing to creditors," Mr. Walden is able to see at a glance just what his liabilities are and what they were from week to week.

Has Saved Him Pounds.

Regarding the use of the entire system to him Mr. Walden writes: "I sincerely hope it will be of help to my fellow tradesmen on your side of the water. It has saved me pounds, in this respect, that it keeps me from going beyond my means. If at the end of the second week of the month I find that the purchases and expenses (these including my private drawings) are above the cash received, I put the stopper on for the rest of the month and no more ordering is done than is absolutely needed."

The Picnic as an Antidote for Trade Jealousy

Kingston Grocers Spend a Pleasant Time To-gether With Their Several Customers And There was Fun Galore—Humorous Speech at the Baby Contest—Some of the Winners in the Various Races—The Committee in Charge.

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 25.—The annual picnic under the auspices of the local Retail Grocers' Association held at the fair grounds August 17, was after all a gratifying success in spite of the weather man's tantrums. Rain had been falling and the grounds were wet but still the grocers were hopeful.

About the noon hour Old Sol got a chance to steal a smile through the clouds and although up to that time the affair had almost been called off that smile was reassuring and the Rubicon was crossed and still no one got a wetting. For all that, there was at intervals, a feeling of insecurity among the crowd of 3.000 when the bursting of heaven's floodgates seemed imminent. However, the rain did not come again and as before stated the picnic was entirely successful.

Wholesalers Were Trimmed.

During the afternoon there were all kinds of sport with a baseball match as the headliner. It was a renewal of the conflict of other years, the Wholesalers versus the Retailers. The latter won the decision after coming up for the last round pretty groogy. The wholesalers had it on them 7 to 3 but the retailers "came back" with a batting rally that put them ahead by one run, the final score being 8 to 7. The teams lined up as follows:

Wholesalers—Loucks c, Walker p, Singleton 1b, Holland 2b, La Rose ss, Cornelius 3b, McCullough rf, Perry cf, Ludlow lf.

Retails—Beale c, Haffner p, Moulton 1b, Henderson 2b, Vallier ss, Shultz 3b, Marshall rf, Milne cf, Smith lf.—Umpire "Billy" McFedridge.

The Prominent Races.

Among the many races the following are worthy of mention:

200 yds. dash (employees) 1. B. Milne, 2. J. Marshall, 3. Smith.

Quarter mile (employees)—1. Milne, 2. Pickering, 3. Smith.

Half mile run (delivery horses)—1. "May S." of the Hedley Shaw Milling Co., 2. E. S. Suddard's "Minnie M." 3. Frank Self's "Biddy."

The Relay race, Posties vs. Police, was exciting and was won by H.M.S. letter carriers.

The 14th band played frequently during the afternoon and the music added much to the enjoyment of the occasion.

The Baby Show.

Ald. Bert Robertson, R. J. Carson, J. Plewes, and W. J. Craig are still in the land of the living in spite of the fact that they acted as judges in the baby show. No doubt it is largely due to the wise stroke they made by declaring the baby beauty contest a tie and awarding a prize to each. Needless to say this was a smooth way out of a difficulty but there are still some of the mothers who think that there was no occasion for such a decision. In their several opinions the winner should have been their individual hopefuls.

An interesting feature of the baby show was a speech by J. Plewes, who, by the way, is the local manager of a flour company. He said as he lifted one of the dear little ones in his arms:

"Ladies and Gentlemen,—This is the greatest of all races—the human race—and this one is the flower of the family. I hope it will be raised to 'Perfection' and not become a loaf-er in society. In this country we want the well-bred kind only."

Then there were soap races and ball firing contest for married women. This latter produced a great deal of fun as the women were supposed to throw half a dozen balls through a hole in a sheet—it was indeed surprising how many missed the big aperature.

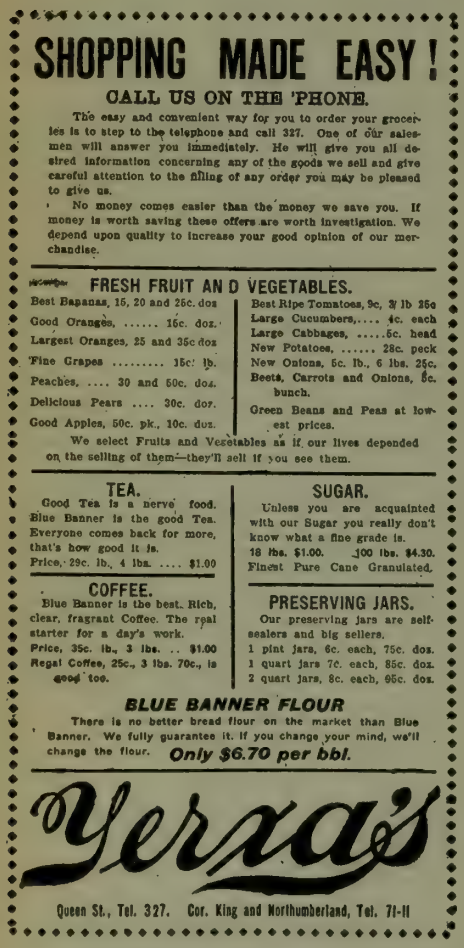
Antidote for Jealousy.

At the Grocers' picnic you get the genuine fun in a practical way and such expressions as "I never laughed so much in my life" were common. It is also a great antidote for jealousy. All the grocers get on friendly terms, which lasts, and means more profit to all concerned.

The committee of the association who were, with the assistance of the members, responsible for the success of the occasion were as follows:—President, W. Hobart Dyde; vice-presidents, Mayor Dan. Cooper, P. A. Haffner, J. Gilbert and H. M. Stover; secretary Dan. Dennis; treasurer, H. A. Smith; managing-secretary, W. H. Dalby.

Second Grade Cane Sugar is 10 Cents Nearer that of No. 1

A few weeks ago The Grocer pointed out some of the trade troubles in connection with sugar. Some wholesalers were requesting that the second grade cane refined sugar be dispensed with altogether on the grounds that the profit was inadequate. Since that time it is understood that a conference has been held with the eastern refiners and it was decided that the wholesalers should receive a better profit. To substantiate this, a short time ago the price of only the second grade sugar advanced 10 cents per hundred pounds to the retail trade. This brought this grade ten cents nearer the price of No. 1.



Some Maritime and Newfoundland Ads. Criticized

A Good Example of the Proper Way to Advertise From Fredericton, N.B.—Yarmouth, N.S., Advertiser Offers Certain Goods for a Certain Fixed Sum; the Ad.-Critic Considers This a Good Method—A Newfoundland Ad. and a Suggestion for Its Improvement.

By W. F. Ralph.

It is very refreshing for the advertising critic occasionally to come across retail grocery advertising that strikes him as being nearly above adverse criticism. Such an ad., however, often does crop up in unexpected places.

The retail grocery stores of the Maritime Provinces are sometimes regarded by the proprietors of similar commercial institutions west of Montreal as being considerably behind the times in business methods. But that this assumption is ill-founded is constantly being demonstrated by evidence of great commercial progressiveness in the provinces by the sea.

It would be difficult to discover anywhere an ad. more closely approaching perfection, when judged by the well-known rules for the construction of good retail advertising, than the ad. of "Yerxa's" reproduced here.

This ad. occupied a space about nine inches double-column in the Daily Gleaner, Fredericton, N.S., and there is very little in it that a fair critic can find fault with. Its size is just about right for regular use by the average good grocery. Its layout, while not striking, is neat and attractive, and places emphasis where it is needed—in the headlines. But its chief merit lies in its well-expressed suggestiveness.

Not long ago the writer read, in an advertising journal, the criticism that comparatively few retail merchants made as much of the advertising value of the telephone-order as could easily be made. In this ad., however, the advisability of ordering by telephone is made the chief feature. It is almost beyond question that if this feature be emphasized continually in the advertising of retail merchants, more and more of the better class of customers will do their shopping by telephone, leaving the selection of the goods to the merchant; and by so doing will be less and less likely to transfer their trade to competitors.

In striking contrast is the ad, of C. P. Eagan, St. John's, Nfld., also reproduced here. If the Yerxa ad. is above adverse criticism, here is an ad. that is almost below commendation. One can imagine, in a place so situated, that communication with the outside world is an unusual treat for its inhabitants, the news that certain delicacies had been received by the local store would receive earnest attention. But in a place like St. John's, Nfld., a city of considerable size and commercial importance, the majority of whose inhabitants are as well informed as people are anywhere else, it is unlikely that the bald announcement that shipments of lobster and salmon have been received at a local store will cause any undue commotion.

The one line in this ad. that might be interesting to housekeepers, provided features that will be likely to cause it to be read with attention.

Some time ago The Canadian Grocer mentioned a style of advertising wherein the emphasis was laid chiefly upon what articles could be obtained in the store at a certain figure. This is certainly a novel way of instructing the people as to the comparative value of different articles, and should prove successful in building up sales. An example of this style of advertising is shown here in Cain Bros'. ad., published in the Yarmouth Light, of Yarmouth, N.S.—another example of the progressiveness of Maritime Province grocers. The original ad. was two columns wide.

Fined for Having Glucose Syrup in the "Golden Syrup"

London, Eng., Aug. 24.—At the West London police court recently the hearing of a summons against a grocer on Fulham Road, for selling "golden syrup" which contained 37 per cent. of glucose syrup, was concluded. A representative of a large jam manufacturer stated that glucose had been used in the manufacture of syrup for twenty years. He considered that glucose was more digestible. Only that day he took a tablespoonful of glucose because he feared he might not be able to have time for lunch, and he had found that it was an easily digested article.

The magistrate in giving his decision, said the facts of the case were very simple—golden syrup was demanded, and a syrup which was of golden color and which contained 37 per cent. of glucose syrup was sold. The question was, Was the syrup supplied not of the nature, substance, and quality asked for? He could not come to any other conclusion than that golden syrup was a definite article, and that it was understood by the public as refined treacle.

Treacle was understood to be the drainings from crystallized sugar. Originally it was cane and maple sugar only, but afterwards beet sugar was used. Glucose was not made from sugar at all, therefore it was not treacle; and an article which contained glucose syrup could not be sold as golden syrup, which was merely an elegant synonym for refined treacle. In these circumstances the question arose, Was the article sold to the prejudice of the purchaser? and he came to the conclusion that it was, because there was no doubt that treacle or golden syrup had certain laxative qualities which it was admitted glucose did not possess. He must come to the conclusion, generally, that the article sold was not the article demanded, and that it was sold to the prejudice of the purchasers.

There must, therefore, be a conviction, but he was bound to say that he regarded the offence as a technical one, and he had no hesitation in expressing his opinion that those who sold this mixture of golden syrup and glucose had no intention of committing any fraud on the public, and that there seemed to be no harm to the purchaser in the fact that he had glucose mixed with the syrup. He imposed a penalty of 20s., with ten guineas costs.

This Retail Grocer Paid his Rent by Using Nail Puller

"When I was in the grocery business," said John Mischel, retired grocer, of St. Louis, U.S.A., to the members of the St. Louis Retail Grocers' Association, "I paid my rent by using a nail puller.

"I did it by saving all the boxes and barrels and selling them at the end of a month or so. I could sell them at a good profit, because I did not take a hammer or a hatchet and knock the heads in, or rip off the lids, but because I used a nail puller and extracted the nails in the right way, without injuring the heads or lids.

"Success in the grocery business," he continued, "comes from watching the business end and taking care of the little things. You have to watch the business if you want to make money.

"I always counted the fish I got and always counted the pickles, too. I often found shortages in both, and saved money by doing the counting when I got the goods. When I found shortages I took them up with the proper persons and made them make good.

"Many grocers fail because they do not watch these 'little things.' I would not be afraid to go back into the grocery business again if I had my health or was as young as I was when I first started in, 25 years ago.

"My boys, when they are big enough, are going into the grocery business, and I am breaking them in now. I know they are going to be successful because I am teaching them to look after details and not taking any chances."

Productiveness of the Annapolis Apple Area

One of the Greatest Apple-Producing Districts in the World, Says Writer—How Nature Protects it From the Fogs of the North and Cold Sea Breezes From the South—One Example of Thrift Resulting in Good Reward.

By David Williams.

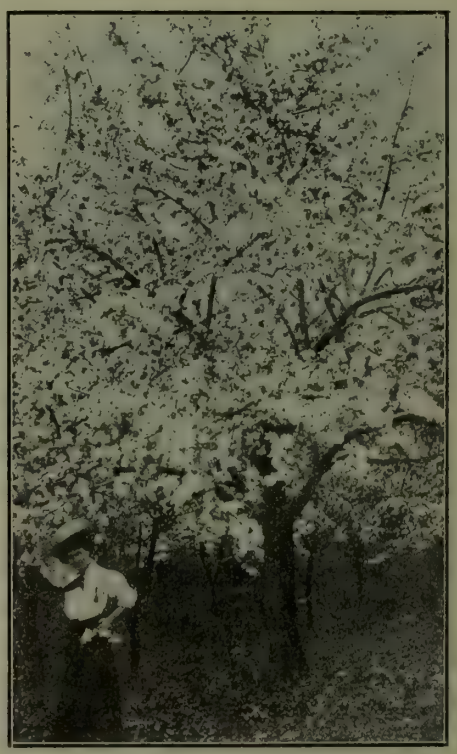
Of all fruits there is probably none that excels the apple. It is a universal favorite; it is suited to men of every stage of life. The youth feasts upon it, the middle-aged enjoy its luscious taste and health-giving qualities, and those of more advenced years still find pleasure and healthful enjoyment in its mellow sweetness. There are many sections in this great Dominion that produce the apple in rich quality and abundant varieties.

What is known as the Annapolis Valley, situated on the north side of the western end of Nova Scotia, and comprising a strip of country about 100 miles long, varying from five to fifteen in width, chiefly in the Counties of King and Annapolis, is a district that is probably surpassed by none anywhere in its capabilities for the growing of this king of fruits. Of course, this year the crop is not of the best; but all districts some time or another suffer to a certain extent from unfavorable conditions.

This valley extends east and west from Windsor town on the east, to Digby on the west, including the famous village of Grant Pre, the reputed home of the Acadian maiden, Evangeline, whose pathetic story is so beautifully told by Longfellow. It is sheltered on the north by a chain of mountains, known as the North Mountains, which keeps out the fogs of the Bay of Fundy; and on the south by another chain called the South Mountains, protecting it from the stormy winds of the Atlantic ocean. In this favored section vast quantities of apples are annually grown, a large proportion of which is shipped to Europe, while a good market is also found in the local towns and cities of their native province and the adjoining Provinces of New Brunswick and Prince Edyard Island.

An Old Apple Country.

The Annapolis Valley has been growing apples for the last 200 years, but the scientific cultivation of them is only in its infancy. The apple-farmer is rapidly getting away from the idea that the methods pursued by his fathers are good enough for him and his orchard. Under more advanced cultivation the quantity and quality of the apple crop has vastly increased of late years and is still rapidly developing. It was estimated that the amount exported last season reached the large figure of 700,000 barrels. There is probably no branch of industry that produces such excellent results for the amount of labor and capital expended as apple-raising.



In the Annapolis Valley, rough, slightly-improved land can be bought for $10 to $40 per care. The amount of labor required to put this land in order is not large. It may then be planted in trees that can be bought for $20 per hundred from the local nurseries. Of course, there is a wait of some years before much return can be obtained from this outlay.

However, the space between the apple trees is usually planted with plums and cherries, which come to bearing much sooner than the apple and are cut out when the latter attains its larger growth. When the apple trees have reached bearing size they rapidly repay the outlay of toil and capital bestowed upon them, and in the valley they appear to attain to a great age.

Average Yield Per Tree.

There are trees near Grand Pre bearing many barrels of apples annually that were planted and bore fruit long before the Grand Pre people were expelled. Many apple trees are known to be over 100 years old and are still bearing abundantly. A tree, when it has attained its growth, will produce from 18 to 20 barrels of good apples per year, providing the season is a favorable one. Many farmers who had the sagacity to go into apple farming a few years ago and pursued it along modern lines are to-day reaping a rich harvest.

As an instance of this we might relate the experience of a Berwick farmer. Twenty-six years ago, then a boy of 16 without money, he purchased a farm of 200 acres for $1,400, which he succeeded in mortgaging for $1,600. The farm had upon it about 80 old trees, producing from 20 to 50 barrels of apples per year. These trees were carefully looked after, the farm was gradually put into better shape, more young stock was added as his limited means would allow, and thus he steadily increased its value and productiveness, until at present he has 83 acres in trees, a large number of which are bearing abundantly. Last season he packed 4,000 barrels of good apples, worth $2 per barrel at the trees. He also shipped $1,000 worth of plums, and another $1,000 worth of strawberries, potatoes and other products. During the intervening years he erected large barns and storehouses, in addition to a dwelling house, at a cost of $3,000, and another for his parents, costing $1,500. He has also built for his six employes comfortable houses, at a cost of six to seven hundred dollars each. What he has accomplished others with his capacity, business ability and patience can do.

Apple Blossom Time in the Annapolis Valley, Nova Scotia.

More Advertising Necessary.

The Annapolis Valley affords abundant opportunity for enterprise and scientific methods. If it were situated in California or some other far-away region its fame would, no doubt, be heralded round the world. As it is, with all its unsurpassed advantages of productiveness, quality of its fruit and nearness to the great European markets, it is comparatively little known.

TRADE NOTES.

Barnes Bros., Halifax, N.S., state that they make an annual turnover of about $25,000. They have only been in the grocery business for four years, and besides paying off a large loan, they have a substantial sum to their credit in the bank.

H. D. Rood, Berwick, N.S., opens on Sept. 1, a general merchandise store, in the establishment formerly owned by Stephen Illsley. For several years past Mr. Rood was with A. O'Connor & Co., Halifax.

J. N. Patterson, Berwick, N.S., is erecting a new store, two storeys in height, and with a basement the size of the building, 45x90 feet. He expects to carry a full line of general merchandise and to have one of the best stores in the Annapolis valley.

A Japanese resident of Marysville, Cal., has opened a canning factory near Yuba City and will pack peaches and beans, employing Japanese help only.

California prune growers have refused to sign contracts for their crops even at an advanced price, believing that it will go higher before the crops are gathered.

Practical Methods Used in Retail Grocery Stores

Halifax Grocer Places Most Dependence on Cleanliness—Summerside, P. E. I. Merchant Believes in Quantity Price Providing there is no Cutting Done—An Advocate of the Scale Versus the Measure—Fighting Mail Order Competition in New Brunswick—Taking Care of Fruit.

Big Value On Cleanliness.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 25.—"I would not deal in a store that was not clean," remarked one of Halifax's good grocers the other day.

His store interior proves that he stands by that conviction. It is clean, bright, attractive and equipped with modern fixtures which he claims are real money savers.

He maintains that a dirty store is seldom successful. Some men, of course, succeed in spite of their failings, simply because the conditions exist which more than counteract those failings. But boxes and barrels strewn all over the floor and counters, flies on the eatables, dust on the goods on the shelf are not good omens to success, thinks this merchant.

He also believes in quality and says that continuous success in the retail grocery store is practically based on good goods at right prices.

A Believer in Quantity Price.

Summerside, P. E. I., Aug. 25.—In giving his opinion on quantity price one of the local merchants says he is a believer in it under certain conditions. He thinks that a man who has the buying power behind him should get a better price when he purchases in quantities.

He, however, does not believe in price cutting and thinks that no merchant should use his buying power to cut below the established prices. In fact, he considers such a man a fool because he could just as well obtain his extra profit and keep business on a better basis. When a price is cut a competitor usually but often unwisely attempts to meet it with the result that soon a low established price is made—one that does not give a fair return on the investment, risk and labor.

Therefore, he thinks well of the quantity price, but not of the price-cutter.

Advocates Use of Scale.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 25.—Speaking of the method of selling by weight, a local grocer expressed himself as heartily in accord with it. He said he would include a large number of articles in the list and expressed the opinion that it would not be long until the custom was practically universal. Under this plan, he stated, everybody is treated alike. There is no picking the goods over. In selling fish, there is no chance of some getting all the large ones, while those who come later receive small ones. When fish are sold by weight, as with herrings, everybody buys a pound and gets a pound. This is one of the strongest points in its favor, he believed.

Also in selling apples by the bag, if so many pecks were given, every customer would not be getting the same weight. But it would be a single matter to weigh every bag and thus there would be no discriminating. The grocer mentioned other articles which could also be weighed satisfactorily.

Fighting Mail Order Competition.

Bathurst, N.B., Aug. 25.—Local merchants have organized for the purpose of fighting the mail order houses. At a recent meeting one merchant expressed the opinion that from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 found its way from that province to the departmental stores of Toronto and Montreal each year. Resolutions were passed inviting the co-operation of the other northern counties of the province, having in view organization all over New Brunswick, and a committee was appointed to take charge of arrangements, "The question is not so much who is to blame for this condition, as how best to find a remedy," said a Bathurst merchant discussing this question.

"The action of the Bathurst merchants is an important step in the right direction, but many other steps are necessary. Boards of Trade should be organized in every city, town, village and settlement of the province and the people of the country districts should be induced to become members of such boards. At the meeting of these bodies it should be pointed out that no county or province can become prosperous where money that should be spent by the people among each other is being sent out in barrelfuls to enrich the business people of other provinces. Against the argument that people should buy in the cheapest markets, it can be shown that if the farm producer does not deal with the home merchant and the home merchant is obliged to give up business, the home market for the farmer is destroyed and that there must necessarily be a reduction in the prices of farm produce, not to speak of the inconvenience of finding an outside market. Most of the trouble has arisen because of the attractive circulars and catalogues sent into our province by the outside departmental stores. Why should not the bigger establishments in our own province send out attractive catalogues? There is no reason why our own business men should not take full advantage of the opportunities offered by printers' ink and engraving.

"That New Brunswick has suffered by the unfair competition referred to there can be no doubt, and that the existence of the general stores throughout the province is threatened, unless action of self defence be taken, no one who goes over the last couple of years can question. A united 'New Brunswick First' policy on this question is the duty of the hour. Bathurst's action is the first gun fired in a battle that must be waged in the interests of the trade of New Brunswick."

Good Store Serves The Public.

Broadview, Sask., Aug. 25.—One of the finest stores in the west is in Broadview, owned by A. R. Colquhoun. This store is now carried on by the son, who told the writer that his father, who built the store, always had the idea that a man should spend his money where he made it. He was successful in business and he spent a large portion of the money he made in his own town in building this splendid store for the convenience of his customers who generously supported him for many years.

If this principle had been followed in general by the merchants, it would never have been possible for the mail order business to succeed. With such a store at home, of which the whole neighborhood has reason to feel proud, there is not much danger that the people will send their money away to build up stores in large cities, which they seldom see, and which do nothing to improve the conditions of their homes and surrounding country.

Good stores in any town will largely increase the value of the farm and town property, and it is in the interests of the entire community that the merchants do their best to give the buying public the best possible service.

Careful Handling of Fruit.

Montreal, Aug. 25.—"To the grocer who is handling fruit a word of caution should be extended, reminding him of the importance of keeping his fruit in as an appealing condition as possible," remarked one merchant here recently. "Appearance often means a great deal. Therefore, let a good appearance do as much for your fruit sales as possible.

"If you have several show windows, devote one of them to fruit alone. Make a neat display every morning, keeping the different varieties together. Use price cards. In other words, make this window talk as impressive as possible."

Many grocers have a blackboard, which they put out in front of their stores. A daily bulletin of store news is written on it. Generally only one article is mentioned, as a special, and most frequently it is devoted entirely to fruit in the fruit season.

When writing advertisers kindly mention having seen the advertisement in this paper.

ONE of the most successful retailers of late years says: "When a firm advertises in trade papers it is getting into good company. As I pick up one of a dozen of these periodicals here in my office, and glance through it, I find that the best people, the successful firms, are represented in such a way as to reflect their importance in the trade."

Keep in mind the dominant fact that mankind from its first appearance on the earth has been schooled by nature to look for signs; for invitations to taste; for suggestions as to what to wear. Tell your story briefly, forcibly, truthfully, and address it through the proper media and you can successfully apply advertising as a means to increased distribution.

To the Manufacturer or Wholesaler——

If it were possible to employ a traveller who could call on 7,000 of the best dealers all through Canada every week, what salary would you figure he'd be worth—even supposing he did nothing more than go in and shake hands with these dealers, under such circumstances they'd be glad to see him.

Would he be worth $200, $300 or $500 per week? Many a house would pretty nearly let him fix his own salary.

Equip an advertisement in this paper with a verbal handshake for every dealer in Canada, and a frank, brief, pointed talk about your goods and you add a traveller to your staff who will make 7.000 calls a week for you at a salary of $4 to $8 a week—less than you would pay a first-class stenographer.

Of course this traveller won't displace any of your regular salesmen, but he will help them to sell more goods and open up more new accounts.

Going to Borrow 5c. Again

The plan of borrowing a nickel from everyone we served with a cup of Red Rose Tea at the Toronto Exhibition last year and giving each one a coupon worth 5c. anywhere when buying a package of Red Rose Tea was declared so successful by merchants generally that we are going to do it again this year.

Will you be good enough to accept these coupons again this year as part payment for a package of Red Rose Tea. They will be redeemed at their face value by any Red Rose Tea traveller or when sent to our Toronto Office.

If you are in Toronto during the Fair we will be very pleased to have you call at our new warehouse, 7 Front St. East, or at the Red Rose Tea Booth at the Exhibition, and if we can extend you any courtesy or serve you in any way the pleasure will be ours. At the booth just make yourself known to the traveller in charge. A corner and a couple of tables will be reserved for grocers, their wives and friends, and you will enjoy the tea too.

The Cash and Bank Book and its Use in Business

In this Book of Original Entry, Sheets may be in the Form of Loose Leaves Ruled on Both Sides and Bound Each Day—Treatment of Cash Discount, Sales and Expenses in the Cash-Book—The Accounts in the Ledger.

By Howard R. Wellington.

In a recent issue we discussed the use of the modern journal and its general bearing on the ledger accounts in any set of books.

In this issue it is our purpose to introduce another book of original entry, viz., the cash book.

In the illustration given below, the sheets may be in the form of loose leaves ruled on both sides and bound either at the end of each day or periodically as desired. By carrying out this idea the bookkeeper may have the use of the sheets for posting purposes, while at the same time it will not interfere in any way with the cashier who is making entries all through the day.

If there is any doubt about these sheets not reaching their destination in the cash binder, each sheet may be numbered and the sheet missing may be noticed immediately.

A number of concerns will keep a "cash account" and also a "bank account" in the ledger, so as to have every necessary amount to a trial balance in the ledger itself. This plan is not really necessary, for the cash book is virtually a ledger account bound in another book or file.

The Debit Side.

On the debit side we have a column for the amount of cash received either by cash or currency, and the amount deposited in the bank. These items are not posted to the ledger, but are simply checked off with similar amounts appearing on the credit side of the cash book under the title of "deposits."

The next column in order is for the account to credit—this being the account to be credited in the ledger with the amount of cash received. A column may be here introduced for the cash discount allowed the customer—this amount of discount may be posted in one amount with cash received to customer's credit.

Cash Sales—Dr. Side.

A column may be here introduced for the cash sales in each department of the business for each day. These daily sales should be totalled on a recapitulation sheet and compared with the recapitulation in the back of each cash sales book and may be entered individually in the cash book or in one amount for each department at the end of the day.

The Credit Side.

The first column is for the amount paid out in cash; the next for the amounts of each cheque drawn on the bank and the third for the account to which either cash or cheque is to be charged.

If cash discount is earned, the amount should be entered in the next column and the amount posted along with the amount of cash paid, to the debit of the correct account in the ledger.

Following these columns, we have the various headings for expenses, suggesting—express, general expense, etc.; and if the business is departmentized, columns may be easily added for expenses of each department, so as to avoid posting more than one item each month.

Another Grocer Refers to Short Weight in Goods

Editor The Canadian Grocer,—B. W. Grant, of Dauphin, Man., in his letter re "Short Weight in Goods," should waken up every live grocer. Thousands of dollars every year are lost by short weight goods. I have often looked at the boxes of biscuits, with all the cardboard, tinsel, and paper, and batting, and wondreed if allowance was made every time for such. Let us test the matter thoroughly and report in The Canadian Grocer. It's bad enough to have the many inspectors of the Government come around and charge you up for scales being correct and yard-stick being the right length, etc., without other losses. To sum up, every article coming into a store should be checked and marked. Try it and you will be astonished.

ONE WHO KNOWS.

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 26, 1910.

TURMERIC, NOT TUMERIC.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—The other day a traveler wanted to bet me a five-dollar bill that "tumeric" was the correct way to spell the spice, which I call and spell "turmeric." I told him I did not have any money, but that I was sure I was right. Now, I see it in the columns of The Grocer "tumeric." Who is right?

RETAILER.

Editorial Note,—The correct spelling is "turmeric." This is the way The Grocer has it spelled in its regular grocery market report. Owing to a typographical error it appeared the other way in an article on spices in last week's issue.

What the Names of Some Grades of Flour Signify

Grocer Who Would Build up Trade in This Commodity Should Make Some Effort to Know the Essential Facts Regarding Various Grades, and Also Something About Merit of Different Brands—How the Term "Patents" was Derived — Other Grades and the Significance of Their Names.

By F. R. H.

Flour is one of the most important staples that many grocers carry. With some the trade concerns, almost entirely, pastry brands, while with others they not only have a good business in that class of flour, but they also have a good demand for those brands from which bread is made. The baker is far from being supreme. It is true that in many communities he has a large following, but there are still many homes that look with disdain on the product of the bakeshop.

Those who have examined the conditions have noticed that in every town or city there are some few grocers who have, as it were, cornered the flour market. In other words, the bulk of the local demand is shared by them. In the course of their growth they have gained the reputation for carrying a line of flour that makes good bread or good pastry, as the case may be.

Care is Necessary.

Grocers admit that care must be exercised with this department of their business, for it is almost impossible to win back a customer who has purchased a bag of flour only to find that it did not possess the qualities she had looked for. Just how some of these grocers build up their flour business is difficult to even guess at, but one grocer is known by the writer who made a careful study of different brands and their respective merits before he had his business beginning to show results.

He did not confine the brands to one single factory's make, but had two, and sometimes carried a third—because people often find out good brands, so far as they themselves are concerned, and are satisfied with them; and as another reason, flour is not a one-price article, and one mill's make may be dearer, but better than another. There are some who, even in the matter of flour, will take a chance on the quality just because there is a difference of fifteen or twenty-five cents. The majority, however, want the best.

Thus, there are good reasons for one grocer's success in handling flour in contrast to another's failure in the same attempt. The main essential is securing a brand or brands which make the best bread or pastry, as the case may be.

The Term Patents.

In the history of the evolution of flour-manufacture, grinding between stones was the only known method for countless years. The grain was placed in a hollowed stone and was reduced to flour by being ground by another stone. There was not much variation of this primitive system until rollers were first used in Hungary. The grain passed between rollers, which were operated by water power.

The reduction to flour as thus easily accomplished by harnessing water power. In this brief article it is not necessary to go into the history of the growth of those mills and their huge water-wheels, which every schoolboy remembers from "The Miller of the Dee" of his school days.

At any rate, the Hungarian idea was patented, and was known as the "Hungarian Patent." It was not long until the method became general, and the word Hungarian was dropped and almost forgotten. That, then, is the explanation of the word "patent," but in everyday use there are first and second patents, according to the quality of the flour.

Some Other Terms.

The wheat is broken by passing through the first pair of rollers. It is then carried by hoppers to another pair a little closer together, and is still further reduced. Thus the process continues, the flour being gradually reduced and cleaned until the best grade is reached.

As many as six reductions are used in some mills, and it is interesting to follow the wheat from its first to final stage, and to see the different constituents of the grain being separated in the various stages.

"First Patents" refer to any mill's choicest bread flour. It should be snowy white; and "Second Patents" are readily distinguished in contrast, because it is not as clean; it does not possess the same degree of whiteness. Nevertheless it is good flour, and is largely demanded by bakers. "Strong Bakers" and "Straight Rollers" contain less of the best flour in the wheat, and naturally are inferior to the first patents.

"Strong Baker" is a term applied to a grade that is even darker than second patents. "Blended Flour" might be termed "general purpose." It is composed of half Manitoba, or bread flour, and half Ontario (winter wheat), or pastry flour. It is naturally not as good a bread flour as are Manitoba patents, and not as good a pastry flour as Ontario patents.

The grocer who buys a particular brand because it is flour, neglecting to consider whether it is the kind his customers will want, can scarcely expect to build up a strong business.

The advice to know the goods that are handled and to be capable of intelligently talking about them, with the knowledge that they will prove just as stated, applies to flour in the same measure as to any other goods.

Shortage in Bean Crop Now Seems to be Quite Probable

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 26.—Reports just received from the vicinity of Blenheim, one of the important centres of the bean-growing industry in this country, indicate that there is a strong danger of this year's bean crop falling considerably short of the estimates based on favorable conditions earlier in the season.

The difficulty is that the beans are not podding out as they should. There is a splendid growth of vines, so that, viewed from the road, a bean field certainly looks well; but closer investigation is most instances will show that the pods are nothing like they should be in number or size. In a single field there will be stretches where the beans are podding out in first-class style; while immediately adjoining are other patches where the pods are hardly worth mentioning.

Growers state that the spell of wet weather in July, following a long drought, is to blame for this condition.

In June the general conditions surrounding the bean crop were pronounced most encouraging by local experts, and predictions were freely made that if these conditions continued equally favorable, the 1,000,000-bushel mark for which growers have been constantly aiming would be reached this year. It was not at that time anticipated that, in any event, the total Canadian crop, which is practically confined within the limits of Essex, Kent and Elgin, would fall below the record of last year, which was pretty nearly 850,000 bushels. Failure of the beans to pod, however, means not only that the 1,000,000-bushel mark will not be attained, but that there will possibly be a considerable shortage from last year's 850,000-bushel crop. Just what the shortage will amount to cannot be accurately told till the actual harvest.

Beans were quoted locally to-day at from $1.50 to $1.65 per bushel, the latter price, for hand-picked, being a 5c advance from last week.

New York City Wants Ontario milk and cream, and has sent one of the inspectors of its health department to inspect the dairies from which it is proposed to draw the supplies of milk and cream.

Owing to the largely decreased stocks of olives it is said that the 10 and 15-cent varieties will likely be taken off the market. In other words, cheap olives are passing.

Unsettled Prices Apparent in Provision Market

Some Varieties of Pork in the East Show a Decline, While Others are Slightly Higher—Compound Lard is Firm and Higher Quotations are Expected — Production of Butter and Cheese Has Not Been Diminished and Prices are Firm—Honey Situation Unchanged—Dealers Report Fairly Good Trade.

The production of butter anh cheese has not decreased to any appreciable extent yet and the output is close to the average with the prospects in favor of fairly good conditions for some time to come. Cheese men state that conditions have been very favorable this year for both butter and cheese. Reports from Montreal for the week show but a slight decrease in the production of butter and cheese as compared with the production of butter and cheese as compared with the production for the same time last year. In some quarters an advance in butter is looked for almost at any time.

Compound lard is firm owing to the advanced price of cottonseed oil. This kind of lard is likely to go higher. Owing to varying demands for different brands of pork the market has been variable of late. Extra large hams are easier but those of other sizes are advanced a cent. There has been a decline of fifty cents in all lines of barrelled porks according to a report from Montreal. Trade on the whole is quite satisfactory.

There is a good demand for select eggs with the supply being about adequate. A slight advance is reported from Montreal The export egg trade has declined gradually during the past decade and it is fully expected that the figures for 1910 will be even lower.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—There are many changes in the provision market this week, and it is a puzzling matter to assign causes for some of them. Compund lards are ½c higher, owing to the high price of cotton seed oil.

Porks are mostly reduced 50c. The changes in hams are most irregular, some having advanced while others are lower. The only reason assigned is a slack demand for some lines, while others are brisk.

Onthe whole trade is satisfactory considering the time of year.

Butter—New milk creamery is ½c higher and is proving hard to obtain in the country. Buyers there are paying high prices, in fact almost as much as they are obtaining at present. In view of these conditions an advance seems to be the next thing in order.

Receipts for the week are 13,666 packages as against 13,583 same week last year. For the season they are 263,544 packages as against 239,048 same season 1909. For the season the increase is comparatively large, but for the week there is little difference.

Eggs.—The heavy call for selects of late has forced the price up 1c. It is thought that new laids will feel the effect of a similar demand before many days have passed. While no actual shortage has occurred there is, nevertheless, a feeling among dealers that the supplies of first class stock are none too numerous.

Receipts for the week are 5,695 cases as against 4,898 cases same week last year. For the season they are 133,356 cases as against 135,463 same season 1909.

Cheese.—There seems to be a strengthening in the export demand for cheese to England, but dealers say it is still far behind last year. The reason of course is not hard to find. New Zealand stock is on the market there in large quantities and is proving popular.

Locally trade is quiet at unchanged prices.

Receipts for the week are 78,809 boxes as against 81,494 boxes same week last year. For the season they are 1,102,830 boxes as against 1,131,294 boxes same season last year, in both cases showing a slight decrease.

Provisions — There have been no changes in the quotations of local houses during the past week. Stocks are light, and although trade is fairly good, the weather at times has been detrimental to trade. The demand for pork is remaining firm. The Old Country bacon market sagged recently and this tendency has been, to a certain extent, reflected on these markets. Compound lard is firm, and is likely to go higher at any time. Cottonseed oil is dear, and as it is used in the production, compounds have been soaring. The supplies of live hogs have been fairly liberal.

Butter—The pastures throughout the country are in good condition and the milk supply has as yet showed no diminution. Butter is still arriving rather plentifully, and there has been no increase in prices. The market is firm. According to local dealers the quality is much improved, and this department of their trade is proving quite satisfactory.

Eggs—The egg market has changed but little during the week. Receipts continue liberal, but there is a good demand and the market remains firm. Dealers have not altogether escaped from the effects of the weather, and the season is not yet passed. However, the quality of the goods now arriving is superior to that of several weeks ago. Eggs may take an advance at any time now, but it is hardly expected for the immediate future.

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

Supplied to the Trade by Sellers.

D. Hatton Co., Montreal, report a large sale of fish to Germany. The shipment will run fully ten carloads, and includes halibut, mackerel, and several other varieties. Previous purchases of Canadian fish by Germany have evidently proved eminently satisfactory when such an order as this is placed.

Leonard Bros., St. John, N.B., one of the largest packers of codfish, etc., have gone into the canning business, putting up sardines. The first car will arrive in a few days, which has been eagerly sought after by the trade. The samples already forwarded here have turned out fine. There seems to be a large demand for this article to retail at 5c. They expect to put up another grade finer than these, samples of which have not been forwarded yet. The agents for Leonard Bros. are W. H. Millman & Sons, Toronto.

Further investigation regarding the introduction of coco fruitine on this side of the Atlantic confirm the view that its use will produce a revolution that will distinctly benefit householders for all cooking purposes and all purposes where pure lard and cooking butter are employed. This article, which is manufactured from cocoanuts, and is a genuinely pure extract of cocoanut produced in Marseilles, and shipped from there under the name of coco fruitine. It is shipped to this country in a hardened form, although used in France in the form of oil largely. Coco fruitine is used in enormous quantities by the large biscuit makers in Great Britain and on the continent. It is singularly wholesome and nourishing, and its easy digestion, compared with similar articles, therefore commend it greatly. The nourishment contained in this article is greater than that from similar goods. It is made in such form that all moisture is eliminated, making it, therefore, more economical in use. Its absolute purity, its nourishing qualities, the economy in its use, and its agreeable taste, so far as there is any taste to it, all favor its large sale.

Estimate of Wheat Crop Almost 100 Million

Harvesting has Already Begun in the West, and New Wheat has Reached Fort William—Flour Market is Quiet, and Trade Seems to be Uncertain, Waiting for More Settled Conditions—Prices Have Not Changed — Rolled Oats Steady—Change in Prices not Expected for the Present.

Throughout western Canada harvesting is rapidly advancing and the work of threshing the new crops is slowly progressing. At one stage it seemed as if some sections of the press were not going to leave sufficient crops for a harvest. The estimates fell with a swoop, and it has taken weeks to re-establish a spirit of confidence akin to that which existed before the dry weather began to make itself felt. A recent estimate of the new crop has now exceeded the one hundred million-mark, and the daily press is making an effort to reassure the country that the statements they made were impulsive and uncalled for. It might also be remarked that they were neither wise nor patriotic.

The more conservative grain men look askance at reports of that character, suggesting that a surface examination of conditions is not sufficient. At any rate, the grain is being threshed now and some of it has found its way east. The western grain provinces were gone over with a fine-tooth comb, and as a result, there is a pleasing feeling of security abroad. Business houses are feeling it and the undertone of prosperity that is manifest may be attributed to this sentiment that conditions were nothing like what they were painted. Of course, one year's failure would hardly have the effect that some are inclined to expect, but Canada is not going to have a chance to try it this year. A despatch from New York says that the feeling of security there has recently manifested itself by a decline in the price of foodstuffs.

Among the trade there seems to be a feeling of uncertainey, as if they were waiting for the market to assume a settled condition.

Now, having passed the drought period, the Canadian crop must run the gauntlet of the frost. It may be taken as a fact that the wheat is so ripe that it cannot be affected by whatever frost is felt now. Regarding future prices, much depends upon the quantities of grain that are shipped before navigation closes.

Regarding Ontario wheat, there have been reports of smut, but just how true this statement is it is hard to tell. English and continental grain markets continue to recede. There seems to be an anxiety in some parts of European countries to market their grain as quickly as possible, and this has a tendency to depress prices. The oat crop in Ontario is much better than last season, according to reports to hand.

Canadian Peaches are Receiving Most Attention

Fruit Men are Increasing Their Stocks — St. Johns Were the Leading Feature of a Busy Market This Week—Quality Good and Price Steady—Demand for Early Apples has Been Brisk —Tomatoes and Potatoes Features of Vegetable Market — Higher Prices for Fish, Owing to Limited Supplies.

Peaches are claiming most importance on Canadian fruit markets at the present time, and from all accounts the trade is quite satisfactory. Early varieties are being bought largely and apparently the retailers are finding many buyers, for the bulk of the fruit passes finally through their hands. Grocers are handling a great deal of fruit this year and are receiving, generally, good prices. Peaches are going to be a good crop, according to those who have investigated the conditions throughout the country, and prices should be fairly easy. Pears, plums and lawtonberries are also enjoying a good trade. Early apples have been in good demand, and dealers have stated that they could have sold many more had they been able to procure them. Demand for lemons is steady, but much easier than that of a month ago.

Potatoes seem to be a good crop and the quality of those the dealers are showing could scarcely be improved upon. Tomatoes are moving rapidly, and crop prospects are bright. The market, on the whole, is steady, with supplies coming in and going out readily.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits—Limes are scarce, and the price has advanced 25c. Even at the advance there is a brisk trade passing. The present hot weather has undoubtedly increased the consumption of limes greatly. No weakening is expected. Outside of this one article the market is easier, and trade is not as good as at this time last year. However, September should prove a good month, with the large influx of visitors expected from the Congress.

Vegetables—This week the vegetable market has shown a slightly weaker tone in many of the lines. The only line showing an advance is spinach, which is now quoted at $2.50 per barrel. Scarcity of the first-class article is the cause of this advance. In anticipation of a large increase in consumption during the Eucharistic Congress, dealers have placed orders for extra supplies in all lines. There seems to be no doubt that trade will be large. At present trade is somewhat slack, the "calm before the storm," so to speak.

Fish—The fish business is improving with the approach of cooler weather. Lake fish still continue scarce, but some improvement is expected in the yield before long. Ocean fish are coming in fairly well. Frozen fish have already been contracted for for next season. The prospects are for a shorter output in general.

Green Fruits—Peaches of an early variety are now claiming chief attention on the market. Yellow St. Johns, from the Queenston district, are looking particularly fine, and the wholesalers are receiving large stocks. The price varies considerably, some quoting from $1.35 to $1.75, while there are some houses that have them down as low as $1.25. From general opinions expressed, the peach crop is going to be quite satisfactory. The demand for peaches is good and the early stocks seem to be moving out rapidly. There are still importations of the U. S. varieties. Naturally, the demand for them has diminished to some extent in the face of the home-grown fruit that is now quite plentiful. Cherries, gooseberries and currants are all off the market. The receipts of Canadian plums are increasing and their quality is tempting. Cantaloupes have dropped in price. The demand is good. Lemons are firm at $5.50, and there are not many who expect an improvement in the price during the remainder of this month, although there is a possibility that the demand may be increased. Old fruitmen do not look upon August as a particularly good lemon month, but they believe that September will boost the demand for lemons. The new crop, according to reports, is ripening slowly, and holders of stocks are hoping that this statement will be realized, as they seem to fear that they may not be able to dispose of the lemons they have on hand. September, however, should make an inroad into their stocks. Oranges are held lightly, with late Valencias bringing a good price. In regard to pears the price varies according to the quality.

A Proper Test of worth is to be in direct competition and WIN. This is what we did the past week at the N.Y. Auction. Our customer decided to sell his Lemons in New York. They were not specially packed but were our regular pack for Canada. The highest price paid was for OUR BRAND. Why? Because our name is well and favorably known wherever Lemons are sold. Our pack is the Standard of Quality. Order Follina's brands of selected Lemons.

Vegetables—Imported potatoes belong to the past, the Canadian variety being of splendid quality, and are plentiful. Prices all along the vegetable line are reasonable and a good business is being done. Tomatoes are receiving principal attention at present, and they are being received in good quantities these days. Asked as to whether they would get cheaper or not, a wholesaler gingerly remarked that he considered the price was low enough. Spanish onions are quoted below former figures, and the trade is receiving rather large shipments of late. On the whole, the fruit and vegetable markets are holding their own.

Fish—Prices in the fish market are firm. Whitefish and trout are both above last week's quotations, and are likely to hold those figures. The supply is small and the market is held firmly. The demand is good, but it cannot reach a large figure while the supplies are not more plentiful. From eastern Canada reports are received that the lobster catch is small and the amount canned is likely to be below the average.

NOT PTOMAINE POISONING.

Another Case Where an Erroneous Item was Circulated Through the Press re Canned Goods.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—A day or so ago our attention was drawn to the following item which appeared in a Hamilton paper under date of August 5th:

Poisoned by Canned Goods.

(G. N. W. Despatch.)

Toronto, Aug. 5.—James Hardy was brought to St. Michael's hospital to-day suffering from ptomaine poisoning, after eating canned goods. He is slowly recovering. Hardy arrived here from England two weeks ago. His wife and family are there yet.

Being largely interested in canned goods of all kinds, we took the trouble to investigate this case, and it would appear to have been reported by someone who apparently was not cognizant of the facts.

Upon inquiry we find Mr. Hardy at dinner at a restaurant at 12 o'clock noon, partaking of roast beef, and at 6 o'clock ate at the same restaurant, his meal comprising a beef stew and raspberry pie. At 8.30 on this evening he had severe pains and sent for a doctor, who prescribed for him and sent him to St. Michael's hospital. The next morning the patient was very much better and in the course of two or three days, discharged, and is now in normal health again.

Mr. Hardy had neither eaten canned vegetables, canned meats or canned goods of any description for a period of at least a week previous to his attack. A number of similar cases have been reported recently and the cause ascribed to canned goods, whereas on investigation the cause has been found to be entirely different.

The doctor in the Hardy case advised the writer that in his opinion Mr. Hardy's attack was not caused through ptomaine poison.

As the canned goods business in this country has grown into a large industry, it seems unfair that items such as the above should be published without careful evamination of facts.

Yours truly,
W. H. Millman & Sons.

The shipping of Ontario fruit to the west is growing. An attempt was made with a car of strawberries early in the season. The success of its trip accounts for the cars of red currants, cherries, gooseberries, peaches, tomatoes, etc., which have been sent out by the St. Catharines Cold Storage Co.

Perishable fruits exposed for sale in Kansas City must be covered by wire screen or netting or placed in a glass case, otherwise the law will show its strength against those who refuse to comply. Even commission men are to be included. Bacteria and flies will have a hard time of it under these conditions.

Newsy Notes Done Up in Brief for Busy Grocers

What is Happening Among Trade Associations—Something About the Growth of Allspice—Origin of Marmalade— Time for Collections Near at Hand.

The stock of a grocer in Washington, Ind., has been purchased by the congregation of a church, who will cater to the residents of the neighborhood under the caption of the "Square Deal Grocery."

The French sardine pack is reported light so far and there are no indications of an increased run of fish in the near future.

The new ordinance passed in Cleveland enacting that all displays made on the sidewalks are prohibited has brought a protest from the retail grocers' association of that city. Several of the members have been arrested for breaches of the law which was suggested to the council by a grocer and a member of the association.

The Supreme Court of Minnesota recently delivered a decision to the effect that the jobber or manufacturer who sells an adulterated or poisonous cooking oil to a retail merchant, is liable to the retailer for his consequent loss of business in selling the product to his customers.

Don't forget that rice has many qualities which should recommend it to the housekeeper. It is fairly cheap, nourishing, is easily digested and with but little trouble can be prepared for the table in a tempting form. Rice will stand boosting.

Don't be a grouch. Men of that class will never make a big success in the grocery business. The big business is generally built on big ideas.

Jamaica is the only country in the world that regularly exports allspice or pimento, as it is also known, being the small dried unripe berries of the pimento tree. Just before the berries begin to ripen they are picked and then they undergo a drying process in the sun, lasting about five days. Rain at this time is damaging. When brown they are cleaned, that is, the twigs and leaves are removed. Allspice has many uses in the home and during the pickling season is in great demand.

Marmelo is the Portugese name for quince and from that word comes our English expression "marmalade." The quince was first used in making that confection, but now oranges, lemons and other fruits are employed although the genuine quince marmalade can be purchased.

The grocer must realize that this is one of the best times in the year to plan a collecting campaign. The summer and spring have been for the most part excellent for general business and there is a feeling of prosperity among all classes. The grocer should get his due and now is the time to make a beginning before winter approaches and the family tighten up the strings of their little hoards.

The southern acreage in Japan rice will be about 35 per cent. short, with Honduras rice showing a large increase.

The average grocer must sell fifteen dollars worth of goods in a day before he has made one dollar net, for himself.

By a new ordinance New York grocers are forbidden to sell eggs by the dozen. In future they must sell them by the pound. A fine of $100 is the penalty.

It is not bad business to leave the window lights burning for an hour or two after dark. Particularly in summer people like to stroll down town and if the windows are in the least attractive they stop and intently examine them. This often leads to sales the next day or in the near future.

When a merchant, be he grocer, hardware, etc., begins to get jealous of a neighbor, then does he begin to neglect his own business. There is more truth than fiction in the old saying that it takes all a man's time to look after his own affairs.

In 1909 Canada produced 19,711,801 pounds of beet sugar. Altogether there were 11,100 acres of beets grown producing 79,056 tons of beets.

The Mistress.—"Mary, don't let me catch you kissing that grocer's man again."

FRIENDS—NOT GROWLERS

RISING SUN Stove Polish in Cakes never comes back to you with growls from the housekeeper. It is always up to the same high standard maintained for forty years, and is always just right. That's why we have the thousands upon thousands of grocers pushing it everywhere. Grocers don't wish to run the risk of losing a good customer by passing out an inferior stove polish, which is wrong more often than it is right. RISING SUN makes friends for you and for us in every household where you put it.

2 IN 1 Shoe Polish

The Polish OF Preference

It pays to handle a quick-selling line like "2 in 1" Shoe Polish—a line that's always in demand and that always gives satisfaction.

"2 in 1" is positively waterproof, preserves and softens the leather, does not clog or stain the clothes, and is free from acid or turpentine.

Get a generous supply and display it well.

Nature has solved the problem of distribution. It uses a multitude of agents to effect the distribution of its products.

Nature does not expect every seed to fall upon fallow ground and to take root. But, it achieves a profitable percentage upon its distribution. This is all that an advertiser has to do to reap a profitable harvest on his outlay.

Father Morriscy's Remedies . . .

Less than two years ago, Father Morriscy's Remedies were put up in popular form and placed on the market in Eastern Canada. They met with a splendid reception from the public and dealer alike, not only owing to the merits of the preparations, but on account of the extensive advertising campaign. Arrangements are now being made to extend our territory to cover all Canada, backed up by strong and effective advertising, which is sure to create an immediate demand in the new Provinces; practically every paper in Canada will carry our ads. Distributing depots will be established at different points to enable the retail dealer to procure the goods readily, and with the minimum of expense.

Retailers who handle patent medicines will make no mistake in stocking the remedies, as the sale is absolutely guaranteed.

"Quality Counts" is our business slogan
—our goods, our methods, match

If Your Store is in the Maritime Provinces—Why not Avail Yourself of Our Specialized Service?

To supply you quickly, conveniently, with just those grocery lines which offer the surest profit in your particular locality—this is what our specialized Maritime Provinces service has made possible.

Years of our close study and experience were necessary to bring this service to its present perfection.

Unusual discrimination was required in our buying, in our manufacturing; equally critical methods had to be established in the filling of orders.

Even in our packing and shipping departments we had to expensively build up a system which would eliminate to the minimum possibilities of the slightest inconvenience to our customers.

Now—long since these methods have justified themselves in increased business—we are proud of our service. We invite you to take profitable advantage of it with your very next grocery order—large or small.

As Importers, Manufacturers and Wholesale Distributors we are Ready to Serve You—to Your Profit

Everything that you will ever want in the grocery line you can get here from stock in our big warehouses. Some lines we manufacture ourselves; for instance:—

FLAVORING EXTRACTS, COFFEES, PURE SPICES, BAKING POWDER,
ICINGS, LIME JUICE,
FRUIT SYRUPS, PULVERIZED SUGAR

Other lines we import at the closest possible prices because of our large handling capacity. These lines include:—

MOLASSES, PORK, LARD, RICE,
DRIED FRUITS, SALT AND PICKLED FISH

Then we are distributors for many prominently reliable brands of readily selling goods:—

"GOLD BOND" CANNED GOODS
WM. P. HARTLEY'S JAMS and MARMALADES
LEA'S PICKLES and KETCHUPS
GOODWILLIE'S FRUITS IN GLASS
HOLBROOK'S PICKLES AND SAUCES
"PRIDE OF CANADA" MAPLE GOODS
SNOWSHOE BRAND RED SALMON

But in every single instance the goods must conform to our high quality standard or they cannot find a place in our stock. So that no matter when or what you buy from us you can feel positive as to quality, even though our quotations are close If you have an enquiry to make we will gladly reply immediately if you will write us now.

How many hours each day or night must you put in working and worrying over your accounts? Let us be conservative and say it takes two hours of your valuable time each night during the week to post your accounts. That means you spend one day out of every week, or

52 days out of the year on your books

Ever think how much this time would be worth to your family and to your own health if spent at home or at some pleasant diversion?

Cut of 100 Customer Size, showing hood locked to cabinet.

HERE ARE SOME THINGS THE KEITH SYSTEM WILL DO FOR YOU:

1. Enable you to settle with a customer at any time without any delay or confusion in checking up accounts and still be sure you have made no mistakes.
2. Fully protect your accounts in case of fire.
3. Permit any number of clerks to make a charge or settle with a different customer at the same time without conflicting with each other and without any possibility of mixing accounts or bringing forward the wrong past balances.

"Enterprise" Economy

An Enterprising grocer, who does things right, uses an "Enterprise" Electrically-Driven Coffee Mill

The right way is also the cheapest way in the end. It always pays. Take the experience of the Philadelphia grocer who grinds 15,000 pounds of coffee a month with an "Enterprise" Mill electrically-driven at a cost for current of $3.00.

He bought the Mill as a great convenience—a time and labor saver, and an up-to-date attraction for his store. Its economy astonished him.

Look through our catalogue and you will find Mills of any capacity, any power required, for direct or alternating current. Your local power supply company will co-operate with advice and assistance.

The Mill illustrated here is No. 08712, fitted with ½ horse power motor for alternating current. Capacity of each iron hopper, 6 pounds of coffee. One Mill is fitted with grinders for granulating, the other for pulverizing. Granulates 2 pounds of coffee per minute, and can be regulated for fine or coarse grinding while mill is running. If you haven't the catalogue showing all our Mills, write for a copy to-day.

Early June Peas

IT IS A FACT that you can make a greater profit by selling our finer grade peas than you can out of the lower grades. A little extra selling talk with your good customers as to the superior flavor and tenderness of the better grades will land a trial order in nine cases out of ten. Generally, customers of fair means who have been persuaded once to try the better grades will never again be content with lower priced lines. As the profit is greater, and the satisfaction of the customer is unfailing, why not push our better grades of peas? Ask your wholesaler for our Early June (sifted) and Sweet Wrinkle (extra sifted).

BRAND'S ESSENCE OF BEEF

We issue a hearty invitation to every Canadian grocer visiting the Exhibition to call at our stand in the Manufacturers' Building and get particulars of our Special Introductory offer. Brand's Essence is specially recommended by leading physicians the world over for invalids, and although immense quantities are sold by druggists, a much larger amount is handled through grocery stores. There is a very good margin of profit for the dealer, and every assistance will be given and no expense spared by the manufacturer to help you to dispose of Brand's Specialties.

READ WHAT ONE DELIGHTED DEALER SAYS:

Peterboro, 9th July, 1910.

Thos. O. Baxter

Dear Sir,—Would you please send us by Express, one dozen Brand's Essence of Beef in tin, same as we had before. There is a growing demand for it. Two new customers are waiting for this lot to arrive. The case of one man with the worst type of Anaemia has been a great advertiser. It has been a great thing for him, and all his friends are talking about it, so it has a good start now. You will find enclosed Express Order in payment of last lot. Your kind attention will oblige.

Yours truly,
A LEADING GROCER. (Name on request)

THREE THINGS ARE REQUIRED OF

COUNTER CHECK BOOKS

They must be Convenient, Speedy and Safe

By Convenient, we mean they must be of such style as to be handled easily.

They must permit of fast work on the part of the clerk.

They must produce good copies.

The most Convenient, the Speediest and the Safest Counter Check Book is made of

Surety Non-Smut Paper

We make Surety Books in duplicate and triplicate. In the duplicate book the original is of white paper, coated on the back with a non-smutting carbon, the duplicate is of yellow. In the triplicate both the original and duplicate are white, coated on the back, the triplicate being of yellow.

Every Copy is 100 Per Cent. Perfect

There are no loose carbons to become wrinkled or torn or to give poor copies. We make many other varieties of Counter Check Books, and will be glad to quote prices upon application.

QUIT LOSING!

What's the use of sticking to anything that is continually causing you loss? If your credit customers are the source of the greatest loss to you, why not try the ONE way to make them a safe, profitable ASSET? You can do this by adopting the Allison Coupon Book System, which has proved its worth to hundreds of progressive merchants all over the country.

Allison Coupon Books

systematize credit accounts, simplify collections, please the customers and eliminate arguments. They cost but little and pay for themselves many times over.

HOW THEY WORK

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10 — No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best.

Close Study of the Relation of Cost to Retail Price

Henry Johnson Jr., Gives the Retailers Some Sound Advice in This Article—Shows Why 25 Per Cent. on is Equal to 20 Per Cent. off—The Grocery Department of the Catalogue House—Grocer Must Not Pay More Than an 80-Cent Average for Goods Selling at $1—Cost Price Should be Figured on Replacement Value.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

Many years ago, when I was learning the true inwardness of the grocery business in the hard school of experience, an old wholesale grocer said to me, impressively: "Know what things cost—KNOW what things COST—that's the most important thing you can learn." And, being necessarily the basis of the entire structure, surely this knowledge is fundamental.

The trouble is that figures do lie so badly that we must watch them every minute or they will deceive us; and as for tapping the till—why, figures are the greatest thieves you ever saw. But, like the "trusty" in prison, the reformed set of figures is the best and most reliable friend any merchant can ever hope to tie up with. Therefore, let us reform our set of figures without delay.

Some Vagaries of Figures.

Maybe you have tried some of these experiments. Take $1 and add 20 p.c., then deduct 20 p.c. and see if you have your dollar. You surely have not. Take 65 cents and add 25 p.c., then take away 20 p.c., and see what you have. You will have 65 cents. Let me see: 65 plus 25 p.c. is 81¼ cents. 20 p.c. of 81¼ is 16¼, which being deducted, leaves us with the original 65 cents. This illustrates, to some extent, that we must be careful from which end we figure our profits and our expenses.

Department stores are things we do not like, yet they are wonderful organizations. If they were not well organized, they could not live because their average of expense is killingly heavy. It is not uncommon for them to carry a burden of upwards of 30 p.c. on the average. Now, figuring your way and mine, we would say that, in order to "get by" those people would have to make a profit of 33 1-3 p.c. or better; and, to get any velvet, they must work the average up to nearly 40 p.c. But the department store does not figure things that way. They determine that they "must not pay to exceed 60 (or 65) cents for their goods." That means that merchandise to be sold for $1 must cost only 60 to 65 cents on the average.

Not a Profitable Department.

This is what is meant by the Relation of Cost to Retail Prices. But let us follow the department store a little further, just to demonstrate that we grocers have no monopoly of trouble. In the department store there is a grocery department. It is put there as a leader, the intention being to carry it for the advertising, etc., or to plan things so that it will carry itself. But the truth is, it never really carries itself, in a department store, for that is not in the nature of the grocery business. With all the "buying power" in the world and unlimited markets, etc., to draw from, no grocer can work up an average profit of much over 22 to 23 p.c.—and he is a bright grocer who can get it above 20 p.c. The reason is obvious—competition will not admit of wider margins. Thus the department store must work things out so as to carry the grocery department.

To begin with, then, there is the millinery department, with actual, direct expense of, say, 27 p.c., though really I do not know just what it is. To this 27 p.c. must be added, say, 8 p.c. to cover the owner's salary; the office help, general telephone service, the "rest room", the children's school, and sundry other things which must be "spread around" to be carried. In this way the grocery department on the face of things shows an expense account of 24 p.c.—an impossible figure. So the management arbitrarily deducts 8 p.c. from the burden of the grocery department, leaving 16 p.c. of an expense account, and this 8 p.c. is credited on the sales of groceries and apportioned onto the other departments pro rata.

Cost 80 Cents; Selling Price, $1.

The figuring of the proper margins, etc., on all these departments, keeping track of returned goods, credits, and "mark-down" sales, and all that, is a stupendous and exceedingly intricate task; and, to simplify things, so the matter might be clear to the ordinary man, the plan of working on the Relative Cost basis came into vogue. Thus, the grocer, who is the man we are interested in, finds that, to make any showing at all, he must not pay over 80 cents for his goods.

And this is a system not without merit for our consideration. And its management is simple, once we get accustomed to it. Suppose you start to work that scheme now. Your first step will be to inventory your stock, and figure up the list at retail prices in a first column. Then, in a second column, put down your cost prices, always using replacement values as your cost. Now, add up your columns and you can see at almost a glance what you are paying for a dollar's worth of goods.

Shrinkage in Figuring Profits.

Taking round figures, suppose your first column foots up $6,000 and your second column produces $4,800, you have right before you the "answer" that you are paying 80 cents for your goods. And one vast and helpful advantage here is that you know this is the average of your cost-relation. Such an example, honestly followed out, would set you thinking hard, very hard indeed. I am satisfied it would set you about the task of raising the average materially, for I believe you would agree with me that such a high cost-relation was too dangerously near the limit at which the margin might be lost entirely. For it must be remembered that, in all such processes, one takes the full value of each package. One estimates 100 lbs. of sugar in a bag; 49 lbs. of flour in the quarter barrel sack; 119 lbs. in the bag of nuts just in from the jobber. But, in selling these things there is the inevitable shrinkage with which we are all theoretically familiar, but which we do not always remember when we get to "figuring profits."

Now, therefore, let us examine things. We have arrived at the average cost-relation and it has been a revelation to us; let us profit by the lesson. If we find that our cost-relation on our best grade of canned goods has been 70, maybe we can find ways and means to reduce that to 65 or even 60. If we have been giving undue prominence to a breakfast food which we have been told "pays 20 p.c.," but which our critical study demonstrates yields only 16 2-3 p.c. gross, let us lay that away and devote our attention to a line that yields better money.

Absolute Knowledge Obtained.

The point is, that such critical, analytical study of the facts of our business will tend to put us on the sure ground of absolute knowledge, give us our bearings and enable us to read the sextant correctly.

Such thought and accurate care will prompt us to constantly aim to buy and push more profitable goods, which means better goods; which means better trade; which means a higher class business all the way through. I know because I have been there to see. I may say, in fact, that the store of Johnson & Son, which was formerly one of many, is to-day the place where the "best people" like to trade; it is the "fashion" to trade at Johnson's. And, much as we may feel like smiling at such notions, we can usually find a solid basis for the preference. While a lot of women are chattering in a sort of aimless way about how and why they like this or that better than the other, you may properly and correctly conclude that the store they prefer to go to, passing many others on the way, has character and abiding merit.

And that comes about in just one way, gentlemen. It is the result of honest effort along all the various avenues of work, thought, study and business analysis. What say you?

Grocers' Section R.M.A. Ask for Consideration

Send Out Argumentative Letter to Food Stuff Manufacturers in Reference to Retailers' Profits—Question of Manufacturers Selling Cheaper to the "Favored Few" Taken up—Large Retailers Destroy Profit on Some Lines of Groceries, They Claim.

The Grocers' Section of the Retail Merchants' Association, through its Dominion secretary, E. H. Trowern, sent out recently the following letter to manufacturers of food products; it explains itself:

"As you are doubtless aware, the retail merchants of Canada are now incorporated by Act of Parliament, the association being known as "The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada," which consists of the various sections of trade such as dry goods, groceries, hardware, drugs, boots and shoes, general stores, etc.

"The Grocers' Section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada have met recently to discuss the situation as regards the relations between the manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers, and we address you now with a view to giving you an expression of our views, having an acknowledgement from you, and, if possible, a fair understanding as to your position with regard to the retail trade.

"For your information we beg to say that the association is now several thousand strong, and in a short time we expect that the membership will comprise fully ninety per cent. of the retail trade in the Dominion.

"One of the greatest difficulties the trade have to contend with is the lack of fairness on the part of the manufacturers in their dealings with the retail trade. We refer particularly to sales by manufacturers direct to large retail buyers at wholesale prices, also of sales by manufacturers to so-called jobbers who are indirectly connected with retail establishments, and to sales by manufacturers to jobbers who violate their selling contracts with manufacturers by cutting prices to favored retailers. If the legitimate and honest channels of trade are interfered with, the effect is very disastrous upon the very great majority of retailers. At the present time through conniving with some dishonest wholesale houses, some large retailers have succeeded in securing concessions that the ordinary retailer would not stoop to obtain. When manufacturers are a party to a large retailer obtaining goods on as low a basis as the wholesaler, you must readily see the serious effect this has upon the retail trade of the country, and The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada desires, therefore, to put itself on record with you as being strongly opposed to manufacturers who directly or indirectly supply large retailers on a favored basis.

Grocery Business Suffering.

"On some lines of goods the profit of the retail trade is absolutely destroyed through the action of some large retailers who use these goods as a medium to attract consumers for the purchase of their more profitable lines, and the grocery business is, therefore, suffering on this account, and largely because of the assistance rendered by some manufacturers, directly or indirectly.

Some of those who attended the British Columbia Retail Grocers' Association Convention at Vancouver, a report of which appeared in last week's issue. The names are from left to right:

Top Row—George M. Thrift, J. S. Foran, W. E. Tolson, Sidney J. Heale, A. Tait, T. H. White.
Second Row—T. S. Futcher, J. W. Thompkins, A. M. Tolson, C. R. Aetzel, G. N. Kelly.
Third Row—T. F. McDowell, T. Redding, Fred W. Welch, E. J. Wall, W. Clark, Wm. B. Hall.
Bottom Row—A. G. Main, R. D. Dinning, C. Clark, J. J. Efford.

"The situation is so serious to the retail trade of this country that The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada have passed resolutions and determined upon a course that they hope and believe will lead to a better understanding between the trade and the manufacturers.

"We believe that the business of the manufacturer should be done entirely through the wholesale trade and that all proprietary lines controlled by the manufacturer should be distributed on a basis that will ensure a reasonable margin to all those concerned in the distribution of the goods. Manufacturers who consider it in their interests to sell large retail concerns and lend encouragement to the conduct of business on lines hurtful to the retail trade have, of course, the right to continue doing business that way, but to be frank with you it is the intention of the retail trade throughout the country to drop the sale of goods the manufacturer of which is unmindful of the interests of the retail trade. It will be our special effort to keep in touch with the consumer on lines of goods that show the retailer a fair margin, and on lines upon which there is no profit there will be an organized effort on the part of the retail trade to entirely dispense with the sale of the same.

Want Manufacturers' Views.

"We speak plainly in this matter so that you will thoroughly understand the situation, that it is the desire of our association to put ourselves in communication with all the Canadian manufacturers and get their views so that they can in turn post all the members of The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada as to the sale of the products of manufacturers who will properly protect the interests of the trade generally.

"We would be pleased if you would give this matter your serious thought and reply at an early date, giving us your views on the subjects referred to."

Manufacturer and Retailers Have Conference

Item in Canadian Grocer re Purchasing Canned Goods Brings Them Together—Entire Pack of Peas Sold—Was Only 62 per Cent. of Orders—Why Goods Advance on Dec. 1st Explained.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—In the issue of The Canadian Grocer of August 19, there appeared a report of a meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association under the heading: "Retailers Not Satisfied—Toronto Grocers have Complaints Against Canned Goods Manufacturers' and Jobbers' Methods."

The report in part was as follows:

"The trouble is due to what the grocers claim to be a 'hold-up' on the part of the manufacturer and jobber. Now is the time when they usually contract for their canned goods for fall delivery. In the case of peas, however, they are not going to be able to secure their entire orders. Some talked of only being able to get 25 per cent., or whatever the wholesaler cared to give them. But when it comes to corn and tomatoes, on which there is likely to be a good pack, they will be given the entire amount that their contracts call for.

"What the retailers actually claim is that the other parties to the transaction are holding back peas in anticipation of higher prices later on. Retailers, too, say they cannot contract for peas without contracting for equal quantities of corn and tomatoes, but they can order corn or tomatoes separately.

"There is still another grievance. When an order is given for fall delivery, the entire order arrives, and the retailer has to pay for the whole amount. He thus ties up a considerable sum of money in canned goods, which he has to stock about his premises, and take all risks."

On Monday of this week the Dominion Canners, Hamilton, Ont., invited representatives of the Grocers' Association and a representative of The Canadian Grocer to take a trip to Hamilton and have a look at their books with reference to the question of holding back goods for higher prices. This invitation was accepted and on Tuesday, D. McLean, president, Toronto R. G. A., and D. W. Clark, one of the members, with a Grocer representative from the Toronto office, went to Hamilton.

The books showed that in the case of peas the total pack was a little less than 62 per cent. of the goods ordered by the wholesale trade. The pack was short. There was a good acreage of peas and there was a good crop expected until June, when dry weather set in. The contract between the canners and the wholesale trade calls for delivery of 60 per cent. of the goods ordered in case of a short pack, and this has been done by the canners, who have delivered their entire pack of peas.

The deputation asked why it was that prices were slated to go up 2½ cents per dozen on Dec. 1. To this the canners replied that it was because they wish to get rid of their pack before that date. If they were not able to do this it meant loss of interest on money tied up in unsold stock, storage risks, etc. They would, however, prefer to clear out stocks at the opening prices.

Purchasing in Advance.

The retailers also brought up the matter of the retail trade having to take its entire supplies of canned goods as soon as they were shipped. It was pointed out that this meant that the retailers had money tied up in stock in the autumn which would not be all sold for almost a year. They also carried the risk of storage during the winter. What they would like was that they should be able to buy their canned goods supplies when needed and at the same time be assured against price changes during the year. It was suggested by one of the retailers that a sufficient price to the retail trade be made on the goods when opening prices were named to cover the expense of manufacturer or jobber in carrying the unsold stocks and the interest on the money tied up in them. This is a question that will call for further consideration; it was merely suggested.

There were several other matters talked over, the conference being of a harmonious character, and illustrated to both manufacturer and retailer the value of coming together occasionally for a friendly conversation on business matters. By such meetings each is able to understand more clearly the difficulties of the other.

What a Retailer Should Know About Credit Customers

A merchants' association in the United States which has a credit department points out some things each merchant should know about a customer. Among them are:

"Be sure to get his name in full, his occupation, where employed, residence, with whom he traded previous to you, the amount of his income.

"To this should be added, whether or not he is a property holder and also how he draws his money, whether weekly, every fortnight or once a month. An applicant for credit who has good intentions and is responsible will have no reason to withhold from you any of the above information. Appearances are often misleading. The man who enters a locality, has good furniture, dresses well and to all intents and purposes may appear prosperous, possibly is in debt for most of what he possesses, and is less worthy of credit than the man who goes to work in an old suit of clothes, but believes in paying promptly for what his moderate income enables him to purchase.

"Fear of offending a prospective customer is a factor which often times gets the retailer into trouble. He is so blinded by appearances that he is afraid that if he mentions terms of settlement, references, etc., the applicant for credit will leave the store and become the customer of some competitor in the vicinity. No merchant, of course, wants to turn away trade, and it is not hard to do this if he fails to use reasonable judgment in handling a new customer, but when a man gets to the point that he will take chances on trusting a customer for fear of offending him by asking pertinent questions relative to his ability and disposition to pay his accounts, that merchant is bound to accumulate a very sizeable list of old and slow accounts."

SITUATION IN BROOMS.

While it is rather early in the season to give any definite report on the broom corn situation, it is now well known that a large acreage has been planted.

Reports differ slightly as to the probable outcome of the crop, which will not be all harvested until October. Some state that the weather has been favorable and that there is good reason to expect a fairly good crop. Another report says there has been little rain in the west, and that it is possible the growth will be stunted and light per acre. Harvesting is going on now.

Some of the manufacturers have already placed orders for corn, but the shipments will likely be small before the middle of October, as it is necessary that all corn, except that for immediate consumption be air dried, as otherwise it gets mouldy, rots and becomes discolored.

The foreign corn which has been imported and used by some manufacturers, is somewhat coarse in quality, and unprofitable for the manufacturer, on account of its great length and consequent waste in making up into brooms.

The Illinois corn is claimed to be the best in the world, as it makes the most durable brooms. Oklahoma and Kansas are other big producing States.

While broom prices are weaker, and in some cases lower, than they were last winter and spring on account of last year's partial crop failure, there is not likely to be any big general reduction before the middle of October. Prices then will depend entirely upon how the new corn turns out, as the market is now practically bare of old stock.

EATONS AT FALL FAIRS.

The fall fairs held in county centres during September have great advertising value. This fact is recognized by one at least of the large city mail order houses. The Canadian Grocer is reliably informed that this house has been making arrangements to run a series of free moving picture shows of their stores, factories and service equipment on the country fair grounds, simultaneous with the display of local products.

Such a show is, of course, intended to strengthen the hold of the mail order house upon its local customers and encourage the long-distance shopping habit, as well as suggesting the initial step to others who perhaps had never tried it.

Now, the local merchant contributes to these fall fairs. When there is not sufficient money in hand or receipts fall shy of the prize money, he it is who has very often to go down into his pocket to help out the deficit. The local merchant, too, recognizes that the fair has an advertising value to the town as well as to his store. He helps decorate and uses and pays for any advertising spaces that may be available to him. The fair brings his country people to town and he does everything possible to convert the occasion into a good business opportunity. Into every feature of it is introduced local loyalty.

There are some avenues of mail order ingress which cannot be very well controlled by local merchants, but the local fair is not one. If they are alive to their interests the merchants will not only see that the directors entertain no such proposition, but that no donation is solicited or accepted from the mail order houses. Every effort should be put forth to preserve the local character of the fair and to make it a local success. The merchant has the situation entirely in his hands. He will see that it is a stepping stone to his and not the mail order house's success.

THE GROCERY BARGAIN COUNTER.

A grocer in a flourishing western town recently advertised a bargain counter with one price for any of the goods displayed thereon. He looked over his stock and found some lines that were not moving out satisfactorily.

They were in fact becoming stale and he felt that he might better realize something from them than to hold them longer. Hence the bargain counter scheme.

The systematic and scientific grocer of to-day may not approve of this scheme. In the first place he would say that it is an evidence of poor judgment in buying. Either too much of these several lines was bought at once or they were of such a quality that they would not bring trade.

The modern grocer is careful to buy in moderate quantities in the most cases in order not to become overstocked. In the bargain counter sale the grocer was offering his customers goods which did not have the quality stamp character about them that brings the customer back for more.

However, even the best of grocers sometimes make mistakes and it is better to sell the goods than to throw them away. Besides there is a class of customer who will be quite content to take the cheap goods because they are cheap. As a class these are becoming less numerous, but there are generally sufficient to clean up a bargain counter stock.

Customers who are known by the store staff to be particular about the quality of the goods they purchase should be told the exact nature of the bargain goods. If they need anything in this line they can be easily persuaded to accept a fresher and better brand.

It remains, therefore, that the bargain counter in the ordinary grocery store is something that should be carefully handled if it is inaugurated. It might be successful in one store where it would drive away trade in another.

Are you trying to perfect yourself along the line of your work, or are you sitting back with a self-satisfied feeling that you can't improve upon yourself very much?

YOU OUGHT TO READ IT.

The first article in this issue is another from the pen of Henry Johnson, Jr. It deals with some problems which are uppermost in the minds of retail merchants and therefore it ought to be read most carefully by every reader.

The question of buying and its relation to the selling price is one which cannot be ignored. Henry Johnson, Jr., has been in the retail business for 28 years and has made a pronounced success. He talks with authority.

He will be glad to have any merchant drop him a line in reference to any statement he makes. If it is doubted, or if you want it elucidated in any particulars, write him through The Canadian Grocer. He wants to hear from you.

The Markets—New Crop Currants Shipped Sept. 2nd

Price Was Much Above That of Last Year and Some Wholesalers Believe That for Shipments After the First the Price will be Easier and They are Playing a Waiting Game—The Other Side of the Argument—Market, at Any Rate, is Very Strong—Sugar Market is also Interesting.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS

Sugar—Weaker.

Dried Fruits—Firm and advancing nearly all lines.

Nuts—Firm and advancing nearly all lines.

Beans—Now $2.40.

Montreal, Sept. 1, 1910.

The feature of the week here is of course the approaching Congress, and the preparations for largely increased trade being made with this in view. It is thought that there will be fully 200,000 visitors to the city and naturally this will prove the harvest time of restaurant men and caterers generally. Their stocks are being rapidly replenished, and the general city trade has boomed for some time past as a direct result. Many tourists are stopping over and hotel accommodation is already almost exhausted. It will be a great benefit to the city trade in many different lines.

Sugar has weakened sufficient to discount what was at first expected, that a rise was in prospect. It is too early to say whether this is only a temporary reaction or not, and until that is assured one way or the other buyers are only filling their immediate requirements.

Beans are higher and seem likely to stay there for some time to come. The supply seems to have vanished.

Sugar.—The raw market shows signs of weakening, according to the latest New York and European dispatches. This is rather hard to reconcile with the recent firm holding of the raw article. However, this precludes the immediate possibility of the advance dealers were looking for last week.

The sale of refined is brisk in small lots at present, though the weakening of the raw market has had a bad effect on the trade generally.

Syrup and Molasses.—There is a decided falling off in the demand for both syrups and molasses during the past week, and the bright outlook is somewhat the worse for wear. However, with the approach of cooler weather there should be a decided improvement for molasses in this province as it forms one of the greatest foods of the French Canadian farmer.

Several fair sales of molasses are reported by local importers for future delivery, and there seems to be a bright lining to the present cloud.

Tea.—The demand for Japans continues strong, and the market is firm. There has been a large increase in outside business of late, which has helped matters considerably.

The demand for gunpowders is on the increase, though Japans have still the cream of the business.

Ceylons are quiet at present, and there seems to be little immediate likelihood of any material improvement.

Coffee.—Coffee demand is again on the increase, and the market as a result shows a decidedly firmer tone. The present cool weather has undoubtedly had a beneficial effect, and should it continue there will undoubtedly be a still further improvement.

Spices.—While spice men report good business for all lines, there is not quite the volume passing that was the case a few weeks ago. Still it continues remarkably well in view of its steady flow during the greater part of this summer.

Prices show a slightly weaker tendency except in gingers and peppers. These continue to be firmly held.

Dried Fruits.—Valencia raisins are scarce, and the few appearing are snapped up on the instant. It looks like an advance.

New York advices point to a scarcity of dates this season, and local dealers look for an advancing market.

Owing to the crop situation of currants in Greece this year, New York importers have raised their prices ¼c and will only book for immediate delipery at these prices. It seems certain that local prices will have to go up in sympathy, and at present all indications point that way.

Figs also show an advancing market, in fact practically all lines of dried fruits are on a very firm basis.

Nuts.—Tarragona almonds are firm, and will likely go higher shortly, as they are scarce, and those who have them will not let go, waiting for an advance.

Walnuts are also scarce, and stocks are limited. The quality of the new crop is not known as yet, but it seems a certainty that as far as quantity goes it will be very short. Speculators in European centres have picked up large quantities, and are trying to force a higher market. Whether they do or not depends largely on the quality of the crop.

The Naples filbert crop is reported a partial failure in a recent cable.

Brazils show an advancing market, as do almonds. Thus it may readily be seen that the whole range of prices this year will be higher than last.

Beans and Peas.—First-class beans are selling at a premium, and even at the present high price there is little stock to be had. Only a short time ago they were selling at a trifle over $2 and now the dealers are getting $2.40.

Peas are quiet at present, at unchanged prices.

Evaporated Apples.—One or two small lots of inferior grade new crop have made their appearance, but no one seems to be greatly interested so far. It looks as if the export end of the trade will be one to occupy most of the dealers this coming season.

Prices are steady, with little or no old stock to be had.

Rice and Tapioca.—Sales of rice are good indeed, and improving every day. It looks as if the approach of fall was already forcing dealers to prepare for the cold weather trade. Prices are firm, but unchanged.

Tapioca is quiet, but there is a firm undertone to the market.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—In canned fruits and vegetables the demand is brisk, a continuation of what it has been for some time past. Fruits particularly show a decidedly healthy condition.

In canned fish, Canadian sardines present the feature. There are practically none to be had and the demand is very strong. What few shipments find their way to the local market are snapped up on the spot. Canned salmon stocks are running low, while the demand continues good.

Sales of meats are large and seem to be rapidly increasing. Fall hunting parties and, locally, the Eucharistic Congress are the causes assigned.

TORONTO—The canned goods situation has not changed to any extent during the past week. There is a strong demand for salmon, but stocks are almost done. It is practically impossible to get salmon of the first quality and jobbers say that all there is to be had are those stocks which some fortunate retailers may be carrying. In regard to canned fruits and vegetables, business is good. It is expected that the new prices for corn and tomatoes will be given out about the latter end of next week or some time during the following week. Canned peas are pretty well cleaned up and are almost all in the hands of jobbers and retailers already.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Rice.—Firmer.

Currants—Open high.

Shelled Walnuts—Firm.

Toronto, Sept. 1st, 1910.

Sugar and dried fruits are attracting attention among the trade this week owing to the uncertainty in regard to prices. Trade in sugar is steady but brisker buying is expected in the near future. Opinion is divided to a certain extent as to how the market will go and it seems to be most strongly supported that prices will be easier and that there will be no higher prices before the decline.

First shipments of new crop currants will be made from Greece this week and the price at which they were secured was almost of the record variety. In regard to Valencia raisins, it was explained that the Spanish farmers have the idea that they can get a certain price and they are holding out for it. Raisins are not being brought to Denia, at least not in large quantities. The market is interesting particularly as the reports that have been sent out during the past three or four months are borne out by present conditions.

Sugar.—Opinions on the street are divided over the sugar question. One idea that holds is that raw sugars are already beginning to be affected by the new crop and that there is a tone of weakness to the market on that account. Those who hold this idea state that they expect a decline at any time. It may be delayed for six weeks or so and it may come in the meantime. A prominent wholesaler said that retailers would be wise in buying only for their actual requirements. On the other hand some state that the market is strong and that there are tendencies which would indicate a rising market. It is described as a waiting market and the consensus of opinion was that higher prices at this season are the more improbable.

Dried Fruits.—"Going up" has been the by-word of late in both the raisin and currant market. Locally the greater part of the trade has been excited by the rush to get a supply of currants by the first direct steamer which leaves Patras, Greece, on Friday, September 2nd. The retailer will be chiefly interested in the raisin prices by the statement of one wholesaler to the effect that if the opening prices hold there will be no more three for a quarter raisins. They will have to sell at least at 10 cents a pound straight, according to him. The same is true of currants. All along it has been pointed out in these columns that the dried fruit primary markets were going up. Everything that has been said is borne out by the present condition of the markets. However, there is a feeling among the wholesale trade that the opening prices will not long obtain. They state that after the first shipment there will be a reaction and that the price on later shipments will be lower. For that reason they are not buying first shipments. They claim that they will gain nothing nor will the retailer be a gainer by taking the first shipment fruit at the price quoted. The brokers on the other hand and some wholesalers claim that prices are not going to drop back. They have figures to support them that the production of currants and raisins is greatly below the average and further that the new stocks are coming onto a market that is pretty well depleted. They believe that prices are going up instead of any receding movement. There is the situation, practically, as it is viewed by those holding the two opinions and all admit that raisins and currants are undoubtedly firm for reasons that have hitherto been pointed out.

To the Manufacturer or Wholesaler——

If it were possible to employ a traveller who could call on 7,000 of the best dealers all through Canada every week, what salary would you figure he'd be worth—even supposing he did nothing more than go in and shake hands with these dealers, under such circumstances they'd be glad to see him.

Would he be worth $200, $300 or $500 per week? Many a house would pretty nearly let him fix his own salary.

Equip an advertisement in this paper with a verbal handshake for every dealer in Canada, and a frank, brief, pointed talk about your goods and you add a traveller to your staff who will make 7.000 calls a week for you at a salary of $4 to $8 a week—less than you would pay a first-class stenographer.

Of course this traveller won't displace any of your regular salesmen, but he will help them to sell more goods and open up more new accounts.

Quality and the confidence and friendliness of the grocers account for the remarkable success of Red Rose Tea.

It was the quality of Red Rose Tea that won the confidence and friendliness of the grocers.

By its quality you win the confidence of your customers and increase your tea sales when you recommend Red Rose Tea.

If you are going to the Toronto Exhibition there's no place you will be more welcome than at the Red Rose Tea booth in the Manufacturers' Building. Just tell the traveller in charge who you are. You will enjoy a delicious cup of Red Rose Tea. When you are in the City we will be glad to have you call also at our new warehouse, 7 Front Street East.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, Sept. 1, 1910.

Advance orders from retailers are being sought for eastern eggs, the quotations being 31 cents for September and 32 cents for October and November. Eastern eggs now sell for 26 cents for culls, 28 for straight from the car and 30 cents for selected. Locals are nominally about 42 cents, but they are hard to get at any price. Guaranteed freshly laid eggs for boiling purposes are a rarity more so this summer than in the past. The retail price is 50 cents, but even this is gladly paid if good eggs can be got.

Potatoes are plentiful now, with a price of $20 to $25 a ton. Quality is good, with prospect of fair prices during the winter. The lesson learned last year of holding potatoes too long will hardly be duplicated again this season.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, Sept. 1, 1910.

From all parts of the province come reports of a bountiful crop of hay, grain and vegetables. The first shipment of new season Carleton county potatoes was received in the city last week, a record for early shipment. It was a carload lot and the price paid was a dollar a barrel at Hartland. The yield is large and so far the crop is untouched by rust. Oats, wheat, barley and buckwheat are yielding good.

New prices of canned peas are quoted below. These prices are subject to a discount of 2½ per cent. in ten-case lots.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Sept. 1, 1910.

Some of the dealers purchased large stocks of rolled oats before the recent advance, but these have now been pretty well cleaned up. Pork is firmer and the price was advanced fifty cents per barrel this week. It is predicted that another advance will follow shortly.

All stocks of dried fruits are rapidly being cleaned up. The dealers are now on the tail end of last year's crop, and by the time that the new crop arrives, the market will be bare. The purchases last season were unusually heavy, but the demand was also heavy, and as a result everything in this line will be cleaned up.

The dealers here do not expect any of the new pack of salmon to arrive on the market before October. The stocks now held are small and at present the outlook is that there will not be sufficient salmon left in store to carry the dealers over.

Pure lard remains unchanged in price but compounds have been advanced ⅛ cents per pound.

Advance in Price of Eggs; Supplies Drop Off

Slightly Higher Quotations—Wholesalers State That Receipts Have Shown a Little Decrease—Supply of Honey is Better Than was Reported—Milk Supply is Heavy and Production of Butter and Cheese Should be Maintained for Some Time—Provision Market has Been Rather Quiet.

A feature of this season as far as butter and eggs are concerned is that the pastures have never been better. Some dealers state that the farmers tell them that it is nearly two decades since similar conditions existed. The result is that the flow of milk continues, not only unabated, but even better than it has been, that is, judging from some of the reports. It all means that the Ontario farmer has had a splendid year. His fields have returned him a splendid harvest. He has received good prices for his flocks. Eggs have brought a good price and the dairy department of the farm should be well up to the average, if it does not surpass it. The orchard alone has failed in some parts of the country, but the loss is not expected to be very serious. What may be said of this one province may be said practically of all. British Columbia has had a good year. Reports from Quebec indicate prosperous conditions, and the middle west is going to be much better off than was first thought.

The butter market is firmer and in some localities a slightly higher figure is being asked. Cheese is showing a brisker market and the export trade has improved. With the production of milk keeping up it is possible that the output of cheese will be up to last year's figures.

The provision market has been quiet. The market has remained steady, but supplies have been free and the demand well met. Eggs are slightly higher, owing to a heavy demand. The market should hold its own, according to dealers, who do not expect prices to fall back again. Receipts have fallen off during the week.

Receipts of honey have been larger than expected, and the high prices spoken of are not likely to materialize. In Toronto, clover honey in the comb is quoted as high as $2 a dozen, although there are some houses offering it lower.

Poultry is coming in much freer now and as reports from the country indicate good supplies of fowl prices should go lower when they are shipped to the market. In fact, the quotations will have to be dropped to attract trade, as at present dealers describe it as too high for general demand.

MONTREAL.

Provisions—The present cool weather, combined with the number of out-of-town visitors coming into town, have put new life into the provision trade, and local men report a brisk trade at former prices. Live and dressed hogs are somewhat easier, and are coming in freely. The prospects seem to be for a steady market for the next few weeks.

Butter—Creamery butter is on the up-grade, owing to the large demand existing. It may be only temporary, but as receipts are light they will undoubtedly have a bullish effect on prices. Receipts for the week are 13,262 packages, as against 13,855 packages same week last year. For the season they are 276,806 packages, as against 253,034 same season last year.

Eggs—New laids are now selling as high as 28c. owing to the heavy demand in which they are now held. All other grades show a decided firmness, and the prospects of an advance look good. Receipts are falling off to a slight degree, which has also helped to firm the market. Receipts for the week are 5,968 cases, as against 6,256 cases same week last year. For the season they are 139,324 cases, as against 142,139 cases same season last year.

Cheese—The usual September briskness is already putting in an appearance, and not only is the increase local, but export demand also is on the up-grade. However, shipments to date are still less than last year at the corresponding time. This is partially accounted for by the fact that receipts are also less. They are 1,173,146 boxes, as against 1,212,453 same season last year. For the week they are 70,316 boxes, as against 81,184 same week last year.

Honey—Honey is easier this week, due to the much larger receipts than were expected. According to the early prophecies, there was to be a short crop this year. Local men say there is no difficulty whatever in filling their requirements at lower prices than last year. In this province, at any rate, there is a good crop.

TORONTO.

Provisions.—The provision market is much the same as a week ago. The prices of live and dressed hogs are the same and supplies have been coming in freely. The various houses apparently have sufficient supplies on hand to meet the demand which has only been normal. It is expected, however, that prices may go up slightly during the next two weeks as there is bound to be a heavy demand.

Butter.—Although there is an apparent firmness to the butter market, there has been no advance in prices. From Montreal, reports have been received that prices have gone slightly higher and the same movement is not altogether improbable locally. The country was never in never condition at this time of the year. Farmers are receiving a heavy production of milk and it is expected that it will not show any diminished returns for some time to come. There is a good demand for butter.

Cheese.—Locally the cheese market is firmer. The factories should have an excellent month this September as the pastures are in splendid condition, and the yield of milk has not yet begun to fall off. In fact it is increasing. The cheese business will likely vindicate itself and finish the year with as good a showing as in 1909. The demand from the local houses is satisfactory.

He Has to Face an Expense of $25 Every Morning

By F. H. S.

A Winnipeg grocer speaking of his cost of doing business told me the other day, that every morning when he opened his store for a day's business he saw before him an expenditure of $25 which included the wages of his clerks, his own wages and the cost of delivery. Neither was this his entire cost of doing business. When his profit had reached twenty-five dollars he had not then made anything.

It will thus be seen that he had to sell many dollars worth of goods before he even commenced to get any returns on his investment. The grocer will realize by considering his work from this standpoint that it is most important to him that he should receive a profit on every sale.

Grocers and others in Indianapolis consider that selling eggs by the pound, instead of by the dozen, is impractical, due to the difference in the size of the eggs, even pointing to the fact that an egg that has been in cold storage will weigh less than a fresh egg.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

FOR SALE — An old established manufacturing business of grocers' and confectioners' sundries, comprising such lines as flavoring extracts, jelly powders, catsups, fluid beef, egg products, etc. Reason for selling—winding up estate. A good proposition to the right man. Small capital only necessary. Write ESTATE LYON SILVERMAN, 313 Notre Dame St. East, Montreal.

Are you sure of a reasonable profit on your gasolene and kerosene business?

Many successful grocers realize that oil is one of the most uncertain items on their balance sheet. It is a fact that evaporation alone may rob you of from 5 to 25% of the gasolene or kerosene kept in ordinary barrels. Leakage, dripping faucets, overflowing measures and funnels, etc., further combine to eat the vitals out of your profits.

You can make the retailing of oil just as easy, clean and profitable as selling tea or coffee, by using a

Bowser Self Measuring Oil Tank

It is absolutely evaporation—leak—and fire-proof. It can be placed inside or outside, in the cellar or under the ground, and you can place the pump in the front of the store, if you prefer, for it is as clean, neat and odorless as a pair of scales. You can wait on ten customers in a minute—the oil being pumped and measured in one operation directly into your customer's can, with a quick and easy turn of the handle. There can be no overmeasure, no drip, no overflow, no sloppy funnels and measures, no oil on your hands.

Let us tell you more about it.

YOUR TIME

is too valuable to expend in "talking" any particular product. We do all the "educational" work for Shredded Wheat. We aim to sell it before it is placed on your shelves. But nearly every grocer has a fussy customer "from Missouri." When she asks you about breakfast foods, here are three things you can tell her about

Shredded Wheat Biscuit

First—It is the cleanest, purest, most nutritious cereal food, made in the finest, cleanest food factory in the world.

Second—It contains all the rich, body-building material in the whole wheat grain—not merely the white flour, which is mostly starch.

Third—Being in biscuit form, it makes delicious combinations with fruits—in fact, it is the only cereal breakfast food that makes wholesome and natural combinations with fruits.

Memorize these three points and be ready for the customer who asks questions.

Opinion Divided as to Strength of Wheat Market

Considerable Decline Expected by Some, While Others Believe the Market Will Remain Steady — Feeling of Prosperity Obtains in Western Canada, Resulting From the More Optimistic Estimates of the Yield of Grain—Oat Crop did not Suffer as Much as Wheat.

It is now assured that the reports of the damage to the wheat and oat crops of the west were greatly exaggerated. The yield of wheat will, of course, be less than that of last year, but the difference is not going to be as great as at first expected. The injury to the standing oats has not been as great as that which the wheat suffered, and, as is now generally admitted, the conditions are not as bad as was expected.

There is a new feeling of prosperity as the result of the changes. Prospects and reports from the wholesale houses in Winnipeg and the west indicate that one and all are looking forward to and are preparing for a big volume of fall business. There has been an increase in the export demand of late, and it is stated by some that the extent of the demand for export will reach such a figure that cheap wheat will be unheard of this year. On the other hand, some who are equally conversant with the situation claim that the reports of diminished crops in foreign countries are not as grave as they were at first thought to be.

With opinion divided at this stage it is not easy to say which opinion is likely to be borne out. Developments in the near future should indicate which way the market is going. It is generally admitted that wheat has to decline before there is a heavy export trade.

MONTREAL.

Flour—Flours seem to be holding their own. This is probably due to a considerable increase in export trade of late. Also, local demand is showing some improvement. As yet no change has been made in previous quotations, and there does not seem to be much immediate probability of any such change occurring.

TORONTO.

Flour—Deliveries of wheat are coming more freely just now, and thereby the millers are much pleased. It is not easy to predict what movement the flour market will take. There has been a feeling that the price was going to drop, but local millers state that they cannot see it that way. One dealer, who fancied he saw a decline, remarked that he expected to see Manitoba flour drop 50 cents. It is a question. There was a report this week that France had called 300,000 bushels of wheat, but it was not generally substantiated. Recent influences on the market have been bearish. Previously it had been understood that France would have to import a large quantity of wheat, but of late the outlook has become more hopeful. In fact, the general wheat market has brightened, and, as before stated, the influence has, if anything, been toward lower prices. It is also held that with an increased export demand and decreased home supplies, that cheap wheat is almost out of the question, and, therefore, that flour will not go to lower figures. Those are the respective viewpoints, but in view of the heavy winter wheat supply it would not be entirely unlikely for a slight decline, which might or might not be maintained. The general feeling among the trade is that the market possesses strength, although it may not be felt for the present.

EXPRESS COMPANIES AMALGAMATE.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 1.—Merchants throughout the maritime provinces and also in Ontario and Quebec will hear with a good deal of interest the announcement that the Dominion Express Company has absorbed the Maritime Express Co., the merger taking effect on September 1. This has followed the taking over of the Dominion Atlantic Railway lines by the C.P.R. The result of the absorption is that the Dominion Express will operate by steamer between St. John and Digby, N.S., and between Yarmouth and Boston, and also on the D. A. R. lines between Yarmouth and Halifax.

One claimed advantage of the merging of the two companies will likely be that merchants in Upper Canada will be able to get a through rate on goods consigned to points served by the D. A. R. system, and fish dealers and others in Nova Scotia will also get a through rate on their shipments instead of having to pay two rates as heretofore. The Dominion Express Co. will also get an entry into Boston.

Between the Business Getter and the Business Builder

THERE'S this difference—
QUALITY.

If you willingly throw your Personal Recommendation and Salesmanship into the balance, you can sell poor quality flour ONCE, maybe twice, according to your wealth of explanations.
This is Business Getting, otherwise "Pedlar Salesmanship," engendering antagonism.

But it isn't Business Building—the difference comes in after the flour is sold, when She tries for success. Future sales are in the kitchen oven, depending on the housewife's pleasure or displeasure.
It's just as easy to Build Business as to merely Get Business—you don't have to choose—you can do BOTH at the same time.

Why not back your real selling abilities, your enthusiasm, with FIVE ROSES quality?

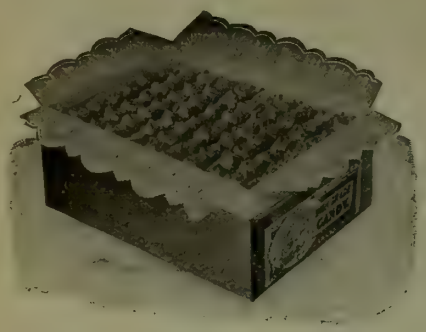
And after this flour is sold, the quality is so good and your service so excellent that the feeling of satisfaction will happen inevitably in the mind of the buyer. Engendering the "Habit of Buying."

We see no money in "one-time" sales, no hope for nimbler turnovers.

For poor flour in the past, Brother Grocer, the only apology is better flour in the future.

Otherwise, your flour profit will maintain its peanut proportions, while steadily undermining your goodwill, lessening the weight of your Personal Guarantee —your strongest asset.

Can't YOU see the difference to you between FIVE ROSES flour and cheap stuff?



It's the same difference to your custom.

Sell flour with an eye to futurity, profit, permanence. Consider this awhile and you will inevitably sell FIVE ROSES.

First Bartlett Pears are Now on the Market

It is Believed That the Crop is Well up to the Average and That the Market Supply Will be Liberal—Government Report is not Optimistic—Tomatoes are Coming in Freely and Have Dropped to a Low Quotation—Lemons are Quiet—A Review of Conditions as They are at Present—1910 Will Not be Termed a Good Fruit Year.

"A poor fruit year," are the words by which an Ontario government report refers to the present season, and it must be admitted that up to the present the conditions have not been really up to the average in some crops and the prospect for the future are not of the brightest. Apples may not be up to the average and prices for good stock are likely to be high. The Ontario crop is none too promising as has already been pointed out, but British Columbia is fortunate in having a splendid crop. Apples prospects in England and on the continent are poor and the crop in the United States is not going to be as good as expected. Plums have borne unevenly according to the degree of spraying practiced. Pears are doing better than apples although the yield will not be of the heaviest. Peaches, while they will be about an average crop, should be of good quality. Cantaloupes are good buying as there is a good demand for them now. Already the Duchess apple has reached the market although not in a large quantity. Grapes are looking well and promise a good crop.

On the whole prices are likely to range higher than last year especially in the case of plums, apples and grapes. From the vicinity of Ottawa and Montreal reports have been sent out that cabbage, beets, carrots and cauliflower are affected by vermin.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Lemons are easier this week, selling as low as $4.25 in some cases. The whole tone of the fruit market shows decided weakness and this in spite of a very large volume of trade being done. The reason assigned is the tremendous quantity of new stock on the market. Dealers report that many lines are costing as much to lay down here as they can hope to receive for them. For this reason new orders are being placed very cautiously, although it is hoped that the Eucharistic Congress visitors will bring relief.

Bananas and oranges are lower, and there seems a prospect of a still lower range during the next few days.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—Business of late has been largely centred upon peaches, pears and plums, with other fruits also drawing good trade. There is a strond demand for apples especially of the eating varieties and there are also Canadian grown Duchess coming in. They are principally a cooking apple and there is likewise a good business doing with them. Cantaloupes are moving briskly and the section of the province that grows them best has of late been sending in a plentiful supply. Lawton berries seem to have been a good crop judging by the amount that passed over the local market. There are still some coming in but their season is about done. The lemon market is inclined to be steady, but the price is firm. The peaches and plums that have been received moved out rapidly. It is learned that the shipments of fruit from the Niagara district to the west have been rather extensive. Peaches will be about an average crop and there is no likelihood of record low prices being offered this year.

Some have hinted at peaches being more plentiful than last year, but this will hardly be borne out as the crop of Albertas is not as heavy as a year ago and they must be considered in estimating the crop.

Bartlett pears are now being shown on the Toronto market and from all reports the Niagara district has a good crop. The better class of plums, pears and peaches are now practically ready for the market and will soon have the bulk of the trade.

Vegetables.—There is a steady trade in the general line of vegetables. Cabbages are not moving any too freely although there is a fair demand. Tomatoes are coming in more plentifully and the price has dropped accordingly. They are of good quality. The majority of the early potatoes are about done. From the district of London it is reported that there is a scarcity and higher prices are expected before long. It is generally believed that the crop will be nothing much above the ordinary.

Are Retailers Ready for Fish Season Opening?

First of September Marks the Time for Oysters and Smoked Fish Particularly—Pickled Fish Also Attracting Notice—Lobster Crop Reported Short—The Salmon Run.

With September opens the season for all kinds of fish generally, but particularly smoked fish and oysters. There is always a rush for these lines at this time of year, perhaps due to the fact that most people who can afford to spend their summers in the country do so, and when they return to the city, tired with a round of boarding houses and hotels, with the monotonous bill of fare served in the average summer resort, they wish for something different—fresh oysters, kippered herring, or finnan haddies, something with a flavor of the sea.

Pickled and prepared fish also come in for their share of patronage. The outlook so far is for a good busy season. Every preparation is being made to cater to the wants of the trade, and yet at this time of year the fish business is largely a speculation. All the local dealers seem to have plenty of confidence in the future of the present season. Stocks of frozen fish, particularly from the west coast, are said to be ample to cover the wants of the trade, although it is reported that some lines from the east will be short, particularly frozen mackerel and haddock.

In the line of salt fish it is yet too early to forecast the crop, as, for instance, codfish. Fishing is at its best in certain localities about this time of the year. As the demand for new fish is abnormally good, it seems pretty certain that the price of green cod will be higher. This would of course affect similarly the prices of all the prepared lines of cod, such as boneless, shredded and skinless. However the situation may be now the fish business is a hard one to be sure, as regards future prices. Stormy weather, changes in demand, and other possibilities have to be taken into account.

It is reported that the lobster crop will be far below that of former years, and as European markets were depleted long ago, the new crop price seems sure to advance considerably.

QUEBEC.

Montreal, Sept. 1.—Local fish men are trying to figure out just which way "the cat is going to jump" as regards the opening of the fish season. One feature of the market is that dry fish are higher than for the past ten years. It is also reported on good authority that the Labrador catch this year is a failure.

Taken all in all, however, the outlook is for a very good season unless something unforeseen occurs to change the prospect.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, Aug. 31.—With the closing of the sockeye season on the 25th instant, the estimated pack was 546,000 cases. This estimate will be about correct as it is based on figures that are received from time to time, and it is easy to compute the total for the last few days. On the Fraser the pack was 140,000 cases; Rivers Inlet, 124,000; Skeena river, 180,000; Naas river, 30,000; other canneries at odd places along the coast, 70,000 cases. This is not more than was expected by the canners, though at the first of the year there was stated in the press that the pack would be a large one. As last year was the big year, it could hardly be expected that again this year the pack would be more than the average of years outside the quadrennial.

In 1906, the season in the cycle corresponding to 1910, the pack was 629,460 cases, which indicates that the salmon run is steadily diminishing. Each year, the pack is less than before, and the so-called big years are now not much larger than the old-time common run. It is true that on the Skeena river and at other northern canneries the season has been a banner one, but even with a pack there larger than usual, the total is not encouraging to those who have money invested in the industry. The big run on the Skeena is calculated to be the result of the destruction of the barricades erected by the Indians on the Babine river five years ago. Some of the old fishermen believe that the August run is yet to take place and that the fish will come up the river during the closed season, that is before September 15th, but this is thought hardly probable. The canners are not looking for them, but if they do come in it will mean more for the spawning grounds and consequently more four years hence.

A report from Bracebridge, Ont., states that the wild thimble berry crop in the Muskoka district was a good one this year. These berries have replaced to a great extent the blueberries that failed to materialize in as large quantities as usual.

Hints on the Care of the Oyster in the Store

Differences in the Handling of the Bivalve From the Methods of the Past—What Retailers Should Pay Particular Attention to—Warm Water Injures the Quality, Says Dealer—Season Opened September 1.

The oyster business has undergone a radical change during recent years and from the fact that Canadian grocers handle this article extensively, it may not be amiss to dwell upon the present character of the oyster business and compare it with those conditions which it has displaced.

It is admitted by interested companies that the Canadian people have a liking for oysters, and with the business placed on a new basis and with greater energy behind it the demand has noticeably increased and dealers are looking forward to good returns from the season which is now drawing near.

The part that the grocers of Canada, from coast to coast, have played in the enlarging of the business has been worthy of note and it is because of this fact and also of the opportunities which still remain to be grasped that the individual grocer should acquaint himself with knowledge of the oyster and how to handle it successfully. The season, it should be remembered, opens with the first of September.

The Water Eliminated.

The principal difference in the trade is more apparent from the standpoint of the consumer. Under the new system when he buys a quart of oysters he gets a quart of OYSTERS. Formerly when he asked for a quart of oysters he got a certain amount of water. The consumer no doubt did not realize that the water should not have been there and probably, though not likely, the retailer knew just as little about the real conditions. At any rate, the customer, when his purchase was made under the old conditions paid for a certain amount of water. His purchase looked pretty small when it was cooked and served on the table. In some cases he had no more than two-thirds of a quart, it all depending upon the extent to which the stock had been "watered."

To-day, the consumer gets the quart measure full of oysters. The water is a thing of the past.

True, the price seems to be higher than formerly, but a representative of a large oyster company has pointed out that the actual price of oysters has not been changed. The consumer no longer pays for water and the quart he purchases now will go much further than the same quantity as it was handed out several years ago. Thus while oysters seem to be dearer, there has been no appreciable advance in the genuine article.

No Fresh Water Used.

But apart from the consideration of price, there is also that of quality and therein, perhaps, there has been the greatest change. "Fresh water," says this large oyster dealer, "is foreign to the oyster and when the dealer used to "water" his stock he not only decreased the quantity, but he deteriorated the quality at one and the same time.

"The oyster's method of feeding would require an article in itself, but suffice to say that salt water contains an ingredient that affords it nourishment. Fresh water lacks this constituent.

"Under the old methods when the oyster was separated from his shell, it was soaked in water, which, not being cold, it drank. This fresh water, to use a stock expression, makes the oyster 'sick.' The oyster also fattens in warm water, but although it does not lose its size, its flavor is lost and it becomes sour, to use another expression of the trade.

"The grower, the wholesaler, and, lastly, the retailer, used fresh water under the former method. The idea was to cheapen oysters—to reduce the price until it would be appealing—but, as before stated, the consumer was paying a high price for the water he bought.

"The result was that the trade suffered and it was to put it on a new basis

SELL "COAST-SEALED" OYSTERS

You can make more money handling "Coast-Sealed" Oysters than by handling any other kind, simply because they are first-class oysters, absolutely fresh and free from all those foreign substances that add to the weight but cannot be sold.

Coast Sealed Oysters are all Northern grown on our own grounds in Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York. that the present methods were introduced. That they have been successful is proven by the extent to which the oyster business has grown, and dealers are looking ahead to a greater demand than ever this year.

Washed With Cold Water.

"When the oyster is taken from his shell now, the sediment, such as sand, etc., is washed off with cold water. The oyster refuses to drink cold water, and the subsequent handling is done in an atmosphere that is not far from freezing point. After being washed, the oyster is usually placed in containers of certain sizes, which are sealed and then removed to a cooling room. When the retailer receives a shipment, the container is usually still in ice. The oyster, under these conditions, has not been feeding, but it has not lost weight, and especially it has retained its flavor. It is just as it came out of the water, and by securing this condition of quality it is hoped to educate the consumer to quality in oysters just as they demand it in the other articles they buy.

Preserve Temperature.

"The grocer should aim to preserve the temperature of the oysters at the time of their arrival. This is not difficult if it is afforded refrigeration."

Many grocers have display containers, and the vessel containing the oysters is set in ice. A glass covering of some description is often used, as it keeps out dust, and even the most critical customer has no grounds to find flault.

This is a general idea of the policy of to-day by which the consumer is reached, and it is necessary that the retailer should do his part of the scheme. More details will be aimed at in future articles.

Splendid Crops are Experienced Near Saskatoon

By M. Moyer.

Last week I came from Yorkton to Saskatoon, a distance of 260 miles, and all along the line the crops are considerably above the average yield. In some places they never had anything as good. At Guernsey I met a farmer whom I knew in Ontario. He took me out to see his farm, and with all the beautiful land I have seen since I came up here this district beats them all.

This man has been here only five years, owns 1900 acres, and has 800 in crop. He had three binders at work with four horses on each. All his crops as well as all the crops in the neighborhood, are excellent. He has a view of 15 miles in every direction from his house. He can count from his doorstep 250 farm homes and five railway stations—or what they call towns up here —with from 3 to 6 elevators at each.

The farmers in this locality are a thrifty class and are not only getting the land under cultivation, but they are building comfortable houses. One thing these people attended to the first year they were here, which others in many parts entirely neglected, was to plant trees, and now in the course of five years some of them have trees ten feet high, which they raised from seed. In this respect they are further ahead than many others who have been on the prairie for 30 years. These little groves around their homes serve as a shelter as well as to make the appearance of the prairie most beautiful.

Not only did they treat "your humble servant" with the greatest courtesy and kindness, but he actually had to mount the binder, pull up the reins of four steeds and get the real experience of a western farmer in the harvest field.

The large part of the crop is now past all danger and the farmers can count safely on a good return for their labors. The only danger is from hail and frost, but as the hail season is practically over and the large proportion of grain is ready to cut they can practically count on the certainty of a profitable year.

The merchants all along this line have nothing to fear and look for a prosperous season.

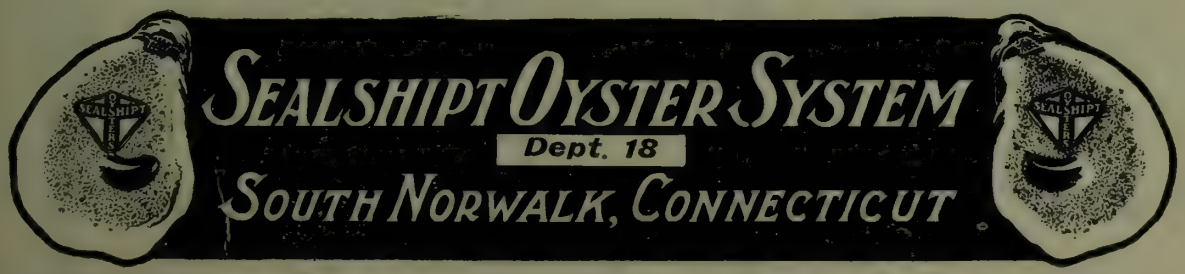
People in Ontario cannot understand the extent of this country. When one report reaches them that the wheat is all destroyed by drought, and another again that the crops are excellent, they often come to the conclusion that the reports are not correct. If they were to read a report that the crops near the city of New York were all destroyed and that they were excellent in Ontario, they could readily understand that. But they forget, that this place is farther away from Southern Manitoba than Toronto is from New York City, and still I am a long way from the western boundary of Saskatchewan.

What you say you can do, that you probably will do. What you say you can't do, that you probably never will do. So great is will power.

Big Profits in Handling SEALSHIPT OYSTERS

You Can't Make Less Than 25%

Write at once for catalogue and full particulars of our proposition instead of waiting until "the season" and then doing the best you can at the last moment. The sooner you get the SEALSHIPT AGENCY and start to let your customers know you have it, the bigger and better business you will do all season. In fact, your customers will get hungry for oysters as soon as they know SEALSHIPT OYSTERS—advertised in their favorite magazines as the acme of food purity and deliciousness—are on sale at your store.



Perfect Refrigeration

SEALSHIPT OYSTERS are packed at the oyster beds—(solid and dry)—in the airtight Sealshiptors, which are perfectly refrigerated every mile of the journey to your store. That is why SEALSHIPT OYSTERS taste the same in Illinois or California as the day they were dredged from the deep. The oysters are shipped to you in these Sealshiptors and you empty them into your Sealshipticase (the blue and white porcelain display and selling fixture).

Sealshipt Agents Make Money Because We Help Them

We supply you with advertisements for your local papers, an attractive blue and white steel design and muslin signs for your store front and transfer signs to stick on your door, where everyone will see them. We do all this so the Sealshipt Agent will secure all the sales we are stirring up in his territory by our extensive magazine advertising. Don't guess about the SEALSHIPT SYSTEM or what it will do for you, but write us at once for catalogue, terms and particulars.

NOTE:—People who read our advertising will go from the store where no oysters are sold, or the store where ordinary oysters are sold to the store where they can get SEALSHIPT OYSTERS and, the Sealshipt Agent will sell them other things—may win all their trade.

A Veterinary's Advice on the Delivery Horse

Says That the Ideal Horse for This Purpose Should Weigh Between 1,100 and 1,300 Pounds—The Undesirable Kind — Items to Attend to in Erecting the Stable.

"The best style of a delivery horse—it's feed and care," was the subject of a recent address given in Toronto by Dr. F. J. Gallanough, and as the subject matter refers to merchants in general it will no doubt be read with interest by grocers who as a class take unusual care of their delivery outfits. The address is given in part as follows and from the fact that Dr. Gallanough is a practical man, not merely a theorist, his advice should be well received.

"The ideal delivery horse should weigh from eleven to thirteen hundred pounds, stand fifteen and a half to sixteen hands high, and should be short legged and deep-bodied with plenty of bone, a good deal of substance, smoothness of contour and be upheaded and stylish, and the higher degree of finish the better, all of which give him gracefulness.

Overweight Unnecessary.

"He does not need more weight than the work to which he is applied requires, for it would be unnecessary encumbrance, and would increase concussion. He should have clean action and cover the ground with the least possible concussion. Tall or leggy horses with long bodies and short ribs are usually poor feeders and not serviceable in work which causes severe strain.

"More style is demanded for runabout turnouts. Ten to eleven hundred is about the ideal weight, fifteen to fifteen-two the height and the horse should be particularly good-mannered with trappy but not excessive action. In other words he should be a handy, quick-moving, prompt horse with style and good manners. Delivery horses should be selected with some breeding qualities as they have a better appearance, more endurance and intelligence. A well-bred horse will learn a route much more quickly than an ill-bred one. Dark, solid colors are preferred for delivery purposes as far as the horse's color is concerned, but the bays, browns, grays, and dark chestnuts have their admirers.

The Age of the Horse.

"A delivery horse should be serviceably sound, although he may not be technically so. The feet should be large with good strong heels and free from corns. Small splints low down, capped hocks which are not unsightly, the loss of an eye, etc., are examples of unsoundness which do not interfere with the usefulness of horses, but on account of which they may be purchased much cheaper. As to age, horses are preferable ranging from five to nine years and I would give preference to an eight year old over a five.

"Four year olds should not be selected unless the work is light and slow, as at this age the teeth are undergoing change and the bones and muscles are not fully developed nor hardened and severe work quickly causes depreciation in value.

Providing Stables.

"Stabling is an important consideration. The low dark dens in which years ago valuable horses were placed have disappeared. Iron, concrete, stone, and brick are extensively used, but care should be exercised in their construction. Each horse of medium size should have a stall at least four feet, six inches wide by nine feet long, with a passage way eight feet between rows of stalls. There should be plenty of light and ventilation. The best form of feed box is made of iron with smooth edges, placed at a height of about three feet four inches from the ground. The hay rack should be placed on a level with the boxes, with the bottom perforated for the dust and seeds to drop through. An arrangement whereby salt and water can be procured by the horse as required is an excellent arrangement."

Editorial Note.—This article will be continued in a future issue.

TO REMEMBER GOODS WANTED.

Quebec Clerk Uses a Little Card Which He Carries About With Him.

By Joseph Dubuc.

It is very valuable for a clerk to have always in his pockets a card on which he can jot down names of goods almost exhausted. I always have one with me. When I go to bring an article called for by a customer I notice whether there is a sufficient supply left for our trade.

If there is not much left I use my card and later transcribe the note to the "memory sheets." In this way forgetting to purchase goods nearly exhausted, is avoided.

Another valuable thing to me is my "retail price book," as described in a recent issue of The Canadian Grocer. It helps me both in the buying and the selling of goods.

Only by civility to employes can you command civility from employes. Like begets like.

When you get customers into the store with your advertising and then fail to live up to your advertisement in any particular you are committing business suicide.

To discontinue your advertising is to shut off the power. The car will run for some distance by its own momentum, but the stop is certain. There is no such thing in business as perpetual motion.

A GROCER'S CO-OPERATION

RISING SUN Stove Polish in Cakes gives a lustre which far outlasts all others under the heat of the stove, and that is why it has so many friends that call for it over the grocery counters the world around. We believe that the real live grocer wants to push the goods that please his customers, and that is why we have the hearty co-operation of thousands upon thousands of grocers everywhere. It pays you to push it.

ST. CATHARINES, - ONTARIO

A United States Manufacturer spending $1,000,000 a year on Advertising : : : : : : :

recently placed an order with The Canadian Grocer amounting to about $500—the first order he ever gave to a trade paper.

This manufacturer said :—"I am convinced that the Canadian dealer is different."

He found the majority of grocers in Canada to be men of independent spirit—not mere slot machines, but real merchants capable of creating large demand for worthy goods—men whose salesmanship is the most valuable assistance a manufacturer can have in marketing his product.

He investigated and found that The Grocer was read and studied every week by the best merchants from Atlantic to Pacific—that it was absolutely unique among trade papers, both as regards circulation and influence.

The QUALITY of COCO FRUITINE is quite remarkable.

First—It is superior to Butter, Oil or Lard, owing to its extremely delicate taste and flavor.

Second—It is peculiarly nourishing, being superior to any other similar product.

Third—It is extremely easily digested and assimilated by the most sensitive stomachs.

Fourth—Owing to its great richness and purity, it is more economical.

Gives a good profit, is an easy seller and satisfies the consumer.

BLUE RIBBON TEA CO., Limited MONTREAL, CANADA

Every grocer knows that Cowan's Perfection Cocoa is a distinctly profitable article to sell. You can increase your sales by telling your customers of the many different ways in which it can be used.

For Chocolate Ice Cream, for Chocolate Fudge, Puddings, Cakes, etc., Cowan's Perfection Cocoa is unsurpassed.

THE COWAN CO., LTD., TORONTO, ONT.

Sweet Wrinkle Peas

THE Sulphate of Copper used in producing that vivid green color you have observed in some lines of Imported French Peas is distinctly injurious to health and kills the flavor of the peas. That's why we never use it.

You will find our Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted Peas more tender and better in flavor than the best imported French Peas you ever tasted.

This is one of our finer grades upon which you can make a much better profit than on our lower-priced lines.

A little judicious promotion of our better quality peas among your good customers will increase your profits considerably and add greatly to your customers' satisfaction. Try it.

Good Currants

mean

Good Profits

If you buy cheap currants of poor quality, you will be obliged to sell them cheap, or perhaps cheaper, and your margin will be a problem rather than a profit.

An indication of quality, and your protection is the name on the case. Our good name we value before anything. We pack currants from all districts, but only the very best sound fruit from any district, and on all we are proud to put our name, because we know that money can buy no better.

A great many wholesale grocers in Canada import Meyer's currants, some import them to the exclusion of all others. There is a reason for this—a good reason. Ask for them. When you get them see that the name is on the case.

The Demand Keeps Growing

TO some people the success of PURITY flour seems phenomenal. When it was put on the market three years ago few believed it would ever enjoy its present enormous demand. But Canadian housewives soon discovered that was far above the average in quality. They found that they could make "More Bread and Better Bread" with it than they ever did before. They found it absolutely reliable. They proved it the best value for their money. That is the secret of the success of PURITY flour. That is why such a huge demand exists to-day—why grocers find it such a big seller.

THREE THINGS ARE REQUIRED OF

COUNTER CHECK BOOKS

They must be Convenient, Speedy and Safe

By Convenient, we mean they must be of such style as to be handled easily.

They must permit of fast work on the part of the clerk.

They must produce good copies.

The most Convenient, the Speediest and the Safest Counter Check Book is made of

Surety Non-Smut Paper

We make Surety Books in duplicate and triplicate. In the duplicate book the original is of white paper, coated on the back with a non-smutting carbon, the duplicate is of yellow. In the triplicate both the original and duplicate are white, coated on the back, the triplicate being of yellow.

Every Copy is 100 Per Cent. Perfect

There are no loose carbons to become wrinkled or torn or to give poor copies. We make many other varieties of Counter Check Books, and will be glad to quote prices upon application.

Not an Enterprise for the "Quitter"

"If there is one enterprise on earth," says John Wanamaker, "that a 'quitter' should leave severely alone, it is advertising. To make a success of advertising one must be prepared to stick like a barnacle on a boat's bottom.

"He must know before he begins it that he must spend money—lots of it.

"Somebody must tell him that he cannot hope to reap results commensurate with his expenditure early in the game.

"Advertising does not jerk; it pulls. It begins very gently at first, but the pull is steady. It increases day by day and year by year, until it exerts an irresistible power."

FACTS ABOUT ADVERTISING

By The Advertising Manager

II.

It is admitted that as a "traveling sign," which would go into almost every store of any account, in every city, town and village in Canada, an advertisement in The Canadian Grocer would be a good investment.

Suppose you go farther than merely "Telling who you are and what you want to sell," by giving the people you want to sell to some good sound reasons why they should buy from you.

Without presenting a selling talk to the dealer you could not long continue in business.

If you had never presented a selling talk to the dealer you would never have made a start in business.

* * *

So long as you continue in business you must have a selling talk for the dealer.

Through The Canadian Grocer you can deliver this selling talk to almost every good grocer in Canada at a cost of about 1 cent for every 20 of them that you reach.

Readers of The Grocer are dealers whose buying power makes their trade, individually or collectively, very desirable. They are the best merchants in every section of Canada. Their purchases amount to over $200,000,000 annually.

These merchants read The Grocer every week, not for entertainment, but because it pays them to do so. The information they get from it has a real dollars and cents value to them. Get your travelers to ask them about it.

With a serious interest of this sort ready to be focused on your selling talk, the manufacturer or wholesaler who cannot make a space in The Grocer pay many times what it costs must have something lacking in his reasons for asking the dealer to buy his goods.

Next week we will go a little farther into the possibilities of advertising in The Grocer.

QUIT LOSING!

What's the use of sticking to anything that is continually causing you loss? If your credit customers are the source of the greatest loss to you, why not try the ONE way to make them a safe, profitable ASSET? You can do this by adopting the Allison Coupon Book System, which has proved its worth to hundreds of progressive merchants all over the country.

Allison Coupon Books

systematize credit accounts, simplify collections, please the customers and eliminate arguments. They cost but little and pay for themselves many times over.

HOW THEY WORK

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10 — No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best.

Why One Merchant Figures Profits on His Sales

Henry Johnson, Jr., Gives His Opinions on the Much-Talked-of Method — To Base Gain on Cost and Expenses on Sales Makes Profits Look Large and Cost of Doing Business Small, he Says—This Dual Method of Figuring Fools the Merchant, he Maintains.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

A firm in Alberta asks me why I figure cost of doing business and profits on the sales instead of on the cost? There are a number of excellent reasons, and I shall try to indicate some of them.

1. The fundamental thing in business is that we "know where we are at." If we figure profit on cost and expense on sales, we stand as the man with one foot in a boat and the other on the pier, and we are very liable to be "spilled in the drink." All of us figure our expenses on our sales, do we not? At the end of any year, when you have figured things up, if you are asked what your expenses were, you would arrive at your conclusion something like this:

"I did a forty-thousand-dollar business, and my expenses, all told, were $14,800—twelve per cent!" You might be able to report that you had made some money—and you might not. If you could not so report, the chances are that your trouble was the dual standard of figuring. If you could report net gain, that might be an indication of good fortune—showing you had succeeded, in spite of your straddle; but more likely it would be because you figured rightly.

Makes the Gain Look Big.

To figure profit on the cost is to fool ourselves by making our gain look big, while to figure expense on sales is to make expense look small. Let us take an example. Let us suppose your expense is actually 12 per cent.—which is moderate enough for any retail grocer—and let us say you have done a $10,000 business. Let us say you have added 25 per cent. to cost. Surely it looks as if you should realize 13 per cent. net gain. But do you? In order to get $10,000 by adding 25 per cent. to cost, your goods must have cost you $8,000, because 25 per cent. of $8,000 is $2,000, making the total of $10,000. All right. Twelve per cent. of $10,000 is $1,200. If you take $1,200 from $2,000 you will have $800 left—not $1,300, as you might have expected. It makes quite a difference, you see.

But let us suppose a case not so fortunate. Let us imagine that you, like so many other grocers, really had not kept very accurate account, but had allowed things to go along rather blindly, hoping that 12 per cent. would cover your expenses. And let us further suppose that your expense was actually 16 2-3 per cent. And let us still further suppose that you thought you would "content yourself" with a 20 per cent. margin, and so had added only 20 per cent. to cost. How would you then come out? Let us see. Twenty per cent. of $8,000 is one-fifth of $8,000, or $1,600, showing total sales of $9,600; 16 2-3 per cent. of $9,600 is one-sixth of $9,600, or $1,600—leaving you with $8,000, and without one cent of profit. If this seems far-fetched, let me assure you that this is just what is happening in dozens of grocery stores throughout the country, and the owners thereof are wondering where the loose screw is located.

How One Can be Easily Fooled.

2. You often hear men, on both sides of the counter, unfortunately, make the statement that a certain article makes 100 per cent., or 110 per cent. profit; and they think that surely they are "safe" with such figures. Let us see. Artificial vinegar costs 6 cents, and sells for 25 cents—that is surely pretty good, as it looks like 425 per cent. profit. But 12 per cent. on 25 cents is 3 cents, leaving a net margin of 16 cents, which is the money you actually get; whereas 12 per cent. on 6 cents would only be .72 cent, and you should show, according to your way of figuring, 18.18 cents net profit. Such figures lead one sadly astray, because you are NOT doing business on this gallon of vinegar for .72-cent, but for 3 cents—which is "some different." This is an extreme case, as you well know, but it will indicate to you how badly you would get fooled on any item on which the gross margin was less—as most gross margins are in the grocery business. I have before me an item from a trade journal, wherein an example is made of a vinegar which costs 17 cents and sells for 30 cents. The margin is stated to be 76½ per cent—figuring on cost, again. Twelve per cent. on 17 cents is 2.04 cents; but 12 per cent. on 30 cents is 3.60 cents; and it is 12 per cent. on the selling price with which you have to deal.

Some time ago I saw a circular which guaranteed to "save 200 per cent. of your ice" through a certain refrigerating device. My question was, "Does that device make ice? If not, how can you make such a statement? You cannot save out of a given quantity of ice more than the total." I found that out of 100 pounds of ice, this device saved 66 2-3 pounds, so the saving was actually 66 2-3 per cent.

The Risk That is Run.

In merchandising the total is the amount for which the goods are sold. The total of anything is 100 per cent. of that thing. Therefore, 100 per cent. of anything you handle is all of it. When you sell a dollar's worth of goods, a certain proportion of that dollar—the selling price—is gross profit; of that gross profit a certain proportion is expense; and the remainder is net profit. The only "safe and sane" method is to figure both expense and profit from the same end of the problem. To do otherwise is to fool yourself and run the risk of going to the bad.

By my method—which is the method of every wholesale grocer and every big merchant from Marshall Field downward—you can know what you are doing; and you cannot know by any other method. And by this plan I find that the vinegar costing 6 cents and selling for 25 cents, pays a gross margin of 64 per cent.; the other, costing 17 cents and selling for 30 cents, pays a gross margin of 43 1-3 per cent. You can see how much less likely I am to fool myself on these conservative figures than is the man who works his profits on cost.

You may feel that this knowledge is of little use to you since you "have to handle" a good many things as you are handling them now, whether there is any margin in them or not. But do you?

What the Salesman Says.

If your expense of doing business is 16 2-3 per cent.—and that is honestly and truly the expense-ratio of unnumbered grocers who are not altogether aware of it—and a salesman offers you an article at $1.50 per dozen which is to be sold at 15c. a package, what will happen? He says that this item pays you 20 per cent. profit, which means that you sell for $1.80 per dozen. If you figure the old fashioned way, you will listen to his story, stock this article and push it—because "it pays you such a nice margin over your expenses."

If you figure my way, you may feel compelled to stock the article, but you will hide it as much as possible and push the sale of something on which you really do get 20 per cent., or better. For, on this basis of cost, this article pays you exactly 16 2-3 per cent., which equals your expense, and leaves you nothing over—and if enough of you tell the salesman this fact, you will make an impression after a while.

An article which sells for 15 cents cannot cost you more than $1.44 per dozen, laid down in your store, if it is to pay you 20 per cent. And, as a matter of fact, such an article should pay you 25 per cent., so should cost not to exceed $1.35 laid down. Then it would pay you to push it, and such an article as I referred to would have been a better seller all along had this policy been adopted or been forced on the makers by the retailers.

They Demanded 25 Per Cent.

It is such careful study that results in the demand from the retailers for better margins. A well-known manufacturer entered St. Paul and Minneapolis sometime ago, where the grocers are well organized. He had to make his proposition to the president of the Retail Grocers' Association. And he was puzzled by the insistent demand that "we must have 25 per cent. on the selling price before we will push your goods." But the deal was made on that basis, through the accurate knowledge of that progressive band of retail grocers. Truly, education "helps some!"

Window Designed to Attract the Campers' Trade

The Henderson Store, Kingston, Recently Showed a Country Scene, Which Attracted Attention — Tent, Water, Sailing Yacht, Bridge and Trees Used by the Artist—Value of a Store With a Handsome Front.

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 8.—In dressing his window recently J. S. Henderson, whose grocery and liquor store is known as the "Italian Warehouse," paid particular attention to the season.

As the Limestone City is located in proximity to a large summer resort, Mr. Henderson conceived the idea that a camping scene would be a good drawing card. He therefore had his window transformed into a minature country scene as shown by the illustration herewith.

To the left is a tent in front of which is a small body of water floating a toy sailing yacht. Farther along is a bridge across the stream and in the background are evergreens making the whole a realistic scene. Of course since the photograph of the window could not very well show up the floor as well as the sides and top, the picture reproduced here scarcely does justice to the work of the artist. The general appearance and efficiency of the window, however, might have been improved had the baskets and boxes of fruit and vegetables not been placed on the sidewalk in front. The one detracts from the other and divided attention results.

An Attractive Front.

The attractive front of the Henderson store also deserves notice. The cut only shows a little more than half of it but indicates to advantage the big plate glass windows and the high-class sign. The emblem above is suggested and the part shown illustrates that it is a handsome one.

The public generally want to deal in a store which first of all has a good appearance from the outside. Then if the interior is clean and attractive, the service adequate and the quality of the goods high, there is little chance of losing customers.

A Bermuda onion grower wants to prevent Texas growers from using the term Texas Bermuda onions. He claims that while they are grown in Texas and from Bermuda seed, still they are not Bermuda onions. He says he will take the matter to the courts.

Practical Methods Used in Retail Grocery Stores

An Edmonton Retailer Tells Why He Opposes Quantity Price—How St. John Retail Firm Advertise Their Coffee Grinder—A Widespread Business Built Up In Quebec—Vancouver Commission Men Want to Sell Grocers Butter in Advance.

Against the Quantity Price.

Edmonton, Alta., Sept 8.—Referring to an item which appeared on the "Practical Methods" page of The Grocer last week from Summerside, P.E.I., regarding quantity price, a local grocer expressed his opposition to it.

He claims that the quantity price is the cause of many failures in the retail trade to-day.

"For instance," he says, "a traveler comes along and sells me 5 cases of this or that allowing me a shade better price or some other inducement. I probably buy 3 cases more than I actually need; another comes along and sells me 10 cases at the favored price. I buy more than I need of that and several other articles: Within 30 days the bills arrive and I have to meet them, yet I may not have turned over an eighth of the goods bought. I have dead stock on my hands for a long time and I have to meet these payments with money received from other goods, if I have any. If I haven't the banks press me for payment; I worry, lose sleep and do not put the proper spirit into my work. This leads to worse and finally I have to make an assignment.

"The quantity price I think should be left alone by most grocers unless they are positive that the market is going up," he added, "and then too much money should not be put into one article—better get a better assortment."

Advertise Their Coffee Grinder.

St. John, N. B., Sept. 8.—No doubt many readers of The Canadian Grocer know of cases where customers have gone into a grocery store and asked for a pound of "fresh ground" coffee and the clerk has received the order with a look as much as to say:—"Why can't you take what is already ground and save me the trouble of grinding," or he has gone after it grumbling audibly that some customers were a nuisance. This attitude is not pleasant for the customer or is it likely to result in an increase in that merchant's coffee trade. Possibly it was some such thought that inspired the F. E. Williams Co., local retail dealers, to send out to customers and prospective customers the following circular printed in neat form:

> Our clerks "smile" when you ask them to grind your coffee!
> We have installed the latest electric coffee mill, which makes it possible for us to grind your coffee just like you want it, and the pleasure is ours. Two things are most important for the making of a good cup of coffee. Quality—and proper granulation. We carry the very best grades of coffee, selected and blended for their cup value, and we have the mill to grind it to suit the pot you are using. Trust us with your coffee orders and "see the difference."

A Big Business Built Up.

Ste. Flavie, Que., Sept. 8.—Probably one of the largest general stores east of Montreal is that of A. C. Landry at Ste. Flavie Station. It was founded in a comparatively small way five years ago, the nucleus of the business having been established at Grand Metis, about a quarter of a century ago. The evolution has been gradual until to-day the business requires an immense staff and the premises cover many acres of land and include five complete warehouses in addition to the main general store on the main street of Mont Joli. The big store is a hive of activity and is handsomely fitted up with counters and shelves, plate glass windows and splendid offices. The stock includes dry goods, groceries, hardware, boots and shoes, furniture, plumbing supplies, harness, fish oils, lumber, tobacco, fire extinguishers, corn, coal, lumbering supplies, carpets and oilcloths; in fact it would be impossible in this space to detail the articles carried. The trade extends for miles around and it is a common expression all over eastern parts of the province and even in the West "Ask Landry; he's sure to have it." A considerable trade is carried on with the West in produce of all descriptions such as beans, peas, evaporated apples and flour.

A specialty is made in all cases of quality and price. As the firm is so immediately under Mr. Landry's personal supervision not a thing is going on that he does not know about. Louis Goupil who has had a long training under Mr. Landry is the manager. He watches all modern systems of business advancement and buying. Every department is in the best of order and so much activity is in vogue that immense turnovers are the rule.

Prompt deliveries have assured him a large and growing list of customers who have the knowledge of everything being guaranteed to be just as it is represented to be.

Ste. Flavie is in the heart of a splendid agricultural section and the business has sound support.

Mr. Landry has recently been instrumental in organizing an extensive foundry and machine company in Ste. Flavie known as the Mont Joli Foundry and Machine Co., Ltd. He is one of the directors of this institution.

Butter Orders in Advance

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 8.—Commission men here are approaching grocers with a view to placing orders for butter in advance, quoting what they claim to be special prices. They state that United States buyers are buying butter largely in Eastern Ontario shipping from Montreal, which they say will mean that there will be a scarcity in the western market. Much of the butter used here in the winter time comes from the east, and with this supply cut off it will mean high prices. As it is, the eastern butter is bricked, put under special labels and sold in many cases for local, with almost the local price. Vancouver may be able to secure some relief if it needs any by getting in butter from Australia and New Zealand. If the agitation is successful to have Australian liners call at New Zealand ports en route to this city it will facilitate shipment very much from the latter country in lines such as butter, canned meats, mutton, etc.

If orders are placed now, butter is offered at 29 cents for delivery in September; 29½ cents in October and 30 in November. The current price of eastern butter is 28 to 29½ cents. Local is quoted wholesale at 30, and is expected to go up any time.

Eliminated the Hello.

London, Ont., Sept., 8.—London grocers, and merchants generally, have cut out the telephone "hello." It may almost be said truthfully that the whole city of 'phone users have banished it as out of date. The practice of answering a telephone call by repeating the name of the store or firm has been in vogue for a long time in a few offices, but within the last week or two, assisted by newspaper publicity, hundreds of people have adopted it, even at residences.

The method of saying "Ranahan's!" or "Scandrett's!" in preference to "Hello!" "Is that Ranahan's grocery?" "Yes." etc., needs no argument in its favor, either from the standpoint of the customer, or the clerk who has possibly had to excuse himself from waiting on someone to answer the call.

An odd feature of the thing is that many people are slow to "get on to" the short cut, and for a time persist in asking: "Is that So-and-So's?" immediately after being assured that it is So-and-So's.

Subscriber Asks as to Legality of Adding Interest

An Alberta subscriber writes:

"We are a little doubtful as to the correct or legal method of attaching interest on overdue accounts. We charge 8 p.c. interest after 30 days; now if a customer owes us $100 which is over due are we justified in adding $8 at once or at that rate per annum? Our notices simply state that we charge 8 p.c. interest on overdue accounts."

Editorial Note.—The Canadian Grocer obtained legal advice on this question and finds that a merchant could not charge 8 p.c. or any other rate of interest regardless of the length of time the account is overdue. It must be a certain rate per annum or per month, etc. Therefore if a $100 account is overdue 1 month and 8 p.c. charged, the merchant could legally collect only one-twelfth of $8 interest or 66 2-3 cents.

It may be added here that according to the Usury Law the maximum rate of interest that can be charged on a loan is 1 p.c. per month or 12 per cent. per annum. Anything above this is illegal in Canada, and cannot be collected.

CANNED PEAS ADVANCE.

This week's market reports show a general advance of from 5 cents to 15 cents per dozen in Canadian canned peas. The biggest advance is in the Standard grade, group A, which is now quoted to the retailer at $1.10 instead of 97½ cents.

The cause is, of course, due to the shortage in the supply of the lower grades of peas. Many retailers have stated that they cannot obtain nearly the quantity of Standards they would like.

Peas at $1.10 means that there will be no profit in retailing them at 10 cents.

FLOUR GOES DOWN.

Flour went down during the week 30 cents per barrel. This was not unexpected by many in the trade, although others could not see it a week ago.

In last week's issue it was pointed out the effect the new estimates of the wheat yields in the west were having on the market. A month ago reports were so bearish that the estimated yield went down several million bushels below what it actually should have been. The present estimate is more than 100,000,000 bushels. The effect of this, also the good crops in Ontario, and the fact that the world's shipments during the week ending Tuesday, were some 2,000,000 bushels greater than the preceding week, all tended to bear down the market. The movement of grain in America is also much more rapid than a week ago. These are the chief reasons ascribed for the decline in flour.

YIELD OF NIAGARA FRUIT.

From recent reports gathered from the Niagara Peninsula it is learned that the fruit crops on the whole are good, but that they do not quite come up to those of last year.

Fruit growers say that peaches are about three-fourths of last season's crop; native plums about one-half; Japanese, one-eighth, and pears about two-thirds. Grapes are reported to be three-fourths of a year ago, and apples about one-half.

The general impression is that the above are conservative estimates; in fact, some growers say that their crops of peaches, pears, plums and grapes will yield better than a year ago. One even reports that apples will be a better crop. From these statements it is seen that the general yield is below last year, but it is believed that the increased acreage will make up for any shortages.

With regard to prices, there is little prospect of them ruling lower than last year; they are likely to go the other way, in view of the extending markets for Niagara fruit.

ONTARIO'S GOOD CROPS.

A glance at the figures given out by the Ontario Department of Agriculture on the crop yields, and published elsewhere in this issue, indicate that farmers in that province have experienced, on the whole, an unusually good yield.

The yield of fall wheat this year is estimated at 19,705,837 bushels, which is almost 4,000,000 more than in 1909. The acreage of course is almost 100,000 more but the average yield is estimated at 2 bushels in advance of 1909. With regard to spring wheat, the total advance is some 210,000 bushels and the average per acre is increased 2 bushels.

The acreage in barley is decreased slightly this year but the average yield per acre is 2 bushels in advance of last.

The oat crop is a splendid one. The increase over last season is estimated at 10,000,000 bushels, the average increase per acre being 3 bushels. Peas show a decline but hay and clover are away beyond 1909.

Ontario should therefore be a prosperous province for the year to come; this will be welcomed by aggressive merchants as well as manufacturers because it means better business to those who get after it progressively.

SELLING BELOW COST.

When will retail dealers learn to know the exact cost of goods?

Another instance of a so-called "retail grocer" in a large Canadian city selling below cost comes to our notice.

This is what he was doing: He bought Worcestershire sauce at about 19 cents per bottle and was selling it at 10c. As a result he naturally garnered in most of the Worcestershire sauce trade in his district until his attention was called by a traveler to what he was doing.

"I always thought that all those sauces retailed at 10 cents," he innocently explained.

He had nobody to blame but himself in the matter. If he had studied his invoice carefully he would have discovered that he was paying $2.35 per dozen. Instead of that he blindly put on his retail price "thinking" that all sauces sold at 10 cents.

It is gratifying to know that such merchants are wearing few, particularly those who have had some experience in retailing, but it goes to show that ignorance of cost is still prevalent in some places.

FIGURING PROFITS AND EXPENSES.

Arnold Bros., general merchants, Black Diamond, Alta., write as follows:

"Having for the past 3 or 4 years subscribed to your valuable trade journal, The Canadian Grocer, we desire to express our appreciation for the knowledge we have gained on vital questions and for the general usefulness of the paper.

"We are particularly interested in the articles referring to "The Cost of Doing Business," but we cannot understand why profits and expense should be figured on the selling price."

This question was referred to Henry Johnson, Jr., who has now become familiar to readers of The Grocer, and in this issue, he explains why he thinks profit and expense should be figured on sales and not on cost.

No doubt quite a number of grocers disagree with him; he would be glad to hear from any of these with their reasons and he would also appreciate any criticisms on his article.

Those sent through The Canadian Grocer will be handed him, in confidence if desired, and a further discussion of this important subject provoked.

It is reported that the new pack of peas in Indiana has nearly all gone into jobbers' hands.

It takes years to develop a distinctive store character. Has your store one? It is not a matter of such moment in what line you develop it, but your store should be pre-eminent in at least one thing. To have the "best" and always the best in any one line will give you an anchor by which to hold the buying public. This can never be done in a month or a year. It has to be fostered and advertised continually from year to year, and even then you must be always on the qui vive that no one takes it away from you.

Weighing Wooden Containers Becomes Unlawful

Law in Cleveland Says This Must Not be Done in Selling Butter, Lard, etc.—A Bermuda Onion Grower Threatens Trouble—Winnipeg After Methods Dealing With Those Who Give Short Weights and Measures—Other Items Done in Brief for Busy Merchants.

Over 300 wholesale tea dealers are doing business in London, Eng., alone.

Have you noticed a general tendency in the world of business to an endeavor to reach out to a higher moral plane? Business men themselves have remarked it, and the individual can do his share to promote it, if he will.

The man who has no bad debts in his books has an advantage over his neighbor who suffers from that form of commercial disease. He does not have to make allowance for an expense of that kind when estimating his total cost of doing business. He can offer his customer slightly better inducements by this advantage.

The weighing in of wooden containers with purchases of butter, lard, etc., will be considered an infraction of the law in Cleveland, Ohio, and the authorities are after dealers who follow this practice.

The mayor of Winnipeg recently commissioned one of his staff to Chicago to study the methods employed there to correct the short-measure and light-weight evil. It is expected that they will be adopted in whole or in part in Winnipeg.

The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada are considering the advisability of asking for legislation to punish those who falsely advertise goods.

At their recent convention the Canadian Bakers passed a resolution requesting the authorities at Ottawa to make is compulsory that all flour manufacturers in Canada brand all their flours for home consumption with the word "bleached" or "unbleached," as the case may be.

The Detroit Retail Grocers' Association has decided to incorporate, thus relieving every member from individual litigation, should any difficulty ever arise.

In Iowa the grocers' associations look after legislation before the members are elected. The secretary of each association sends out a circular reminding the grocers to interview the candidates in order to learn their views on proposed legislation that will protect the retailer in the collection of accounts for family necessities, adding: "Now is the time to place this candidate on record in favor of some legislation, and if you find a candidate absolutely opposed, then it is your imperative duty to work for his defeat." That is the way things are done with those who would sit in the Iowa Legislature.

When the grocer knows how much it is costing him to do business he is started in the direction of success.

If the wages of grocery clerks in the west become general at $100 a month it will not be long until the eastern stores will go a-begging for assistants.

Almost Fainted at Reply of the Telephone Girl

The retail merchant has to endure many trials, but one of the most provoking is lack of tact and thoughtfulness on the part of his assistants. One grocer—a reader of The Canadian Grocer—had employed a telephone girl who gave a splendid example of how not to be thoughtful of her employer's business.

He tells an amusing story about her. One of his best customers had been buying considerable poultry and the chickens she had received were from cold storage. The grocer knew they were good and the woman never complained—and she claimed to be a good judge of poultry. At any rate she wanted a couple of ducks not long ago, but the grocer after many attempts was unable to get anything but cold storage ducks, and he did not like to try them. He instructed the girl to telephone the customer and tell her spring ducks were an impossibility that day. The conversation was something like this:

"We have tried all over town, Mrs. Blank, and can get nothing but cold storage ducks and we did not think you would care for them."

The customer was one of the rather haughty kind; she replied: "I am so sorry. We thought ducks would be a change, but I couldn't think of taking any from cold storage."

"Why you have been getting cold storage chickens all summer," the girl replied, and the proprietor happening to hear the remark, nearly fainted.

The woman was very angry and being suspicious of everything, it was only a short time until she went elsewhere. This is an actual happening related by the grocer himself in giving an example of some kinds of clerks.

TRIP OF QUEBEC RETAILERS.

Visit Big United States Cities for New Ideas and Information.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—About forty grocers, members of the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Quebec Province, passed through Toronto last week on their way home after an excursion trip to New York, Atlantic City, Philadelphia and other cities below the border, where they gleaned a lot of solid knowledge. While in Toronto they were the guests of the grocers' section, Toronto branch of the R.M.A., and were also entertained by Christie, Brown & Co., through whose factory they were shown, and by whom they were also entertained at dinner at the St. Charles.

J. A. Dore chairman of the grocers' section, Montreal branch, R.M.A., expressed the appreciation of the visitors for the courtesy they had been shown and the warm reception they had received. They were so pleased with the entire trip that they suggested that Montreal, Quebec, Toronto and other cities unite next year for a big excursion of retailers, and the matter will be further considered during the coming year.

TALE ABOUT A TRAVELER.

A good story comes from Kingston, Ont., and about a grocery traveler too.

Recently while in the Limestone City he took a run on the car out to Lake Ontario Park. It was a hot day and while enjoying the invigorating lake breezes he wondered why anybody ever left Kingston to obtain fresh air.

Later on, however it grew dark, as it sometimes does in Kingston, and in wandering about the bushes he suddenly came to a stop by tumbling over something alive. After begging pardon, etc., he discovered it was one of the donkeys having a quiet nap. Fortunately he hit the head-end or he might have done the parachute act. (For further information apply to Jim, the grocer.

The Markets—Canned Peas Jump to Higher Prices

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Weak.

Coffee—Firm, with brisk sale.

Nuts—Firm. Walnuts (shelled) higher.

Dried Fruits—Very firm.

Montreal, Sept. 8, 1910.

Retailers are beginning to feel the effects of so many visitors in town for the Congress, and report that in many cases extra clerks have had to be taken on. Although the jobbing trade has not as yet felt any great difference, it is perhaps too early to expect it, as the retailer has to feel the pull on himself before laying in increased supplies. However, by the end of the week replacement orders will undoubtedly have to be placed in many lines, and things will boom. Already accommodations in the city are almost impossible to obtain, and they are daily becoming more so.

The damp weather prevailing has put somewhat of a damper on things, but still all the principal plans are being carried out.

The dried fruit and nut situation are still of absorbing interest to the trade, and supplies are being laid in wherever possible, as there seems to be a certain advance in all lines in view. All prices for future delivery of new crop goods are higher.

Sugar—The raw market continues to show a decided weakness, and as a result the New York refined prices have gone down. As yet there has been no change in local refined prices, but the situation is regarded as weak. Should present conditions continue there seems little doubt that a drop will occur. However, in some of the best informed quarters there seems to be little fear of the necessity of such action.

Jobbers report slow sales, but with a slight improvement noted in the past few days.

Syrups and Molasses — Syrups have been showing signs of life of late that are welcome both to the manufacturer and the jobber. Trade is at present brisk, and seems likely to continue to be so for some time to come, as the number of repeat orders show.

There has been a slackening in the demand for molasses, which has been somewhat puzzling to the trade, as the weather has been exceptionally cool for this time of year. However, it may be only a temporary lull.

Coffee—There is a considerable increase showing already in the demand for coffees. All lines are feeling it and from present indications roasters seem to be assured of a busy season. After the summer deadness of the coffee market, such a change is a welcome one indeed. Prices show a slight firmness in the primary market, particularly Rios.

Dried Fruits — Inquiries have been plentiful of late, much more so than the present stocks can comfortably take care of. Prunes seem to be especially in demand. Valencia raisins are reported scarce.

Reports from Smyrna regarding the fig situation are bullish. European countries have been much heavier purchasers than usual, and in the primary markets there the price has been advanced fully 1c.

In currants the primary market continues to advance steadily, and it seems a certainty that there will be an advance to the retailer before long.

The date situation is still strong, but there seems to be no such immediate prospect of an advance as was thought.

Nuts—Shelled walnuts are up. They are now quoted at 36 and 37½c. This is a high water mark for these for some years past, and it looks as if the short crop reported in France will not tend to lower prices. Reports from New York indicate a bare market there, and local dealers have little left.

Tarragona almonds have gone up in the primary market, and to the United States retailer, but as yet no change has taken place locally.

The pecan situation is at present interesting the local trade. Reports as to the crop are conflicting, but the general opinion is that while prices will be firm, little change is likely to take place.

Sicilian operators in filberts seem to have the situation well in hand, and a higher range of prices seems a certainty.

The nut market, as a whole, is an advancing one, and crops of almost all lines will likely be short.

Evaporated Apples—Little good stock is left on the market, but it is a significant fact that all which appears is eagerly snapped up at good prices. In fact it looks as if this year, with several evaporators closing down, that the general range of prices will be higher than last year, as there is always a steady demand from certain quarters.

Beans and Peas—Prices are well maintained at the recent advance, and it looks as if the high level attained would be not much too high for the new crop. The market is a comparatively bare one at present and buyers are having trouble in filling their requirements.

Peas are firm at former quotations, and in fair demand.

Rice and Tapioca—The rice market shows a slight improvement this week, but principally in imported Patna rices. The primary market shows fairly firm, but no material change has taken place. It is hardly cold enough as yet for rice to take up its usual winter popularity.

Stocks of tapioca are light, but they are still sufficient to entirely cover all demands made on them. Prices are firm, but unchanged.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—Canned peas are up. The market has been very strong of late, and this change has been looked for for some weeks past. This year's crop is a small one, and the demand is on the increase. It is said that practically no gallon peas have been put up this year owing to the shortage.

The general demand for all vegetables is good, and seems to vary little from week to week. Prices are firm in all lines.

Fruit trade is not so good as last week though several jobbers report a fair demand.

In fish, salmon presents the feature. Trade in this line is brisk. Some of the high grade new pack has appeared on the market.

TORONTO. — Locally, canned goods are quite firm and peas particularly so. In regard to the latter, prices are higher, in some grades by fifteen cents above the opening price. The whole tendency is upward. The demand is fairly good in some lines in view of the heavy demand for the new vegetables. The future of the canned peas market is undoubtedly upward judging from the unanimous statements heard among the jobbing trade. Salmon is in good demand with prices steady but unchanged.

WINNIPEG—All canned goods are moving freely. The following quotations hold rigidly on this market and so far as the trade has learned here there is little possibility of a change. The demand is hard to satisfy at present since stocks are low in every corner of the west. The supplies from the east are generally abundant.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Weaker.

Canned Peas—Quoted at advance.

Molasses—Prices declined.

Toronto, Sept. 8, 1910.

Probably the feature of the general grocery markets this week is the condition of the sugar market. At the time of going to press there is a noticeable weakness due to the influence of outside markets. Raw sugars have declined recently, and in New York refined sugars declined ten cents. This has had its effect on Canadian refined, and it is believed that it is only a matter of time until a decline is noted. Trading is good and a large quantity of sugar is passing through the trade, but it is only from hand to mouth buying, as no one wants to go into it heavily under present conditions. It is generally understood that the demand for sugar will continue good for some time as the later fruits seem to be well up to the average.

The situation in dried fruits shows raisins a little easier, but not much attention is being paid to that. Trading has not improved. The statistical positions remain unchanged, and but little weakness in the primary market. The price of raisins in the market is practically where it was a week ago.

Molasses are reported slightly lower, and in canned goods there is a general tone of strength with peas quoted higher. Nuts are firm, but there is but little spot demand.

Sugar—The sugar market gives evidence of unmistakable weakness. Buying is merely hand to mouth, and yet the total volume of business is reported large. Raw sugars have declined and refined sugars in New York recently dropped ten cents. This has had a weakening tendency in Canadian sugars, and the consensus of opinion is directed toward lower prices. The indications are that the new crop will be large, although nothing definite in this regard has been announced. The demand for sugar is still good and it should be strong for some time yet.

Dried Fruits—The position of currants and raisins has not materially changed during the week with the exception that raisins are a little easier. It will be remembered by those who have carefully followed the market that currants opened about 21s. and they have steadily advanced until now they are selling for as high as 28s. 6d. In other words the price is approximately between $6.75 and $7 a cwt. This is the trend of the currant market as far as first shipments are concerned. The new crop is 30 per cent. smaller than last year's, and is estimated at 130,000 tons, which together with the old crop will be far below that which will be required for the total universal consumption.

Raisins are a little easier if anything, although it is felt that this condition has no particular significance at this stage.

Valencias are likely to be high if the reports that have been sent out are substantiated to the full. Sultanas are high. Currants are dear and likewise figs and in sympathy with this condition it might be expected that raisins would be high. In addition to this influence there is the fact that the crop is much lower this year than usual. According to one authority Sultanas have doubled their price within the past three years, and are now quoted much above last year's figures. There has been some buying, but not to any great extent.

MANITOBA MARKETS

POINTERS—

Advances — Dried fruits, rolled oats, beans.

Firm—Sugar and syrup.

Winnipeg, Sept. 8, 1910.

The heavy output of the general line of grocery stocks is severely clashing with the heavy transportation of wheat to the east. Merchants, as usual, did not prepare for the extra fall rush of grain by ordering on time. As a consequence many stocks are reported low, and merchants are facing the difficulty of getting supplies at a time when they are most needed. The railways are doing all in their power to handle all freight, both east and west, but the merchants could have avoided much of the present difficulty.

A combination of circumstances is soaring many prices. The market was never so firm as it is at present. Crop conditions everywhere are not the best, and this has particularly helped to advance rolled oats, and dried fruits from California.

When it is remembered that the export demand on all lines of goods is increasing with the betterment of all international trade relationships, and also the fact that each week witnesses an increased population in Western Canada to the extent of from two to six thousand, it is little wonder that the market prices are going up. The stocks that are required for new stores alone tend to make a general scarcity of goods. It is probable that higher prices will yet be quoted within a few days.

Sugar—A stronger market rules this week, and as the preserving season closes in, the sugar ordering is better. The market in the west will likely be held firm.

Foreign Dried Fruits—All new goods have not arrived yet, but the situation has been relieved and the shortage has been made up pretty well. Valencia raisins are off the market entirely, and when the new stock arrives the quotations will range around $2.30 per case. All the markets are high in accordance. Fancy seeded in 1 lb. package are 8½ cents, which is a high figure. Currants are all up, as are also peaches, pears, and apricots. The California crop has panned out scarce, when all demands, home and foreign, are satisfied. Figs are off the market, and wholesalers await the arrival of new crop stocks.

To the Manufacturer or Wholesaler——

If it were possible to employ a traveller who could call on 7,000 of the best dealers all through Canada every week, what salary would you figure he'd be worth—even supposing he did nothing more than go in and shake hands with these dealers, under such circumstances they'd be glad to see him.

Would he be worth $200, $300 or $500 per week? Many a house would pretty nearly let him fix his own salary.

Equip an advertisement in this paper with a verbal handshake for every dealer in Canada, and a frank, brief, pointed talk about your goods and you add a traveller to your staff who will make 7.000 calls a week for you at a salary of $4 to $8 a week—less than you would pay a first-class stenographer.

Of course this traveller won't displace any of your regular salesmen, but he will help them to sell more goods and open up more new accounts.

ALBERTA MARKETS.

Calgary, Sept. 8, 1910.

Cornmeal and other cereals have taken a jump in price because the crops in some of the western provinces are not as good this year as was anticipated. Cornmeal is higher in price by twenty cents a hundredweight. Prunes have risen in price from four and a half to six and a half cents a pound. The markets in the other commodities is practically stationary. The demand for canned goods has not commenced to any extent as yet. The latest prices are:

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, Sept. 8,1910.

Hams are a little easier in this week's quotations, being priced at from 23 to 23½ cents. There is little change in bacon, which is 31½ cents, the figure at which it has sold for some weeks.

Grocers are anticipating a shortage of butter during the coming winter, as outlined in last week's letter. There is no way to prepare for it, and when the time arrives there will be nothing to do but get along as welll as possible.

In the fruit line there is a large amount of California fruit on the market. Plums are quoted at about $1.25 a crate and are mostly preferred to the local fruit at from 65 to 85 cents. The California box goes about seven pounds, and the local about four and a half, but the latter does not keep well. The retailer, having no cold storage, is at a disadvantage for he suffers loss when the fruit spoils. Plenty of cantaloupes are offered at $4.25 a crate, averaging 40 or 45 to the crate. This is a popular vegetable, but is a bad keeper and there is little in it for the retailer if stock does not go out rapidly. A little frost was reported last week and the report has gone out that the late potatoes were damaged a little. The story is a little early, but it will doubtless be taken advantage of by the commission men. With the crop in Alberta below the average there will be a good demand for potatoes, but present indications are that the supply will be fair if not better than that.

Statistics Show Ontario's Crops to be Above Average

The following statistics of the principal field crops of Ontario for 1910 show the acreage as compiled from individual returns made by farmers to the Ontario Bureau of Industries and the yields as estimated by an experienced staff of correspondents, who give probable yields according to conditions on August 15th, 1910:

Fall Wheat—743,473 acres will produce 19,705,837 bush., or 26.5 per acre as against 663,375 acres 15,967,652 bush. and 24.1 in 1909. The annual average for 28 years was 20.8.

Spring Wheat—129,319 acres 2,433,456 bush., or 18.8 per acre as against 135,161 acres 2,223,567 bush. and 16.5 in 1909. Av. 15.9.

Barley—626,144 acres 18,214,183 bush. or 29.1 per acre as against 695,262 acres 18,776,777 bush. and 27. in 1909. Av. 27.7.

Oats—2,757,933 acres 100,064,428 bush. or 36.3 per acre as against 2,695,585 acres 90,235,579 bush. and 33.5 in 1909. Av. 35.6.

Rye—95,397 acres 1,608,352 bush. or 16.9 per acre as against 94,661 acres 1,573,921 bush. and 16.6 in 1909. Average 16.4.

Peas—403,414 acres 6,718.989 bush. or 16.7 per acre as against 381,609 acres 7,613, 656 bush. and 20. in 1909. Average 19.4.

Beans—49,778 acres 909,936 bush. or 18.3 per acre as against 45,029 acres 826,344 bush. and 18.4 in 1909. Average 17.2.

Hay and Clover—3,204,021 acres 5,476,420 tons or 1.71 per acre as against 3,228,445 acres 3,285,145 tons and 1.20 in 1909. Av. 1.45.

The acreages in other crops for which no estimates as to yield have been made are as follows: buckwheat, 194,913; corn for husking, 320,519; corn for silo, 326,627; potatoes, 168,454; sugar, beets, 26,879.

Canadian grown grapes from the Niagara Peninsula are coming on the market. They will, of course, not be here in abundance for a couple of weeks yet.

The Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association have decided not to hold their annual "hump" this year. They may have a smoker or concert during the winter instead.

Prices Higher for Butter and Eggs this Week

Production of Eggs has Diminished Slightly and Demand is Steady—Market in Butter and Cheese is Firm — Supply of Milk Continues Plentiful—Scarcity of Hogs Sends up Prices, Although in Some Lines of Pork Products Prices are a Little Easier—Poultry is Arriving Freely, in Good Condition and at Lower Prices—Spirit of Unrest in Honey Market.

The various markets have shown slightly higher prices this week, but few escaping from the upward tendency. Butter, eggs and cheese are firm and the same condition is found in the provision market. In the case of the latter the primary market shows a scarcity of live and dressed hogs which largely on tnat account were quoted considerably higher over the prices of a week ago. Montreal and Toronto have had thousands of visitors during the past ten days and in those cities increased demand for many lines of general provisions has been reported.

The production of milk throughout the country continues rather heavy but there is, nevertheless, a stronger tone to the butter and cheese markets. Demand for both keeps up but butter is not being shipped in as good condition as it might be, jobbers reporting that it often comes soft and in other respects the quality is sometimes not all that it might be. In some localities cheese factories are beginning to close down for the season and in others, especially the east, cream is being largely shipped across the border. With the remaining factories the output is still heavy and the season should finish well. The quality of Canadian cheese this year, particularly that from Ontario is reported good and the export trade continues at a normal figure. Montreal report shows that the receipts for the year are slightly in excess of last year's.

Eggs are higher, it being generally reported that production is declining although as yet not to any great extent. Opinion is divided as to whether the higher price will hold.

Poultry is coming in freely now and prices have dropped. It is apparent that supplies in the country are rather heavy and receipts should be much larger in the near future.

There is a little firmness to the honey market but not much business is doing. There is a feeling that prices as now quoted are somewhat high but producers do not agree with this. Supplies are coming in pretty freely and present prices are not considered by jobbers as likely to remain unchanged. On the other hand bee-keepers say that the total production scarcely comes up to a year ago and that soon all honey will be out of their hands.

Butter.—Receipts are dropping off at present and as a result prices are ½c. higher. Matters look bright in the country however, and there should be a large increase of supplies in the near future. It is not likely that any reduction in price will be made, as dealers claim they are not getting enough for their goods, considering the price they have to pay for them.

Cheese.—There is a firm undertone to the cheese market at present though matters are practically unchanged from last week. There has been some foreign inquiry, but nothing to speak of. As the close of the navigation season approaches dealers expect that the late orders will boom things considerably.

Receipts for the week are slightly in excess of the corresponding week last year.

Eggs.—New laid eggs are now selling at a two cent. advance over last week. This is no doubt due largely to the increase in the city's egg eaters by the Eucharistic Congress now in progress. Thousands of visitors are in the city, and the problem of feeding them is helping out the grocer in all sections of the city.

The advance in eggs is not likely to be permanent, as receipts are slightly higher than last year's, and conditions in themselves would not warrant such an advance.

Honey.—Plenty of both buckwheat and white clover are being offered but buyers are holding off, claiming that there is no shortage, and prices must go lower before they will lay in their supplies.

The quality of this year's crop is unquestionably high, and with no prospect of any serious shortage, it looks like a better year for the consumer than was at first thought.

TORONTO.

Provisions—Prices are firmer this week. In the live hog market there was a sharp advance from $8.25 to $8.60 and in Toronto as high as $9 is being paid. Hogs are scarce and there is keen competition among packers to get sufficient supplies. These are not forthcoming in large enough quantities and it is possible that prices will go higher before the top is reached. This has had an effect upon pork products together with a strong demand just now. There is a good volume of business. In some lines in which there is temporarily a good supply prices are a little easier but this market on the whole is firm and is likely to remain so.

Butter.—Butter advanced a cent during the week. The market is firm with the demand good. Reports from the country are to the effect that pastures are good but jobbers state that stocks are not arriving in the most satisfactory condition. Some of it is too soft and there is some that is rancid. The weather has not been conducive to improving the shipping conditions but it is believed that not sufficient care is taken at the packing end. Some of the dealers state that the facts would scarcely lead to a stronger market but it is strong and there is no weakness insight.

Eggs—A slight decline in the production of eggs has been noticeable of late and during the week there has been an upward tendency to prices. It is expected that by the first or second week in October the supplies will be pretty nearly exhausted, and the trade will have to call in some of the storage goods for part of the demand. The demand during the week showed an improvement.

Butter—The butter market is firm at 26 cents this week and supplies have dropped off considerably. No. 1 dairy is 23 cents. Higher prices are not expected.

Eggs.—During all the years that jobbers have been in business here the egg supply was never so scarce. It is remarkable that eggs have to be brought from the east at the first of September. There is room for improvement in poultry and egg production in this province. Eastern eggs are jobbing at 26 cents and Manitoba eggs are selling at 23 cents.

Cheese—Manitoba cheese is having a good sale due to the advantageous price at which it sells over the Ontario product. All cheese experts are aware that the Ontario product is more scientifically made than any other cheese on this continent. The Dutch cheese alone is superior to the Ontario, and this, of course, is largely a matter of taste. Manitoba cheese is good quality this year, however, but it is only just that manufacturers should inform the retailer where the product is made. The freight is said to be the chief reason for the higher price of the Ontario cheese. The following prices rule.

Retailer's Reasons for Opposing Quantity Price

He Claims That Average Grocer Becomes Overstocked—Believes That Assortment is More Valuable—Favors the Contract Selling Plan—Quantity Price has Some Good Features.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—"Under the quantity price the average grocer is almost bound to become loaded up with a stock of goods that will require considerable time to dispose of," is the opinion on this question offered by F. J. Holloway, King St. West.

"He is induced to buy them by the prospect of getting them at a reduction on the regular price and this prospect is glowingly set forth by the representative of the wholesale or manufacturing firm until the grocer agrees that he has got to have them. This ties up probably more money than he could afford to put into this line, part of which might have been used for other purchases.

"It is not long until a traveler from a competitive firm comes along with a similar line of goods, but made by his firm. The second may be as popular as the first. The second traveler talks quantity and a reduced price and the chances are that the grocer falls in with this idea. Here he is then with double the quantity of this stock, enough to last for months.

Might Have Had Assortment.

"Therefore I believe that the quantity price is responsible for buying too heavily by grocers who may be able to afford it all right, but whose money might have been put to better use for a better assortment had it been equally divided among other goods.

"And again, having got an overdose of these goods and at a fairly low price there is a temptation to cut the price to the consumer, a temptation to which far too many grocers succumb. Now, following tactics of that kind, how much better off are they than if they had purchased a smaller amount of goods and sold them at the ordinary profit. Possibly, by the quantity price they may be enabled to turn over more goods, but if they have cut the price, I cannot see that they have made any appreciable gain.

"Thus the principal reason for buying the goods at a quantity price has practically been defeated by their subsequent actions.

"You will understand that I am considering this from a general standpoint and not from what I may do myself. I believe that the quantity price idea has its good features but I know that it occasions conditions in business like those mentioned above.

Likes Contract Price Plan.

"I would like to see the contract selling price plan in more general use than it is, on proprietary articles. There are some objections to it of course, but on the whole it has the tendency to put the trade in general on a secure basis. When a grocer stocks up with goods bought under a special quantity price the way is prepared for difficulty. Should he become short of finances, the price of the "quantity" goods is apt to be sliced, and the trade of the community is affected. Under ideal conditions, the quantity price may well be advocated, but there are other phases of the grocery business just as important and just as necessary to success."

The Cutting of Prices Annoying the Soo Grocers

Sault Ste. Marie, Sept. 8.—Considerable interest is being taken at the present time by the members of the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, in the outcome of a price cutting case that has been taking place at Sault Ste. Marie. A retail firm who have recently moved from the United States into Canada are attempting to attract custom by cutting the prices of staple lines of goods. They have been offering seven bars of a particular soap for a quarter, a price that practically eliminates all thought of profit. And this is but one of many practices in the cutting of prices. What annoys the grocers most has been the fact that one of the members has boasted that he will show Canadians how to do business, and the grocers know that the plan he has adopted will cause him to lose money, which he would probably hope to make up again as soon as he had succeeded in making the customers of the grocers believe that he could sell goods at a price lower than the rest.

It is well known that grocers have been insisting that manufacturers of staple goods should make the retailer respect honest trade customs, and some here have stated that if the manufacturers of the lines that are being cut do not protect them they will discontinue handling the goods and will also discontinue buying from those wholesalers who have been supplying the price-cutter.

The case has been fully reported to the head office in Toronto, and the Dominion secretary has upheld the action taken by the grocers of Sault Ste. Marie.

Growth of Bean Vines Deceiving; Shortage in Crop

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 8.—Further reports received from various sections of the bean growing district largely confirm previous indications of a shortage in the crop. Not only will the yield fall far short of what was predicted earlier in the season, but it may fall short of the 860,000 bushels which was last year's approximate yield.

Reports from Tilbury and the territory southwest of Chatham where the acreage of beans is comparatively light state that the crop is only fair. Further east, at Cedar Springs, the statement is: "Beans look very fine from the road, but farmers claim the yield will be small, as they are not podding heavily." In South Harwich, one of the most important bean growing districts, the crop is reported light. Here beans may not average more than from five to ten bushels to the acre. While the vines are heavy, the crop will be light. A Blenheim report states that beans will be only half a crop in the immediate vicinity of that town.

In northern Harwich, however, the beans will be the best crop of the season, from present reports, weather conditions throughout having been more favorable there than elsewhere. Bothwell, where, however, the bean acreage is comparatively small, also reports the crop in excellent condition and harvesting already in progress.

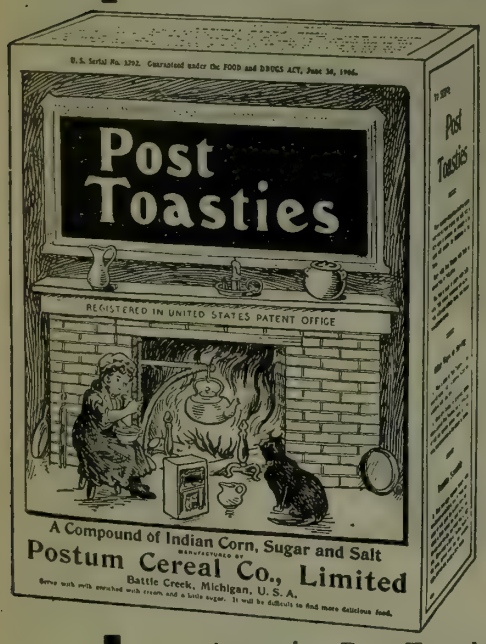
Reports from the Ridgetown and Morpeth district are similar to those from Blenheim. Matthew Wade, who is in charge of the government experimental plot at Morpeth, accompanied Prof. Howitt of the O.A.C. recently on a trip through the bean fields. Mr. Wade says there is a deceiving growth of vines, and that the podding is not up to last year, although the last two weeks have greatly improved conditions. Mr. Wade thinks the crop for 1910 will hardly equal that of last year, though in his opinion it will not be far behind.

B. C. SUGAR QUESTION AGAIN.

The Problem of Protecting the Retail Trade Against Price Cutting Will be Discussed.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 8.—At the regular general meeting of the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association on the 13th instant, the question of sugar will again be discussed. The ultimatum has been put up to the B.C. Sugar Refinery Co. that if it will not protect its own product from being sold at cut prices by departmental stores and other dealers, the association will act for its members and bring in sugar from China. The association has been pressing the company and time was asked, so it was decided to give until the 13th. There is no indecision as to what will be done, as matters now stand.

Milton McEwan, Collingwood, Ont., has opened a grocery store in the premises formerly occupied by Cummings & Knott, in the Finley Block.



The brick store and dwelling on the corner of Charlotte and Duke Streets, St. John, N.B., occupied by Alderman John W. Vanwart, under the name of Vanwart Bros., was sold last week to F. E. Williams, of F. E. Williams & Co., wholesale and retail grocers and pork packers. Alderman Vanwart has arranged to move next spring on the expiry of his present lease, to a store on the opposite corner, which he owns. He is now having plans prepared for a complete remodelling of the premises and will have a thoroughly up-to-date establishment.

Flour Declines 30 Cents a Bbl. at One Step

Follows Weakness in Wheat Market, Just as One of The Grocer's Informants Said it Would a Week Ago — Rolled Oats Market is Strong, and in the West is Quoted at an Advance, With Prospects for General Higher Prices.

In last week's issue of The Grocer two opinions were given on the probable movement of the flour market, and while it was impossible to predict what would take place it was pointed out that the market was bearish and that the general feeling pointed more to a decline rather than to higher prices in the flour market. One miller made the statement that flour would have to drop fifty cents before it reached a satisfactory level for those concerned.

Early this week a decline of thirty cents a barrel was announced by a number of leading mills and all have followed suit. It was to have been expected that after prices had been boosted by stories of failure that were not fully borne out, with improved conditions the prices which had soared would fall back to earth again. That is just what has occurred, but there were no striking indications that the decline was so near at hand.

There has been no particular feature to the wheat market during the week. In spite of reports that are not exactly encouraging, Russia is still exporting grain, but the majority of the samples show a quality that is not up to the standard. It seems that not only is the Russian crop below that of last year, but the quality is apparently of such a character that Russia will not be the governing factor in the position as she was last year. From present conditions in France there should be a fair demand from that country for some time. The countries with bumper crops this year are not those that were so blessed last year.

On the whole, while the world's wheat crop has fallen behind that of last year it is not smaller than the average for the past five years. The C.P.R. report recently stated that 75 p.c. of the crop on branch lines north of the main line has been cut and that in the main harvest weather is fairly favorable. In the northern parts of all three western provinces the threshed crops show a larger yield than estimated and the grade is better than was expected.

Regarding the condition in France it has been estimated that it will require one hundred million bushels of wheat to supply the requirements during the present year. Large quantities of 1909 wheat are now being delivered by the farmers. Export demand has improved to some extent. New crop wheat is already being rushed east, and a recent report from Montreal states that almost all the ocean liners are carrying grain every day from that port and fresh cargoes of last year's crop are arriving from the Upper Lakes and more is on its way down in the many lake ships. Elevators are now practically empty and in this way it seems certain that the next few weeks will see plenty of terminal facilities available for the first cargoes of the new Canadian grain.

TORONTO.

Flour.—Local millers reduced their flour prices this week in keeping with the general movement and in some quarters the decline was not at all unexpected. The lack of supplies of Ontario grain at country points makes trade rather dull locally. The new prices are as follows:

Manitoba Wheat.
1st Patent, in car lots		5 90
2nd Patent, in car lots		5 40
Strong bakers, in car lots		5 20
Feed flour, in car lots	3 10	3 30
Winter Wheat.
Straight roller	4 25	5 25
Patents	4 80	5 35
Blended	5 00	5 15

Cereals.—The rolled oats market is strong and under the influence of higher prices in other quarters an increase here is not altogether unexpected. Added to the fact that the western oat crop suffered severely is the knowledge that the rolled oats season is again coming to its own and prices are not likely to hold much longer at their present figure.

Rolled oats, small lots, 90 lb. sacks	2 45
" " 25 bags to car lots	2 35
Rolled wheat, small lots, 100 lb. brls	3 10
" " 25 brls. to car lots	3 00
Standard and granulated oatmeal, 98 lb. sacks	2 70

WINNIPEG.

Rolled Oats.—The market is up twenty cents and may go higher according to present indications. The oat crop in the west is a failure in many places and all the crop there is will be held for stock food. Jobbers' affirm that there may be no limit to the advance, since goods can be marketed at almost any figure.

Rolled oats, 80 lb. sacks, per 80 lbs	2 20
" 40 " " 40	1 13
" 20 " " 20	0 60
" 80 " (8, 10s)	2 60

MONTREAL.

Flour.—Flours are down 30c this week, and are apparently very strong at the decline. Sales are improving almost daily, and millers report considerable proportion of export orders. The cause of the decline is not entirely understood, but it is ascribed here to competition among the trade.

Winter wheat patents, bbl	5 45
Straight rollers, bb	5 50
Extra, bbl	5 25
Manitoba spring wheat patents, bbl	6 00

Rolled Oats.—The rolled oats market shows very little change from last reports. There is a weaker feeling in the market here. Sales have been rather slack, except for export, where trade has been fair.

Leon Gaboury, grocer, Quebec, Que., was a visitor at the Canadian National Exhibition this week. The business of which Mr. Gaboury is the head was founded in Quebec city in 1820, and is therefore one of the oldest in Canada. It has been conducted for 90 years by 3 generations—grandfather, father and son.

There's a difference in the taste of a "Perfection" Cracker which distinguishes it from every other Soda Biscuit.

The difference begins by the better mixing of the choicest materials, and by the better baking of the biscuit in modern sanitary ovens.

The difference is protected and preserved for your customer by the package of the biscuit, which effectively retains the freshness and excludes all dust and dirt.

Why aren't YOU getting your Share ?

IF you are competing with two others, your share is not necessarily a third.
It may be all, Brother Grocer—or nothing.
"Your Share?"

It's exactly what you are getting, to be sure.

Work hard, earnestly, persistently, and your share will come to you fourfold—it is simply bound to.

One day John Wanamaker—probably the greatest living retail merchant—said to Sheldon, the formulator of the Science of Successful Salesmanship:

"If I can serve the public better than any other mer"chant in this community, the people will make a beaten
"path to my door."

If, Br'er Grocer, we continually harp on the selling advantages of FIVE ROSES flour, it's simply because we want to increase YOUR profitable sales.

We want you to expand Your Share of the local profits. Only in this way can we hope to multiply our own.

No, it is not an entirely selfish motive—we are both hugely interested in widening FIVE ROSES distribution.

Since, you see, your trade will be better served in a flour way; your own sales will be larger, more frequent, more constant.

You don't want the "one-time" sale which never repeats.

Besides, your time and reputation are too valuable to be wasted on vain attempts to smooth away the complaints of flimsy quality.

Don't be satisfied with the sales the other fellow can spare you, the sales he doesn't want.

That isn't your share, as we see it. You are ambitious, you want more, still more.

Why don't you go after it with better service, better flour?

Get the business-building sales—don't let competition secure a foothold—sell FIVE ROSES, Br'er Grocer. 'Twill inspire you with irresistible enthusiasm, 'twill make you compel bigger business.

In the store 'twill do this for you as it is doing it every day for others—your competitor, maybe.

In the kitchen, at the sewing circle, 'twill do missionary work for YOU.

FIVE ROSES will make you win.

Peaches are Now the Feature of the Fruit Market

Shipments are Coming in Freely and Present Price is Satisfactory—One Dealer Asserts That he Does not Expect Prices to go Lower Than They are Now — Cantaloupes are Plentiful, but the Demand has not Kept Pace With Production — Apples are but a Small Crop and Prices are Likely to Reach High Figures This Winter—Tomatoes Moving Freely.

Peaches are now the chief factor in the fruit market. The varieties arriving now are rather plentiful and the result is that shipments are heavy. A dealer who recently visited the fruit district states that the later varieties of peaches are likely to be a smaller crop, and he is advising his customers not to depend too much upon a later crop. Apples are just about what was said of them and the crop in many districts is a big disappointment. Prices are likely to reach a high figure this winter.

Cantaloupes are plentiful, but some one is not making much of an attempt to educate the people into eating them. They are now at a low price and any one could purchase them. Pears are coming along satisfactorily and are in good demand. Tomatoes have reached a low quotation and the volume of trade is heavy.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Fruit men report a disappointing market this week compared to what they expected. However it may be that the buyers are only holding off to see just what quantities will be needed for the out-of-town customers expected. At any rate, prices are still fairly firm, and the minute the market shapes an advance in many lines is looked for. It may be only temporary, however, and likely will be.

TORONTO.

Fruit.—A study of the local market leads one to believe that the chief business is being done these days with peaches, pears, cantaloupes and plums and if appearances count for much a good business is doing. The dealers themselves state that business is favorable and although the crop is not quite as large as last year, according to various reports, still the total volume of business it is believed will be well up to the average. A wholesaler who had spent several days in the Niagara peninsula district asserted his belief that when the present crop of early Crawfords had run out the succeeding varieties would not be as plentiful as those which are now offering. Plums, he said, are going to be below the average. At present there is a good demand for plums. He could not see any lower prices in peaches or plums. Grapes are promising a good crop and while there are a few of the early varieties even now on the market, they should begin to come more freely by the middle of next week. Cantaloupes are plentiful, but the demand seems to be in a groove. While the production is heavy and the price is within everybody's reach there is not an increasing demand to keep the market clean.

Lemons are moving none too briskly, but the dealers have not yet given up hope that the season is going to come back. Reports regarding the new crop in Sicily indicate fairly healthy conditions. Prices for futures are quoted one shilling above the opening price a year ago, no doubt for the reason that Verdelli stocks have held a high position during the past summer.

Vegetables.—Tomatoes are in heavy demand for pickling purposes and there is for similar reasons a good demand for cauliflower, cucumbers, celery, etc., which is likely to last for some time. Tomatoes are about as low in price as they are likely to go and the present supply seems to be coming in freely. A good crop of potatoes is generally reported. There are no particular features to the vegetable market at present outside of tomatoes and a good steady business for the smaller vegetables.

Preparations Under Way for the Oyster Season

Prices are Not Yet General and the Demand Has Not Yet Begun to be Felt, But the Trade is Getting Ready for a Better Business Than Ever Before—In the Meantime the Present Demand is not Being Overlooked—Scarcity of Fresh Fish Improves the Trade in Frozen Varieties.

There has not been much improvement in the supply of fresh fish for general markets, but in some localities there has been a slight change for the better. Dealers state that the season is at hand when a much healthier tone should be felt in the market. Supplies should come in more freely and a heavier demand is expected. On account of the scarcity of fresh fish there has been better business for some lines of frozen fish.

Oysters are beginning to be demanded, but the season is yet quite young. Dealers are more engaged in preparing for the beginning of the real activities, and there is every indication that the oyster business will be heavier than ever throughout the Dominion this year. New principles are actuating the trade and new methods providing for quality stocks is a business sentiment that is showing itself in every department of trade. More money will be spent on marketing oysters, on displaying them and on appealing to the consumer thus increasing the demand. It can scarcely be said that this new era is beginning now. The present feeling was manifested a year or two ago, and has been gradually growing and the change is noticeable in the present character of the oyster business.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—The marekt has changed but little of late. Mackerel are done and the heaviest demand is still where it was a few weeks ago. An improvement is noted among the trade who are looking forward to better supplies and a better market in the near future. The demand for oysters while there has been some already is still inconsequental. The season has opened, but it is still too warm. However, the preparations go merrily on, and it will not be long until everyone is equipped and ready for the season's business.

Winnipeg, Sept 8.—Pickerel and Jack fish are coming from Lake Winnipeg in good quantities, but all other fresh lines are brought from Prince Albert and Edmonton. The frozen fish trade has greatly improved since the fresh fish have become scarce. Frozen whitefish are popular. Prices are expected to gradually advance until next season's fishing commences on Manitoba waters. Reports are that fish of many descriptions are abundant in local waters, and some of the present restrictions may be removed next year.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, Sept. 8.—Last week and this week a scarcity of halibut is reported. The peculiarity is that it comes directly after a surplus in the market. Two or three weeks ago, the boats of one company were bringing in more than could be handled with comfort. Last week, hardly any came to hand, and this week the Kingfisher got in with 10,000 pounds, a mere tubful in comparison to the usual load. The wholesale quotation is three and a half cents, while the retail is ten cents, a profit of six and a half cents per pound. The wholesale figure has gone as low as two and a half cents, but no reduction was made in the price to the consumer.

This same company sent out fifteen cars of halibut in one train last week for the New England market.

The salmon close season is now on on the lower coast. but fresh salmon is in from the north. It jobs at eights cents per pound. Silversides or cohoes are mostly in evidence just now.

Smoked goods will be coming in about two weeks, and while there will be full lines, the stock will be principally salmon and halibut. The market for these is principally west of Winnipeg, though occasionally an odd carload or two are sent to Toronto and Montreal. In the west there is a steady and strong demand for smoked fish, and the trade is large in kippered herring and bloaters.

Some frozen fish were shipped to Australia on the last boat. It is expected that market will develop, and that a good trade will be done there. Different products may be interchanged, which will facilitate the growth of commerce.

Letting the Day Take Care of Itself, or System?

Writer Points Out That Small Retailers, Like Department Stores, Should Plan Ahead—System Tends to Keep Down Expenses and Makes Things Run Smoothly — Arresting the Old Methods.

By A. H. Harvey.

Should a grocer endeavor to plan his work day after day with the idea of reducing it to a system? This question is brought up because the general custom is to let the day take care of itself. The grocer knows he will be in the store to "see after anything that may crop" up, using his own words, and there is no necessity of planning in that case.

He will admit that the big stores plan their daily work almost a week ahead. But they are big stores. With them system is an absolute necessity. The grocer's system consists in getting his customers' orders every morning, filling them and delivering them in good time. What more is required of him?

Good for all Stores.

It all depends with the grocer himself. If he is satisfied under his present conditions and with the amount of business he is doing then nothing more need count. But if he wants to do more business, to reduce his store management to a smoothly running business granting that everything else is sound, one of the first resolutions he should make is to formulate some practical system. If system is good for the big stores why should it not benefit him, small though his business is beside the other. Would it not be improving methods and would it not put more pleasure in the work if the grocer had his little map of the next day all before him. Of course, the best of systems sometimes meet with obstacles that block them at times, but this is the exception not the rule. Like everything else that is new, it will probably be difficult to arrange at first, but once under way it will improve of itself.

Duties of the Morning.

The morning in a grocery store is in most places the busy period of the day. In the average store, the dust that settled during the night is removed from counters, show cases, etc., after the floor has been swept. The morning mail must be looked over, and everything must be in readiness for the first orders. Then it is rapid moving until the noon hour.

System can be worked into the preparing and delivering of orders, etc., and in fact throughout the whole day a regular routine may be followed. Just what should be done depends upon the individual store. What would apply to one store would not be applicable to another. The battle is won if the store needs a system and the proprietor realizes it; when he determines to call a halt to the old methods and if he has any ambition to plan his daily work before that day dawns.

The idea is practical. Not only departmental stores follow it, but the ambitious grocery stores as well—those that are more than holding their own and the average retailer should be able to take it unto himself.

DOMINION MILLERS' OFFICERS.

Toronto, Sept. 7.—The Dominion Millers' Association held its annual meeting last week in the Board of Trade rooms. A report was adopted asking the Dominion Government to take over and operate the terminal elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur.

The officers elected are:—President, D B. Wood, Hamilton; 1st Vice-President, S. R. Stewart, New Hamburg; 2nd Vice-President, A. Noble, Norval; Secretary-Treasurer, C. B. Watts, Toronto. Executive Committee—Messrs. J. D. Flavelle, Lindsay; George E. Goldie, Toronto; J. I. A. Hunt, London; A. C. McLeod, Stratford; H. L. Rice, St. Mary's, and Hedley Shaw, of Toronto.

TRADE NOTES.

Wind Up Wednesday Half Holiday with Big Picnic

London Retailers Have the Best Picnic of the Season in Their District—About 4,000 People in Attendance — Some Unique Contests in the Ring—The Jefferies-Johnson Fight a Popular Event—Grocers Defeat Bakers in Ball Game.

London, Ont., Sept. 8.—The closing Wednesday half-holiday of the season in London was marked by a grand picnic, held at Springbank, under the auspices of the Retail Grocers' Association on Wednesday, August 31.

The London retailers have had for a long time a reputation for "doing" things, and this outing was no exception. It was estimated that 4,000 people assembled at the picnic park, and they were entirely satisfied with the manner and method with which the affair was conducted.

There was fun from start to finish. The rube band deserves special mention here for the inspiring music which they permitted to float through the exhilirating atmosphere. The 26th Regimental band lent some of its members for the occasion.

The committees soon got the crowd at work. Ed. Ryan, Harry Ranahan, Tom Shaw, Tom Ranahan, J. A. MacFarlane, E. Bodkin, K. L. Elliott, G. B. Drake, W. F. Paul, W. T. Mullins, C. W. Summers, Tom Janes, R. A. Ross, M. A. Young, Cyril Hayes, T. Vincent and a score of others helped keep things going.

To begin with, the rube band announced the big event far and wide when they left the corner of Dundas and Richmond Streets at 1.30 in a big car, headed for the park down the river. At the park, officials stepped into the large roped arena in front of the pavilion and announced that the "circus was about to commence."

A Variety of Events.

The running races for boys and girls were the first on the programme. Remaining events were varied by the various specialties, all of a comic nature, and which made a decided hit with the crowd.

Harry Ranahan occupied the centre of the ring, and through a megaphone announced the events in order. William Gorman, with his sunny smile, was alloted, amongst several others, to pick the winners. Tom Shaw and Tom Ranahan were responsible for the bookings. Fred Willis and Fred Turville held the rope for the runners. William Turnbull, Charlie Mountjoy, Bert Masuret, Archibald McPherson, Chancey Smith and Harry Fowler, were judges. Manager Johnny McGraw Paul looked after the ball team. P. C. Handysides and Garnet were there to see that the law was adhered to in every respect. "Dad" Richards was right there at the coaching line, while Clyde Nopper—and his—were seen among the many faces on the hill. Wee Barney McCann was there, too. Tom Gillean's melodious voice was heard announcing the boxing contest through a megaphone. For the reason that the picnic was being held in the county, Squire Chittick thought it advisable to be on hand.

R. A. Ross and G. B. Drake deserve special mention for the manner in which they attended to the refreshment room. What they do not know about service in the store—judged by the way they handed out the eatables and drinkables—is not in the dictionary.

For World's Championship.

The Johnson vs. Jeffries fight was the feature of the specialties, and to have seen the parody at Springbank yesterday was almost as good as having seen the origial at Reno. Jack Anderson, as Johnson, and Charles Myers, as Jeffries, made a suitable pair for the big fight. Anderson's black garb made him a good second for the champion himself, and Myers did even better than Jeffries, as far as points were concerned. Harry Ranahan and Dick Woods were seconds for Johnson, and W. T. Mullins and Ed. Ryan for Jeffries. Immediately after the big cowbell had jingled to mark the conclusion of each round, the seconds would rush to their men, and with towels, sponges and air pumps provide the cooling treatment. Unlike the original fight, Johnson fell to the ground in the fifth round, having been knocked out by a swift upper cut to the left jaw, and was unable to rise before being counted out. Each round brought roars of laughter from the crowd, and when the defeated Johnson rose slowly to his feet and was kissed by his "wife" he hobbled off to the dressing-room, apparently realizing that the world's championship honors were his no longer.

Things looked serious when, just as the fourth round was about to commence, P. C.'s Handysides and Garnet, led on by Sergt. Birrell, jumped into the ring and made an unsuccessful attempt to stop the fight. They were hurriedly ejected from the arena by the strong hands of Barney McCann and Tom Gillean and others. Ten minutes later, when the sounds of laughter had died down, the fight was resumed and completed by the band's rendition of the Dead March in Saul, played out of respect for the defeat of Jack Johnson.

They Were Elusive Buns.

The bun-eating contest provoked any amount of laughter. Several dozen small boys lined up, each one opposite a big sugar-coated bun dangling from a string. When the word was given the boys, with hands behind them, began a slaughter on the buns, but for once they were forced to eat slowly. The buns refused to remain in one place, and persisted in wandering all over the faces of the eaters, leaving behind the sugar stain.

The watermelon contest was almost as interesting, but the large slices of fruit were found to be easier eating than the buns, and were much more quickly disposed of.

Hitched Dobbin to the Cart.

To the tune of the "Old Grey Bonnet," Teddy Carter, as the farmer, strolled out onto the grounds with a forkful of hay, and after spreading it in farm fashion, he returned to the stables, hitched up the old grey horse to a dilapidated half-phateon buggy and drove down to Dover, followed by the rube band and the rubes.

The comic make-ups, who manufactured fun for all, were W. Tierney, clown; Jim McCormick, Highlander; Chas. Boyce, soldier; Roy Moore, nurse girl; Russell Grover, comic boy; Wesley Wood, overgrown girl; Jos. Manning, overgrown boy; Robert Temple, coon girl; R. H. Readhead, policeman, and Del. Wood, Fiji Island native.

Stale Ball Players.

The Bakers' cake was dough when the Grocers finished with them in the baseball game. The trouble was, they "kneeded" more help. They were lightweight ball tossers all right when up against the tea and sugar men and lost the game 5 to 1. It was seven innings long and actually a bun-feed for the Grocers.

The teams were:—

Bakers—Berry, lf.; Doudell, ss.; Craig, p.; Langford, rf.; Emery, 2b.; Myers, c.; Bradley, 3b.; McGillvary, 1b.; Cook, cf.

Grocers — Vincent, cf.; Pierie, c.; Janes, 3b.; Doherty, ss.; Shaw, 2b.; Brady, 1b.; Eccleston, lf.; Perkins, p.; Ashplant, rf.

Of the races and other contests, the following are worthy of mention:

Members of R. G. A. race—1, A. Franklin; 2, Geo. Eccleston; 3, Cyril Hayes.

Grocery Clerks—1, V. Odruns; 2, R. W. Crotes; 3, J. McPhail.

Grocery Drivers—1, W. Davis; 2, R. Simmons; 3, W. Wanowen.

Travelers' race—1, H. Wilkins; 2, Sam Logan; 3, Ard. Brown.

Boxing in Barrels—1, Harry Ranahan; 2, R. Simmons; 3, L. Haines.

Committee race—1, M. A. Young; 2, C. Hayes; 3, Harry Ranahan; 4, T. Ranahan.

Presidents' race—1, Harry Ranahan; 2, W. Mullin; 3, J. Diprose; 4, J. Haskett.

The officers of the Retail Grocers' Association are: C. W. Summers, president; J. Haskett, 1st vice-president; T. Janes, 2nd vice-president; Thos. Shaw, treasurer; Cyril Hayes, secretary.

W. B. Hood, late of Dundee, Scotland, has become partner in business with C. R. Hickman, grocer, Lonsdale Ave, North Vancouver, B.C.

Sarnia Grocers' Picnic Broke the Record of 1909

This Was the Sole "Accident" of the Day — Exceeded Last Year's Event in Numbers by About 1,500 People — Grocers Down Knights of the Grip in Ball Game—Banquet to the Defeated Concludes the Outing.

Sarnia, Ont., Sept. 6.—The Sarnia Retail Grocers' Association picnic like some other things improves with age. This year the outing was another grand success and incidentally a little better than the best. The electric railway returns showed that the increase over 1909 was more than 1,500 souls, the total estimate of those on the Lake Huron Park grounds being 6,000.

Not only did the picnic improve in numbers but also in good fellowship among the grocers—something always desirable to obtain. It tended to bring each member into personal contact with the others and to cause them to leave behind them any petty, personal prejudices that any may have entertained before the outing.

As stated above there was a big crowd in attendance; they began their pilgrimage to the park in early morning and before 10 o'clock there was food enough to feed a battalion of a thousand men.

Rural Section Represented.

Not only did the townspeople turn out but farmers and their families drove in to see the fun and to breathe in the seabreezes for a day. This the grocers were glad to see because they are ever anxious to work in harmony with the brawny tillers of the soil.

The fireworks began early. Shortly after nine o'clock a procession was formed on the market square. The parade of elaborately decorated wagons, bicycles and other vehicles was headed by an auto containing Alby Robinson, of Woodstock, master of ceremonies, and the officers of the local association, Peter Clark, Stanley Williams, Jas. Galbraith and S. E. Cornell.

Following came the Sarnia band, and then the decorated wagons, etc., the rear being brought up by the fire team. The procession was about one quarter of a mile long.

The awards in connection with the parade went to the following:

Best decorated wagon—J. J. Langan.

Best decorated gardener's wagon—S. L. Clark.

Best decorated bicycle—Harold Telfer.

Automobile—J. Van Alstyne.

One of the big features of the sports was the baseball game between the grocers and travelers with the former emerging victorious—10 to 7. The grocers put in a winning battery but nevertheless it took them all their time to hold their own. The travelers' battery was Harry Robinson (Alby's son), and C. E. Cowley.

All Kinds of Races.

The running races, too, afforded considerable amusement. They were of the circus variety and held everybody in attention. Among them were the following:

Grocery Boys—1, Clifford Barnes; 2, N. Wiles; 3, E. Gibson; 4, H. Wakefield.

Grocery Clerks—1, Fred Walker; 2, C. Barnes; 3, A. Cheney; 4, O. Jacklyn.

Grocery Drivers—1, Martin Rose; 2, O. Horning; 3, N. Lindsay; 4, T. Hippel.

Grocery Drivers—1, A. Cheney; 2, W. McNeil; 3, A. Langan; 4, H. Zinc.

Travelers' Three-legged race—Crawford and Cowley; Fraser and Backus; McNutt and Robinson.

Then there were tea and soap races of various kinds all of which assisted in the fun and which also tended to make a bigger demand for soap in Sarnia.

The only "accident" that was experienced during the day was a broken record. All past events were superseded.

Banquet to the Travelers.

The grocers wound up their picnic with a banquet to the grocer travelers at the Lake Huron hotel, at which S. E. Cornell, president of the association, presided. A jolly time was spent. The hotel management had made every provision for their entertainment, and this finishing touch was appropriate. Such renowned entertainers as Billy Dore, of Hamilton, and Billy Sherwood were there and enough is said. John Dillon, of London, was among the speakers and "did himself proud" in a neat speech. The whole affair was a good success but better is expected next year.

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

Supplied to the Trade by Sellers.

Seldom, if ever, has a table delicacy met with such success as H. P. sauce; seldom perhaps has any sauce so well deserved it. H.P. is undoubtedly something better than one usually finds. H. P. has a distinctive flavor obtained from the rich eastern fruits and spices to which with pure malt vinegar it owes its origin. It is a thick, fruity, delicious sauce, a sauce that not only gratifies the appetite, but awakens it; a sauce that makes unpalatable dishes palatable and unattractive viands attractive. Those who visited the Canadian National Exhibition no doubt saw the attractive display of this sauce, where sample bottles were given away. The dealer should realise that this will considerably augment the demand for H. P. sauce.

"The Secret of Delicious Desserts Easily Made" is the title of a particularly attractive booklet issued by The Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., Toronto. This booklet gives a large number of recipes for the industrious housewife and illustrates the labels on the packages and bottle in their original colors. All the recipes given have been tested in a high class hotel, and the results were entirely satisfactory. The booklet is certainly one worth having and will be sent to any address on application to The Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., College St., Toronto.

Talking to the Point

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS get right down to the point at issue. If you want something, say so in a few well-chosen words. Readers like that sort of straight-from-the-shoulder-talk, and that is the reason why condensed ads are so productive of the best kind of results.

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS are always noticed. They are read by wide-awake, intelligent grocers, who are on the look out for favorable opportunities to fill their requirements.

Keep in mind the dominant fact that mankind from its first appearance on the earth has been schooled by nature to look for signs; for invitations to taste; for suggestions as to what to wear. Tell your story briefly, forcibly, truthfully, and address it through the proper media and you can successfully apply advertising as a means to increased distribution.

ST. CATHARINES, - ONTARIO

The Advertising Manager of what is Probably the Largest Firm in Canada Manufacturing a Grocery Line Writes as Follows: : : : : :

"At a time when no salesman could hope to see him the dealer eagerly reads trade news, profit news, news of price changes. And advertising is news. So he reads the advertising too. If he doesn't, then the advertiser is at fault. The Grocer introduces you to its readers—it's now up to you to plead your own case.

"Do the merchants read the ads? Well our salesmen report many references to our copy in the course of interviews. Prospects called on for the first time seem familiar with our selling points. Some have adopted suggestions made. This saves selling time, does part of the salesman's work, interests the buyer before he has been called on, makes him impervious to Cheap-Johns because he is a 'knowing' retailer.

"We have received inquiries from British Columbia, from the West Indies even, Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, Ontario, Quebec, and Canadian parts remote. This is the reach of The Grocer. And it goes where it wouldn't pay a salesman to go unless he were sure of an order.

"Once we had a little booklet for retail distribution. Casually and meekly we mentioned it in The Grocer without the foreknowledge of our own agents throughout the Dominion. Immediately our agencies asked for supplies to meet the demand of the readers of The Grocer. And letters came, and postals came for a month after that issue from people we had never heard of before. Sure, The Grocer knew a lot of people we didn't know and a lot of people knew The Grocer who didn't know us, or, somehow, didn't know us exactly as we wanted them to know us.

"Eight thousand interviews 52 times a year for $800. Yes, I consider it an investment of the gilt-edged type.

"But you must stay with it. It is like every other advertising—no place for a quitter. It's a year or nothing. It is even more important than consumer advertising—it secures distribution, without which a moderate general appropriation brings in nothing but bills. And, you know, scratch a retailer and you find a hundred families."

There's nothing similar to the meat extracts with which you are familiar, about

BRAND'S ESSENCE OF BEEF

We issue a hearty invitation to every Canadian grocer visiting the Exhibition to call at our stand in the Manufacturers' Building and get particulars of our Special Introductory offer. Brand's Essence is specially recommended by leading physicians the world over for invalids, and although immense quantities are sold by druggists, a much larger amount is handled through grocery stores. There is a very good margin of profit for the dealer, and every assistance will be given and no expense spared by the manufacturer to help you to dispose of Brand's Specialties.

READ WHAT ONE DELIGHTED DEALER SAYS:

Peterboro, 9th July, 1910.

Thos. O. Baxter

Dear Sir,—Would you please send us by Express, one dozen Brand's Essence of Beef in tin, same as we had before. There is a growing demand for it. Two new customers are waiting for this lot to arrive. The case of one man with the worst type of Anaemia has been a great advertiser. It has been a great thing for him, and all his friends are talking about it, so it has a good start now. You will find enclosed Express Order in payment of last lot. Your kind attention will oblige.

Yours truly,
A LEADING GROCER. (Name on request)

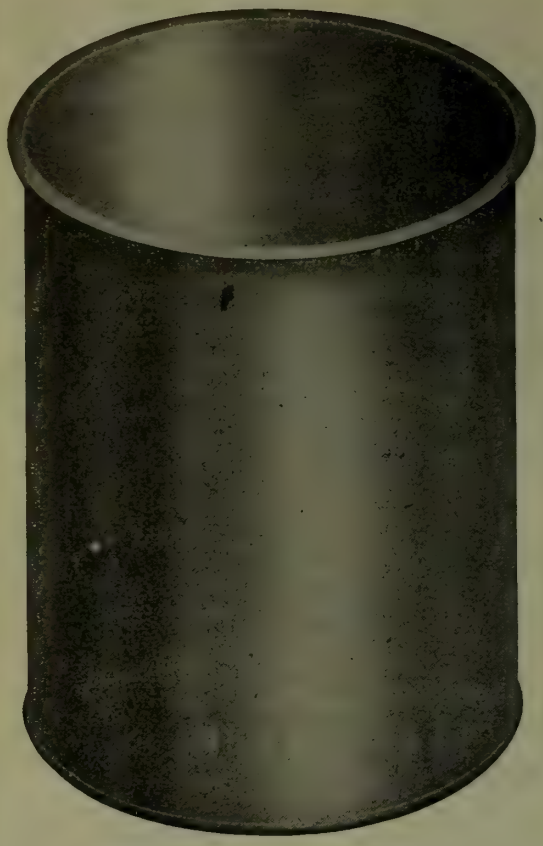
Sweet Wrinkle Peas



THE Sulphate of Copper used in producing that vivid green color you have observed in some lines of Imported French Peas is distinctly injurious to health and kills the flavor of the peas. That's why we never use it.

You will find our Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted Peas more tender and better in flavor than the best imported French Peas you ever tasted.

This is one of our finer grades upon which you can make a much better profit than on our lower-priced lines.

A little judicious promotion of our better quality peas among your good customers will increase your profits considerably and add greatly to your customers' satisfaction. Try it.

FACTS ABOUT ADVERTISING

By The Advertising Manager

III.

The advertising value of any paper depends entirely upon the standing it has with its readers.

• • •

You wouldn't hesitate to recommend your favorite magazine to a manufacturer who contemplated using space in it.

A thousand chances to one it is a magazine, not of the lighter class, but one that appeals to your thinking nature—your intelligence.

Advertising in no other kind of medium brings adequate returns, for advertising is a serious proposition, and it must have the proper setting to get that attention which gives it a selling influence.

Advertising has its highest value in a publication whose advertising deals with the same topics as the reading matter—where the advertising really supplements the reading matter, just as it does in The Canadian Grocer.

Dealers in every city, town and village in Canada read The Canadian Grocer for news and comment regarding the goods they handle, and for information about systems of buying, selling, accounting, etc. Side by side with these articles they find the selling talks of the firms who make or distribute the goods and appliances about which they have been reading.

What immense possibilities this advertising has for attracting favorable attention, when the interest of the dealer has already been aroused in precisely the topics with which it deals!

More than that—the dealer deliberately sits down to read about these very matters, prepared and willing to have his interest in them focused on the arguments of the advertisers.

• • •

The dealer has the same incentive to read advertisements as the sellers have for inserting them—the profit incentive.

The dealer reads advertisements as attentively as the editorial matter, because they treat with articles, upon the handling and use of which his bread and butter depends.

The Canadian Grocer stands high in its trade. As a matter of fact, it is generally regarded as the best grocery paper published anywhere. We do not say this boastfully; we are merely repeating the judgment of the best firms in America and Europe.

• • •

The advertising value of The Grocer is high, because this paper has the confidence and close interest of its thousands of readers, and because these readers are all merchants whose buying power is worth cultivating.

A Great Selling Team

¶ Buyers must be moved through several steps to be brought to the buying point.

¶ They must have their attention attracted to the article. They must have their interest in it awakened. They must be informed as to its nature, utility and merits. They must be convinced of its value. They must be moved to action—to closing.

¶ Good salesmen and good trade-paper advertising make a great team to carry the buyer through these several stages to the buying point. Alone, the salesman is at a disadvantage.

Incidents Which Happened in Canadian Stores

Experience of a Grocer Who Weighed His Biscuits and Found Short Measure —A Lemon Sale Fraught with Many Difficulties—Retail Dealer Shows Himself a Competent Salesman—Another Didn't Know the Goods He Carried in His Store and Became Wrathy When Told.

"Say," said a retail dealer to a representative of The Canadian Grocer the other day, "do you remember that article in your paper about short-weight in biscuits written by a merchant in Dauphin, Manitoba?"

The item was remembered.

"Well just as I was reading it a biscuit traveler came into the store and I re-read it out to him.

"He assured me that every box of biscuits sent out by his firm bore the correct net weight.

"I did not doubt him but suggested that we weigh out a couple of filled boxes which had just come in a short time before.

"He readily agreed, and we did so and what do you think? Well in one box of fancy biscuits the net weight, was 5 ozs. short and in the other 4 ozs.

"That traveler was certainly much surprised but you can readily see how important it is that we should weigh everything like that which comes into the store. Of course the firm was very good about it and wrote me to say that they were deducting the price of the short weight.

"A grocer weighing biscuits like that might say: "Oh, what does it matter about 5 oz., that's nothing"; but I bought 40 boxes of biscuits and if each were 4 or 5 ozs. short I would lose some money."

Loss of $1.70 on 40 Boxes.

As a matter of fact the dealer who is short 5 ozs. in a box of biscuits bought at 13½ cents—as were the above—loses 4¼ cents on the box. On 40 boxes he would lose $1.70—a fairly large leak.

"After this," continued the dealer. "I'm going to take the trouble to weigh the goods which come into my store; I'm glad I saw that item in The Grocer because I believe it will be the means of saving me a lot of money."

A Peculiar Lemon Sale.

In another store The Grocer representative observed a good method for losing trade.

The dealer was behind the counter when a woman and her husband called to purchase their Sunday groceries. The following conversation ensued:

"Have you any lemons?"

"Yes," replied the dealer.

"What are they worth?"

After some hesitation; "3 for 5—20 cents a dozen."

Lemons are high and this surprised The Grocer representative.

"I'll take half a dozen," replied the woman, "that'll be enough?" she asked, looking at her husband. She evidently had 10 cents to spend on lemons.

The dealer went to the window where the lemons were located, with a paper bag but before filling in any walked back to the rear of the store and out into a sitting room where were seated two women.

On his return he said: "Lemons are 2 for 5; I made a mistake before."

This time the customer hesitated. "I'll take 10 cents worth then," she said.

The grocer again went to the window and brought back 3 lemons in his hand and dropped them into a paper bag on the counter.

The woman noticed the operation and remarked: "I thought you said lemons were 30 cents a dozen?"

"Ye-es, that's right."

"Well you have only put 3 in the bag and there should be four."

"Thirty cents a dozen is 3 for ten," he said, dubiously.

"No it isn't" piped in the husband, "it's 4 for ten."

"Oh yes, that is right too," and the merchant was forced to add another lemon to the bag.

As a matter of fact lemons were 40 cents a dozen and 3 for ten was the correct retail price.

The Dealer, A Salesman.

Here is an incident to show that the retail dealer is a salesman and in command of his own business.

A traveler for a certain manufactured article was in his store trying to sell him some goods. While he was standing beside the counter a customer came in and asked for the very article the traveler was selling.

"No I wouldn't advise you to take that" remarked the dealer. "Here is an article I can recommend to you in every way."

"I'll take it then," said the customer, with no hesitation.

When she had left the store, the surprised salesman, who had heard the sale, remarked: "So you are knocking me, I see."

"No, I'm not knocking you," said the dealer, "but I'm knocking your goods because I think I substituted a better article."

Some days later one of this dealer's clerks came to him and said: "I've changed four sales already to-day to that article you told us to push;" and the dealer himself claims that his sales on this article have increased 50 per cent. since he decided to 'get behind it.'

This serves to illustrate that the retail dealer is a salesman and not merely an automaton behind a counter handing out goods mechanically like a penny-in-the-slot machine.

Didn't Know He Had the Goods.

Perhaps a look into still another Canadian grocery store will prove interesting, as it again illustrates the necessity of retailers knowing their goods in stock.

A traveler for a breakfast food called on a retailer not long ago for a repeat order. The conversation ran like this:

"How is your stock of ——?" asked the salesman.

"My stock of what?" exclaimed the surprised somewhat wrathy grocer.

"Of ——?" repeated the traveler.

"Humph, I never had that stuff in my store and I wouldn't either." was the uncourteous reply.

"That's peculiar; every grocer carries our goods, you know."

"No they don't, I don't," shot back the man behind the counter.

Salesman Was Overcome.

This was too much for the commercial man who when he first entered the store observed his firm's goods on the top shelf.

"Oh you don't, don't you," he said, "and what are those goods up yonder."

The grocer turned scarlet, he actually did not know he had the goods in stock.

To make matters worse he showed his lack of gentlemanliness on becoming very wrathy and in ordering the salesman, who had shown him the goods out of the store.

Of course, such incidents are becoming infrequent, but this one serves to show the limits to which some will go.

FARRINGTON PHILOSOPHY.

Unless the customer is treated well when making the small purchase, he is not likely to come back for the large one.

Every customer is supposed to be honest until proved to be otherwise, but all the same it is not wise to leave strangers free to fill their pockets if they have the disposition.

Employes should not be allowed to turn down the customer with a complaint to be adjusted. Unless it is something that can be settled agreeably to the visitor, let it come to the proprietor.

To look for trouble is to find it. The man with a chip on his shoulder will always find someone to knock it off.

Because you have never heard of the article for which you have a call, it is not indisputable evidence that it does not exist. Better never deny the existence of anything a customer asks for. Rather say you will get it for him if it is to be had.

Half a Million Dollars Extra Spent in Montreal

This is an Estimate of Additional Amount Circulated for Food Alone During One Week of the Eucharistic Congress — Both Staple and Delicacies Being Sold in Large Quantities—Advantages to Retailers.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—For some weeks past the daily papers have been commenting on the great Eucharistic Congress in Montreal, treating it, of course, almost solely from its religious and spectacular importance. Undoubtedly these are two main features in the present gathering, and they have been well and thoroughly written up.

There is another aspect, however, of which so far little has been said, and that is the commercial importance to Montreal of such a tremendous gathering. When a quarter of a million strangers come to any city, it is a momentous occasion, if only taken from the purely commercial point of view.

To take up the many branches of trade to which such a gathering brings added business would be out of the question in the scope of this article. As the grocery business in all its lines was one of the largest beneficiaries, it will pay to trace the full working out of the present Congress and its effect more in detail, on the volume of the grocery business.

Accommodation Taxed.

Naturally the first thought arising when considering such a multitude is "they must be fed." The hotel men, restaurant and boarding-house keepers, feel the first effects of any such influx. Just to show to what an extent accommodations have been taxed, it was almost impossible to secure desirable lodgings for weeks before the Congress. Trainload after trainload of people were deposited in the city long before any actual start of the festivities, and once they began, it became a daily problem of the transportation companies to handle the immense, and growing, crowds.

Naturally the result of this was to tremendously increase the local food consumption. So great was the rush for food at the various catering establishments that proper service of meals was practically impossible. The people were "fed" and that was all that could be said about it.

The hotel keeper, restaurant man and others akin naturally drew, and drew heavily, on the grocer, both wholesale and retail supplies.

From the larger establishments many orders went to the wholesaler, but every retail grocer in the city who has spoken on the subject at all, states a large, and usually very large, increase in trade.

The Foodstuffs in Demand.

As to what lines were principally affected it would be hard to choose. There are several outstanding, however, for one reason or another. There was almost a bread famine for a day or two. Staples of all kinds seemed to be the most in demand. It looked decidedly as if people did not care for the fancy articles, relishes, etc., as much as they did for something substantial. Meats were in heavy demand. Sugar, tea and coffee might also be included in this list.

To trace still further the results, let us follow the effect on the retailer. His stocks were rapidly dwindling and must be replenished. Back he goes to his wholesaler and puts in new orders. Thus his stock turnover is helped, and he has a chance to clear his store of many odds and ends, finishing the week with much of his stock new, and more money in the bank as a result.

Half a Million Dollars Extra.

An estimate, based on the figures of a man conversant with the situation places the additional food bill of Montreal for the week at over half a million dollars. This he considered conservative and stated that personally he thought it very largely in excess of that sum. Entertainment on a large scale by local men helped to swell the total in a great measure. It was more to this line of customers that the higher priced delicacies were sold, the visitors, when providing for themselves, seemingly restricted their provender to the necessities.

Taken all in all the Congress, though apparently a costly affair, will pay for itself and more, even from a financial standpoint, and that is not taking into account the advertising value of such an important event. Montreal certainly has done itself proud in its reception and entertainment of its visitors.

Simcoe Clerks and Merchants Picnic Together

Simcoe, Ont., Sept. 15.—The first annual picnic of the merchants and clerks of Simcoe held in the town's beautiful "Lynwood" park was a good success. In the early part of the day it looked as if the weather man was going to be contrary but later the weather looked brighter and the programme was carried out with about 2,000 people in attendance.

It is the hope of all that the merchants' and clerks' picnic will be an annual event which would encourage the merchants to get together for a day and forget that they were competitors in business.

Things That Shouldn't Be

It is an indication of poor Merchandising When a Clerk has to ask the Proprietor the price of an article asked for by a Customer.

HINTS ON WINDOW DRESSING.

In this issue retailers will notice several cuts showing the exhibits of manufacturers at the Canadian National Exhibition. These are worth a close study because from practically every one of them the dealer can obtain good suggestions on window dressing and interior displays.

These exhibits were arranged with the greatest care, because the exhibitors realized that nearly a million people would see them. They contain many splendid hints on display; let the retailer, therefore, make use of the suggestions, because they will mean business to him.

Besides the hints that can be picked up from the pictures, there are scores of selling points brought out in the various descriptions of the booths shown.

The dealer who makes a study of these will be able to sell the goods described more readily and more extensively, and therefore it behooves him to read carefully these descriptions.

TIME FOR PICKLING SPICES.

The retailer's attention is again called to the season of pickling spices. This year the demand has been greater than ever and manufacturers are called upon for greatly increased quantities. For instance, one manufacturer states that his sales already are equal to his entire sales last year up to the middle of October.

Is the retailer getting his share of this extra business? If not, it is his own fault.

Probably it is going to the druggist. If so, extra advertising, backed up by salesmanship, is required. The grocer has ten chances to sell spices to one of the druggist, because he gets customers to his store at least ten times to the druggist's once.

It is, therefore, up to the grocery dealer to extend his spice business in a season when little effort is required on his part to sell the goods. He should point out to a customer who is buying her spices from the druggist, that the grocery store is the logical medium for them. There are no odors to spoil their flavor, but it is necessary, nevertheless, that care should be taken not to sell any that have been exposed to the atmosphere for any length of time.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S FISHERIES.

There is much satisfaction to not only Newfoundlanders, but to Canadians and Britons, as well, over the award at The Hague in the dispute concerning Newfoundland's fishing rights.

The decision rendered by The Hague tribunal is greatly to be commended, not because Newfoundland has been sustained on the most essential points, but because of its sane insistence upon that in which sovereignty consists.

The crown in Newfoundland has won on all questions involving sovereignty, and the rights of United States fishermen under the treaty of 1818 have been defined and confirmed.

In some ways the right of Newfoundland to regulate the fisheries was the most important point raised. This right was questioned because it might be exercised to infringe upon treaty rights established in 1818. But it has been amply confirmed to Newfoundland as inherent in her jurisdiction over the waters.

The United States also set up the extraordinary contention that territorial waters must follow the sinuosities of the shore. This has been a vexed question in international law since its science was first studied.

But the United States did not come into the court with clean hands, as it has always refused to admit the contention it wished to apply to Newfoundland in regard to its own harbors and bays. The United States failed to establish its case, so that the general result is that Newfoundland has not only had her jurisdiction confirmed, but has had it considerably extended territorially.

The decision is of stupendous importance to Canada, because it settles the sovereignty of Hudson's Bay, whose fisheries are valuable and which is not affected by any treaty with a foreign power. That sovereignty should be immediately and vigorously asserted.

This should be done before foreign fishermen have become accustomed to neglect its existence.

THE DEALER'S UNSELFISHNESS.

What the retail grocery trade needs probably more than anything else in each town or city and in each district in these centres are a few missionaries to promote a good feeling among the different merchants.

Here is a story to illustrate: Not long ago in a large Canadian city a grocer decided to branch out and erect a second store in another part of the municipality.

Having got settled in his new establishment he set out from the very first to gain the good-will of all his competitors. Some readily reciprocated his friendship, but there was one particular competitor who would not make the slightest advance towards familiarity.

The newcomer brought about the Wednesday half-holiday in the new section by calling on his neighbors, making himself a "good fellow," and by pointing out the reasonableness of having a rest occasionally.

The one grocer held aloof; he remained firm and would not consent to the innovation, although several letters were addressed to him, asking for his co-operation.

It was always his method to charge a competitor the same price for an article as he would the consumer. His rigid determination made his influence felt all over the district. If any grocer ran short of an article he never allowed the customary rebate in the trade and his competitors were disposed to act likewise.

When the new arrival—who had had some good experience in an association and in his old community—came on the scene, he began giving the rebate at every opportunity, just to show his desire to work harmoniously among his competitors.

Once or twice he had occasion to send one of his employes to the store of the man who was not disposed to reciprocate his advances. He was charged the full retail price every time.

Later his competitor sent to him for some articles and each time he gave the rebate. This had the desired effect. The other changed his policy and began working harmoniously with all in the district. He gave the friendly rebates and before long decided to close on Wednesday afternoon during the summer months. He is now quite friendly to his competitors, who were somewhat surprised to see the change—and it was all brought about by the little acts of kindness of the newcomer. Had he been disposed to treat this merchant the way he was treated by him, the congenial relations among all would still be a dream.

This is a lesson from real trade life that might well be followed by others.

IDEAS FOR SELLING VINEGAR.

The pickling season brings new business to the grocer, and the whole trade is aware of the opportunities it affords. Glass jars, corks, rubbers, spices, etc., not to mention the fruits and vegetables that are to be preserved for winter use.

In this connection vinegar may be emphasized as one of the necessary articles for which there is a heavy demand now that the housewife has commenced her annual labor of laying away pickles and preserves of all kinds. There are different grades of vinegar all of which can scarcely be recommended for pickling.

It is essential that vinegar for this purpose must be of the best. In these advanced times it is hardly necessary to mention that the principal reason for using spices and vinegar is that they preserve the different articles practically in their natural form. Therefore, the grocer should for his own welfare handle at least one grade of vinegar which he is not afraid to recommend, even to his most exacting customers.

The writer knows of a merchant in a Canadian town who almost cornered the coal-oil market until electricity diminished the demand. Consumers formed the idea that his coal oil was better than that of other merchants, and while it was uniformly good the difference was not outstanding. There are grocers, too, who have the reputation of selling good vinegar. Most women are afraid of getting watered and otherwise inferior stock when buying vinegar, and it should be the grocer's business to remove this suspicion if he is desirous of building up his trade in this particular commodity. These grocers who have the confidence of their customers have gained it by honest dealings, and women do not neglect telling each other the merits of their respective tradesmen.

The grocer is now receiving his new stock, if he has not already bought it, and it rests with himself as to how he shall act. It is an easy matter to dilute the genuine goods, but retribution is bound to follow. It may not be tomorrow, nor even the next day. But it will come. But after having taken the trouble to get a few brands of vinegar, which you are sure are of the best quality, it is after all not good business to turn the hose into the barrel.

As stated before, there are different grades of vinegar and it behooves the grocer to assist his customers in securing one of the best brands, if that is what they want. An instance is known where the cucumbers, etc., that were pickled were reduced to powder through the action of the so-called vinegar.

It is not an easy matter to make a display of vinegar, but if the grocer has space in his daily paper he could to advantage talk quality vinegar. Window cards and show cards in the store should also be used and the proprietor and clerks should talk vinegar when their good judgment prompts it.

AN ENORMOUS TURNOVER.

One of the marvelous developments in Canadian business life is the growth of the mail order business. In the United States there are departmental stores and mail order houses, separate concerns, but in Canada both are carried on under one canvas, as it were.

The gross sales of the Eaton business, including the Toronto and Winnipeg stores, and the mail order business of both stores, reached the enormous total of $47,000,000 last year and it is said that J. C. Eaton's share of the profits was $1,250,000, and his salary as manager was $50,000.

The only United States firm which is reported to be beating this record is Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, whose sales reached the enormous total of $51,000,000.

There are many men in the trade who can remember Timothy Eaton's early struggles, both in St. Mary's and in Toronto, and the ridicule his ideas created at that time. To these men as to many others the enormous growth of the Eaton business must be little less than a miracle. Buying for cash, selling for cash alone, persistent and extensive advertising, and a real endeavor to please and satisfy all customers seem to be the elements from which the store has built its success.

CHEAP HELP IN STORES.

The importance of good service in a grocery store cannot be over-estimated; and it is not possible to give it with a poor class of help. In an up-to-date establishment, where the buying is well looked after, an efficient staff of salespeople will pay for themselves several times over. You depend upon them to sell goods and please customers. Cheap help is not capable of doing this, and it will steadily lose trade for you.

Put yourself in the place of a lady in a hurry going into a store and being attended by an inefficient salesperson, who wastes her time, and is so lacking in tact, and the ordinary common sense of experienced salesmanship, that she decides not to purchase after all. Over at your competitor's she finds a staff which is required to be efficient and is paid in accordance. There she is served quickly and satisfactorily. The chances are in favor of your competitor getting a large share of her trade in the future.

BUSINESS MEN CO-OPERATE.

The business men of Jacksonville, Ill., are following a custom that should be worth a great deal, not only to each man individually, but to the community in general. They get together at a noonday luncheon about every two weeks, get better acquainted and exchange ideas on the various subjects that come up at such times. They do not, however, rely on some one bringing up a subject that will be interesting to them, but make it a point to have some subject that is of general interest brought up for general discussion.

Now that the season of cooler weather is approaching and the vacation season passing by, it would be practical for merchants in Canadian towns to take up this suggestion and organize a similar lunch-meeting with their fellow merchants.

The executive of the Retail Merchants' Association at Guelph hold a monthly luncheon and find it very profitable both from the standpoint of creating better fellowship and of maintaining interest in their organization.

The Canadian Club movement, which has been so successful in numerous cities and towns throughout the Dominion, is another instance of how the lunch-meeting idea has caught on with business men.

Apply the idea to your town on your local merchants' association and good results are almost certain to follow.

CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

The farmer sends his mail order to the catalogue house utterly overlooking his grocer. The same day this house cuts the price of butter and eggs. The next day the farmer goes to the nearest grocer with eggs and butter, gets trade for some of his produce and hard cash for the rest all the time blaming the grocer for the decrease in price and haggling for the last cent. Surely there is room for some mutual understanding between at least two of these parties. It looks as if the farmer is mostly to blame.

The road to success is not short, and it is not easy, but it certainly is well worth traveling.

Personal magnetism rarely exists in the man with an unpleasant speaking voice. If your voice is not agreeable, train it.

If you have been playing in hard luck and think you are about to the end of your rope, just bear in mind that plenty of other men have been worse off and have yet made good.

How Sugar is Manufactured in the Barbados

Growing of the Cane an Interesting Bit of Farming—Sugar Factories Operated by Windmills With Arms 80 Feet Long—Refuse when the Juice is separated and used for Fuel—Average Value of an Acre to the Grower.

By David Williams.

The little Island of Barbados in the West Indies is, for its size, one of the greatest wealth producing communities in the world. It has been richly endowed by nature with a beautiful climate; although it is warm nearly all the year yet the trade winds cause a constant stirring of the atmosphere and prevents the heat being so oppressive as it might otherwise be. The soil, for the most part a deep heavy black loam, is exceedingly productive.

Nearly all the products of the tropics can be grown upon it in abundance. The main crop, however, is sugar cane. Travel where you will on the island during the months of January and February great fields of tall waving cane which, to the Canadian or United States citizen, resembles Indian corn. Alongside of these are fields of the new crop about a foot to eighteen inches in height. The young cane is grown from stalks of the old cut in lengths about twelve inches. These are planted in hills something similar to potatoes, the rows being usually six feet apart and five feet between the hills. This leaves sufficient room for the plants to grow and spread. The planting is generally done during December, the crop taking about fourteen months to mature.

The space between the rows is kept constantly worked to keep down the weeds. This is done chiefly by hand, the ground being gone over each week until the cane is high enough to shade the ground and choke the weeds.

How Sugar Cane is Harvested.

Cutting usually commences about the first of February and if the crop is good it lasts till June. The cane stalks which attain a height of eight to ten feet are cut with a bill; the top is cut off and the leaves stripped. They are then loaded into large wagons usually drawn by oxen or mules and hauled to the factory of which there is one on nearly every estate.

The process of manufacturing the sugar is quite interesting. The motive power of the older fashioned factory is supplied by the quaint Dutch windmill as shown by the illustration. These are mounted on towers of solid stone, built round, large at the bottom and tapering smaller at the top. The wings of the windmill, of which there are four, are about forty feet in length and eight in width, being over eighty from tip to tip. To see these great wings revolving with the wind is quite a novel and picturesque sight.

Separating the Juice.

In the centre of the conical stone structure in which there are four large archways, is the crushing mill. This consists of three massive iron rollers about twenty inches in diameter and five feet long. The cane stalks are carried into the mill by colored men and women and fed into the crusher which squeezes out the juice. The refuse of the cane from the mill is gathered into baskets and supplies fuel for the boilers in another building.

The juice or sap of the cane after it is crushed out runs into a receptacle below the rollers and is strained, then pumped up and driven into the boiler house. Here it is run into a large copper receptacle called the racking kettle where it is treated with lime and after being heated the impurities rise to the surface. The purified liquor is then drawn off and run into a series of copper kettles, being lifted with long handled ladles from one to another down the row. In each of these kettles it receives a certain amount of boiling until it is reduced to syrup.

Sugar Made Ready for Shipping.

From the last kettle it is carried in a conveyor to a vat with revolving wings where it is constantly stirred until cooled. When the temperature is sufficiently reduced it is taken from this vat and put into large stone vats. In these it remains for about a week and congeals into a soft brown sugar. Then it is put into a large bin or box with holes in the bottom and sides to allow the syrup in it to drain off, a process that takes about four weeks. The sugar is then ready to be filled into bags or hogsheads for shipment.

The cultivation of the cane, although not as profitable as it used to be in the plamy days of sugar, is still quite remunerative with good management. An acre of cane, if a fair crop, will produce two and one-half tons of sugar worth at present prices about $45 per ton. The cost of manufacture by the old method is about eight dollars per ton exclusive of the cost of growing the crop. It requires about thirty-five men and women to harvest the cane and keep an ordinary windmill plant running.

ALBERTA MARKETS.

Calgary, Sept. 15, 1910.

The market this week did not see any sudden change in the prices of commodities in this district. There seems to be a general upward tendency, however, and few reductions in prices have been made.

There has been a good pack of Fraser River salmon, and the price in this city is $8.50 a case. Alberta cheese is rising in price and quantities are being sold. The price now is 15 cents for large, and a half cent more for twins.

All the stock of blueberries have been sold, and there will be a decided scarcity from all appearances. Apricots have advanced a couple of cents in price, due to the thin crop in California.

Provisions and Limitations of Fire Insurance Policies

Importance of Careful Consideration of Provisions of Policies Pointed Out in an Interesting Series of Booklets Issued by the National Association of Credit Men—Features of Standard Policy Used in New York and Other States Outlined.

A series of six booklets on "Burning Subjects" has been issued by the National Association of Credit Men, 41 Park Row, New York. Insurance policy contracts are forbiddingly lengthy and merchants often fail to realize the importance of knowing their contents.

Booklet No. 1 emphasizes the necessity of insuring. No. 2 points out the fact that no other business contract is treated so lightly as the insurance policy, and therefore policyholders often have to take settlements on their losses which they think are unfair. The point is made that all conditional and restrictive clauses should be made to apply exactly to the merchant's property or stock of goods.

About Insurance Companies.

The character of insurance companies and methods of getting information regarding them are covered in booklet No 3. To quote.

The points to consider in order to determine how sure is the guarantee against fire for which you are paying your good money are much the same as one follows in investigating a concern or individual to whom he is to extend credit.

1. What is the net surplus above capital and all other liabilities?

2. Has it (the insurance company) a record of paying its debts (losses) promptly and without unjust deductions?

3. Are the men who manage its affairs men of character and high standing in the community, upholding the principles of business which assure a long and honorable existence?

Reducing the Rate.

Rate reduction is discussed in No. 4. "Instead of railing at the insurance companies," it says, "might it not be more sensible to see what we can do to cut down the losses?" It is pointed out that insurance companies have suggested methods, many involving but small expense to adopt, by means of which, experience has shown, losses can be cut down, and rates correspondingly reduced.

The next booklet in the series touches upon co-operation of municipal authorities and individuals, in order to prevent loss by fire.

Features of Standard Policy.

Booklet No. 6 the latest of the series reviews the more salient features of the standard policy form and gives in a concise fashion information of great value. The article, reproduced in full below, will help to equip the merchant to safe-guard himself against fire losses:

"Up against hard luck and a soulless corporation! That's the way the man talks who had a fire and failed to collect what he thought he was entitled to. More than likely you know him or have been told his story.

"It makes the company look black, but possibly there's the company's side, which you haven't heard. Your friend who had the fire wouldn't be expected to tell it.

Contracts Not Drawn to Fit Risk.

"There are some mean adjustments made, close bargains struck by insuring companies, especially when they are in the midst of a bad year; but if you will take as much pains as I have to seek the truth, you will find that in the great majority of cases the trouble is with the policy contracts. When it comes to a loss, they are found not drawn up to fit the risk.

"The agent may have been a good fellow, but you never thought of your policy as a contract full of conditions; and this friendly agent, the company's representative, though competent in other matters, may not be well posted regarding insurance contracts.

'He may have taken some very vital things for granted which were not true, the result being an imperfect policy contract which can't be enforced.

"There's scarcely a merchant who will pay for a $10 invoice of goods without checking every item, no matter how numerous they may be, yet the merchant is rarely to be found who will check the clauses of his policy, which, if correctly drawn, may be worth 50 times $10 to him some day.

"So get out your policy and follow along, observing first the printed matter. The frequency of the word "void" should draw our attention. For instance, we destroy the validity of the policy IF (without specific agreement to the contrary written in the policy).

> "(a) We had, when the policy was written, or at any time during its life, procured any other contract of insurance on property covered by the policy.
> "(b) We knowingly increase by any means the chances of fire.
> "(c) We employ mechanics in building or repairing the insured premises for more than 15 days at a time.
>
> "(d) Our interest as insured is other than unconditional and sole ownership (not the property, but the person named in the policy is protected—that's important to remember); or, if the property insured be a building on ground not owned by the insured.
> "(e) In the case of property other than buildings, if it becomes encumbered by a chattel mortgage.
> "(f) Illuminating gas be generated or there be kept or used on the premises benzine, dynamite, ether, fireworks, gasolene, powder, naptha, explosives, phosphorus, petroleum, or any of its products of greater inflammability than kerosene oil of United States standard, and then in prescribed quantities. (This clause, generally speaking, is in harmony with State or municipal prohibitory statutes.)

"Again, unless specifically mentioned, the following property is not covered by the policy: Signs, awnings, store and office fixtures, tools, etc.

"In the compass of this talk I can't pretend to list all the printed conditions of the policy. My main purpose have been to awaken you to the fact that your policy is a contract full of conditions.

Special Provisions.

"Now for a consideration of the special provisions which the agent inserts in the space above printed portion of the policy. They have two special purposes:

> "1. To make the policy fit the property and method of conducting business.
> "2 To make certain modifications of the policy in the company's favor for protecting the company against hazards not contemplated. Don't trust anybody's mere 'say so' regarding them. See for yourself that they fit the risk.

"If any of the printed conditions are not now, or probably will not be, strictly lived up to in your business, insist that there be written in this space the necessary permissions. Insist that they be written on the policy, and do not take the friendly agent's "Oh, that will be all right."

"Three-Quarter Value" Clause.

"Now, there are certain clauses supplied by the companies to the agents, the use of which you should understand.

"For instance, there is the 'Three-quarter Value Clause,' which means that the amount of insurance permitted to be carried is to be limited to three-quarters of the actual value of the property covered, and the companies shall not be liable for an amount greater than three-quarters of said value. Insurance companies figure that this clause removes considerable temptation to carelessness.

"Percentage Co-Insurance" Clause.

"Strikingly in contrast with the 'Three-quarter Clause' is the 'Percentage Co-insurance Clause' (80, 90, 100 per cent.). This clause is used, for the most part, in towns where the fire protection is good enough to make it probable that a loss will be partial, or when the property insured is contained in more than one building and not subject to one fire.

"It is a warranty on the part of the policyholder that he will maintain insurance on the property described for not less than 80, 90 or 100 per cent., as the case may be, of its actual value, and in the event of loss in a case where the total insurance amounts to less than the percentage stated in the clause, the policyholder will be considered as co-insurer for the difference between the total insurance and the percentage of the value stated, and as such co-insurer he will bear his proportion of the loss, just as if he were another company insuring this shortage.

"I want you to notice that the 80 per cent. (90 per cent. or 100 per cent.) clause does not say that you shall not collect the full amount of loss under any conditions. On the contrary, it provides only for a proportion of the loss to be borne by the insurer where the total insurance carried is less than the prescribed percentage (80 per cent., 90 per cent. or 100 per cent.).

"In many parts of the country the 'Iron Safe Clause' is in use. It requires the taking of an inventory at least once yearly; that the assured keep a complete set of books, both books and inventory to be locked securely in a fireproof safe, or kept at night or during hours when business is shut down in some secure place not exposed to a fire which would destroy the building where the business is conducted.

"Failure so to do constitutes perpetual bar to recovery under the contract.

Standard Policies.

"Just a word as to standard policies. Legislatures have made policies standard for the protection of the people. It is a great protection to know that the printed text in one policy is exactly the same as in all the others, and that after understanding one you need only examine in each the written or attached portions which, by the way, should read word for word exactly alike in all policies applying to the same property.

"This will distinctly increase your chances of getting a clear and satisfactory settlement in adjusting a loss; also the advantage of a liberal clause in one policy, you will, on reading the policy, probably find is lost if the same liberality does not appear in all other policies applying to the same property.

"If what I have said stirs up any thinking, out of it will come this question: 'Why, in the first instance, does the legislature prescribe the use of a basic contract containing so many conditions and allowing the insertion of still more?

"'Why can't the misfortune of fire be averaged and a charge made to cover all in a plain unqualified contract of indemnity, so that I shall be protected against fire in any contingency?

"'Why must I forever watch out against these conditions as I would against a lurking enemy?'

"Well, a plain, unqualified standard policy would be possible if all property were subject to practically the same chance of burning up, but such is not the case, and the standard policy is made to exclude the specially hazardous conditions.

"Then, to meet special conditions known to be dangerous, a blank space is required in the policy where insured and insurer can come together and such clauses added as the degree of hazard attached to the property many require.

"You will see at once that without these special clauses it would be necessary to charge the same rate for a dwelling as for a store or lumber mill.

"While, generally speaking, it is true that clauses written into policies modify them to the advantage of the insurance company, it is only fair to remember that the company is at a natural disadvantage.

"It can't see the property insured all through the year; it can't know as much about it as you do, and therefore it seeks by restrictive clauses to guard against risks not anticipated at time of the application. Your duty is to know the contract and to know that you are living by its terms. It is not enough that the agent who signs the policy reads it. For, remember, he is the company's agent and not yours."

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Sept. 15, 1910.

Wholesale dealers report a general improvement in business, and collections are more satisfactory. High prices prevail in all lines. Dried fruit is especially firm. Wholesalers say that the opening prices on the new crop of Valencia raisins will be high this season. The first importations will go to the trade from 8 to 8½ cents per pound. The price of Sultanas will be the highest for ten years. The California stocks now on hand have been advanced one cent per pound.

Pork remains firm with a probable advance.

The price of refined sugars remains steady, and the market for the raw material is strong.

Eggs are firmer, and have advanced one cent per dozen.

Although the flour markets are easier, the mills having reduced high grade Manitobas 30 cents per barrel, and Ontarios 20 cents per barrel, the local dealers have not as yet made any change in prices. There are no large stocks of flour on the local market, and that is the reason for maintaining the present prices.

Plums are quoted from 30 to 40 cents per six-quart basket, and pears from 30 to 45 cents per basket. American Bartletts are quoted at $4.50 to $5 per barrel. Ontario plums are selling at 65 cents per basket and Ontario peaches at 85 cents. Tomatoes are easier, being quoted at 35 cents per ten-quart basket.

The first shipment of Jamaica oranges —200 barrels—for the season, reached here this week, direct from Jamaica. Dealers say that this is the earliest date of arrival for years. The fruit was in green state. The crop, it is said, will be a fairly good one. The same steamer also brought 4,056 bunches of bananas, and a large quantity of sugar.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 15, 1910.

There is talk of an increase of a cent or two in the price of pure lard, the quotation of which now is 18 cents. The outlook is that it will go up to 19 or 20 cents.

Local eggs are quoted at from 42 to 45 cents, without much change, and as usual they are hard to get. With colder weather coming on, the price is expected to go much higher.

Local creamery has advanced five cents, and is now 35 cents. This necessary article is expected to be higher this season than ever.

California peaches are on the market in quantity, at 80 cents, The cheapest these have been before is 85 cents. The fruit crop all along the Pacific coast has been exceptionally good this year, with favorable climatic conditions and increased fruit-bearing acreage. Okanagan peaches are also here, coming at about 70 cents per twenty pound box, which usually runs about eighteen pounds.

A View of the Grounds of The Canadian National Exhibition When the Crowd Was Large.

Canada's Great Exhibition is Climbing Upwards

An Increase in Numbers of Almost 100,000 People in Spite of Some Extremely Bad Weather—World's Fair Suggested for 1914 to Celebrate Peace Centenary—A Truly National Exhibition—Many Fine Exhibits of Special Concern to the Retail Dealer—West India Products Displayed.

Staff Correspondence.

Toronto, Sept. 15.—Canada's National Exhibition this year triumphed over many obstacles and achieved another distinct success, despite the unusual incident of adverse weather conditions.

This is evidenced by the fact that the total attendance was 837,000, about 85,000 in excess of 1909 and almost 200,000 in excess of 1908. This is a phenomenal increase in view of the disappointment of Labor Day when excessive rain kept the attendance 54,000 below that of Labor Day alone last year. The surplus is estimated at $45,000, so that there can be no question of the greatness of this greatest of continental annual events.

The Peace Centenary.

There is considerable stir just now over the proposal to celebrate in 1914, in Toronto, the hundred years of peace between Great Britain and Canada on the one hand and United States on the other, and it is suggested that the grounds and buildings of the Canadian National Exhibition be utilized as the site for a World's Fair under the supervision of an International Commission representing the countries named.

It is claimed that from an historical standpoint the suggestion is a good one. For it was on the grounds on which the National Exhibition is annually held that one of the bloodiest engagements of the war of 1812-14 was fought. At the close of that struggle the capital of Upper Canada fell into the enemy's hands, and its public buildings were burned, an act that led to the historic justice meted out in the burning of the public buildings at Washington by a British squadron. The mingled dust of British soldiers, United Empire Loyalists, and stout New England Republicans who fell at the battle of York rests to this day beneath the soil over which every year hundreds of thousands of pleasure-seekers walk unheeding. It is therefore sacred soil fit to teach the highest lessons of patriotism to those who may attend the Fair of a Century of Peace.

Whether this comes to pass or not the Canadian National Exhibition will go down through the annals of history as one of the greatest, if not eventually the greatest of similar annual fairs in the whole world.

That it is National is proven by the interest the other provinces of the Dominion take in it. We have British Columbia in the far west proudly showing the products of her soil. Her fruits are among the finest the world produces and they were admirably displayed. Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba—the vast prairie lands of the west—are now being looked up to as among the greatest of the world's wheat producing districts, while only a few years ago that earth resounded with the tramp of the majestic buffalo. They were represented at the Exhibition with their "No. 1 Hard Wheat" and other examples of western progressiveness.

The products of Ontario's fields, orchards and vegetable gardens were displayed in commanding manner while Canada's mines showed forth their greatness. Quebec and the Provinces-down-by-the-Sea sent their quotas of exhibits and people and all have reason to feel elated at the culmination of this great event.

West India's Products.

While on the subject of exhibits, that of the British West Indies deserves attention. This exhibit occupied a section of the Horticulture Building and displayed in excellent fashion the products of these sister colonies of Canada which should be more closely related in trade to us than they are to-day.

This exhibit at the Canadian National will serve to point out emphatically the business that can be done between Canada and the British West Indies. The latter produces the foodstuffs which Canada requires and must have from somewhere and Canada manufactures and grows the goods which the West Indian needs.

Palms and plants from the tropics lent a realistic touch to the display. Much interest was taken in the Trinidad cocoa pods and beans because many visitors had not before observed the source of the product that makes our delicious cocoa beverage.

Better Trade Relations Coming.

Other products were the grape fruit, lime, orange and lemon, all kinds of spices, raw sugars, coffee plant and coffee bean, Jamaica rum, Panama hats, cigars and varieties of West Indian curios. The setting given these products in cuplolas, glass cases, and stands was indeed attractive and altogether served to increase the interest taken in the products of these Islands which are bound to come into closer and better trade relationship with Canada in the near future.

In the descriptions of the various booths which follow, retail dealers have much food for thought. The strong selling points of each is set forth in concise style and the retailer can profit by studying them carefully.

THE COWAN CO.

That the products of The Cowan Co., Toronto, manufacturers of cocoa and chocolate, are annually gaining a broader reputation was evidenced by the throngs of people who visited the company's attractive booth at the Exhibition. Everybody knows their Perfection Cocoa, their dainty Maple Buds, Cream Bars, Nut Milk Chocolate and Cake Icings. These have, through a widespread and systematic advertising campaign become known, with their prices, from coast to coast, and the retail dealer should bear this fact constantly in mind. The Cowan Co. are doing everything in their power to increase the demand by turning out goods of the best possible quality, and by backing up this quality with good, sound advertising literature. Their sales are now greater than ever before because of this consistence of quality and aggressive publicity.

The display booth, as will be seen by the accompanying cut, was an attractive one. The decorations consisted of the company's advertising matter. The same show-cards as are received by every grocer and which should be used by him in his store to show that he sells Cowan's goods, were there, including several of the handsome big Maple Buds posters. At one corner of the booth was an attractive showcase in which every product of the company was tastefully displayed. There was also a miniature exhibit showing the various processes of the evolution of cocoa from the cocoa tree until it is transformed into a hot, delicious, invigorating cup of Perfection cocoa.

It should also be remembered by the retail trade that The Cowan Co. is the largest cocoa and chocolate manufacturing concern in Canada, and that its extensive business has been built up on the basis of quality. It is a growing one and has gone, and is going ahead by leaps and bounds. This is forcibly illustrated by the fact that the company is building an addition to their already large factory; additional machinery will be installed to further facilitate the output to meet the growing demand.

Several young ladies were in attendance at the booth at the Exhibition and with purchases of cocoa and chocolate gave away attractive souvenirs including Teddy bears, fans, etc., which will do a great deal to keep the name of Cowan's products before the public. By securing such mementos children grow up familiar with the name and partial to the goods. The retail dealer who always keeps a stock of Cowan's goods on his shelf shows sound business judgment—there will be a demand for them; this demand will last because it is built up on a quality basis and besides the dealer makes a good profit on his investment.

RED ROSE TEA.

The most talked about booth at the exhibition this year, was the Red Rose Tea room in the Manufacturers' Building. Of the thousands of visitors entertained there, most of them had to wait their turn to get in, but they had heard of or sampled the delicious tea so daintily served, and would not go without it. These waiting crowds every day of the fair bore remarkable testimony to the importance to the grocer of selling tea of such well known quality.

The unique plan originated by Red Rose Tea last year of charging 5c and giving it back as a ticket good for 5c anywhere when buying a package of Red Rose Tea, was again adopted, and worked out even more successfully than last year; for nearly half as many more people were served. The value and simplicity of this original plan has been greatly praised by many of the most experienced advertisers.

Everything about the booth was pleasing and inviting, the snowy linen, the fine china, the attentive, courteous young ladies, each wearing a red rose, and there was the same careful attention to detail in every particular. Special attention was paid to grocers. A portion of the booth was reserved for them, and they were admitted by a separate entrance, so as not to have to wait. A very large number of grocers and their friends were entertained during the fair.

The striking effectiveness of this demonstration is an exact illustration in minature of the remarkable success of the Red Rose Tea business for nearly twenty years in the Maritime Provinces, and for ten years in Ontario. The reason for both is the same, the unequalled quality of the tea and the confidence and friendliness of the grocers. The deliciously smooth strength, delicate full flavor and delightful fragrance in every cup of Red Rose Tea, properly made, were to many visitors at the fair a revelation of tea goodness.

Red Rose Tea is the result of a deliberate purpose on the part of T. H. Estabrooks, of St. John, N.B., to put upon the market a tea that in every grade would be the best possible tea value at the price. It is his unswerving adherence to that high quality standard that has won for Mr. Estabrooks, not only an enviable position in the tea trade of the Dominion, but the confidence and respect of his thousands of customers, the retail merchants of Canada.

E. D. SMITH'S JAMS AND JELLIES.

Retail dealers throughout Canada are recognizing more and more the advantage in handling only goods of absolute purity. This is why such a manufacturer of jams, jellies, catsups and grape juice as E. D. Smith, Winona, Ont.—the heart of Ontario's renowned fruit-growing district — is making such wonderful progress.

His striking exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition this year was just another evidence of his energetic campaign in placing his goods before the Canadian people. It illustrates forcibly that he is a staunch believer in the quality and purity of his own goods, and in the ability of others to recognize these characteristics. The E.D.S. trade-mark always stands for purity.

To prove these assertions retailers have only to take a look at the latest bulletin (No. 194), issued by the Inland Revenue Department of the Dominion Government, showing the results of the inspection of fruit jams. Ten samples of the E.D.S. brands were analyzed and every one of these was found to be genuine—free from all preservatives and dyes, and with less than the maximum quantity of water allowed. This is a perfect record and more than can be said of many other manufactures. While the government permits 10 per cent. glucose, E. D. Smith uses none whatever to further insure purity.

At the booth demonstrations were made by young ladies to the public and attractive cards and literature were given away, all of which will serve to keep the E.D.S. brands of goods more in public view. The Toronto representative for E .D. Smith's goods is N. A. Hill, 25 Front St. East, Toronto.

HUYLER'S CHOCOLATES.

Retail grocers are rapidly recognizing the fact that confectionery of the finest quality is a profitable department of their business. They are realizing too that the grocery store is the logical medium for confectionery since it is most directly connected with the consuming public. Dealers who want to carry lines of undisputed quality should, if they have not already done so, stock Huyler's chocolates and cocoa with the chocolate flavor. These were exhibited in a handsome booth at the Canadian National Exhibition again this year, and interested many thousands of people.

"A man is known by the candy he sends," is recognized to be a true statement and the retailer is absolutely safe in recommending Huyler's.

At Huyler's exhibit this year was shown an illuminated model of the Metropolitan Tower, New York, which is used to advertise Huyler's Metropolitan chocolates. Another feature of their exhibit was the display of a model among others of the latest improved machinery used in the manufacture of Huyler's cocoa and chocolate.

Huyler's confectionery is manufactured for all Canada in their establishment on Yonge Street, Toronto, where they have one of their finest retail stores.

BORDEN'S CONDENSED MILK.

It has long since been recognized by the retail dealer who handles condensed milk that there is no brand more pure than Borden's Eagle Brand and none which will give better satisfaction.

The dealer who is not handling Borden's Eagle Brand condensed milk is missing a good deal of custom which must of necessity go to his competitor. Everyone realizes that health departments in all the leading cities are from time to time issuing warnings against the indiscriminate use of dairy milk. This has served to turn the attention of the public to Eagle Brand condensed milk and the result has been a wonderful increase in the sales during the past few years. It is an assured fact that the demand will develop more and more as years pass by and therefore the dealer who continuously carries a stock demonstrates his good business judgment.

Borden's Condensed Milk was prominently displayed in the Manufacturers' Building at the Canadian National Exhibition again this year and thousands of visitors were once more impressed with the attractive exhibit and the demonstrations.

In addition to Eagle Brand Condensed Milk the company also demonstrated Borden's Peerless Evaporated Cream, unsweetened. The latter article is simply pure, rich, dairy milk evaporated to a creamy consistency by Borden's original process, preserved by sterilization only. There is nothing whatever added and Borden's Condensed Milk Co. claim that it is absolutely pure and safer than so-called "fresh milk" ordinarily obtained, as it has all the advantages of fresh milk and none of the disadvantages. Peerless Brand Cream is suitable for any modification and is largely used for any recipes calling for the use of fluid milk.

Condensed milk was originated in 1857 by Gail Borden and Borden's Eagle Brand is the best known on the market. Besides this it is acknowledged to be the highest standard on the market and therefore the retail dealer has everything in his favor in handling this brand, every can being guaranteed.

With Eagle Brand Condensed Milk and Peerless Brand Evaporated Cream Borden's Condensed Milk Company solves the milk problem by providing a pure, substantial, wholesome nourishment. This is prepared in compact form at their Tillsonburg Condensary with scrupulous care. They are manufactured under the latest improved system of sanitary regulations so that their purity and wholesomeness can always be guaranteed. The retailer who handles these brands, knowing these facts, has strong selling points which will stand him in good stead. He has an opportunity of displaying and developing his own salesmanship abilities without fear of contradiction or the loss of a customer.

The reputation of Borden's products has been founded on merit; their quality is undisputed and this fact has more than once been realized by the retail dealer who has stocked these goods.

The company's system of manufacture which has already been referred to and their eagerness to give to the public a reliable article does not begin in their Condensary. It goes back to the dairy farms which are the sources of the raw milk and embraces the care, feeding and health of the cattle, proper construction, lighting and ventilation of their barns and of the milk houses on the farm.

They thus know that their products are reputable beyond question and that the course of Borden's products from the cow to the can aims to give cleanliness, quality and purity.

The Borden booth was in charge of Jos. Irving, special salesman for the Borden products in Canada. Wm. H. Dunn, 27 Front St. East, Toronto, is the general sales agent for the company.

RICHARDS PURE SOAPS.

"A Soap Church" was the out-of-the-ordinary display which met the gazes of the thousands of visitors in the exhibit of Richards Pure Soap and Richards Quick Naptha soap at the National Exhibition.

The bars of soap with the labels turned outwards made appropriate bricks as will be observed by the accompanying illustration. The church stood in the centre of the booth, was 6 feet by 7 ft. in dimensions, including the steps, the top of the steeple being 14 feet from the ground.

The church-yard fence was made attractive by the use of Richards Quick-Naptha bars, and inside the fence at short intervals were miniature benches and several palms.

This display is one that retail dealers can make use of in their own windows in order to increase their sales of Richards profitable soaps. Soap-bars are easily built up in almost any shape, and grocers should constantly keep this fact in mind.

About the walls of the exhibit were shown several beautiful premium pictures and here and there were pinned small Richards Soap flags. These flags were given away every day of the exhibition, no less than 20,000 people asking for them during the fortnight. Sample bars of Richards Pure Soap were also given away. This is something that the retail dealer should remember. Every bar received will be given a trial and as Richards Pure Soap is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction thousands of other housewives in Canada will now be partial to it so that all that is necessary is the addition of the salesmanship of the dealer to create a wider demand for this brand.

In doing so he is able to use the strongest arguments in favor of Richards Pure Soap and Quick-Naptha Soap because they are absolutely reliable and will give the best of satisfaction. They will increase business, hold the very best class of trade and return to the dealer a substantial profit—the three things to be most desired by any merchant.

The complete lines sold by the Richards Pure Soap Co. are Richards Pure Soap, Quick-Naptha Soap, Snowflakes Soap Chips, Ammonia Powder, 100 per cent. Pure Lye and Toilet Soaps. Retailers realize that soap quality is the biggest factor in successful soap selling and the above named brands are the kinds the dealers need, because they are stamped with the hallmark of quality. They are favorites with the exacting housewife and are moreover a profitable proposition for every grocer to handle.

All these conditions combined with the fact that many more thousands of people are now interested in Richards Soaps, on account of having visited the Exhibition, should appeal to the dealer as being extra-important reasons why he should handle and sell these quality goods. So great was the rush for Richards Soap flags one day at their exhibit that the front railing was broken down several times.

Woodstock, Ont., is the place of manufacture of the Richards Pure Soap Co., J. A. Chipperfield being the general manager. The agents for Toronto and Hamilton are the Omand Manufacturing Co. (Mr. Hutchison) 76 Colborne St., Toronto. The exhibit was in charge of A. Holtze.

SALADA TEA.

"A bit of the Orient in the Occident," was the happy description of the Salada Tea Company's exhibit made by a lady with a touch of imigination, and a nice turn of expression. The whole surroundings spoke of the Far East—the ebony elephants, the palms and the numerous curios, including a collection of gods, one of which represents the various diseases to which the Hindus are subject, and a most formidable looking weapon, which has been used in war by the frontier tribes of Northern India.

The most noticeable object in the exhibit was a large brass dome lamp hanging from the ceiling, and, at night especially, the effect was weird, but beautiful. This lamp is the result of fifteen months labor, and is a remarkable example of the work that can be produced with hammered brass.

The figurative manner adopted to convey some conception of the company's growth—an array of ebony elephants on a graduating scale—symbolizes perfectly the progress made since the company's inception in 1892.

The history of Ceylon and India tea is inseparably associated with Salada. This firm have been pioneers in introducing the cheerful beverage on this continent, and from a small local business in 1892 their trade has grown to enormous proportions. It is now not only national, but international.

Nothing could speak more strongly and creditably than the following figures for the wisdom of selling only tea of the highest quality, and for the grocers who have united in placing Salada in the front rank—1892, 63,290 packets sold; 1909, 20,280,270 packets sold.

There were few visitors to the C.N.E. who did not admire the Salada display, and grocers in large numbers were made welcome by the firm's representatives in charge.

BRAND & CO.'S PRODUCTS.

Visitors to the Manufacturers' Building showed great interest in the celebrated essences of beef, chicken, etc., exhibited at Brand & Co.'s stand, which was in charge of T. O. Baxter, their agent.

Brand's essences are famous in most countries, and can be retained by the stomach when absolutely no other food can be. After all exhausting illnesses such as pneumonia, typhoid, etc., and for anaemia and nervous troubles, there is nothing with which they can be compared, and there are few grocery stores in the old country in which they do not find a prominent place, their sale being enormous. As Mr. Baxter explained, Brand's essences are used in jelly form and not for making beef tea.

Other preparations exhibited were Brand's Beef Tea, made exactly as a woman would make it in her own home, beef tea tabules, meat juice, beef bouillion, of which Brand & Co., were the original manufacturers, and savory meat lozenges, which form a portable nourishment at all times and are especially suitable for campers, hunters and travelers.

Brand's A1 Sauce was demonstrated and elicited much praise. This sauce was first prepared for King George the Fourth. by Mr. Brand, who was his chief chef, and has been before the public for seventy-five years. It is the original thick sauce.

There were also exhibited ox tongues in glass and tins, soups, potted meats and fish, and a very full range of preserved provisions.

Brand & Co. enjoy the very highest standing wherever known, and although they have been doing business in this country for a number of years, have confined their efforts principally to Montreal and Eastern Canadian cities. Now they are pushing their business throughout Ontario and the west, and owing to the excellence of their products are meeting with great success amongst the better class of trade. Their many preparations have been awarded the highest possible honors at the principal exhibitions all over the world.

T. O. Baxter, 25 Front St. East, Toronto, is agent for Ontario and Western Canada, and H. Hubbard, 27 Common St., Montreal, is agent for Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.

VINOLIA SOAPS.

All retail grocery dealers sell toilet soaps; but they should make it their aim to keep in stock those brands which will appeal to their customers to such an extent that they will bring repeat orders.

At the Canadian National Exhibition this year there were displayed in the Manufacturers' Building the Vinolia products, which have already a wide reputation among, not only the retail trade, but the general public, as well. These soaps bear a splendid reputation, and no dealer can make a mistake in recommending them to his customer.

The display of Vinolia products was recognized to be one of the most handsome and attractive in the building. It kept a constant crowd, with its beautiful floral decorations, which hung from the sides and its sweet odor which constantly filled the atmosphere round about.

The exhibit was shown by Lever Bros., sole agents in Canada for Vinolia soaps, who are known all over the world as manufacturers of Sunlight, Lifebuoy and many prominent brands of toilet soaps. Among the soaps displayed of direct interest to the retail dealer were Vinolia Baby, Liril Violette de Parme, Vinolia Sweet Pea, Premier Vinolia, Vinolia Bouquet and Vinolia Lasario Peau de Espange. The retail price of each of these is $9.50 per gross net, for gross lots, whether in one kind or assorted.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION.—Vinolia Soaps.

That Vinolia soaps are recognized to be among the leading brands in the world is evidenced by the fact that The Vinolia Company are soap-makers to His Majesty the King. It is interesting to know that several Vinolia soaps are regularly supplied to the Royal palaces, including Vestal Vinolia and Vinolia Otto soap.

The success which met the introduction of Vinolia into Canada a few years ago, and the regular increasing demand indicates that it is thoroughly established on this market. By stocking this soap and backing it up by his salesmanship abilities the dealer will gain a reputation for carrying toilet soaps of undisputed quality, and which will meet with ready responses from the public.

Still another soap of interest to the grocery trade is the shaving stick. The Vinolia Shaving Stick is particularly suitable to the man who shaves himself. It is enclosed in a nice, bright metal case with a metal top, is easily procurable at all times, and not only saves time, but saves the old-fashioned obsolete shaving mug, which is so difficult to keep clean. This is a good seller, and no mistake can be made in stocking it.

ST. CHARLES CONDENSING CO.

Not long ago there was a milk commission appointed by the Ontario Government to inquire into the sources of milk supplies with a view to insuring an article free from unhealthful bacteria.

This is a positive admission on the part of the government that the milk which the consumer received by way of the dairy and farm cannot be depended upon.

Not so with St. Charles Evaporated Cream, manufactured by the St. Charles Condensing Co., Ingersoll, Ont. Retailers who sell this brand have the argument, that it is thoroughly sterilized and absolutely pure. There cannot possibly be any illness resulting from its use. Besides it is guaranteed by the company to keep in any climate, and to be the best infant's food on the market, and, in fact, the most nourishing food for nursing mothers. It is easily digested by the young, sick or aged ; it improves the flavor of coffee, tea and cocoa and brings out to the fullest extent the aromatic qualities of these beverages. St. Charles Evaporated Cream can be used for every purpose for which anyone has been using ordinary milk or cream, and will be found far preferable and more economical.

With such an array of arguments as these in favor of St. Charles Evaporated Cream every dealer has positive selling points which can assist him in using his own salesmanship in promoting its sales, and therefore, in holding and gaining new trade ; he can place absolute reliance in its purity and because it saves the housewife money as well as time and trouble he can readily increase his sales.

The keeping qualities of St. Charles Evaported Cream is one of its paramount features. After opening it will keep longer than fresh milk if kept air tight and in a cool place.

It is a matter of importance for retailers to know that the general public is becoming more and more interested in this article. The people realize its purity and convenience and converts are being made every day.

The demonstrations at the exhibit of The St. Charles Condensing Co. at the CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION.—St. Charles Evaporated Cream.

Canadian National Exhibition this year again aided in introducing St. Charles Cream to thousands and thousands of new visitors. It was served in coffee by young ladies who answered question after question from the interested women and men who passed through the Manufacturers' Building during the fortnight.

The booth itself was an exceedingly attractive one. It was in charge of Dane, Hortop & Co., Toronto, Ontario agents for the St. Charles Condensing Co.

INGERSOLL PACKING CO.

The Ingersoll Packing Company had the usual attractive exhibit at the same position as previous years, namely opposite the south entrance of the Manufacturers' Building. The publicity given to Ingersoll Cream Cheese at the National Exhibition is of great value to the healthy distribution of this article by the jobber and retailer and should lend a new impetus to the demand for this already well-known cream cheese. The usual co-operation on the part of the retailer will in this instance show even greater results than the ordinary, for Ingersoll Cream Cheese has been so widely advertised throughout Canada that the consumers already recognize an old friend when they see this block cheese exhibited in the grocery stores.

Ingersoll Cream Cheese is a Canadian product, manufactured by the Ingersoll Packing Company, Limited, at Ingersoll, Ontario, where they have gained an enviable reputation among the Canadian trade as curers of Beaver Brand of Breakfast Bacon, special Beaver Brand Hams, and the widely known Beaver Brand of pure lard. This fact is a convincing testimony of the reliability of any product the company may place on the market and the qualities which have won such a strong position among the consumong public for their Beaver Brand Hams and Bacon have also been responsible for the large consumptive sale of this company's Ingersoll Cream Cheese, which was amply testified to by the thousands who enjoyed the samples of this cheese during the exhibition.

Ingersoll Cream Cheese is sold only in blocks and the consumer recognizes that they can buy twice the quantity of Ingersoll Cream Cheese in blocks, as they would receive in jar cheese and the most careful attention in the manufacture.

The grocer handling Ingersoll Cream Cheese may be sure he is offering his customers an article that is bound to bring continued sales. Cheese is one of the staples of his store and a flourishing business in this article depends largely on the quality and the value of the brand he offers for sale. Ingersoll Cream Cheese is gaining new friends every day and backed by steady publicity it is bound to keep on increasing in popular favor as the consuming public realizes the value and the retailer appreciates the fact that in cheese sales it is the best proposition for them.

MELAGAMA TEA AND COFFEE

Minto Bros., of Toronto, had a very attractive display of Melagama Tea and Coffee in their booth in the Manufacturers' Building at the C.N.E. and the fact that they were demonstrating and serving free these delightful beverages, made their booth the Mecca of thousands of visitors to the Exhibition.

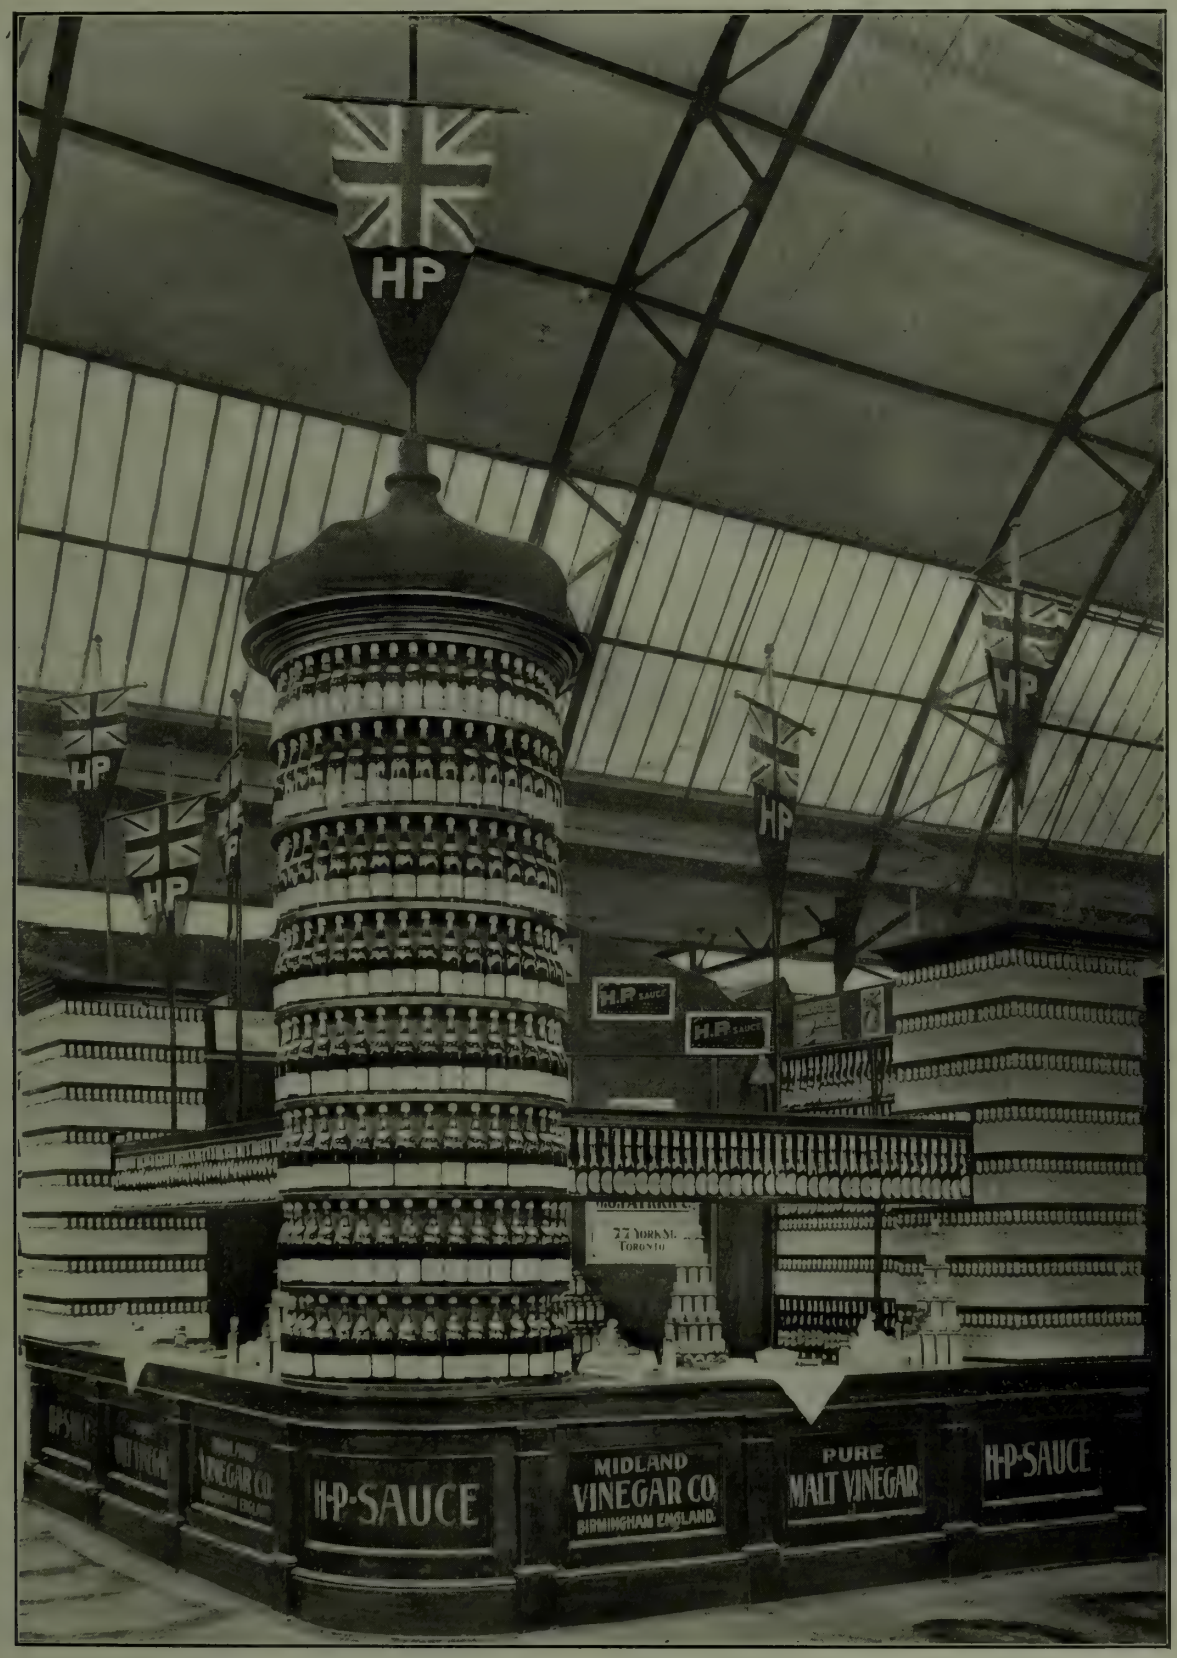
Melagama Tea and Coffee is now so well and favorably known among householders everywhere that it is scarcely necessary to say anything regarding the delectable flavor and exquisite aroma of these popular brands unless it is to add that they are growing in favor daily as is evidenced by the increasing demand from grocers everywhere.

While the Exhibition was in progress an average of 12,000 cups of tasty Melagama Tea were served each day and some individual days as high as 15,000 cups.

The tea was daintily served in cups and saucers especially imported for the occasion and were much admired by the many who enjoyed their contents.

The members of the traveling staff were in attendance both at the booth and offices to give the glad hand to customers and no pains were spared to make their visit a pleasant one.

Minto Bros.' premises are located in the heart of the wholesale district at 45 Front E., and visitors there were delighted with their well appointed and handsome offices and complete plant; there is just as much difference in the quality in favor of Ingersoll Cream Cheese as there is in the price.



Lastly, the price is a popular one with the buying public. Ingersoll Cream Cheese sold only in blocks possesses practically every advantage that appeals to the grocer and the consumer and the popularity it enjoys is the result of these conditions combined with also with the courtesies shown them by every member of the firm and all went home well satisfied with the source of Melagama Tea and Coffee and delighted with the display and demonstration at the Exhibition which will help to increase their tea and coffee business and hold fast customers who are particular about the quality and flavor of these invigorating beverages.

H. P. SAUCE.

One of the most original and not less attractive exhibits seen at the Canadian National Exhibition was that of the Midland Vinegar Company of Birmingham, Eng., erected by their Canadian agents, W. G. Patrick & Co., of Toronto. It was probably the most unique display of the many that claimed the attention of the crowds that passed through the Manufacturers' Building, combining as it did a certain distinction of design and a splendid setting for the goods exhibited.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION. —Midland Vinegar Company Exhibit.

The Midland Vinegar Company are the largest brewers of English Malt Vinegar in the world. From two to two and a half million gallons of their vinegar is kept stored in Birmingham and not a gallon leaves the factory until it is twelve months old. This ensures a uniform quality and adds a mellowness that is an essential of the best vinegar. As one of the proofs that their product is recognized as the best on the market, the Midland Vinegar Company this year secured the order from the Admiralty against all competitors by actual analysis as to quality. It may be remarked that in the brewing of vinegar this company uses the finest Canadian barley and prefer it to all others. Whole shiploads of it are imported from Canada and afterwards the finished article is shipped to this country in large quantities thus demonstrating that Canadians have more than a commercial interest in the product of the Midland Vinegar Company.

But apart from these facts of more particular importance to the grocery trade is that for quality this English Malt Vinegar is unexcelled. Whether it is for table use or for pickling purposes the grocer may assure his customers that they will be highly satisfied and, in pickling the purity of the vinegar is a prime essential.

The Midland Vinegar Company are also the sole proprietors of H. P. Sauce (House of Parliament) which has gained such a splendid reputation in the Canadian market as well as in all the marts of Great Britain. This H. P. sauce is now stocked and sold by all the live grocers and delicatessents between the Atlantic and the Pacific. It is the result of a secret blend of Oriental fruits and spices with a specially brewed English Malt Vinegar produced by this same company. As this vinegar never varies there is a constant uniformity to H. P. Sauce, which will hold its customers. H. P. Sauce has proven its merit to the grocery trade as a valuable article to carry. Its sale has increased beyond the most optimistic anticipations and there is every indication of even brighter prospects. H. P. Sauce and Pickles were demonstrated and ten thousand samples were distributed among the ladies who attended the exhibition. The Midland Vinegar Company's products will not disappoint either the grocer or the consumer.

DAYTON COMPUTING SCALES.

Grocers, themselves, realize to-day the advances they have made in recent years in their business. Inventions have lessened labor, have simplified a great deal of the work that was formerly arduous and have helped to make the grocer an important figure among the business men of to-day. In this regard the Computing Scale Company, of Canada, Ltd., manufacturers of Dayton Computing Scales and Moneyweight Scales have played a prominent part in revolutionizing certain trade methods.

The Dayton Computing Scale need hardly be introduced at this stage to the grocery trade. It has proved its worth. It guarantees a square deal to the grocer himself, and, also to the customer, and that is the honest grocer's principal concern. It also is a time-saver in the store, automatically registering the weight of goods and also their price, in such a simple manner that anyone can use the Dayton Scale.

For years the Dayton Computing Scale Company have had a staff of experts at work improving their scales and in their exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition there was shown an entirely new invention in the form of an electrical scale, which combines features that are appreciated by the grocery trade. The Electrical Scale is the result of the labors of the company's experts during the past two years, and they have succeeded in perfecting this scale, so that it is in a class by itself. Moreover, it looks as if it would be a long time before anything will be devised to compete with it.

Each time the grocer weighs upon this scale, an electric light is automatically flashed upon the dial and remains lighted during the operation. This light enables the grocer to see at a glance the money value registered on the dial, and also the exact weight of the article. The light also flashes a reminder to the customer to "Call Again." This scale can be operated from the electric light in any store. All that is needed is the attachment either above or below.

This scale will prove a valuable asset to any grocer. It is not only thoroughly efficient, but it has been strongly constructed and well finished. It is a handsome, low platform, swivel base scale, and it seems impossible to suggest any additional improvement. It was demonstrated at the National Exhibition and not a few sales were the result.

The Dayton Computing Scale Company have different styles of scales, which in price will appeal to the small grocer, as well as to his brother grocer with the larger business. The company's travelers are at all times willing to explain the Dayton Scale to grocers. The latter recognize the fact that the computing scale is the scale of to-day. It is the modern idea, and above all it is a money-saver. Of this latter point there is not the least doubt.

Hundreds of those who have bought the Dayton Scale did not realize the losses they were sustaining until their attention was called to them, and an investigation was made by the grocers themselves. Others knew they were losing money in spite of all precautions and welcomed the Dayton Automatic Computing Scale. Grocers who are contemplating purchasing a new scale will find in the Dayton types every feature they are looking for, and they will soon learn that it is a strictly business proposition to instal the Dayton Scales in their stores.

KELLOGG'S TOASTED CORN FLAKES.

Of the many articles handled by grocers in this country it is doubtful if there is any that brings more satisfactory results to the dealer than Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes. The company from its establishment put forth all its plans, first recognizing that the grocer would be in a large measure responsible for the total number of sales. The confidence of the retail trade was won by the square deal policy that was extended to them. They were quickly impressed with the fact that they were securing a good profit by handling Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes.

Special measures were adopted by the company in order to guarantee protection to the small grocer, and among them the resolve not to grant a quantity price has been of great service. The small retailer is treated the same as the most influential. They both have to buy through recognized jobbers, and all are treated alike, courteously, but with no discrimination.

The display of Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes at the National Exhibition this year was in keeping with the progressive methods employed by the company to emphasize before the consuming public the particular merits and good qualities of this breakfast food. The demonstrations were highly satisfactory, crowds thronging the booth every day.

The phrase that has pleased millions "The Sweetheart of the Corn," with the illustration it refers to occupied a prominent place in the exhibit, and of itself attracted attention.

That Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes have become immensely popular as a regular food, is attested by the fact that the Canadian plant at London was doubled during the past year, and though the output was thus doubled it failed to meet the heavy demand that gradually kept increasing.

With each case of corn flakes the grocer receives a coupon, which he may redeem at the end of the year, thus securing a substantial rebate. The company is always pleased to forward to grocers material for dressing windows and welcome enquiries from the trade on any of these questions.

T. M. Sibbald, 20½ Front St. East, is the Toronto agent, and was in charge of the exhibit at the National Exhibition.

Corn flakes are handled by the wholesale trade throughout the Dominion, and are sold at $2.85 per case of 3 dozen. Besides the Toronto agency there are offices in charge of Locke & Williams, Winnipeg; Howe, McIntyre & Co., Montreal; Chas. E. McMichael, St. John, N.B., and Shallcross, McAuley & Co., of Calgary, Alta.

PURE GOLD MANUFACTURING CO.

Pure Gold products have for so long a time borne such a reputation for quality that the demand for them has expanded throughout Canada in wonderful strides. The retail dealer who wishes to obtain as great a share of this demand as possible should, if he has not already done so, stock these goods and add to the present demand his salesmanship abilities; he can make no mistake in handling the products of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co.

Demonstrations were made in their attractive booth at the Canadian National Exhibition by several young ladies, whose tempting dishes were instrumental in gaining many new admirers for Pure Gold goods. Dainty salads, salad dressings, jellies, etc., as well as all their package goods and extracts were displayed in such a manner that they could not fail to hold the attention of the mistresses of the thousands of homes which were represented at the exhibition. Retailers know that every good wife is anxious to extend her knowledge of such dishes, and if he can be instrumental in bringing this to pass he will be all the richer for it.

With Pure Gold products he can easily increase his sales of goods that will make these dainty dishes because he can place absolute faith in their purity. Their quality is unquestioned and they can, therefore, be guaranteed to the housewife with perfect safety. The company make quality their leading feature and their motto "the memory of quality lingers when prices are forgotten," has done much to increase the demand.

Besides table jellies and salad dressing powders The Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., manufactures Pure Gold brands of baking powder, flavoring extracts, coffee and spices, all goods of merit, which will bear the minutest scrutiny of the most exacting government inspector.

The cleanliness which is made a feature in their manufacturing establishment was carried to their booth; everything about it was neat and clean; the jellies served were certainly tempting and made without a flaw; the lady demonstrators were courteous and patient and gave the very best of service to the thousands who visited them during the two weeks of the exhibition.

LIPTON'S TEAS.

One of the problems that confront the majority of retail grocers to-day is how to build up a flourishing tea trade.

It is by building up a reputation for quality that the grocer builds up his business. It is Lipton's teas that solve the problem of his tea trade.

Older grocers know that in past years Chinas and Japans were the teas mostly drank. The price in the past was so high that tea was considered a luxury, something for the rich man and his household. To-day, India and Ceylon teas have the greatest demand and are continually winning increased popular favor by sheer merit. And furthermore tea has been reduced in price until it is a beverage of universal consumption.

In this development of the tea business Sir Thomas Lipton has played a prominent part, owning his own plantations in India and Ceylon, and being the pioneer in educating the consuming public to the good qualities of the teas grown in these districts, and in bringing the price of teas to a level which resulted in tea becoming an article of general use he has built up a business of world wide extent.

Blended and packed in bond in London, England, by a corps of the best tea experts in the world, coming direct from Lipton's own plantations, every operation from growth to the final blending and packing of the finished product being carried on under the direct supervision of experts, Lipton's Tea shipped to all parts of the world to-day is so carefully blended and packed that absolute uniformity is assured in the blends called for by conditions under which the tea is used in the several countries to which it is shipped. Consequently when the grocer sells a customer a package of Lipton's tea, he is quite safe in guaranteeing absolute uniformity in any blend which he finds his customer prefers, as every package is sold to him under an absolute guarantee as to quality by this house, backed up by their years of experience combined with the efforts of the foremost tea experts in the world to-day.

And at the same time the price is popular. In fact Sir Thomas Lipton fathered popular priced teas and the growth of the business proves more emphatically than words that Lipton's Teas are all that is claimed for them.

Special care has been taken to cater to the Canadian taste. The teas for consumption in the Dominion are specially blended. They are packed in air tight tins so constructed that the quality and flavor of the tea is fully preserved until the entire contents of the package have been used.

These are a few of the points in favor of Lipton's Teas, namely quality, uniformity of blend, careful packing, popular price and a good profit to the grocer.

In fact the grocer has a splendid opportunity to talk Lipton's Teas and to build up a tea trade he can adopt no safer nor more profitable plan than that of handling Lipton's Teas and of pointing out to customers their merits. Like methods have resulted also in building up a very large and steadily increasing business in coffee and jelly tablets, lines which for the Candian market have received special attention by this house, and which all grocers desirous of handling the highest quality of goods will find it profitable to stock and recommend to their customers.

CHRISTIE'S BISCUITS.

With an international reputation for a completely established supremacy for many years on the American continent, Christie, Brown & Co., Limited, Toronto, may justly be said to have put Canada in the van of progress amongst countries noted for the manufacture of pure, high-grade biscuits, crackers, wafers, cakes and puddings.

This fact was proved indubitably by the unique exhibit of Christie, Brown & Co., Limited, this year at the Canadian National Exhibition, by the equally unique booth in which the exhibit was displayed, and, not least, by the requests of the thousands of householders, wholesalers and retailers who visited the booth, for permission to inspect the firm's factory (Duke and Frederick Streets).

The booth itself, without parallel at this year's Fair, was a delight to the eye in simplicity of structure, beauty of finish (fine antique oak) and in sprightliness of appointments, the cool browns of the woodwork and furniture being brightened by the variegated colors of garden flowers and small potted palms and dwarf baytrees and cedars, while the show cases and shelves, replete with five hundred selected varieties of the Christie, Brown Company's specialties in biscuits, crackers, wafers, cakes and puddings, plain and fancy, were indeed a most enticing array, as the firm's motto runs, of "The Purest of all Pure Foods."

And that motto is the absolute truth, for Christie, Brown & Co., Limited, use no substitutes, no oil for butter, no cottolene for lard, but only the very finest milled flours, the choicest sugars, currants, raisins and fruits, and the very highest grades of butter and lard. This insures absolute purity and wholesomeness for their products; and so well-known and appreciated are the Christie, Brown Co.'s specialties that the leading United States wholesalers import them, despite the high tariff duties.

But this great and progressive Canadian firm also secures purity and wholesomeness in their products by another method. A visit to their factory, which Christie, Brown & Co., Limited, might justly and with pride name, "The Spotless Factory," will show the care the firm takes to insure perfect sanitary condition of the tins in which the biscuits, cakes, etc., are packed. Their tins are always sterilized before being packed, and when returned are first thoroughly cleaned and then sterilized again before being refilled.

Wholesalers and retailers should make a special point of this fact—each tin and box contains full weight, that is, if it is marked as containing 8 lbs. it will be found to contain 8 lbs. of biscuits, the wrappers and cardboard not being included in the weight charged. Where the goods are sold by package the price is based on the actual contents.

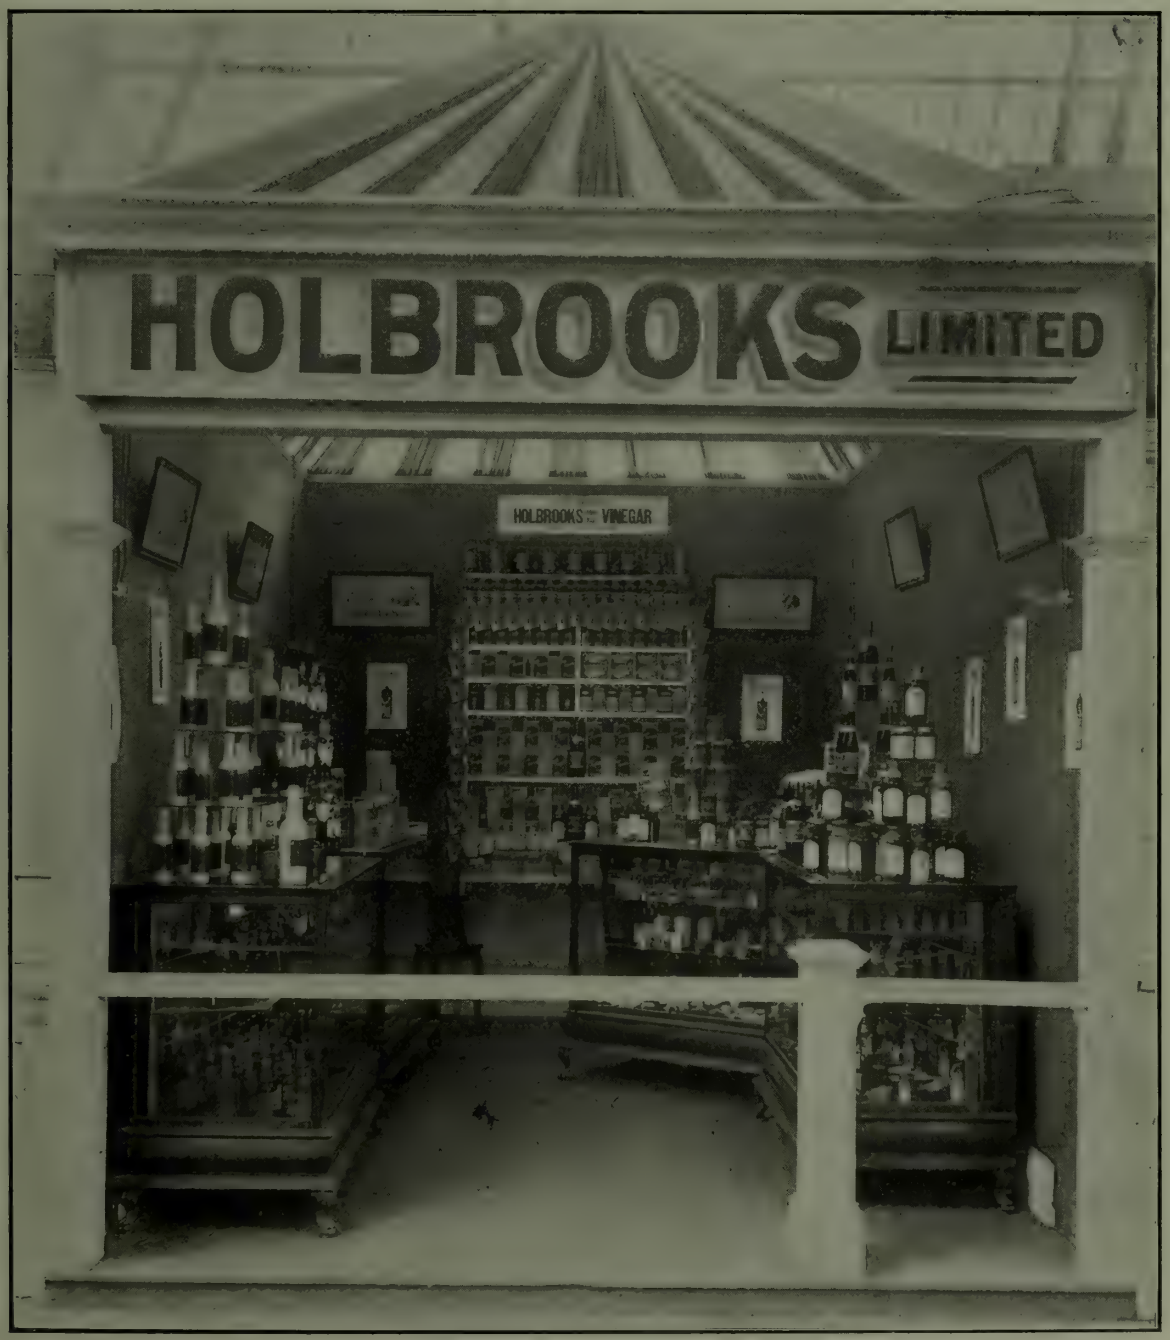
A sterling firm with an international reputation for the manufacture of sterling plain and fancy biscuits, crackers, wafers, cakes and puddings—such is Christie, Brown & Co., Limited, the greatest and most reliable firm of the kind in Canada, and a standard which other firms in the same business, in all countries, are copying in emulation.

HOLBROOKS LIMITED.



Few firms are attracting so much attention from the trade just now as Holbrooks Limited, of Holbrooks Sauce fame by reason of the remarkable growth of their business in Canada during the past year or so, and it was only natural that their exhibit attracted considerable interest.

Many grocers will remember only four or five years ago when this enterprising English firm of specialty manufactures, after looking over the Canadian field (in which so many English firms had tried and failed through lack of knowledge of Canadian conditions) decided to "Grow up Canadian" by opening up their own offices in Toronto.

Backed by unlimited capital, an immense output in other parts of the world, and the high reputation of their products, they were probably the first English firm to grasp the situation in Canada and establish their own offices on this side for the purpose of building up a trade by Canadian methods, or to use their own expression, "To do in Rome as the Romans do."

How far they have succeeded by the vigorous and enterprising methods which they have adopted in marketing their goods is well-known to almost every merchant in the Dominion and the large sale enjoyed by some of the new lines which they have placed on the market during the past year shows how keenly they watch the requirements of the trade, prepared to give the Canadian market what the Canadian market calls for.

Two years ago they decided upon an even more gigantic venture by entering the United States with a plan of campaign extending over a number of years and involving, it is rumored, an expenditure of between three and four hundred thousand dollars.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION.—The Exhibit of Holbrooks Products.

No manufacturing whatever is done on this side of the Atlantic, their organization here being merely for the purpose of advertising, marketing and distributing their English products in which they are assisted by a staff of twenty travelers.

Their operations in both Canada and the United States are conducted from their Toronto offices under the management of H. Gilbert Nobbs.

The business was founded in England in the year 1798 and they claim to have to-day the largest sauce factory in the world and are still building.

H. J. HEINZ CO.

The exhibit of the Heinz Pure Food Products at the Canadian National Exhibition was another mark of the progressiveness of H. J. Heinz Co., whose "57 varieties" have long since become known to the grocery trade in Canada as being among the purest of pure foods. These products are now made for the Canadian trade in the company's new plant at Leamington, Ont., where the same high character of materials, skilled supervision and all the methods which the "Heinz Quality" are maintained as in the various Heinz establishments throughout the United States and Europe.

A few facts about the vastness of this great industrial enterprize which had such a modest beginning in 1869 in a little garden in a Pennsylvania town, will prove interesting to the dealer who sells the Heinz goods over his counter. It has more than 4,000 employes in the main establishment, which covers 22 acres of floor space. It owns 15 factories, 69 pickle salting houses, and has 30,000 acres of land under cultivation. Forty thousand people are required to harvest the crops, there are 45 branch distributing warehouses and more than 500 traveling salesmen.

To-day Heinz dainties and delicacies are sold in every market in the civilized world. Their success is due almost entirely to the desire and purpose to excel and to the determination that no common or inferior thing shall ever bear the Heinz label. Preservation of the most scrupulous cleanliness at any cost, and unswerving standards of quality, can never fail to meet that full reward which the public has accorded to "the 57."

H. J. Heinz Co. are now organizing a larger sales force in Canada. Their agents in this country are: H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto; Hudon, Hebert & Co., Montreal; Provost & Allard, Ottawa; John Tobin & Co., Halifax, N.S.; Baird & Peters, St. John, N.B.; The A. Macdonald Co., Edmonton, Alta.; Georgeson & Co., Calgary, Alta.; The Codville Co., Winnipeg, Man.; Kelly, Douglas Co., Vancouver, B.C.

OXO.

By handling Oxo the grocer is enabled to offer his customers an article which he need have no hesitation in proclaiming as pure as it is possible to be. It has been referred to as the greatest specialized article on sale to-day and this statement is not far-fetched. Oxo is solely manufactured by Liebig's Extract of Meat Co., Limited, whose head office is in London, Eng., and its superiority as a liquid beef is the result of the company's forty-five years' experience. They own 2,600,000 acres including the richest pasturing lands in Argentine and Uruguay (South America), where their herds of thoroughbred Herefords numbering over 250,000 head, from some of the finest British prize winning cattle are located.

In connection with this immense industry a whole village has been laid out apart from the factory, comprising workmen's homes, schools, hospital, churches and the residences of those in charge of the works

Every stage of the preparation of Oxo is guarded by all that science has to offer in order to guarantee its purity and absolute cleanliness.

These brief facts convey a slight idea of the immense organization behind Oxo and of the scrupulous care that is exercised in its manufacture.

The retail grocer is familiar with Oxo in bottles, and the Company is now offering it in the form of Cubes which are more readily and easily handled. It is not only unequalled as a nourishing food but it may be used in various forms in the kitchen, a selling point which the grocer should not overlook.

The Oxo display at the National Exhibition attracted many grocers who marvelled at the photographs of the company's herds, plant and the settlement.

The general public appreciated the demonstration of Oxo and this method, together with a progressive policy of advertising, should be of great assistance to the grocer, who will find that Oxo once introduced to a customer will bring continued sales on its own merits.

Among the other exhibitors at the Exhibition whose displays attracted the attention of the retailers were the following: Wagstaffe, Limited, Hamilton; S. F. Bowser & Co., Toronto; Canadian Shredded Wheat Co.; Eureka Refrigerator Co., Toronto; Gipe Carrier Co., Toronto; W. A. Freeman Co., Hamilton; Grimm Manufacturing Co., Montreal; Jno. Hillock & Co., Toronto; Nugget Polish Co., Toronto; Toledo Computing Scale Co., Toronto, and Harry Webb Co., Toronto.

Getting After the Trade Interrupted by Summer

Now is the Time For Retail Dealers To Put Their Salesmanship Behind Bread and Pastry Flours—As The Autumn Approaches Housewives Will Bake if Their Attention is Called to It—Up to the Grocer to Tell Them About it.

While summer is responsible for increased business in some lines, it also arrests the demand for other articles. It may be expected that most of this trade will return but there is one particular item of trade which upon consideration grocers may consider worthy of attention.

In the average home, bread-making is not included in the summer duties and during the warm weather months the baker gets a largely increased demand.

The housewife concludes that baking is too arduous during that time and the home made variety disappears for the time being. There is just the possibility that the housewife may forget to change back again unless the grocer puts forth some effort to remind her that the cool weather has returned and that the fire is allowed to burn all day.

If the mother is really a bread-maker, as a rule the family prefers the home make and moreover there is the economical consideration.

A campaign of this nature is now worthy of a thought by those retailers who are alive to their own interests. The same may be said of pastry flour.

The grocer who buys a consignment of flour and stores it away in the small store room, making no attempt to sell it, merely delivering an occasional bag when a customer asks for it is not a salesman. This kind of retailer can scarcely hope to make a feature out of his flour department.

General Business is Best.

Those who have been handling it should put the same life and energy into pushing flour as to any of the other articles. It will hardly be admitted that a successful grocery business will be built upon heavy sales in some few lines but rather by a good strong general business.

The grocer can sell flour if he tries to; he can sell pastry flour also, and he can sell confectionery, for there is one class of woman who does not want to, or does not know how to bake. As soon as the cool weather begins to make itself felt the grocer should make a big effort to reclaim the trade that summer interrupted.

Believes that Prices of Honey Will Remain Firm

Toronto, Sept. 15.—The honey market is proving of much interest to the jobber and retailer just now, and so the views of a bee-keeper who exhibited at the Canadian National Exhibition should prove interesting.

To begin with, he said, there were no old stocks held over. The new honey came on a bare market and this tended to keep prices high. The early portion of the season was damp and cold and was not conducive to a good yield. The result was that so far as he was concerned—and he believed it to be general in Ontario—the average yield per colony was only 40 lbs. while last year it was 100 lbs..

The increased number of apairies, however, will bring the total yield almost to the figure it attained last year. Nevertheless since the demand is widening, there will not be any too much honey on the market. It is all getting out of first hands so that, so far as the Grocer's informant could see, the prices would not decrease. He anticipated higher figures before next season's crop is marketed.

Should Local Publishers Accept Mail Order Ads.?

Discussion of a Question Which is Agitating Merchants Everywhere — Loyal Support of the Newspaper Deserves Reciprocation on the Part of Merchants— How Two Publishers Have Helped Their Local Advertisers.

Where does the publisher of the local newspaper stand in relation to the fight which merchants who patronize his columns may be putting up against mail order competition? To one phase of the question there is a positive answer. The great majority of publishers have at least demonstrated their loyalty to local interests by refushing to publish the advertisements of mail order houses which are offered to them from time to time. Some of those who have so refused have expressed themselves as satisfied with the amount of business which has come to them in the shape of advertising from local merchants. Even if they were dissatisfied they would probably take the same attitude as the man who declares that the local merchants do not do enough advertising, but that disloyalty on his part would be out of the question.

There are wide-open opportunities for sympathetic co-operation between the newspaper and the merchant with regard to this development of the home field in favor of local concerns. The medium of public opinion can very often pilot to success any organized effort which the merchants may take with the object of solving their different problems; it can straighten out kinks which retard united effort among merchants; it has access to every constituent of the community and can do much educative work in discouragement of long-distance shopping.

In this issue the Renfrew Journal presents a combined list of goods with prices quoted and suggested such as no city departmental store can equal in variety of stock, newness of goods quality, style, nor yet in prices.

The combined stores of Renfrew can easily outrival any two city departmental stores in the stocks carried, the prices offered, and the quality of goods sold

Investigation will prove this point beyond dispute.

When you have ALL the big store stocks here to choose from you have more variety than any city departmental can give in any one line

By trading here you have the opportunity of inspecting the goods and comparing values on the spot.

You save time, trouble, postage, express, and disappointment.

You have immense stocks of new goods to choose from

You have the reputation of business men who are here all the time to back up the quality of what you buy

You are not trading sight unseen You see the goods you buy, and buy the goods you see.

As to Prices!

On investigation it has been found that the city departmental stores do not sell the same quality of goods lower than the local merchants You may think they do, but the truth is that they do not Local merchants have less proportionate expenses to pay All the Renfrew merchants are financially sound, and so able to purchase for cash, and in large quantities—the City Departmental store has little advantage over them there, A comparison of the City Departmental Store's catalogue prices with the local merchants' prices will be the most convincing evidence that

There Must be Co-operation.

There is neither room nor reason, therefore, for strained relations between the merchant and the newspaper. It would seem that no such situation should be allowed to develop which would suggest to either party a retaliatory action involving recourse to out-of-town patronage or prices. There should be no reason why one side should, for example, apply a handicap to the other's business in the form of a mail-order house advertisement, or why one should jar the other with a suggestion that he can get better prices on printing in a distant city. Yet, these things sometimes happen, and a good instance is available. At a recent conference of newspaper men where the discussion hinged on a certain phase of co-operation of local business interests, one man stated that a merchant had recently asked him for a figure on some job work. The printer gave him his best price, whereupon the merchant protested that he could do far better in a neighboring city. Yet this man was one who did not hesitate to nudge the newspaper man every time he thought the mail order houses deserved a knock. It developed at the meeting in question that this was not an extraordinary experience.

A Publisher's Opinion.

Should country newspapers refuse mail order advertising? The following reply to that question was given by a publisher at a recent session of the Weekly Section of the Canadian Press Association:

"On general principles," said he, "I think a country newspaper should be free to accept advertising from any source or any line of business, provided it does not offend against good morals, good taste, and the general policy of the paper; and its authors are financially responsible.

"The city department store is the big opponent of the local merchant, tradesman, and, sometimes, even manufacturer, and, thus, of the trade interests of the smaller towns and villages with whose interests those of the local newspaper are vitally associated. These interests the home journal is bound to promote in the general interests of the community.

"My own opinion on the question is that when local dealers and business men of all classes are giving a fair support to the home printing offices, in the way of newspaper publicity, job work and subscriptions, the local paper should stand by its patrons and by the home industrial community. When such happy conditions do not exist and when the big departmental store's advertising campaign could be used 'to point a moral and adorn a tale,' it might profitably be accepted and used effectively in that way.

"On the other hand, it does not appear to the writer to be a square deal to the city advertiser to accept his copy and his good money therefor, and then knock him and his class in the local and editorial columns. Being in that fortunate class receiving a very generous local support, and feeling that we should reciprocate by protecting our patrons, this, paper has so far answered the city department store's advertising question in the negative."

An Experience and a Suggestion.

Newspaper publishers generally have the interests of their communities at heart. They are called upon from time to time to give consideration to the various problems which beset those communities. They are fully aware of baneful influences of the mail order problem, and, it would appear, are ready to participate in any plan of co-operation looking to its solution. Many of th m have already done much to develop local loyalty. The experiences of one publisher in this work are narrated in the letter recently received at this office. It also contains a good suggestion. This man states:

"Some years ago we devoted much thought and space to the subject of out-of-town dealing, and I feel that we did some good, but I quit it when one of our merchants, who clapped me on the back oftenest for my articles, was in the habit of getting stuff that he did not keep in stock from one of the Toronto houses. Later I learned that other merchants did likewise, and I felt that I was the fool.

"However, I feel that, from the standpoint of a town, the continued dealing in the larger cities by the citizens of the smaller towns and countryside, will eventually ruin our smaller centres. How can we overcome it, is the question? I see but one way. Our merchants may go on advertising that they sell as cheaply as the large departmental stores do, but that does not go. The merchant has to show what the department stores sell certain lines of goods for, and in the same line show what he will sell it for.

"Now, my idea would be for the leading merchants of the towns to join forces, and branch out in a vigorous campaign with a well laid plan. Have them meet weekly, take Eaton's, Simpson's, etc., advertisement, and carefully go over the leaders, noting the prices. Then have each merchant shape his advertisements for the weekly papers in his town accordingly, stating in bold figures what the certain articles are advertised for in Toronto and what he is selling them for. If the local merchants can sell as cheaply as the city chaps, which they claim they do, then such a course in my mind is the only one to appeal to the buyer.

"This plan may not be feasible in some places, but I do not see why it could not be made to work in others. It has now come to be a question of competition with the departmentals rather than locally, and the sooner the local merchants see this the better. In our town alone, it is estimated that not less than $3,000 monthly leaves here for the city departmentals. We are great sufferers."

Merchants Largely to Blame.

A publisher in a town of 5,000 has this to say:—"The merchants, I think, are largely to blame for losing to the departmental stores business that should go over the local counters. Persistent, intelligent advertising should convince the public that they really save money (all things being taken into consideration) by buying at home.

"For months I have been running a series of articles pointing out the advantages of patronizing the home stores, but such advice can have but little force unless it is backed up by advertised evidence from the merchants whose business we are trying to help. The trouble is that too many merchants bewail the amount of money that goes to mail-order houses and yet are not willing to spend a few dollars in letting the people know that purchases can be made just as cheaply at the town store without taking the chances of buying from a catalogue. There is an old saying that one should "fight the devil with fire." In this case the "fire" is advertising and if the merchants will use this weapon with intelligence they can hold a large portion of the business now going past them, and can rest assured that they will have the co-operation of every local newspaperman."

How Two Publishers Helped.

Reference was made in The Canadian Grocer some months ago to assistance given local merchants by the St. Mary's Journal by publishing a comparison of prices of goods quoted in departmental store catalogues and in local stores, the comparison being invariably in favor of the local merchant.

The Renfrew Journal has given similar assistance to local merchants by the same methods as well as by publishing the accompanying full page advertisement and editorial. The latter follows:

"A great many people believe that they can purchase certain lines of goods to better advantage in the big city departmental stores than they can in the local places of business. Practically speaking, nothing could be further from the truth, but the city departmentals by persistent advertising and insistent claims have persuaded a considerable following up to this false doctrine. Appeals might be made to the local patriotism, the local friendships and the local interest to patronize local business rather than the city departmentals, but the merchants of Renfrew, as will be seen by a perusal of this issue, have a better and fairer way. They ask no favors. They advertise what they have, quoting prices and qualities, and leaving the matter to the investigation of the people.

"Investigation is what is needed. If the general public would honestly and intelligently compare qualities and prices they would soon conclude that it would pay them to confine their purchases to the local merchants. For fear that this statement may be considered overdrawn, it might be well to compare some prices. In the catalogue of one big store the lines of Stanfields' underwear are quoted five cents per garment higher than they can be purchased at any store in town. A special stove, quoted as a bargain in a departmental store, at $44.50, is sold here regularly for $44, and is sometimes advertised for even less. A wool muffler, quoted at 27 cents in the big city advertisement Wednesday, is on sale here regularly for 25 cents. So it goes throughout the list, and there are few lines on which the local stores are truly beaten.

"To be sure, the city stores do sometimes catch bargains which they pass on in part to their customers. They buy in good quantities and for cash, but they have no advantage there, for local merchants do the same, and oftentimes have big bargains, too, to offer.

"What is needed is investigation and understanding of the situation. The merchant needs to advertise, the local people need to watch the advertisements. The enormous expense of the city departmentals in every line outweigh any minor advantages they have otherwise, and the local man who trades with the men he knows and can trust consults his own pocket and pleases his own local loyalty at the same time."

JIM PARKS' STORE.

You know Jim Parks? He used to farm
Out Hopkins Corner way.
Well, he got tired of planting corn
And cutting oats and hay.
It was too hard and dull a life—
He said he could make more
To move to town and open up
A little grocery store.

The opening up was easy done,
And things just 'peared to swim.
You work a farm, but keep a store—
It seemed like fun to Jim.
His trade? Well, he had more or less—
'Twas hardly ever more—
But times would better in the fall,
And—he liked keeping store.

One day last week I called around
And found him dreadful blue;
He kept the store all right, but kept
The things inside it, too.
"The business suits me lots of ways,
But tell me how," said Jim,
"A man can keep on keeping store
"When it will not keep him!"

Practical Methods Used in Retail Grocery Stores

Quebec Dealer Advises Careful Distribution of all Samples Given the Retailer—Chatham Merchant Attends to Thirst of His Customers—Fruit Jar Trade in Bracebridge—Regina Merchant Suggests a Training for Clerks.

Quebec, Sept. 15.—A retailer here would urge that all samples of goods, recipe booklets, etc., which are given to the dealer by the manufacturer be distributed systematically among customers. Very often these samples are placed aside and the booklets are torn when they might be given away. This often means loss of sales, for it is usually the case that customers are just looking for the very article sampled.

For the Thirsty Customer.

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 15.—A convenience not often found in small city stores is a feature of the store of Smith & Ash, in this city. It is a water tap for the free use of customers.

Of course, no merchant who has drinking water in his store will ever think of ignoring a customer's request for a glass of water. Usually, however, the water tap is in the rear of the store, and the customer has to wait while the merchant or clerk spends valuable time in securing the necessary refreshment.

In the Smith & Ash store, the water tap and sink are placed just at the left hand side of the front entrance, with a cup conveniently attached. The customer has merely to fill the cup and drink; there is no necessity of asking anyone's permission. In a city where there are only one or two public drinking fountains, such an innovation is decidedly popular, and doubtless has its value as a trade getter, especially in a business catering largely to women and children.

The cost of installing the fountain is the main expense, since at meter rates the cost of the water consumed is trivial. This would likely be more than made up by the value of the time of the clerks which might otherwise be spent in securing water for customers were the tap less conveniently situated; and by the extra business secured from those customers who feel that the use of the water places them under an obligation to spend something.

Fruit Jar Business Good.

Bracebridge, Ont., Sept. 15.—Grocers in town are going into the fruit jar business more strongly each year.

This season nearly every grocer has had window displays of this much needed article in the home, bringing to mind to the shopper when ordering fruit, sugar, etc., that she should also purchased fruit jars.

Dealers, too, can easily augment their sales of fruit jars by occasionally calling the attention of the housewife to them.

A Training for Clerks.

Regina, Sask., Sept. 15.—"I think that every retail store should have a school for clerks," remarked one of Regina's big merchants the other day. "And the first lesson that I would teach would be the lesson of courtesy. I know of no other quality that employes in business need so much as the quality of politeness and courtesy in dealing with the public. All are familiar with the comic supplement jokes on the "young ladies" in the department store who are too busy fixing their hair to take care of customers.

"Most of our employes are, of course, men, but don't you find that they often fail in this particular just as much as the young women? I don't know why it is, but oftentimes employes of business houses assume an attitude toward the public like that of the librarian who complained that so many people came to draw out books that he didn't have any time to read.

"We should teach our clerks that they are with us to serve the public and that it is their duty and should be their pleasure to go to any reasonable length to be of service to all who come to the store."

Announcement of Change.

Owen Sound, Ont., Sept. 15.—Since many grocers are changing business at all times, an example of an announcement of a business transfer should prove advantageous.

Recently J. McQuaker & Co. purchased the grocery business of J. R. Brown and inserted the following announcement in a neat little panel:

We have just concluded the purchase of the well known grocery business of Mr. J. R. Brown, of this town. We have arranged to take possession on the morning of the 8th of September and will occupy Mr. Brown's premises for two weeks. In order to reduce stock rapidly, we will sell at greatly reduced prices in both stores; we are now very much crowded for room and with the addition of Mr. Brown's stock, it would prove almost impossible for us to find storeroom. We have decided upon a clearing sale and prices will not be a consideration. Mr. Brown's splendid reputation as a first-class grocer should be a sufficient guarantee that the goods we put on sale will be of the best. We have not space to quote prices, come to the store for that. Mr. Brown has transferred to us his proprietary interest in his well-known brand of tea—five o'clock. We will continue to stock this tea and will have sole agency in Owen Sound. We will also sell his special blend of 40c coffee. This is an opportunity to buy goods cheap. Don't miss it.—J. McQUAKER & CO.

Against Price Cutting.

Calgary, Alta., Sept. 15.—"Price cutting has been the ruination of many an Eastern Canadian grocer," remarked a Calgary merchant who had his early experience in the east.

"I do not see why any grocer should cut a price on a staple article. This only tends to make a lower established price on that article in the district and when this happens the dealer's profits are cut down.

"When I purchase a new article I always watch for the invoice and mark the sales price accordingly regardless of what others may do and I believe this is one important factor in the success of every merchant. He should be independent enough to get a fair profit on everything that passes over his counter."

The Markets—High Prices Rule in Dried Fruits

Prunes, Apricots, Dried Apples, Currants and Raisins are All in the Same Boat —Stocks are Extremely Light, in Fact it is Years Since a Similar Condition Prevailed—Gallon Apples are Higher as a Result of Short Crop—Sugar is Weak in Primary Market But a Good Demand is Being Felt—Low Grade Coffees Higher.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS.

Currants—½c higher.

Marbots—2c higher.

Peas—Firm at advance.

Montreal, Sept. 15, 1910.

Interest during the past few days has been pretty well taken up with the Eucharistic Congress and its effect on local conditions. It seems to be taken as a low estimate that fully half a million dollars was the extra food bill during the week. Many place the figures at almost twice that. However it is an undoubted fact that local merchants are well satisfied with the result, and orders to replenish are coming to the wholesale houses.

The sugar situation is exciting considerable interest at present. It seemed weak for a time and almost looked like a sure decline, but conditions changed rapidly, and now the market looks fairly firm.

Two advances of the week are of note. They are currants and Marbot walnuts. Both the nut markets and dried fruits are on the up grade and this is a straw showing plainly which way the wind is blowing. It is following the recent advance of filberts, and there seem to be still others in both lines to follow.

Sugar.—Sugar shows a slightly firmer feeling than last week. The recent decline of refined in New York made the local market somewhat uncertain for a time, but conditions now show that there is slight chance of any immediate decline in local refined prices.

The raw market also shows added strength, and the combination may result in an advance, unless some counteracting influence shows up.

Syrup and Molasses.—During the past few days the demand for molasses has improved greatly, until now it is in a satisfactory condition. Country orders are coming well indeed, and the local consumption is much better. Prices are firm and unchanged.

In syrups the condition is the reverse. Sales are small, and not at all numerous, either locally or in the country. Prices, however, continue fairly firm.

Tea.—The only line of teas showing any considerable activity here this week is Japans. Even they are not any too greatly in demand. However it is thought that retailers will begin soon to fill up the shortage in stocks caused by the demands for the visitors so lately here and business is expected to pick up considerably in the near future.

Coffee.—Coffee roasters report fine trade in almost every line. In fact they are busier than they have been for some years past at this time of year. Rios and Santos probably have about the steadiest call, but others are not far behind. The market is firm and shows little symptoms of any immediate change.

Spices.—Spice men continue to be about the busiest they have even been at this time of year. One man reports a night force working two or three days a week, and the others are hard put to it to fill orders.

Pickling spice season is now on and the demand for these lines has made a fine start already. The cool weather now prevailing has brought on the season somewhat earlier than usual. Prices are steady.

Dried Fruits.—Currants are ½c higher this week, owing to the firm state of the Grecian market. However, advices from Greece received here since the advance, show a weaker state of things than was thought, and it would be no surprise if the former level were to be regained before long.

The first fruit boat from Spain is now on the water, having sailed on the 12th. The second is to leave in two weeks. It is reported that the cargo of the first is high grade, and already most of it has been placed.

With the scarcity reported in almost all lines, dried fruits will be at a premium this coming fall, unless all signs fail.

Nuts.—Marbot walnuts are 2c higher this week. The advance came as a result of the short crop this year, and the small spot stock in this city. According to local importers it is only the first of a series of advances covering nearly all the lines of imported nuts. At any rate all reports received over the cable tend to foster such a belief, and the buying is being done with such advances in view.

Filberts are firm at the recent advance. Other lines show added firmness.

Evaporated Apples.—At present there is a dullness in the evaporated apple market which is perhaps more the result of no first class stock than a scarcity of buyers. However there is little moving, prices remain at the same old level.

Evaporated apples, prime	0 08

Beans and Peas.—Beans appear to be improving, for what first class stock is offering. That is a decidedly better state of affairs than has been the case for some time past. Prices remain firm at the present high figure.

Peas are quiet at unchanged quotations.

Rice and Tapioca.—Demand for Patna rices continues very strong, with a firmer tone to the market. Why these rices should be so favored at the expense of others is somewhat of a problem, but it may be due to the evenness of the grading. Rangoon rices are quiet, but firm.

Tapioca is in little demand just at present, but the quotations are firm and unchanged.

Dried Fruits—The situation has not changed much from last week. Currants are still quoted by brokers at about 26s., as compared with 19s 6d last year; Valencia raisins are a little easier. The growers are beginning to offer them for sale and as a result there is slightly lower tone to quotations. The first price last year was 18s 6d and they are now between 27s and 28s, although it is stated that they are down several shillings below those prices. Sultana raisins are also higher. According to one broker Sultanas that averaged from 12 to 20 shillings last year are now quoted at from 34 to 50 shillings. And so it goes. Spot currants, raisins and prunes are a scarcity and prunes are quoted at higher prices.

MANITOBA MARKETS

POINTERS—
General Market—Unstable.
Syrup—Stronger.
Dried Fruits—Advancing.
Evaporated Apples—Scarce.
Layer Raisins—Out of stock.

Winnipeg, Sept. 15, 1910.

The chief feature of the market this week is the fluctuating condition in many lines. Nominal prices rule just now and there are evidences still of further changes. To state a price on new crop stuff is a more difficult task on the local market than in previous years. The reason is that crops anywhere are not extra large and the export demand is so good, that in order to get a liberal supply into Western Canada, better prices must be paid. The ordering in the west is excellent and jobbers are rushed with shipments. Payments are much better than expected and there is no fear of restraining conditions in the coming year.

Transportation is working more smoothly than last week and merchants are satisfied with deliveries notwithstanding the heavy traffic of wheat to the east.

Sugar.—In the west jobbers have been disappointed with the sugar output. Larger things were expected to happen when fruit came in, but the preserving was limited.

Foreign Dried Fruits.—All lines are strong. Layer raisins are sold out and all raisin stocks are moving out rapidly. Prunes are the strongest in the list and may go many points beyond the present quotation. Currants have been going up with a vengeance and a strong future market is inevitable. Less certain has been the markets on pears, apricots, dates and figs, and they are fluctuating freely. There is no question about these lines becoming much stronger.

Syrup and Molasses.—The output is heavy just now and retailers are stocking in large quantities, although no change has been quoted, the market is firmer everywhere, due to the increased demand. The product is popular in the west as a table food and the general tone of the market will no doubt continue to improve.

Prices of Butter and Eggs Have Again Advanced

Markets During the Week Have Nearly all Moved, Some up, Others Down—Cheese, Butter, Eggs and Lard are Firm — Poultry and Honey are Easier—Trade Has Brightened and Volume of Business is Large—Exports of Butter and Cheese are Light.

Markets have in some cases strengthen considerably during the past week, a firmer market being noticed in butter, eggs and cheese. Practically all the markets show this firmness, and the increase in prices where they have been advanced was not unexpected at this season. Pastures are in good condition and production of cheese and butter keeps up well. In some markets, however, the demand is hardly met, and a noticeable firmness is felt. There is not much demand for export butter, as prices here are a little higher.

The production of cheese is keeping up well, and although not increasing there is no likelihood of it falling off yet, although the end of the season is beginning to loom into view. The demand for export is small and little is being done, the New Zealand cheese, which will be offering from now on, having had a depressing effect on the market in England. A few years ago Canada controlled 87 per cent. of the British trade, but now New Zealand has stepped in and is producing as fine a cheese as Canada at a less cost with the result that they are rapidly increasing their business in England.

Cream is being exported in increasing quantities to the United States, as the price of butter is high there, ranging from 31 to 33 cents. All the cream exported to the United States, however, is not made into butter, as some is used in making ice cream and other confections. This increasing export trade with the States will probably have the effect of raising the prices in Canada, but this will not be felt until later on.

The receipts of eggs have been gradually growing less and as selects are good demand, they are quoted at higher figures. The egg market is firm and dealers state that higher prices may be expected for quality goods

Honey is being received fairly plentifully and in some lines the quotations have been marked down, .. Poultry is also plentiful, and is meeting a good demand.

MONTREAL.

Provisions—Only two changes in quotations have been made this week. The two declines are in Windsor bacon and clear fat backs.

In spite of the rather weak condition of the market, there has been an increased demand for almost all lines.

It is thought by local packers that the weakness is only temporary.

Cheese—Practically the only cheese now selling for export is the extra fancy variety. Even these orders are few and far between.

Conditions in the country are somewhat easier this week, and buyers are showing their confidence by taking up most of the offerings.

Receipts are falling off to a small extent, being only 71,230 boxes, as against 73,444 same week last year. For the season they are 1,328,248, as against 1,367,979 same season last year.

Butter—Butter continues firm, and is in very strong demand at present prices. Sales during the past week by the retailer were exceptionally heavy, and undoubtedly there will be a call made on the wholesale before long to replenish stocks. Prices are unchanged.

Receipts are about the same as last year, 13,701 packages, as against 12,791 same week last year. For the season they are 1,328,248, as against 1,367,979 same season last year.

Eggs—Eggs are firm, and in the case of selects and No. 1 they are 1c higher. The reason is said to be the large demands made on present stocks of late. People were bound to have eggs, and the large drafts were made on the two lines mentioned.

Receipts for the week are very high, 8,876 cases, as against 5,124 same week last year. For the season they are 154,112, as against 155,821, same season last year.

Provisions—The price of live hogs has increased during the week to $9.25, and there is a scarcity reported throughout the country. Different houses are quoting different prices. Lard has advanced another quarter of a cent, and supplies are inclined to be short. There has been a good demand for pork during the past two weeks, but supplies were sufficient for every call.

Butter—The butter market assumed stronger proportions during the past week. Receipts have been falling off more noticeably every week, and the demand for first quality stocks is too heavy for the supplies. The production of butter, however, for this season is good, and while the advanced prices were really expected by the trade, they admit that the supplies are coming in pretty well. The advance in prices not only includes creamery, but also all the grades.

Eggs.—What was said of butter may be applied to eggs. Selects are rather scarce, the supply being below the demand. However, supplies are still being used to meet general demand, jobbers not having had to fall back on their storage supplies. The demand is steady. The recent advance in price was expected at this time of the year.

Poultry.—The trade in poultry has rapidly come to its own. Supplies are being received regularly now and the demand is heavy. The prospects are for good business in poultry as there seems to be a good supply in the country.

WINNIPEG.

Lard.—The output is heavy and merchants are putting in good supplies. The winter trade is expected to be excellent and prices are held fairly strong.

Butter.—The butter market is strong and supplies are a little scarce. The cold, wet weather has cut off the supply and higher prices are being quoted. Creamery is jobbing at 7 cents and No. 1 dairy at 23 cents.

Eggs.—The egg market is the strongest that has ever existed at this time of year. It is exceptional that eggs should be brought into the province before the tenth of September. Stocks are moving well, however, and jobbers are selling at 27 cents for fresh laid.

Cheese.—The trade is good everywhere in the west and prices are quite unchanged. Ontario sells at 13½c and Manitoba, 12 cents.

Profit on Bacon Insufficient to English Grocers

J. M. Mussen, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Leeds and Hull, England, says that in view of the restricted supplies of bacon and the highly enhanced prices for same which have prevailed for some time, there is an inclination among grocers in that part of England to take steps themselves to relieve the situation.

"As the supplies from Canada and the United States have appreciably fallen off" he adds, "and the hog meats recently introduced from China and Servia have found but little favor, it has been proposed to 'diminish the demand' by advancing prices even much higher than have so far obtained. It is explained that for some time past the bacon trade has been a losing one to grocers, who claim that they themselves have borne the burden of the advance in prices and as there does not seem to be any imminent decrease in market prices or any other sources from which bacon supplies can be obtained to make up the deficiency it is quite possible that this action may be taken. The result, would, of course, be to make bacon such a price that it would become a prohibited article in many households. Should this proposal be carried out, a further marked diminution in the consumption of bacon would inevitably follow, but it is contended by grocers that a reasonable profit on a smaller turnover would be preferable to a loss on a large trade."

Mr. Mussen, in view of the state of the bacon market in the Old Country, suggests that Canadian breakfast food manufacturing firms avail themselves of the opportunity to increase their sales in the United Kingdom.

YOUR TIME

is too valuable to expend in "talking" any particular product. We do all the "educational" work for Shredded Wheat. We aim to sell it before it is placed on your shelves But nearly every grocer has a fussy customer "from Missouri." When she asks you about breakfast foods, here are three things you can tell her about

Shredded Wheat Biscuit

First—It is the cleanest, purest, most nutritious cereal food, made in the finest, cleanest food factory in the world.

Second—It contains all the rich, body-building material in the whole wheat grain—not merely the white flour, which is mostly starch.

Third—Being in biscuit form, it makes delicious combinations with fruits—in fact, it is the only cereal breakfast food that makes wholesome and natura combinations with fruits.

Memorize these three points and be ready for the customer who asks questions.

Brisker Buying in Flour Since the Last Decline

That 30 Cent Drop Said to Have Been the Result of Price-cutting Among Millers and Not Warranted by Conditions — Markets Steady—Eastern Oat Crop Heavier Than for Years Past —Wheat Shipped From the West This Year Earlier Than Ever, Practically Making a Record.

It is rather difficult to tell just where the flour market is this week as the primary market has been playing a see-saw game. The last drop in price according to one authority was due to a price cutting war between some prominent millers and it is asserted that this drop was not warranted. At any rate at the present price there is much better business passing. Millers who have been asked for opinions state that they do not look for a further decline with conditions as at present.

Reports from the west are to the effect that on Saturday last the cutting of grain had been completed. Wet weather has been experienced in certain districts and will prevent threshing for a few days and may possibly affect the grade of the wheat. One result has been that receipts at Fort William have declined. The world's wheat crop for 1910 has been estimated at 3,483,840,000 bushels compared with 3,637,144,000 bushels for 1909, giving a shrinkage of 153,304,000 bushels.

What might be termed a record in early shipping was the first shipment of wheat from Fort William a week ago. Millers are paying good premiums for October delivery. Export trade is light, as prices have not yet reached an export basis.

In regard to oats the stocks at Fort William and other elevators in Eastern Canada show six and one half millions compared with ¾ million last year. Ontario and Quebec have heavy yields of oats this year and the quality is said to compare favorably with Manitoba oats. One dealer has stated that the two eastern provinces will have sufficient oats for their home consumption independent of supplies from Manitoba.

The rolled oats market is steady with good business doing. Millers state that they do not expect reduced prices.

MONTREAL.

Flour.—Since the recent decline in flours there has been a little better trade as the customary result. Prices continue firm at the lower figure, however, and millers say they will go no lower for some time to come, unless something occurs to put a different face on the matter.

Some export trade is reported, though it is only the normal amount that might be expected at this time of year.

Rolled Oats.—There is a steady undertone to the rolled oats market, but at the same time there is only a small volume of trade passing.

In cornmeals there is considerably more activity. Local demand is good, and there has been an increase in the foreign.

Prices of both lines show firmness, particularly the latter.

TORONTO.

Flour.—Prices have held firm at the last decline and demand has been rather keen. Receipts are coming rather freely. Millers express the opinion that they do not look for any further decline in the price of flour, at least not for the present. The last drop is said in one quarter to be the result of price cutting among the millers themselves.

Cereals.—There is a good demand for cereals and shipments of oats and wheat are being received regularly. While one house felt that a decline in oats might occur at any time and with consequent results to the rolled oats market the general opinion was that any movement of that nature was not close at hand.

¶ Don't be afraid of Failure, Brother Grocer.

¶ The flours you have been selling hitherto have failed you woefully.

¶ Why, then, you should profit by this non-success; seeking out the flaws, the imperfections, the quality slips, guarding against a repetition of these flour defects.

¶ There are many retailers, you know, who don't profit by their failures.

¶ Of course, we don't mean to refer to that queer way of doing business entitled—"Every failure a success."

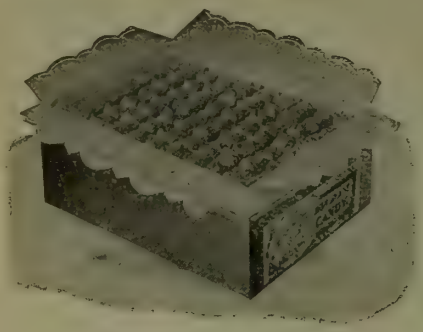
¶ But YOU will improve your quality, your service, analyze every mistake, understand every flaw.

¶ And you will start selling FIVE ROSES, since it is right in store and kitchen.

¶ And when you begin selling FIVE ROSES, B'rer Brocer, it's because you have profited by past disappointment and don't want to repeat.

¶ And when your turnover grows nimbler with every purchase, and the sales seem so easy, and your profits are clean, and you get trade you never hoped to secure, and your opposition cannot match your quality—

¶ Then you'll be on the fast train to success—you'll become a FIVE ROSES enthusiast, too.



¶ No longer haunted by the fear of complaints, loss of trade, ultimate failure.

¶ Isn't it worth your while to try FIVE ROSES, Brother Grocer?

"CHRISTIE BISCUITS
—sell more than biscuits."

That's the text of all our advertising to the trade.

And—there's a reason for it.

A majority of the particular women of Canada prefer "Christie Biscuits."

Our national trade is positive proof of that statement.

Now, Mr. Merchant! Isn't it reasonable to believe that if your best customers cannot buy "Christie Biscuits" in your store, they will buy them at your competitor's.

More than that—they may reasonably transfer most of their trade to the grocer handling "The purest of all pure foods."

Aggressive general advertising is carrying the story of Christie Quality and Cleanliness all over the country.

That advertising is convincingly proving the fact that "Christie Biscuits are the best baked."

Your best customer will tell you that there's a Christie Biscuit for every taste and they all taste delicious.

The moral is plain.

Clinch the paying trade.

Christie Biscuits certainly do sell more than biscuits.

Early Apples are Being Quoted at a High Price

Supply is Not Plentiful and as a Result Price Has Been Boosted—Peaches, Pears and Plums Bear the Brunt of Trade —Tomatoes and Other Vegetables for Pickling are in Heavy Demand at the Present Time—Lemons are Steady Before a Normal Trade—Cantaloupes Plentiful in Toronto.

While heavy trading in the seasonable fruits is undountedly a feature of the market just now, there is a scale of high prices on apples that seems to be significant. Duchess that were quoted a week or two ago at from two to three dollars a barrel are now up to four dollars and the supply is not at all plentiful. St. Lawrences of good quality sold in baskets are bringing a high price and these conditions seem to point to a general high price in the apple market for the rest of the season. It has been repeatedly said that apples were a failure this year, and while there are quite a few to reach the market yet in comparison with other years the yield is small and high prices will not surprise those who are acquainted with the conditions.

Peaches, pears and plums are being sold freely. The quality is generally good, but the supplies do not seem to be any too abundant. However, the general opinion is that the crop in each case will be a good one. Cantaloupes are bringing a good price in Montreal, but they are flooding the Toronto market and prices are easy.

Tomatoes are moving freely at a fairly low price. As pointed out in another column the present is the opportune time for the grocer to endeavor to get his share of the demand for those vegetables that are used in pickling. There is a good business passing and the grocer has the chance to get his share.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Good jelly crab apples are on the market this week, selling at $4 per bbl. Blueberries are scarce, and even those which are appearing are of only mediocre quality. As a result of this the price has gone up to $2,50 per box.

Pears are in good demand, in fact they are being used to such an extent that the price of barrels is now $1 higher. This is thought to be only temporary, however. Melons show much the same condition as pears, only that there are none too many to supply the market, and as a result there has been a $2 advance. Trade has been encouraging lately owing largely to the influx of out-of-town visitors.

Vegetables.—Green beans are about done, and prices are up to $1 a basket as a result. The remainder of the market is somewhat busier than usual, but otherwise featureless. The increased business is ascribed to the Eucharistic visitors who have been here for some days past. Last Friday and Saturday marked the finish of a fine week's trade. The lines most in demand were staples, potatoes, corn, etc.

It is hoped among the trade that this week there will be almost as many of the guests remaining, and moreover there is a tendency to continue buying when once started.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—While peaches are claiming the first place on the market just now there are several other fruits coming in for considerable attention. Plums are arriving rather freely. They are of fine quality, but the market is not at all crowded with them. Grapes are slightly more plentiful this week, but the receipts are as yet not at all heavy. Canadian cantaloupes are, according to the dealers, too plentiful and have reached bottom prices. The market demand is not sufficient for the present supply. The conditions now existing are hardly likely to last long. Peaches are of fine quality, St. Johns, Crawfords and Albertas being the leading varieties. They are also arriving from across the line and some have arrived from Colorado and even Utah. There is a big demand for peaches and no difficulty is experienced in disposing of supplies. Pears are also moving rapidly, and altogether the market may be said to be quite satisfactory.

Apples are noticeably scarce and the price is ample evidence of the conditions in this case. Duchess are quoted as high as four dollars a barrel. Fancy St. Lawrence are also high. Apples are not a heavy crop and easy prices are not looked for. In fact there are no indications of low prices for apples this year. A consignment of 600 cases of peaches from the Hamilton-Grimsby district were shipped to the Old Country this week. Lemons are steady before a general but easy demand. Early Canadian peaches are done and the last of the berries have gone for another season.

Vegetables.—Some of the vegetables are already passing. Beans are about done and dealers state that they can hardly give cabbage away. Other vegetables are becoming scarcer and the bulk of the present trade is centreing around tomatoes, red and green peppers, cucumbers, potatoes, etc. The tomato crop has turned out well according to general reports and not only are there many being marketed, but the canning and catsup factories are getting a large share. The grocer should not overlook the pickling demand just now. The season is right at its zenith and the demand for small onions, cucumbers cauliflower and peppers and other vegetables is at its height. The potato market is steady and there is every indication of a good crop.

THE VERDICT

Gentlemen of the Jury: I am glad you are unanimous in your verdict, and wish to congratulate you on arriving at your decision so quick. I concur in your finding that Follina Bros.' pack of Lemons is par excellence. The evidence produced clearly indicates general satisfaction in hand ing their lemons. Follina Bros.' boxes are standard size—arrive in an unbroken condition, and contain Lemons of a superior grade and quality. I recommend Follina Bros.' pack to all dealers. When you order, mention Follina.

Supplies of Fish Have Not Been Encouraging

Reports are Almost a Unit to That Effect—Business Has Been Improving and it Should Not be Long Until it Becomes Brisk—The Outlook is for Higher Prices Unless the Supplies Arrive More Freely—Receipts up to Present Have Been Small—Same Condition Prevails in Almost all Lines.

Oysters and smoked fish are the most active lines just now, and the trade is inquiring for a fair quantity of salt and pickled fish.

The fishing as far as haddock are concerned has been poor, and the scarcity is very pronounced. It is stated that unless supplies come in much more freely in the near future, prices are going to soar.

The situation in halibut is much the same as the foregoing. Also it presents the feature that the supply of frozen is hardly enough to satisfy requirements, and it is being drawn on more heavily from day to day.

In Labrador herrings, the first class article is exceptionally scarce for this time of year, and there is a decided firmness in the present situation.

The mackerel catch last season was a failure. Present stocks are insufficient to take care of the fall demand ,and higher prices seem to be a certainty.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax, Sept. 15.—The export of fish to foreign ports has commenced. The Lady Napier that sailed from here on the 10th, for Brazil, took a cargo of dry fish, valued at $25,000. This is one of the largest cargoes exported from Halifax for some time. Arrivals of fish have been disappointing, but as the weather is good for curing, no doubt fish that have been carried through July and August will now be ready for market. A few stray cargoes of Newfoundland and Gaspe are arriving. Dealers are not anxious to buy at present prices on the coast, preferring to wait until the fish reach the market and business will be done on a sale before purchases basis, while the present high prices continue.

There is not much doubt that the Labrador fishery will be short, and the Newfoundland trap fishery will not nearly be an average one, but the hook and line men on the coast of Newfoundland have been doing well for the last two or three weeks.

Codfish is firm at $5.50 for quintal.

There is not much improvement in pickled fish. A few herring are being taken on the coast, and mackerel are very scarce. The latter are bringing record prices.

QUEBEC.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—There is a firm feeling throughout all lines of fish. This is due largely to the very unsatisfactory fishing during the past month. This is particularly the case with haddock, halibut, and mackerel. It seems a certainty that there will be a shortage and higher prices in these lines.

Oysters and smoked fish are very popular at present, as is only natural about this time of year.

Trade in other lines has been only fair.

Toronto, Sept. 15.—Demand for fish has shown considerable improvement of late, and all the supplies that are received are quickly snapped up. Halibut, white fish, salmon trout and herring are still in great demand, and white fish will for some time yet be offered on the market. The various houses are beginning to prepare for the coming season, which has hardly opened up to any extent yet. Oysters are being quoted at $1.85 a gallon for selects, and although there is an

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 15. — Halibut has become scarcer than ever, with the result that the price has gone up to four cents wholesale. The prospect that with continued limited supply the price will advance higher during the course of the next few months. The stormiest time of the year is November and early December, and in that time the boats have not the same advantage in fishing as they have during the days and nights when the sea is fairly calm.

Although this is the close season, the Fraser cohoe salmon are coming in freely. The fishermen are getting 30 cents per fish, which is high, for it is not many years back when fifteen cents was counted a high price. Even at this price there is big demand from the canneries, and there is not enough to go round.

With the falling off in halibut, there is more call for herring, and many of these are being caught in the Gulf of Georgia. The fish are of good quality and size, and fishermen are doing well at this fishery.

Winnipeg, Sept. 15.—The fish trade has kept up well considering the supplies have been hard to get, and deliveries uncertain. The quality of fresh fish brought from a distance is surprisingly good.

The canned stuff is moving well and it is expected that all salmon will be quoted higher in a short time. Lobsters have practically been sold out, and prices are naturally firm.

Eggs by Weight Claimed to be Impracticable

Wholesale Dealers in New York Sound Objections—The Use of Dummy Goods For Making a Quantity Impression — Trouble in France About Cost of Living—Other Brief Items for Busy Merchants.

Cables from European olive oil producing sections state that the markets are strong and advancing.

Recent reports from Smyrna announce the opening of the fig bazaars there at 34s. 3d. per cwt. for regular proportion of sizes. This is said to be the highest opening in a good many years.

"Everything comes to him who waits," should read "to him who works."

Watch for the Canadian grape season—it will be on in a short time.

The New York State Grocers' Association at their recent convention adopted resolutions favoring the protected selling price plan. The retailers of that State were urged to co-operate with all manufacturers, who adopt this plan and thus, they claimed, to assure a reasonable profit for the dealers. It is set forth in the resolutions that the manufacturer's right to set and maintain minimum prices has been amply demonstrated, and that the so-called price-cutter is a demoralizer of trade conditions.

"How can we get all the merchants of our town to join the Retail Merchants' Association?" was one of the questions asked at the recent convention of Pennsylvania retailers, but no one was able to offer an answer.

Wholesale egg dealers in New York city claim that they cannot practically sell eggs by weight, and they have enumerated their difficulties to the weights and measures commissioner, who has been enforcing the new eggs-by-weight by-law.

There are some businesses—the tobacconist's for instance—where quantity of stock is a stong selling factor. Strange as it may seem, few will go into a tobacconist's shop unless the shelves are well stocked, although the variety of cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos may be very limited. In this particular line, dummy cartons of brands established and packed, purporting to contain goods are often used, and effectively, too, for while one-fifth of the supply may be genuine and contain actual stock, the rest may very well be dummies. Grocers can often make immense pyramids of certain specialties with a view of impressing buyers with the magnitude of the stock and presumably of their large sale for it. Not infrequently the greater portion of canisters, jars or bottles are empty. Boxes of fruit and other supplies are also often dummies, and hollow windows in which large stocks purpose to be exhibited take the place of solid stores.

The Committee of the General Federation of Labor in France, has decided to post up broadcast a placard protesting against the high price of food, which it attributes to the disgraceful manipulation of speculators. Meetings will also be organized throughout France. The committee calls upon the workers to do without the middleman by buying as far as possible from co-operative stores, and to boycott sugar, wine and meat until the price of these commodities has been reduced. It looks as if the commission didn't know very much about co-operative stores, so far as their methods in this country are concerned.

A merchant friend was asked recently, "What do you think should be done with persons who give short weights in trade?" To which he replied, "I think they ought to be given "long weights" in jail."

TO DEVELOP FISH INDUSTRY.

Royal Commission in the West Looking Into Conditions.

Regina, Sask., Sept. 15. — The first meetings of the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the fisheries of Saskatchewan and Alberta, were held in Regina the week of September 5, and in Saskatoon the week of September 12. The commission composes Professor Prince, Ottawa; Judge Maguire, Prince Albert, and Dr. Euston Sisley, Calgary.

The chairman, in opening the proceedings, expressed the hope that the commission, which was first appointed with large powers to investigate, would result in gathering of such information as would enable them to make recommendations to Ottawa, which would be in the interest of the western fisheries generally.

The most interesting evidence given during the day was that of Dr. Charlton, provincial bacteriologist, who submitted analyses of the various lakes and rivers of the province with a view to showing their adaptability or otherwise for fish cultivation.

Little things count ever so much. Just the cool appearance of the employes in a store makes customers feel more comfortable when they come in, and that means that they are more "sellable."

Are you studying up methods for getting fall business? There is going to be something doing this autumn for every merchant who is alive to his opportunities.

This "Coast-Sealed" Cabinet

will increase your Oyster Profits

Don't be skeptical. Two sound reasons lie back of this statement.

1. It keeps oysters absolutely fresh for a longer time than any other cabinet.
2. It uses only one-eighth of the ice required by other cabinets.

Note its unique construction---the picture tells the story. And we sell you "Coast-Sealed" Cabinets outright for $17.00 each f.o.b. Toronto. This will appeal to independent grocers who rightly object to being coerced into buying a line of oysters through jug-handled loaning agreements on Oyster Display Cabinets.

We rely on quality alone to sell our "Coast-Sealed" Oysters.

Write us for full particulars and prices.

Vancouver Grocers' Picnic a Strong Attraction

More Than 2,000 Attend—Dealers and Their Clerks Demonstrate Their Alacrity in Tying Parcels, Foot Races and Tug-of-war—Wholesalers Defeated in the Latter—Winners in Best Delivery Outfits.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 12.—Vancouver grocers let themselves loose on Labor Day and gathered in force at Exhibition Park, at the fourth annual picnic. Fully 2,000 people were present altogether, and a thoroughly enjoyable time was spent. Not only were there events for young and old, boys, girls, men and women, but a parcel tying contest and sign writing competition was held to stimulate interest along these important lines to the trade, and also prizes for the best showing of delivery rigs and horses.

Many neat turnouts entered in the delivery contest, both single and double rigs being shown. In the wholesale, Leeson, Dickie, Gross & Co., took first; in double rigs for retailers, W. H. Walsh got first and second, while the London Grocery took first in singles.

J. A. Low, of the London Grocery, gave himself quite an advertisement, when he won firsts in both the parcel tying and sign writing contests.

Retailers Best in Tug-of-War.

Plenty of fun was furnished by the tug-of-war and comedy races, and judging from the laughter and applause with which different events were greeted, the crowd evidently enjoyed themselves. The married men proved themselves superior to the single men in the tug-of-war, and in the pull between the employes of the wholesale and retail houses, the latter took victory in two straight contests.

The ladies were quite shy in entering the events provided for them, but they soon entered into the spirit of the day and when the nail-driving competition and the egg and spoon race were called there was almost a surplus of competitors.

There was the usual blueberry pie eating contest for the boys and all kinds of races for the children in general. To use a thorough trade term, the employes of the W. H. Malkin Company handed the lemons to their opponents, the drivers for the wholesale houses, in the baseball tournament. The score was held down to first league figures, namely two runs to one.

Races For Members of the Trade.

Then came races for members of the trade. While A. J. Low was the swiftest with his hands, Alex. Gunn proved rapid with his feet, which is a particular virtue on a busy day in the store. He was first in the hundred-yard dash for clerks, while among the drivers, H. Kirkbride was the winner. The race for travelers, developed high speed in Cameron, representative for Kelly, Douglas & Company.

Mrs. James Henderson showed that while her husband may be able to dance the Hielan' Fling and cut high capers with his taes, she was none the less active with her feet when it came to a fifty yard dash. In that event for the grocers' wives she reached successfully out for first, and among the clerks' wives, Mrs. Pritchard showed that she was alacrity itself.

A race for the younger generation of grocery proprietors was won by Charles Henderson. Those over the forty-year mark, who had raced for many a day in business were given a chance to show that they still had wind left for a-bit-of-a-go on the track, but it was a tight squeeze between A. G. Main and W. Clark, the former jumping the counter just in time.

Traveler Vividly Sets Forth Trade Troubles

In His Movements Throughout Canada He has Come Across Many Different Stamps of Retail Dealers — Jealousy Among Competitors Hindering Advancement — Suggestions For Improvement.

The traveler who moves about from city to town and town to village usually hears of all the troubles of the trade. An observant knight of the grip who has been in both eastern and western Canada enumerates many of the ills the trade is heir to and his description of them will no doubt read familiar to his confreres and to many retailers as well. He says in a letter to The Canadian Grocer:

"As one moves about, meets and converses with retail grocers, of various stamps and with diverse ideas, the more he is impressed with the necessity of the value of a good trade paper like yours to take the lead in directing the thought of the retail men to a higher plane of doing business.

"We live in an age of progress, development, and advancement but many retail grocers have not yet awakened to this fact, and are struggling under difficulties out of which they see no escape. Instead of eagerly looking for and encouraging efforts intended to improve the general tone of the trade, they are complaining about the small profits, and trying to put the blame where it does not belong.

"Some of them stand behind their counters, work hard, and worry harder, but are too jealous of others who are struggling under the same difficulties to exchange ideas; as a result each one has a sure tonic of his own make to cure the disease, and nine out of ten do not understand the nature of the trouble.

Everybody to Blame.

"Some put the blame on the wholesale houses, others on the manufacturers, others on the departmental stores and still others in the price-cutters; but none ever attach any blame to themselves.

"Some want the price cutting stopped, and others want to sell just as they please. Some are pleased because bribery to some extent is checked through the Secret Commissions Act and others think it is unduly interfering with their rights, and are "tickled to death" if they can secure the goods cheaper by some hook or crook and defeat the law. While some look upon conferences with the wholesalers and manufacturers with favor, others see nothing but danger.

"Some talk intelligently about legislation on behalf of the trade, but many of them know nothing whatever about it. While some are working day and night with the desire to see evils in the general trade removed, others are sharing the benefits of their work without bothering about it; they do not think for a moment that they should bear a part of the expense of the work. Some read their trade paper with great interest and profit ,and others cannot see how it is possible to learn anything more.

Jealousy Still Rampant.

"Under such circumstances those who are public spirited and are trying to improve trade conditions have a difficult problem to face, and often have reason to grow weary of well doing. Progressive retailers have risen above the unfriendly rivalry with their neighbors, but it is remarkable if not deplorable, how jealous retailers are, in some towns, of each other.

"Some won't speak and actually stay away from places where they might meet their competitors in business. They expect the general public to support them, but they do not support each other. They complain and grumble about trade conditions, but haven't the manly courage to meet one another and suggest better methods.

Difficult to Reach Them.

"The people need the towns and the conveniences of the retail stores and will patronize them in preference to sending their money away to large centres, if the retailers themselves will learn to do their part right. How to reach this class of merchant with the gospel of proper methods seems to be the difficulty. He will not attend meetings and a good many do not even read their own trade paper; neither do they support the local paper of the town. If the large stores can draw the immense trade which naturally belongs to the towns, through constant advertizing is it not reasonable to suppose that a town can draw the trade for its own neighborhood through the medium of the local paper if properly utilized."

It Pays to Handle SEALSHIPT OYSTERS

Why Not Sell REAL Fresh Oysters and Get Real Profits From Pleased Customers?

Four points make a success of the Sealshipt Oyster System. FIRST, the fine quality of Sealshipt Oysters and their perfect, sea-fresh condition, including the sea tang preserved by our Sealshiptors. SECOND, Publicity, consisting of our extensive magazine advertising, reinforced by the wide discussion of food purity in newspapers. THIRD, Our co-operation with the grocer—the local advertising helps we give him to draw to his store the sales we create by our general advertising. FOURTH, Oysters handled under any but the Sealshipt System of outside icing and airtight containers are so generally inferior that people leave the stores where they are sold and go to the ones which sell Sealshipt Oysters. If you secure the Sealshipt Agency you'll get the trade of the merchant who handles the other kind of oysters. If you let a competitor get the Sealshipt Agency your customers will go to him for their oysters and you'll be lucky if he doesn't sell them all their groceries. Don't delay until the active season before investigating, but write us at once for our general catalogue, terms and full particulars.

Prosperity of Burmah Depends on the Rice Crop

Burma exports annually more than two billion pounds of rice. It is the money crop of the country, and the people are rich or poor as the rice grows well or ill. The grain is harvested as "paddy," and in the fields it looks not unlike wheat or oats, but every kernel has a husk on it and this sticks to it as if it were glued. The rice paddy is packed in bags and is floated on barges down the streams to the Irrawaddy river and towed to Rangoon, the port where the mills are, and from whence the finished product is shipped.

The rice is of various grades, according to the broken grains in it, and every shipment has to be tested by counting the number of whole grains in a fixed quantity. The polishing of the rice is an interesting procedure. The paddy, or rice, in the husks, is first winnowed. It is then passed through grinding stones so carefully set they pare off the husk without breaking the rice. The stones are of a composition harder than iron and they have to be roughened every week by skilled Hindoos, who understand how to fix them. It is winnowed and fanned until the husk is off and then the kernels are polished. This is done with chamois skin, the grains being thrown back and forth against a roller covered with this material. The chamois cylinder goes around at the rate of 500 revolutions a minute and when the rice flows out from it it is as clean and white as it is possible to be made.

EXPERIENCE TEACHES.

"Sure and oi t'ink ut pays to be honest, afther all", said Pat. "Oi troied that phoney-weight business in my grocery-sthore losht year, and oi losht money by ut."

"How so? Did you get found out?" asked his friend.

"No, sorr," returned Pat. "Oi made the mistake of fillin' me weights wid lead, so that ivery mon thot come to me for wan pound of sugar got twinty-three ounces to the pound."—Harper's Weekly.

FRIENDS—NOT GROWLERS

RISING SUN Stove Polish in Cakes never comes back to you with growls from the housekeeper. It is always up to the same high standard maintained for forty years, and is always just right. That's why we have the thousands upon thousands of grocers pushing it everywhere. Grocers don't wish to run the risk of losing a good customer by passing out an inferior stove polish, which is wrong more often than it is right. RISING SUN makes friends for you and for us in every household where you put it.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

You Must Realize that an article which has a huge amount of consumer advertising behind it to pull it through the stores, as has

2 in 1

The World's Best Shoe Polish

must be a profitable and quick-selling line to handle.

But in addition to this ad-pulling force, "2 in 1" has sterling merit behind it. It preserves the boots and makes them pliable; is waterproof; shines quickly and lasts a long time; does not soil the clothes or clog the brush, and is just now in increasing demand.

You can't afford to be without "2 in 1" on your shelves.

"In Addition to tracing Direct Business to our Advertising in The Canadian Grocer--- —our representatives, working all the way from Sydney to Victoria, have many times reported the assistance it has been to them, because the trade had already been acquainted with our lines."

The above is taken from a letter written us not long ago by a Toronto firm doing a national business.

A manufacturer in Windsor, Ont., writes as follows:

"The direct effect of our advertising in The Grocer is easily traced, as our business is about 90 per cent. mail order.

"We have received business from coast to coast, where we were not soliciting patronage, so The Grocer must have been directly responsible."

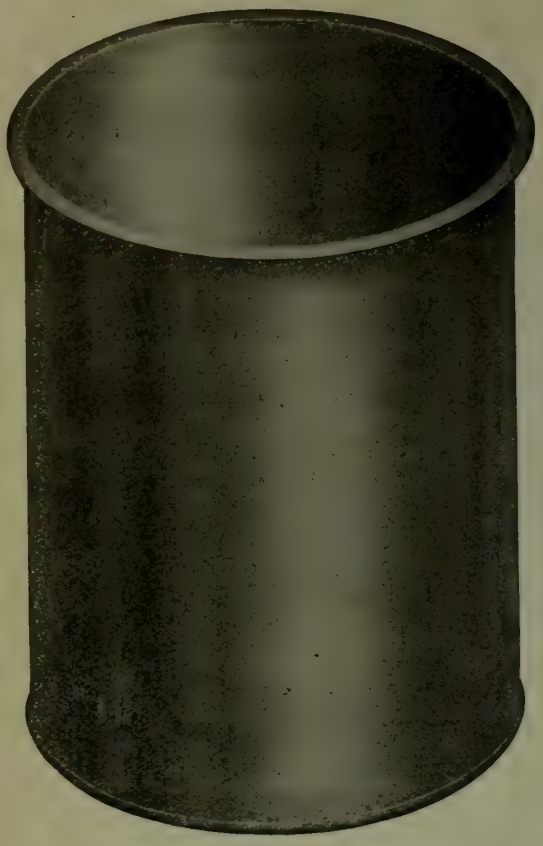
MONTREAL, CANADA

You make better profits on the better grade peas

INSTEAD of selling imported French Peas to supply the demand for better grade peas, sell our Extra Fine Sifted (Petits Pois) Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted and Early June Sifted.

Not from sentimental or patriotic reasons, but because they will yield you a better profit, give your customers much greater satisfaction and help to increase the demand for the more profitable higher grade peas.



That vivid green color which makes some lines of imported French Peas look so pretty is produced by Sulphate of Copper—a chemical that is not only very injurious to health, but which kills the true flavor of the peas.

We never use sulphate of copper or any other coloring chemicals in our canned peas.

Extra Fine Sifted (Petit Pois), Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted and Early June Sifted are thoroughly sterilized, the very pick of the pack, fine, tender, and of exquisite flavor.

You can materially increase your profits and your reputation by pushing these lines. Try it.

SHORTAGE OF THE PEA CROP

One way to solve the Pea Shortage Question is to handle "1761" brand of Imported Marrowfat Peas.

The "Canadian Grocer" of August 12 had the following editorial on the Pea Situation:—

CANNED PEAS SHORT

There has been a big grab for canned peas, and still jobbers are short. The trouble is that there was no a sufficient quantity packed to supply all demands and there is not the remotest chance of prices coming down

One jobber states that he could only secure 250 cases out of every 1,000 ordered. Another says that there will be no more than a 60 per cent. delivery.

In Toronto this week some wholesaler, didn't have a case of peas to sell for present delivery, so low have the old stocks been run.

Retailers, therefore, who have not contracted for their canned peas, should delay no longer. Prices are sure not to be lower and there is every possibility of them going up. Of course there is the limited price when stock will be imported.

Demand for peas has rapidly been soaring in recent years and retailers should pay particular attention to this article.

A few years ago the Canadian Trade ridiculed the idea of importing Marrowfat Peas from England into Canada, and it certainly at first sight appears as far fetched an idea as "Shipping Coals to Newcastle," but to-day we are sending our Marrowfat Peas from Coast to Coast, and the public are beginning to realize that a 10c package of "1761" Brand of Marrowfat Peas makes, when prepared—full directions for which are on each package—more Peas than the contents of two cans, and what is more important—EQUAL TO FRESH GARDEN PEAS.

Our "1761" Brand of English Crown Marrowfat Peas contain in addition to the choicest hand picked Peas, a steeping tablet impregnated with mint, as well as a boiling bag for use when preparing.

Ask your Wholesaler to enclose with your next order, trial case of these goods, or write us direct for Prices.

The Chief Competitor
Of Prepared Foods is Home Cooking

¶ Housewives would not go to the trouble of preparing all the foods they do at home if they could buy satisfactory substitutes ready cooked.

Most women who are prejudiced against goods in cans and bottles have simply tried the wrong kind.

¶ The only way to build up a good business on prepared foods is to sell a quality as good or better than can be made in the home.

HEINZ 57 VARIETIES
PURE FOOD PRODUCTS

are made of the best materials money can buy. They are prepared in model kitchens by methods which are the result of forty years' experience aud endeavor to improve the best home ways of food preparation.

¶ The housewife may be able, in some instances, to prepare similar foods that will be more pleasing to her own individual family, but she cannot make cleaner, purer, or better.

FACTS ABOUT ADVERTISING

By The Advertising Manager

IV.

One of the best known and most successful retailers in America remarked that "the manufacturer or jobber who advertises in the trade paper that I read shows he is polite enough to tell me about his goods when I have the time to listen."

When you come to think of it, there is something in what this merchant says.

A salesman for the Blank Co., calls on a grocer when the latter is very busy—as he usually is. The merchant's mind is full of matters that affect his business at the moment, and, while courteous, he really does not give the salesman his undivided attention.

The sale is often lost before the traveler starts in on his talk.

For it is an inflexible law—as inflexible as the laws of nature—that in the process of selling, a prospective buyer's attention must be gained before any progress can be made.

* * *

Until this is done, what use is there struggling along in an attempt to arouse interest? The salesman has about as much chance of doing so as he has of blowing up the rock of Gibraltar with a penny firecracker.

The fault lies, not with the salesman, but with the Blank Co.

For there is a way of getting the merchant's attention—

—maintaining it to the point of interest—

—even, in many cases, arousing a desire to buy—

—before the traveler sets foot in the retail store.

The Blank Co. neglects to take advantage of it.

The Jones Co., competitors of the Blank Co., have been broad enough in their selling methods to recognize this way of getting the mechant's attention.

They advertise in The Canadian Grocer.

When the Jones Co.'s traveler walks into the store and states who he represents the merchant knows a good deal about his firm and its lines, and has already had the main points of the traveler's selling talk hammered home to him.

* * *

The Jones Co. believe in telling the dealer about their goods when he has the time—and inclination—to listen.

They believe the dealer appreciates their endeavor to get his attention in a way that will save his time and that of their travelers during business hours.

It means good dollars and cents to the Jones Co. to prepare the dealer for their traveler by giving him a lot of information about their proposition through The Canadian Grocer.

QUIT LOSING!

What's the use of sticking to anything that is continually causing you loss? If your credit customers are the source of the greatest loss to you, why not try the ONE way to make them a safe, profitable ASSET? You can do this by adopting the Allison Coupon Book System, which has proved its worth to hundreds of progressive merchants all over the country.

Allison Coupon Books

systematize credit accounts, simplify collections, please the customers and eliminate arguments. They cost but little and pay for themselves many times over.

HOW THEY WORK

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10—No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best.

For sale by the jobbing trade everywhere. Manufactured by Allison Coupon Company. Indianapolis, Ind.

The Greatest Yet

Last week in Ontario alone there was actually shipped to dealers in this province 60,606 lbs. of "SALADA" Tea. As the total tea consumption of the province is about 168,000 lbs. per week, this means that we are supplying over ONE-THIRD of Ontario's tea requirements.

It pays every dealer to push goods that are giving the public satisfaction. The following figures bear eloquent testimony to the satisfaction is giving. Our trade for the past TWENTY-ONE WEEKS shows a total INCREASE of 362,865 lbs. over the same period of 1909. The figures of our increases week by week are as follows:

Further Light on Department Store Accounting

How Such Stores Keep Their Books When Special Mark-down Sales are Made —Charge Loss to Advertising—Use of a "Cost Book" Thoroughly Explained— Simple Method for Making It—A Training for the Memory.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

The accounting system which will enable one to produce a profit in face of the heavy expense of the Department Store can never be without interest and value to a grocer. That is why I pursue this subject further.

As already stated, the department store works on selling price altogether. If there is an advance in the market on oatmeal, for instance, the stock on hand is immediately inventoried, and the advance on all the stock is charged against the grocery department. Thus, the department has the responsibility of producing returns to the amount of the new value of the oatmeal stock. The compensation is that the grocery manager now "pays less" for his oatmeal than he formerly paid, since the actual cost of the stock on hand is not changed. If the price on oatmeal declines, the stock is inventoried just the same, but then groceries is credited with the difference and thereafter has to account for just so much less. But here the advantage is not what it seems, for, the cost remaining as it was, groceries pays more for its oatmeal.

The constant effort is to make the actual inventory at the end of any period tally with the inventory which the books show. The theory of the bookkeeping end is that, at any period, the books must show just where any department stands.

Special Sales.

The instructive point is here: You are having special sales from time to time, so it will help you to know the way the Department Store manages these things. Years ago, when it was decided to sell Pears' soap for 9 cents, the drug man was told to estimate how much his loss would be and, since the sale was for the benefit of the entire store, he would be credited with his estimate and the amount would be charged to advertising. As, however, there was constant friction between the management and the department heads on these estimates, the plan was hit upon to charge advertising and credit the departments with the precise amount of the "mark-down." So now, the clerks are given the list of mark-downs and entries are made accordingly. We will say that Fairy Soap is to be sold for 3 cents; Yeast Foam at 4 cents, and Jones' 30 cent tea for 27 cents. Every sale of those articles for the day will appear as follows:

3 Fairy Soap	5-3	.09
1 Yeast Foam	5-4	.04
1 Jones'	30-27	.27

When the day's work comes up for checking in the accounting division of the office, these items will show the exact shrinkage for which the department must get credit. A number of girls is kept for no purpose other than to figure reductions. On the list noted above, the credit to the Grocery Department would be 10 cents: 6 on the soap; 1 on the Yeast Foam, and 3 on the tea. The amount being credited to the department, plus the amount received for the sale, will keep the books straight.

Careful Accounting.

When you have a special sale, your problem is simpler and different, but still you have a problem. You, too, are advertising, only you do not always reason the thing out logically, as you should do by all means. And the only way you can do it is by careful accounting.

The simplest way is for you to make special piles of the goods you intend to sell at a reduction, so that sales will be made from those piles only. Take all of those things out of their accustomed places, so there may be accuracy in keeping tab. At the end of the sale, count up what you have left and deduct that from what you had; then you will know exactly what you sold and how much your total "mark-down" was. This amount is to be charged to Advertising and credited to Merchandise.

Not only will this serve to show you what you are doing, in an exact, tangible way, but you will have an illuminating picture of what it costs to advertise. Many a man who says he is spending $600 a year to advertise is actually spending much more—maybe twice as much, without knowing it. It is these leaks that keep us behind and make our inventory so disappointing. We must KNOW WHAT THINGS COST.

The Cost Book.

Cost being one of the most important fundamentals, it is essential that every merchant should know it; but it is astonishing how few actually do know their costs. And, of those who attempt to keep track of costs, very few go about it right.

Right here it might be well to ask the question: What is cost of Merchandise? I have a fairly accurate idea myself, but I should like to get the answer from somebody else. Meantime, to go on with the manner of keeping cost.

It is such a simple matter to compile and keep a cost book that there is no excuse for not keeping one. A blank book with record ruling, 5 by 8 inches, holding 160 pages is good, in fact, the only better book for a retail grocer is one of the same size, loose leaf, with capacity for the same number of pages. It should be indexed, allowing the properly approximate number of leaves for each guide-letter. And this number is different for the grocery business from what it is for a ledger index, since, for instance, very few items of groceries will come under "A." You will have Axle Grease, but your Apricots will go either under Dried Fruits or Canned Fruits; and you may put Ammonia under "A" or under Drugs or Laundry Supplies, according to the peculiarities of your individual stock.

Headings May Differ.

Old fashioned grocers, like Johnson & Son, carried Epson Salts, Blue Stone, Ultramarine Blue, Ammonia, Brimstone, Sealing Wax, etc., under the caption of Drugs; but things change constantly and also differ in different localties. For instance, we have always carried Oat Meal, etc., including all the Breakfast Foods under Farinaceous Goods; though latterly we have put Rice under "R" and likewise Raisins.

But suppose you use the caption, Farinaceous Goods. You will write that caption large and clearly, at the outside, right-hand margin, at the top of a page of "F"; and below that, list your Sago, Tapioca, Oatmeal, Split Peas, etc., all written in ink allowing one line of the page for each sub-head or individual item. Use all lines except three of four for unforeseen items. Then put a hard board between that page and the next one, and, with a very sharp pen knife, cut off the right-hand margin of the page, just below the caption, Farinaceous, clear down to the bottom. This will expose about an inch of the margin of the next page, so you can write other captions below "Farinaceous" and fill that page in turn. Then cut the next page the same way, and so on throughout the entire letter. This will enable you to turn instantly to any item in the book.

How to Mark the Cost.

Following each item, write the cost in pencil, using either plain figures, or a secret cost-mark. I prefer the cost-mark, as then you can look up any item any time and nobody can read your cost. As the cost changes, scratch out the old cost and pencil in another. This gives you the last cost and also the former cost. Keep this up until the line is filled; then rub out the pencil marks and begin over again.

The first writing up of the book is the only real work about this. After that, it is a matter of a few minutes work to take each invoice and enter your costs; and the doing of this work not only keeps you informed, but trains your memory all the time so that you will know your entire business much better than you can know it without such a cost-system. Nothing about your business can be more valuable to you or more completely "worth while."

EUROPEAN WHEAT ESTIMATES.

A cablegram received from the International Institute of Agriculture, gives the yield of wheat crop estimated September 1st, as follows: Italy, 165,346,656 bushels compared with 184,956,913 reported last month, and 125,363,287 last year; Roumania, 108,853,211 bushels, compared with 107,886,633 reported last month and 59,043,045 last year; Hungary, 198,482,118 bushels, compared with 189,252, 220 reported last month, and 125,363,287 last year; Russia, 917,633,489 bushels compared with 784,203,650 last year: Prussia, 87,799,070, compared with 138,000,049 in all Germany last year.

Cost, Selling Price and Profit are Discussed

Retail Dealers are Apparently Careful About What Goods They Stock—A Spirit of Independence Shown—Experience of Retaiers Illustrating Their Desire to Handle Goods Which are Worthy in Their Estimation—One Refuses to Fill Orders Taken by Manufacturers at Exhibition.

Toronto, Sept. 22.—The dealers who were present at the regular meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association on Monday night asserted in no uncertain tones their determination to get a fair profit on the manufacturers' goods which they handle.

The names of several manufacturers who, they claimed, were overlooking them in the matter of profits, were mentioned and instances were given where the dealers had told manufacturers' representatives that they refused to stock their goods. Cost figures were named and profits were figured out on a popular price basis so that each member present became aware—if he were not already aware—of the actual profits he was making on the goods mentioned.

Think Profit Inadequate.

One canned article which was sold to the retail trade at $2.05 per dozen was considered and the opinion expressed that 20 cents retail was too low a price. The cost figures out to 17½ cents each which means a profit of 2 11-12 cents above the cost. Figured on a percentage basis this makes 14 7-12 per cent. on the 20 cents sales price or a little over 17 per cent. if figured on the cost. With the cost of doing business somewhere about 14 or 15 per cent. in Toronto this was thought to be an inadequate profit.

Another article was mentioned which this year costs $1.27½ per doz. and last year $1.12½. But the retail selling price has to be the same, 2 for 25 cents, although the retailer has to pay 15 cents per dozen more.

Refused to Stock Goods in Spite of Demand.

One of the members referred to orders which had been secured from some of his customers by manufacturers at the Canadian National Exhibition. In some cases, after figuring out the cost and considering the selling price, he had written to the manufacturers to the effect that he would not fill the orders and that they could not expect him to advertise their goods in his store or through his salesmanship, for nothing.

"I'm not going to stock goods at $3.95 when I have to sell them at 6 for a quarter." he declared with emphasis.

Handles Only Profitable Goods.

Another grocer stated that when anybody asks for an article which he does not stock because the profit is light, he sends out for it. He simply would not stock it, he said.

Secretary J. C. Beaumont recalled an instance of a Toronto grocer selling baking powder at 9 cents which cost him 95 a dozen.

"We shouldn't pay any more than 90 cents for a 10 cent article," was D. W. Clark's opinion.

A. J. Coniam believed that the retailer was to blame in a great many cases for lowering the established price. He told of an experience in which his competitors sold an article for 10 cents which should have sold for 15. The reason this was done was because an extra case was given with a ten-case purchase; the grocers simply sold the 10 at a loss and made profit on the eleventh only. Mr. Coniam waited until the competitor had sold out and he received 15 cents for his goods.

Does Price Rule the Sale?

When the question of a popular retail price was considered, it was the general opinion of the members that the price ruled to a large extent the quantity of the sales. It was maintained that if the price to the consumer went up much above the ordinary figure the sales dropped down accordingly.

"When a manufacturer advances a price he should consider us," was one remark and instances were given which indicated that the dealer was not considered.

Conference With Manufacturers

President Donald McLean and D. W. Clark reported on the trip to Hamilton and their interview with the Dominion Canners which has already been referred to in these columns.

Mr. Clark suggested that a committee consisting of two men each from the London, Hamilton and Toronto Associations be appointed to thresh out with manufacturers wherever necessary, the question of cost and selling price. This was merely suggested but it met with favor.

Those Unfilled Orders.

Wholesalers then came in for some criticism in the handling of canned goods. It was alleged that while some wholesalers filled entire orders in canned peas others did not.

One member asserted that the jobber bought canned peas in this manner: "He totals up his entire orders from the retail trade and then adds on a certain amount for sale outside of the regular orders; he then only fills 50 or 60 per cent., as the case may be, of the orders, while since he contracts for more than he needs from the canners, he has enough to fill 100 per cent. of the retail orders."

The conditions existing by which the retailer has to carry canned goods from the autumn—and pay for them then—for almost a year was again criticized, the wholesaler coming in for the blame. "We should get goods from the wholesaler when we want them and not have to pay an advance of 2½ cents on December 1st either," was one expression of opinion. "If we are carrying goods for the wholesaler we have a right to expect him to allow us 2 or 3 per cent. for risk and tied up capital."

The members are considering plans for enlarging their membership and expect by the next meeting—the third Monday in October—to report a substantial increase: They believe that their business conversations and exchanges of experiences are beneficial and intend interesting others to the extent of getting them to become members.

Things That Shouldn't Be

When a Traveler Calls on a Merchant He Should at Least be Treated Courteously and Respectfully, if Necessarily Firmly Ordering a Traveler out of the Store Who Has Not Been Offensive is not the Act of a Gentleman.

A Credit Men's Association Formed in the West

The Members Claim it is for the Purpose of Protecting the Honest Wholesaler and retailer—Prosecution of Fraudulent Debtors and Trade Clearing House and Adjustment Bureau Among its Stated Aims — To Encourage Fire Insurance Among Retailers as Well as Proper Book-keeping and the Taking of Cash Discounts.

Winnipeg, Sept. 22.—A body has been recently organized in Winnipeg called The Canadian Credit Men's Association, which according to the constitution is for the purpose of "improving existing credit methods through the co-operation on individuals engaged in extending credit, and such other matters as the members may from time to time determine."

The membership consists of credit men and general managers engaged in any legitimate line of business where credits are given.

It has already assumed large proportions, as the list of members testifies, being made up practically of the representatives of all the larger wholesale houses in Winnipeg, and of those houses in Montreal, Toronto and other eastern cities which are doing any considerable business in the Western Provinces.

The association has opened offices in Winnipeg, under the management of a president, vice-president, six members acting as a board of governors, and a secretary-treasurer. The officers are:

President—H. H. Piggott, (The J. H. Ashdown Hdw. Co.)

Board of Governors—W. M. Boyd, (The International Harvester Co.); J. D. Burnham, (Stobart, Sons & Co.); W. S. Fallis, (The Sherwin-Williams Co.); A. McAllister, (The W. E. Sanford Mfg. Co.); T. D. McGee, (The Thos. Ryan Co.); B. C. McMillan, (The McClary Mfg. Co.)

Secretary-Treasurer—Henry Detchon.

Questions on the Slate.

Strong committees have been formed to take up the following subjects:

- Legislation Affecting Business Conditions;
- Prosecution of Fraudulent Debtors;
- Improved Mercantile Agency Service;
- Trade Clearing House and Adjustment Bureau;
- Fire Insurance;
- Improved Credit Dept. Methods.

The association has already in hand various questions affecting legislation which will be brought before the proper quarters when ready to be submitted.

It has also taken up one or two cases of fraud, but as these are still undecided by the courts, it is impossible to comment on same.

A Clearing House has been established for the interchange by members of ledger information. This feature of the association is really an enlargement of the Clearing House Department lately carried on by the Winnipeg Jobbers' Credit Clearing House. This branch of the latter concern, however, has now been merged into the new association and strengthened by the addition of a large list of new members; the Clearing House Department now affords information from no less than 136 wholesale ledgers. This is done so that members by giving their own ledger information, can now fairly accurately appraise the exact position of those with whom they are doing business, and judge pretty well the desirability or otherwise of extending credit to any particular person.

To Encourage Fire Insurance.

The question of fire insurance is also an important matter being dealt with by the committee appointed for the purpose. The desirability of a merchant keeping fully insured against loss by fire will be brought forcibly before the attention of the retailers by means of educational literature, and the association will investigate any cases brought before its notice of alleged overcharge in rates and delays in adjustments of fire losses.

The improvement in the methods at present adopted in wholesale houses in dealing with credit matters is likewise engaging the attention of the association, and uniformity in these methods tending to curtailment of work for both the retailer and the credit man is being sought. As an example, in the past each wholesale house has adopted its own financial statement form, to be filled in by the customer seeking credit, but now the association has adopted a uniform form, which will materially diminish the work of both customer and wholesaler. These forms have been printed in large quantities and are being sold at actual cost to the members.

In addition to bringing before the retail merchants the question of insurance, such matters as rendering correct yearly statements to the mercantile agencies and wholesalers, keeping proper books of account, taking cash discounts, and other important features will be gradually brought into prominence.

Claims to Aid Honest Retailers.

While on the face of it, the association has been formed among wholesalers for the protection of wholesalers, the members claim that it will materially assist and protect the honest retailers by driving the dishonest and fraudulent merchant out of business, and thus affording a better field for the operations of those merchants who are honestly endeavoring to gain a competence by hard and industrious trading.

After Unscrupulous Persons.

At the meeting of the association on September 14th, it was decided to start a fund for the purpose of prosecuting unscrupulous persons. President Piggot presided, and was supported by R. R. Wilson, vice-president.

A desire was expressed for a higher state of efficiency in mercantile services, and a determination to obtain more up to date information, to be the means of harmonious co-operation between the members of the association and the agents supplying the information.

The report was read from the Legislation Committee, respecting the necessity of further legislation governing the obtaining of credit by means of fraudulent statements submitted to the mercantile agents.

Where Retailers Claim Shortages.

Complaints were lodged by the members for the unjust claims of shortage made by the retailers, and it was decided to take action to minimize this as much as possible. The Legislation Committee also referred to the issuance of cheques on banks where no funds were in deposit to cover such cheques at the time they were issued. This was felt to be a serious question to be dealt with at once, as there were many such cases in the west, it was declared, where this kind of thing is being carried on.

These matters are receiving the attening of the Legislation Committee, and they expect to be able to make reports at an early meeting.

Financial Statement Forms.

The secretary reported that the uniform financial statement forms which were adopted by the association at a previous meeting were now being used largely by the members, who issue them free of charge to their customers. He expressed the opinion that before the end of this year, these forms will have replaced the old forms now in use, and a much needed change would be brought about which would undoubtedly bring better relationship between the credit men and their customers.

The Clearing House Committee reported an increase in membership. This committee has for its object the collecting from, and the distributing amongst the members of the committee ledger information of mutual accounts, and the value of this information has come to be recognized in deciding where credit should be given.

To Hold Monthly Meetings.

It was decided to hold a monthly luncheon of the association on the second Wednesday of each month at 6.30 p.m.

Secretary Detchon leaves the city this week to interview the wholesale trade in Western Canada, with a view to getting co-operation in the general work of the association.

The following members took part in the discussion: W. M. Boyd, W. L. Helliwell, D. C. McMillan, M. F. Christie, M. S. Fallis, A. H. Fergusson, E. I. Madigan, A. McAllister, E. Barry, W. S. Arnold, J. Campbell, T. W. Leary and Mr. Webb.

Two Good Samples of Newspaper Advertising

Hamilton and Calgary Grocers Who Use Space Effectively—The Object of the Advertiser is to Create Demand Over and Above the Actual Goods Asked For — The value of Quoting Prices.

The aim of the retail advertiser is to sell goods which would otherwise remain unsold if the question of buying were left entirely to the decision of the consumer.

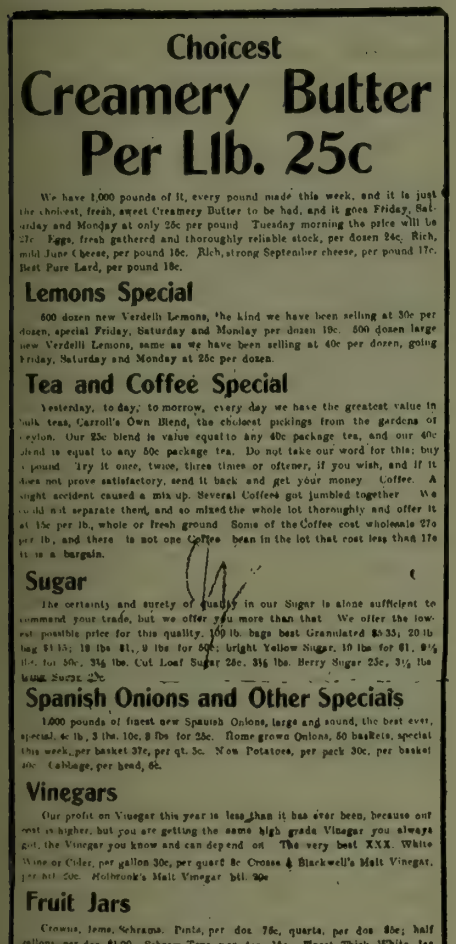
For instance, if the merchant who prides himself as a salesman, depended simply on the ordinary everyday demands of the customers for his entire sales, what would his turnover be in comparison to what it is now?

When a dealer, therefore, sits down to write his ad-copy he should do so with a view to creating as wide an interest in the goods he advertises as possible. His talks through the newspaper should be just as persuasive and suggestive as if he were talking to the people from behind the counter or over the phone.

This is the feature which makes the accompanying Carroll's advertisement such a splendid one. Mr. Carroll is a Hamilton, Ont., grocer, and as his advertisement states, he has six stores in the Ambitious City. The original newspaper ad. was about 15 x 4½ inches, but a portion of it had to be omitted in order to reproduce it in The Grocer's column.

The introduction, "Choicest Creamery Butter, per lb. 25 cents," is enough to arrest attention. The talk which follows is persuasive and there seems to be no reason why it would not sell butter to a housewife who wants butter and who is not particular about giving her butter trade to her own grocer. The lemon and tea and coffee talks are also capable of creating interest, and demand as well as the other items mentioned.

The ad. is exceedingly well written and as Mr. Carroll is a persistent advertiser he gets good results. The portion of his advertisement omitted was a long list of articles with their prices—another splendid point in its favor.



A Calgary Advertisement.

The advertisement of J. T. Macdonald, taken from a Calgary, Alta., newspaper, is another good example. The feature of it is the wide range of articles mentioned with their prices. The introduction, "The Profit is Yours," is a good catch line for attracting attention.

A criticism which might be made of this advertisement is the lack of brief, educative talks on goods offered. For instance, if a merchant wanted to sell a crate of plums to a customer he would naturally say something like this: "Those plums are nice and ripe and have a splendid flavor; the price is 95 cents per crate."

If the advertisement included a few talks as suggested, it ought to be more effective in holding interest and bringing the reader up to the point of deciding to purchase.

Both the above advertisements, however, are good examples of advertising that brings results.

Characteristics of the Collector who Gets the Cash

"Yes, I think I am a pretty good collector," said a merchant who does a large credit business. "I lose very little through bad debts, for the simple reason that I am very particular whom I trust. When people come to me for credit, I begin by having a thorough understanding with them that the money must be paid when due or their credit stops. Not only that, I have also an understanding with them as to whether all the family are authorized to order goods. This I find to be necessary, as I have cases of a daughter ordering goods and the mother saying afterward that she had no right to do so. The worst collector imaginable is the man who is lenient in the first place, but who afterward gets frightened and tries to bluff into paying up. This is just what people want. It gives them an excuse to get angry and refuse to pay. I believe that quietly insisting on prompt payment from the very first is the only way to do business where you can't trust the law to help you. And the proof that my method is successful lies in the fact that I have often had accounts paid by people covered with attachments. Why, I have even collected money from people whose furniture was being carried out of the house by creditors."

DROP IN FLOUR AND ROLLED OATS.

There is another decline of 20 cents per barrel in flour this week which ought to stimulate demand. Retailers should therefore make it a point to dispose of as much flour as possible while the price lasts; no one seems to know what will happen next.

The cause of the decline is attributed to keen competition on the part of large millers and it is stated that natural causes do not rule. This is believed to be the real reason although some contend that it is not.

Rolled oats have taken a drop in the east. The raw material has been coming on the market more freely and this is the reason for the decline.

NUTS ADVANCING IN PRICE.

Retail dealers should keep an eye on the nut market or by the time they begin to buy their Christmas goods some of the prices will have gone up so high that their profits will either be cut down in selling to the consumer or the demand will fall off considerably.

For instance shelled walnuts have been steadily firming up and during the past few weeks advances have occurred.

Walnuts, almonds and filberts are on the upward march, advances being noted in Montreal quotations this week. The trouble is due to short crops making the primary markets so high that brokers and wholesalers have found it imperative to raise their prices.

COMING LATE TO WORK.

Many retail dealers are complaining of their employes coming late to work and have asked The Canadian Grocer to take up the question.

The great trouble with those who get into this habit is that they do not realize they are actually robbing their employers. They are paid for doing a certain work, a work which has to be done inside the store, and not in the home or on the street.

It is therefore only right that they should be on time. Many may think that their employers are under obligations to them if they arrive on the minute. But this is erroneous; it is their simple duty and they deserve no praise. The reason they expect it, is because so many people have been in the habit of not measuring up to their standard of simple duty and they think because they are doing so, that they should receive an extraordinary commendation.

There are many clerks who would come late to work if the store did not open till noon. They seem to think that dropping in five or ten minutes late is fashionable and they want to be in the fashion.

Such employes are not ambitious; they will never become salesmen and if they make outstanding successes in the business world they simply stumble into fortune and it is not their "faults."

No retail business, so far as we know, is a charity institution. The clerk who habitually arrives late evidently thinks it so. It's the punctual, modest, steady-going, honest, resourceful, observant clerk who makes the salesman and who is actually useful to his employer—he will have a good business of his own some day.

HONEY AND HOT BISCUITS.

Judging from the amount of honey that is being bought throughout the country most grocers have laid in a stock of the new yield. A honey window should stimulate interest in this line just now.

It is likely a long time since the dealer made a specialty of this article and it would almost appear as a novelty just now. It is not everybody who likes honey, but the majority of people do and if the impression is conveyed that the grocer has made special arrangements to secure stocks of the best quality he will create a greater interest in his new goods.

Honey is especially delightful with hot biscuits and if the grocer has no other idea he might put on his show card with the window display, "Delicious With Hot Biscuits" and give the price on another and smaller card. The passerby not only sees the honey but also, in his or her mind, the honey with the hot biscuits.

Every little bit helps, it is said, and one never knows when the little idea is going to be of great assistance.

TRADE WITH THE WEST INDIES.

Edgar Trip, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Trinidad, B.W.I., states that not enough attention us being paid by Canadian exporters of butter to that market.

The bulk of the butter coming into Trinidad is from the United Kingdom, United States and France. In fact France leads the rest; this is because years ago a French butter manufacturer took the trouble to find out the class of butter suited for trade in the tropics and the best package in which to put it.

This is where many of our exporters are lacking. They do not study the foreign markets closely enough and therefore are not acquainted with the conditions under which their goods are exported.

This was not the policy of the wise French butter men. They first determined the peculiar conditions existing in the foreign country and then conformed to these. The result is that out of a value of $165,000 worth of butter received in Trinidad in 1909, France sent about $100,000 worth. British North America's contributions amounted to a value of only $3,880.

If trade with our sister British West India colonies is to be developed according to the opportunities afforded, Canadian exporters have first to study the trade conditions, climate, etc., in the lands to the south and shape their export polices accordingly.

MUTUAL FRIENDSHIP.

"Resolved, that we recognize the traveling salesman as the grocers' friend, and we accord to him that friendly treatment his position warrants, whether or not we wish to make any purchases."

Such was a resolution passed by the Retail Grocers' Association of New York state and it embraces the sentiment which the best grocers of Canada entertain toward the sensible representatives of jobbers and manufacturers. The average grocer and the average traveler are men of good judgment and the relations between them should be harmonious if all their actions follow the dictates of this judgment. But as in every other case there are exceptions and one traveler may antagonize his kind with all the grocers whom he calls upon. Similarly the boorish grocer gives the trade a blackeye by his treatment of travelers.

Retailer's Position in Credit Men's Movement

This New Association is Raising a Fund of $10,000 for the Prosecution of Fraudulent Debtors---Retailers' Opinions are Desirable---Important Items for His Consideration, such as Making Out Financial Statements to Mercantile, Buying and Taking Discounts.

The action of the Canadian Credit Men's Association, with head-quarters in Winnipeg, in obtaining definite plans for the betterment of the wholesale conditions, supplies food for serious thinking on the part of all retail merchants in the country, and particularly in Western Canada. The stated purposes and aims of the Association are set forth in an article on another page of this issue and should be read with interest.

The point which, perhaps, is most interesting, is that the body have started a fund amounting to $10,000 (which will be increased according to requirements) for the prosecution of fraudulent debtors and unscrupulous persons. It is evidently the purpose of the association to secure recompense and punish wherever possible, those who issue fraudulent financial statements and issue worthless checks to creditors.

It would seem that our legislative facilities were much lacking, when a body which claims to be suffering from criminal actions on the part of debtors, are compelled to endeavor to have such laws enacted which will assist them to get redress. Just what the law is in this connection is not known but a committee has this matter in charge, and they are at present working out a definite line of policy. Not only would the sense of justice and honesty lead us to corroborate in a movement which makes for better business relationship, but the frank open manner in which the association are making the facts known, just as they are, deserves commendation.

The work as at present outlined by the association cannot be criticized from the standpoint of the retailer. A committee has been appointed to solve the legislation problem affecting business conditions. This simply means the prosecution of fraudulent debtors. If it means more than this, the facts will be, and ought to be made known to the retailer. To prosecute fraud, no retailer will object, and retail merchants everywhere hail with satisfaction such legislation as will clear their ranks of undesirables. To improve mercantile agency service, to establish a trade clearing house, and adjustment bureau, and to co-operate with the merchants to secure better fire insurance conditions, are all plans which are plainly constructive of a better commercial system.

It must be remembered, however, that to a certain extent the retail merchant should have a share in forming the plans for the future of the trade relationship between retail and wholesale merchants, between debtor and creditor. It is not the object of the Credit Men's Association to work out plans without the knowledge of the retailers. They welcome and invite consultation with the merchants as a body or as individuals, in making such changes as all alike must agree are necessary.

The wholesaler ought to be willing to admit that he himself may sometimes put a customer in an awkward position. He therefore must be careful whom he calls a fraudulent merchant. All merchants who fail to meet their accounts are not dishonest. The credit man is aware that the retailer should be concerned about direct legislation for his own benefit. But the wholesaler cannot do all the legislating. There are some things which the merchant himself must do in the matter of creating more secure business relationship with the wholesaler.

It is believed that the action of the Credit Men's Association will not only do much to benefit the retail trade either directly or indirectly, but will stimullate the merchants as a body to take action, for defence if need be, and in any case to better perfect the relationship between them.

It would seem that a sensible line of policy for the merchant to pursue would be to conduct his business in such a way so as to keep as far away as possible from the appearance or temptation of dishonesty. Many retailers could perhaps buy more carefully, and not allow themselves to be over-loaded with dead stock. Likewise the wholesaler might sell more carefully in order to keep away from trouble. But it is only reasonable that if anything serious ensues in the matter of quantity or stock, almost the entire blame should be laid at the door of the retailer. Again the merchant might endeavor to buy more directly for cash, which system would enable him to take his discount regularly.

These are only a few things that the retailer might do. It is to be hoped that the retailers as an association will co-operate with the wholesalers and as one seek to eliminate from the trade some of the present existing evils.

EXECUTING ONE'S PLANS.

It is a characteristic among men to be always going to do something. New hopes are formed and new castles ascend into the air but many are of the Spanish kind. The man who carries out his plans is generally a success while the other has something new almost every day or week but he never attempts to put anything into operation.

One is the man of imagination only, the other has not only the power to plan but he has the ability to execute. If a grocer gets an idea, the wisest course, if he has carefully studied the question, is to act upon it. Everything may not materialize as it is expected to do but when a merchant undertakes a scheme aggressively the disappointments are few and far between.

Act upon your plans; putting off until to-morrow is not a business principle.

WORTH WHILE READING.

In this week's issue is another article from Henry Johnson, Jr., a retail grocer with 28 years of experience.

This article deals in particular with two points—the accounting system of the department store when markdown sales are made and his own method of knowing what his goods cost him. He explains in detail a simply made cost-book and describes its operation.

As knowing what goods cost is one of the primary things in any retail business, his advice should be carefully weighed by those who have been on the lookout for some such system.

Read his article and you will readily observe his close acquaintance to the subjects he undertakes to illuminate.

MERCHANTS GOT TOGETHER.

A merchant tells the following story: "Not long ago, a family which has been trading with me for some time got offended because I asked them for the money they owed me. It amounted to $25. They transferred their business to another merchant in town. He came to me at once and asked me about them. I told him that they had owed me for nine months and when I asked for my money they quit. We both investigated and found they were not paying their bills. He shut down before his bill amounted to more than $3.00. They went to another, and he came to us and cut them off quickly. The family is running a bill in a small town several miles down the road now. We merchants get together and talk things over. Competition is good and active between us, but we believe in fair competition."—The Oregon Tradesman.

News of Ontario and B. C. Fruit Crops — Summer Goods Should be Moved Rapidly Now — Denver Grocers' Association Hold Debate—Hard to Get Credit in Mt. Vernon — Net Weight Law in New York—Other Interesting Odds and Ends.

Early Crawford peaches and Bartlett pears are about done; plums will be over in about another week.

Alberta peaches are arriving on the eastern markets and although the crop is not a heavy one the quality is good.

The British Columbia fruit crop this year will be three times as large as that of any previous year. It is expected that 1,000 car loads of fruit will be shipped out of the Okanagan Valley alone.

The time for selling summer goods is growing shorter every day now. An extra effort should be made by the grocer to clean up his stocks. There are many articles that will carry over until next year, but it is preferable to get rid of them for good hard cash with which you can buy your winter stocks.

The idea of examining those who would enter the grocery business in order to determine whether they are actually competent is gaining ground in the United States although no action has been taken yet. This is following the English method of giving grocers and assistants certificates.

The Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association desire new vegetable standards in some cases, as follows: parsnips, 45 lbs., carrots 50 lbs., beets 50 lbs., and artichokes 56 lbs., each to the bushel. The present weight in each instance is 60 lbs. and as commission houses buy by weight and not by measure, it is claimed that the householder loses considerable.

In order to draw out a good attendance of members the Denver Retail Grocers' Association conducted a debate with three speakers on each side the subject being: "Resolved that the Quantity Price Plan is a Benefit to the Retail Grocer." A most interesting evening resulted.

One grocer's advertising help is to give a patent pocket savings bank with a two or three dollar purchase. He retains the key and when the bank is filled the owner comes to the grocer in order to get the money for use.

In the city of Mt. Vernon, New York State, it is said to be an unknown thing far a woman to get credit from a grocer without an inquiry as to her standing as a "good customer." It makes no difference who she may be, every store does the same thing. If she asks a clerk for credit she is referred to the manager or proprietor, who in turn politely asks for references. Going to another store does not help any for the woman finds herself up against the same proposition.

The members of the National Wholesale Grocers' Association in the United States have been requested to buy and sell only by net weights so as to avoid future violations of the law. The letter sent out from the association calls attention to the fact that when such articles as rice, beans, cereals, flour, dried fruits, etc., are handled on the basis of weight it is a violation of the law to represent a package as containing 100 pounds when for instance the net weight is only 99 pounds. The amount stated in the invoice, it is contended, would be considered a declaration of the weight of the contents.

One of the strongest retail grocers' association is that in Brooklyn, N.Y., and there is a reason. In the rooms of this association there is a blackboard on which is placed notices of stores for sale, notices advertising the fact that some grocer is overstocked with a particular line of goods and which he will sell at cost to some other member. There is also maintained a successful employment bureau for clerks. It is common for a dozen or twenty clerks to come in a day to the waiting room the association has for them, many positions having been secured in that way. This association occasionally has something along the educational line and not long ago, as an example, it had an interesting lecture by a chemist, who showed the grocers simple ways to detect adulterated mustard and other foods. The association has also successfully maintained for years horse insurance, and lately it has taken up plate-glass insurance, this as an experiment with a view to possibly going into fire insurance.

"MADE IN ST. JOHN" EXHIBIT.

Board of Trade Aggressive in Advertising Home Industries.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 22.—The Dominion Exhibition which closed on Thursday last was attended by 122,589 people, an increase of over 50,000 more than at any previous show held in St. John. The exhibits made by manufacturers of grocery lines were exceptionally good, being on the whole far in advance of any former fair.

A striking feature of the exhibition that was commented upon by visitors was the "Made in St. John" exhibit, of the St. John Board of Trade. This exhibit which was 80 feet in length by 10 in. depth, was tastefully arranged and in it was shown a sample of the many lines of goods manufactured in St. John. It proved to be an educator even for the local people and it is likely to have a far reaching effect.

F. X. St. Charles, president of the Hochelaga Bank, and formerly a flour wholesaler, died suddenly at the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, St. Denis St., Montreal, last Monday evening.

Thinks all Foods Will Soon be Sold By Net Weight Only

New York, Sept. 20.—The New York Commissioner of Weights and Measures, who has charge of the new net weight law there believes that food commodities ought to be, and in time will be sold only by weight, not only in New York, but throughout the country. He is of the opinion that a national law to that effect will shortly be enacted. This opinion he claims, appears to be shared by members of the trade likewise. The sentiment at the last session of Congress was strengthened along that line, and he declares that most active opponents have since confessed that they see only that outcome.

In substance the commissioner at a recent meeting of wholesalers told them that the law is in the statute books and will be enforced by him. But he does not intend to enforce it in a manner that will cause a loss of business or money to the merchants. For example, he admitted that he realized that most of this season's pack of canned goods was completed, and he did not propose to open the million and one cans of tomatoes, etc., that come to this market in order to see whether each is full weight. On the other hand he replied to the skeptic who believes such accurate weights are impracticable, that they can be obtained by proper scales.

In support of this he told of large packers getting the weight on lard to within an extremely small fraction of the correct figure. The only extra cost to the manufacturer under the act, he said, will be in the scales.

The section of the new ordinance forming the subject of the conference reads as follows:

Sec. 388. No person shall sell or offer for sale any commodity or article of merchantise in any market or in the public streets or in any other place in the City of New York, at or for a greater weight or measure than the true measure or weight thereof; and all ice, coke, meats, poultry, butter and butter in prints, provisions, and all other commodities and articles of merchandise (except vegetables sold by the head or bunch) sold in the streets or elsewhere in the City of New York, shall be weighed or measured by scales, measures or balances, or in measures duly tested, sealed and marked by the Commissioned of Weights and Measures or an Inspector of Weights and Measures of the said city; provided, that poultry may be offered for sale and sold in other manner than by weight, but in all cases where the person intending to purchase shall so desire and request poultry shall be weighed as hereinbefore provided. No person shall violate any of the provisions of this section under a penalty of one hundred dollars for each offense.

Practical Methods Used in Retail Grocery Stores

How a Tilbury Merchant is Carrying on a Contest Sale—Gives Away Cash and a Sewing Machine—Meat Slicing Machine Installed by Toronto Grocers—What Credit Reputation Should be Based on Contest Sale at Tilbury.

Tilbury, Ont., Sept. 22.—W. C. Crawford's general store at this place in conducting what it calls a "Contest Sale," offering for competition among its customers 41 special prizes. The sale opened on August 29, and will close on Oct. 1, thus lasting a little over a month.

Of the prize winners, the first ten will receive $10 each in cash; the second ten $5 each in goods; the next twenty $2 each in goods. The 41st prize is a "Big Store Special" sewing machine.

The prize winners are determined by the issue of coupons, which are numbered consecutively. One coupon is given for every dollar's worth of goods sold for cash, and one coupon for every $2 paid on account. Duplicate coupons are retained, and from these the 41 prize winning numbers are drawn on the Saturday evening when the sale closes, the drawing being done by prominent local men. Ten extra numbers are drawn, to the holders of which the prizes will revert in case any of the holders of the first numbers fail to put in a claim within a month.

This contest is a repetition of one which took place the previous month, and the success of which is indicated by the fact that the highest number drawn was 17,486. Every cash customer who does not win a prize, but who buys goods during the sale to the value of $10 or over receives trade checks for 5 per cent. of the amount purchased. Advertising space is liberally used to boom these contests, not only the local paper, but papers in adjoining towns being used to boom the sale.

Instal Meat Slicing Machine.

Toronto, Sept. 22.—Island's Grocery, Dundas St., recently added a meat slicing machine to its present equipment. The proprietors are enthusiastic over the possibilities it offers in the way of saving money on hams and bacon. It cuts a uniform slice which looks attractive to the buyer and there is practically no loss in ends which formerly cut down the profits on the above products to a considerable extent.

Island's Grocery already recognizes the saving in time which the machine produces. This combined with satisfied customers and little loss on ends makes their cooked meat and bacon trade, they claim, satisfactory to handle.

What Reputation Stands on.

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 22.—"It isn't always what a man owns or how much he earns that determines how good a credit risk he is," declares an Edmonton dealer. "The man who permits over-abundance of this world's goods to to influence him or a mere display of wealth to sway his judgment in extending credit is sometime likely to find out that 'All is not gold that glitters.' A man's reputation in meeting his obligations is a better guide to go by in the extension of credit than his possession of a number of things."

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Raw market recovering.

Japan Tea—Firmer.

Nuts—Advances in walnuts, filberts and almonds.

Tapioca—Higher in primary market.

Montreal, Sept. 22, 1910.

The feature of the week is perhaps the recovery of the raw sugar market. It looked for a while as if there would have to be a decline in the refined prices, but evidently this will not be likely unless some further downward break is made in raws. Although the recovery is not any too pronounced, it has served to reassure local men, and matters seem to be settling down to their former state of quetness.

Fruit men are complaining about the dullness of trade this year. They say that the summer has hardly been warm enough to keep their trade to its normal summer proportions.

The recent severe rains and floods in Japan have injured the tea crop sufficiently to affect the primary market. Of course, it is hard to say just how great the damage is at present, but in such cases the first reports are usually the worst.

Nuts and dried fruits of all kinds are at a premium just now. Advances have already taken place in several of the lines, and more are looked for at any time. The market here is bare in some of the more popular articles. With the arrival of the first fruit boat from the Mediterranean there should be some relief, and the second will undoubtedly help matters materially, as it is in the Mediterranean fruits that the shortages are mostly.

Trade in general has been good for this time of year. Jobbers report good buying from their country custom, and the city retailers say that everything seems to be satisfactory.

Sugar—After the weakness of the raw market during the past few weeks there has come a strengthening influence which has apparently just staved off a decline in the refined article Whether or not it will be lasting enough to hold is a matter to be decided by the future only. It is considered to be sufficient to hold matters as they are for some time anyway. Both beet and cane raws show the added strength.

Jobbers report sales rather slow, and in small quantities at present, but are hoping for an improvement from the present state of the raw marekt.

Syrups and Molasses—Several large shipments of molasses are in the city now, awaiting disposal, but buyers seem to be holding off. Already the quantity of stored is considerable, and there are likely to be large additions in the near future.

Jobbers report a good demand for both syrups and molasses, mostly from country buyers, though there is considerably more buying being done by city retailers than last week. The present cool weather should help matters considerably.

Jobbers report that sales of all lines of teas have been heavy lately, the demand being pretty evenly distributed. The market generally is in a healthy position.

Coffee—Coffees are firmer in the primary market. This is true of all lines, but applies particularly to Maracaibos and Rios. Trade in all lines is booming, and roasters are working hard on the orders already booked, with more arriving all the time. As yet local prices are unchanged, but from the high state of the raw market, it would not be surprising to see an advance in some of the lines.

Spices—Gingers are somewhat firmer in the primary market. Otherwise the situation is much the same as last week. The trading is steady, and is sufficient to keep most of the manufacturers busy. However, there is a slight falling off from the heavy trade done this summer.

Dried Fruits—Local stocks of prunes, currants and seeded raisins are almost exhausted. The arrival of the first fruit boat, now on the water, is awaited with eagerness, though the quotations for the new crop are high. Still the market is so bare that men must have the goods. Dates are in brisk demand, due no doubt largely to the cooler weather now prevailing. Prices of all lines are firm, and in the primary markets show advances in most.

Nuts—Walnuts, almonds and filberts all show advances this week. This has been certain to happen from the gradually rising state of the primary markets, owing to the short crops reported from almost all the growing countries. Local dealers say that the end is not yet, and look for still further advances any time.

New York advices report a strong market in all lines, and new crop quotations are being placed on a higher basis.

Evaporated Apples — A few summer apples are being offered here, but the grade has been so poor that buyers are hard to find. If the prophecies of a short crop are fulfilled there may be a rush for almost any grade of evaporated apples. Prices are firm at former quotations.

Beans and Peas—There is a short crop of good boiling peas this year. Reports from some districts show only 10 per cent. of last year's figures. This is not the case in many, of course, but nevertheless it shows how the wind is blowing. Already local prices are firming, and it looks as if the market were preparing for another advance. Beans are having a fair demand at unchanged prices.

Rice and Tapioca—This year's production of tapioca is the smallest since 1906. It is less than last year's by over 1,000 tons, and 1,300 less than 1907. This has caused a further advance in the primary markets, and a decided firmness prevails in the jobing trade. An advance is looked for any day.

Rice is in very good demand at present, and the cold weather coming on will help matters along. Prices are firm.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.

Considerable quantities of vegetables and fruits are being disposed of, and the market shows a firm undertone in all these lines.

The market is almost swept bare of the better grades of salmon and an advance is stated to be almost a certainty. The new catch this fall is reported short, and if so it will not help matters any.

There is a good demand for imported sardines, but the others seem to be somewhat neglected. Trade in meats has been fair of late with prices firmly held.

Some of the local grocers stated that they had received price offers for new corn and tomatoes, but the jobbers and brokers stated that prices are not yet out. One thing is certain that the new tomatoes are coming on a market that is badly depleted. The salmon market is pretty bare and there is a good demand for it. The past week has been uneventful in canned goods, but a good steady trade is reported.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Raisins—One cent a lb. higher.
Prunes—Advancing.
Sugar—A little weaker.
Coffee—Higher.

Toronto, Sept. 22, 1910.

It is safe to say that dried fruits are again the feature of the grocery market. The situation may be well termed complex, for not only is one line affected, but what is said of one applies to almost all the different articles that come under the caption of dried fruits. It will be remembered that last week there was a little easier feeling in Valencia raisins, and they were quoted as low as 24s. for future delivery. But recent cables have reported further damage. From what could be learned the new fruit during the drying time was visited by rains, which have added new damage. A parallel was drawn by one of the trade with new wheat or hay, which after being cut is allowed to dry in the fields, and if wet by rain is bound to deteriorate. Practically in the same manner the new Valencia raisin crop has been affected and prices are quoted as high as 29 and 30 shillings, which it must be admitted is a big jump. Some of the shippers have called off their goods, and say they have none to offer, and those who are still selling are not filling orders completely. This condition is not likely to last, but will obtain until the growers and shippers find out where they are at.

The advance in the primary market, if it holds means another cent on the price to the retailer. Opinions expressed by wholesale grocers and brokers agree upon the strength of the whole dried fruit situation.

It seems that jobbers are not just sure what the market is going to do and they are afraid to buy heavily. Some are hardly touching the market.

Currants are holding their own with but little change in the primary market.

Prunes are decidedly firm, and high prices, according to one authority, are bound to result. California fruit of all kinds seem to be in the same boat. The raisins are in a position similar to prunes, and it may be again remarked that good Santa Claras are much below the average crop this year. Such is a brief reference to the dried fruit market as it appears this week. The jobbers practically admit that they do not know where they are at. Advancing prices are not only affecting one line, but they are all of them seem to be going up. Even dried apples or evaporated apples are unsettled. Nobody is quoting on them and the jobbing trade do not know where they are at. With a short apple crop it seems that "evaps" are likely to be much above last year's figures.

It will be remembered that the strawberry crop was light, and the amount preserved was therefore light. Cherries were not a heavy crop and neither were plums. Peaches and pears are fairly large, but not a full crop. It is safe to say that the average home has not preserved anything like the amount of goods that had been put away at this time last year. Now dried fruit are up. From a casual glance at the situation it would seem that prices are going to rule at a top figure this winter.

Coffee is high, especially in the lower grades. Nuts are going up under the influence of short crops.

Sugar is being held at its present figure by the demand that is now being felt. A decline is possible at any time now, as the new crop is exerting a stronger influence from week to week. As previously stated the market is almost intricate in its present condition and grocers should give it close attention.

Sugar—Local deliveries are steady and the season's demand keeps rather firm. Some jobbers felt that it was the demand that was maintaining the present price.

To the Manufacturer or Wholesaler——

If it were possible to employ a traveller who could call on 7,000 of the best dealers all through Canada every week, what salary would you figure he'd be worth—even supposing he did nothing more than go in and shake hands with these dealers, under such circumstances they'd be glad to see him.

Would he be worth $200, $300 or $500 per week? Many a house would pretty nearly let him fix his own salary.

Equip an advertisement in this paper with a verbal handshake for every dealer in Canada, and a frank, brief, pointed talk about your goods and you add a traveller to your staff who will make 7.000 calls a week for you at a salary of $4 to $8 a week—less than you would pay a first-class stenographer.

Of course this traveller won't displace any of your regular salesmen, but he will help them to sell more goods and open up more new accounts.

Dried Fruits.—Practically all the dried fruits are higher. Prices quoted are mostly for spot stocks, but they apply also to futures. One might be led to say that the dried fruit market is a merry tangle at the present stage and some of the jobbers say they do not know where they are at. It is a case of whether "to buy or not to buy" and it is much of a gamble with the jobber the "goat," as one of them stated, if things do not break the way they expect them.

MANITOBA MARKETS

POINTERS—
Valencia Raisins—High and scarce.
Coffee—Advanced.
Currants—Strong.
Syrup—Reduced.
Beans—Weaker.

Winnipeg, Sept. 22,1910.

The market in the general lines has settled considerably this week. Last week quotations were decidedly unstable and it was not known whether advances or declines were coming. Foreign dried fruits are the strong lines at present. Raisins, prunes and currants are held stiff and wholesalers expect higher prices on raisins. Apricots and peel have weakened, but the market condition is good on these commodities.

The ordering everywhere in the west is good. A traveler from southern Alberta tells The Grocer that although the wheat output from that district was light there was plenty of money in circulation as a result of former years' prosperity. The merchants in the whole district were in good condition, and were ordering freely for a wide range of stock.

Sugar.—The trade is excellent in the granulated and all fancy stuff. This is nearing the close of the preserving season and the consumption of sugar is heavy on that account. There are evidences of weakness rather than strength in the market, and it is possible that lower prices will be quoted as a result of declines in New York and Montreal.

Foreign Dried Fruits.—Firmness prevails on all raisins, prunes and currants in particular. Uncleaned Smyrnas are quoted at from 1 to 2 cents in advance, and when new crop Valencias arrive prices will likely be high. Apricots and peel have been reduced about 1 cent on the local market to encourage greater output and it is expected that prices will revert back shortly.

Syrup and Molasses.—Syrup prices have been reduced 10 cents following the weakness of the general market in the east. The output has not been satisfactory thus far, but a better trade is expected to open up in the west as stocks are low and in former years the winter stocks were heavy and the trade was good.

Beans.—This commodity has been fluctuating freely and this week it is quoted lower. Holders of supplies in the east circulated the report of scarcity a few weeks ago and the price jumped. Now it is believed that supplies do not warrant any such prices and a 10 cent decline is reported. The demand everywhere is heavy, however, and a moderately strong market is likely to rule.

Coffee.—An advance of 2½ cents is reported on all Rio coffee. No. 1's is selling at 11½c. to-day and better grades from 11½ ro 12¾ cents per lb. The cause of the sudden stiffness is that stocks have been coralled in crop centres. What the future will be cannot at present be ascertained, but it is believed that lower prices will be quoted within a few weeks.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, Sept. 22.—Flour has fallen to $7.10 per barrel, and more than one retailer has been busy explaining, or trying to explain where the extra profits went to. The wheat that the flour was made from was in most instances bought before the rise was made, and the earlier price was based on what it cost. The advance was based on future scarcity, and as this has not developed to the extent expected, the price has come down again.

The crop of peaches in Washington is large this year, and consequently the price on the local market is the lowest on record. Wenatchees sell for from 60 to 65 cents, the boxes having good weight, being eighteen or twenty pounds.

It was reported last week that one firm had attempted to secure a corner on the potato market. This turned out to be incorrect, the firm buying only 65 carloads in the upper country for its own trade. The price has kept down so far, owing to a good crop in the lower mainland.

Cooking apples job at $1 a box, with local Gravensteins at $1.75. The supply is good. Green pears are about 75 cents.

There is no particular feature in butter and eggs. The former is firm, while in the latter locals are next to impossible to get. Buyers in the country are paying 45 cents per dozen.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 21.—Paris lump sugar is down 15 cents a pound. The jobbers are now awaiting prices on new corn and tomatoes. No quotations on these lines have been received as yet. Eggs are selling at 22c to 23c for the case variety and 25c to 28c for the fresh laid. Butter ranges from 18c to 22c for dairy in tubs or rolls and 23c to 24c for creamery. New potatoes are selling here at $1.25 per barrel. Messina lemons dropped 50 cents per box and oranges 50 cents to $1 a box.

DRAWBACK ON SUGAR DUTIES.

An order in council has been passed at Ottawa declaring that when imported sugar on which duties have been paid is used in the manufacture of wine produced from the juice of grapes there may be allowed a drawback of 99 per cent. of the duties. Such drawback, however, shall not be paid unless the duty has been paid on sugar so used as aforesaid within three years of the date of the manufacture of the wine or unless the claims as presented by the manufacturer at any one time aggregate $10.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Sept. 22, 1910.

The apple trade is now booming and the commission houses are doing a rushing business. All kinds of apples are bringing fancy prices. The best quality Gravensteins are selling at four dollars per barrel, and all the stock offering at these figures is readily snapped up. No. two's are selling at $2.50. Sweets and other early varieties are selling at $2.50 to $3.50 per barrel. The receipts of apples for the season of the year are small. The crop in the Annapolis Valley is not more than half of that of last year, but the quality is good.

The crop of Nova Scotia pears this season is very heavy and at the present time the market is overstocked. Prices are away down, the lowest that they have been for years. The varieties, Bartletts and Clapps are favorites. Half barrels are selling at $1.75 and barrels at $3.50.

Tomatoes dropped this week to 25c. for a twelve pound basket. The crop is heavy and the tomatoes are ripening fast. Green tomatoes are also coming on the market rapidly, and the price is within reach of all. They are quoted at ninety cents per bushel. The pickling season is now at hand and there is a good demand for spices and vinegars.

The wholesale grocers report trade good in all lines. The volume of orders that are coming in from outside points is heavy. Prices throughout the list are firm, and the indications are that the majority will remain so. Butter continues to come on the market in good supply. Prices are a shade firmer, all grades of butter being up one cent per pound. There is a considerable falling off in the receipts of eggs, but the price remains unchanged from last week. The most of the eggs on the market now are Prince Edward Island stock. Collections are generally reported good for the season of the year.

CREAM GOING TO U. S.

The amount of butter exported from Canada to England since the opening of the navigation of the St. Lawrence in the spring is 18,385 packages, against 67,891 packages during the corresponding period of last year. The falling-off is due to a great extent to the large exports of cream to the United States under the new United States tariff, which reduced the duty from 10 per cent. ad valorem to 5c per gallon. One port in Vermont, U.S., reports an average daily importation of 700 gallons of Canadian cream by a local butter factory.

Dear Sirs,--

We are pleased to advise having opened a branch of our business at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, under the management of Mr. J. Clayton, who has had some years' experience in the brokerage business in Winnipeg.

We find it absolutely necessary to establish a branch office and warehouse at this growing jobbing point, as jobbers west of Winnipeg will purchase from brokerage houses on the spot.

We would ask you to pass all quotations and correspondence to NICHOLSON & BAIN, SASKATOON, SASK., and all inquiries will be promptly attended to. In addition to Saskatocn, our manager at that point will work Prince Albert, another growing jobbing point.

Yours truly,

Egg Prices Continue to Soar as Receipts Fall

General Provision Market Has Been Steady During Past Week With But Few Exceptions—Production of Eggs Shows a Decline and Prices Keep on Advancing—Recent Happenings Indicate Increase in Export of Cream Across the Border—Butter Production Holds Its Own—Price Steady

From time to time this summer it has been stated in these columns that Canadian cream has been sent in increasing quantities across the border, where it was used by United States concerns for various uses. The Canadian farmer received a higher price than he would had he shipped to his own factories. Reference is again made to this subject, because of indications that it is going to spread still more.

At Montreal the daily receipts of cheese are being closely watched to see how they compare with those of the same time last year. The receipts during the past few weeks have been falling off, although the pastures have been in better condition than a year ago. This is accounted for by the fact that factories are making less cheese and shipping more cream. Factories in the Eastern townships have notified Montreal dealers that they need not expect any more cheese from them, as they have contracted to ship cream to the United States at a price that will net them 8c to 10c per 100 lbs. more than making cheese. It is expected that the export of cream will become more general from this out.

In Toronto there is a current understanding that a company in Buffalo is about to attempt to corner the cream and milk supply in the Niagara peninsula It is stated that the Bismarck and Attercliffe factories have already been taken over. The Union Cheese Factory, at Pelham, may be bought in. Should this be consummated, all the cheese factories will then be turned into creameries, and the product sent to Buffalo, which can be done at a fair profit, since the cream tariff of the United States has been changed.

The home consumption of butter and cheese has grown extensively during the past few years, and our export trade in these artcles has been gradually falling off. It is yet difficult to tell to what extent the exportation of cream will develop, but it has grown considerably this year.

The price of eggs seems to be generally on the upward incline. Demand has remained firm, but supplies have been falling off. The provision market seems to be unsettled.

Poultry is firm at former prices and demand is good. Supplies of honey seem to be sufficient and prices are holding their position.

MONTREAL.

Provisions—Bacons are cheaper by 1c than last week. At present prices they look like a good buy, as there has been little or no weakening in the hog situation. The general tone of the market shows steadiness, though in some lines there has been a slight weakness.

Trade has been improving during the past few days, owing probably in a large measure to the colder weather now coming on.

Butter—Butter is coming in quite freely now, and is slightly easier in the country. There is no change in the local situation, but sales have been comparatively good.

Receipts for the week are 12,599 packages, as against 10,885 same week last year. For the season they are 319,796 packages, as against 292,720 same season last year, both sets of figures showing an increase for this year.

Cheese—Cheese is slightly higher in the country, owing to the very small production during the past few days. The change is only ½c, and will not in any way affect the price to retailer. There has been some export inquiry, and the market in England is somewhat improved over last week.

Receipts for the week are 74,782 boxes, as against 77,437 same week last year. For the season they are 1,414,685 boxes, as against 1,445,422 same season last year.

Receipts continue small, being only 5,035 cases for the week, as against 5,183 same week last year. For the season they are 159,827 cases, as against 161,697 same season last year. Storage stocks are not any too heavy locally, which adds considerably to the strength of the situation.

Honey—Sellers of buckwheat seem to be well supplied this year, and offers are coming in freely to the local buyers. So much so in fact that they consider the buckwheat situation as somewhat weak, and are holding off for lower prices. Clover honey seems to be rather less in evidence. The quantity offered is not large, though the quality of this year's crop is pronounced as fiine.

Provisions—The provision market has been rather quiet during the week. Prices have remained unchanged at last week's quatations. Supplies of live hogs are about the same. They are not coming in any too freely. There has been no falling off in business which remains encouraging. Demand for boiled hams is hardly as keen as it has been, but the difference is only slight.

Butter—Butter has not advanced during the week, but is holding firm at 26 to 27 cents for creamery. Reports from the country say the pastures are still in good condition, and the ensilage is also particularly good. It is therefore reasonable to expect that the production of butter will keep up pretty well for the next few weeks.

Eggs.—The production of eggs remains pretty well up to the normal. Of course there is a falling off noticeable but it has not been marked yet. The price of eggs has been steadily going up during the past three weeks and selects are now at 27 to 28 cents with fresh eggs close behind at from 24 to 25 cents. The demand for eggs is holding well and stiff prices may be expected henceforth.

Cheese.—Factories are well into the September make of cheese now and from reports received here the production is keeping up well. Demand for cheese is steady and prices are firm. It will not be long now until the factories close down for the year. Stocks of old cheese are about done, many houses having sold out weeks ago.

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

The McCormick Manufacturing Co., London, Ont., have cut down the hours of labor of their employes. Hereafter, the girls will commence work at 7.30 a.m., and quit at 5.30 p.m., making a nine-hour day, in place of ten, as it has been all along. The men will commence at 7 a.m., and quit at 5.30, in place of 6 o'clock. Perhaps the most pleasant feature of the announcement is that although there will be a reduction in hours, there will be no reduction in pay. This will mean from 5 to 10 per cent. increase in wages, and will amount to a very large sum to the firm annually. The reason the firm made this move was that after a close study of conditions they felt that they would get more efficient service from their employes, and that a reduction in hours would be mutually profitable to all.

A "Selling Plan" which is really good has been introduced by the Household Convenience Co., Ltd., Toronto, which if adopted by the retail grocers generally, will certainly mean a big jump in their daily sales. The plan is not exactly a new one, but they have worked in three or four scientific points which puts it on an entirely new basis, and is given a fair trial, the clerks will unconsciously develop into real salesmen. In fact, for transient trade, their plan will make many new customers, by gaining their confidence, as the specialty this company is putting on the market, namely, "Wondershine," which cleans silver and gold, without rubbing, is a real honest labor-saving device. And, this new "Selling Plan" will take well with all the regular customers, and show that their interests are being well looked after. The fact that "Wondershine" is being well advertised, along the right line, and is sold on "the-money-back-if-not-satisfied" idea, should cause every up-to-date grocer to get in touch with this company. Of course grocers as a general rule do not handle silver polishes, but there has never been anything placed on the market like "Wondershine," and it will sell well through the grocery store. As stated in their advertisement, dealers will be sent the "Selling Plan" free by the company with all other information upon receipt of name and address.

The Dominion Register Co., Spadina and Adelaide, Toronto, will move about October 15 to the corner of Ontario and Ontario Place, within ten minutes' walk of King and Yonge Streets. Their new quarters are fully double the size of those just vacated. This is the fourth time within a year that this firm has had to seek larger premises.

Sharp Decline in Prices of Flour and Cereals

Unexpected Movement in Price of Flour, But the Drop in Rolled Oats Was Not Entirely Unexpected—Export Trade is Not Active as Canadian Price is Too High — Shipments of Wheat Have Been Light—Reason for That Condition—Demand For Flour is Apparently Brisk—Difficult to Tell Which Way Next Move Will be.

Following the flour market is not the most satisfying proposition known to man. Perhaps flour follows some natural law, but that same law is pretty hard to locate, and at the same time it is affected by influences apart from the condition of the flour or wheat markets.

During the past week a decline was announced in cereals and in the three grades of Manitoba flour. This should be encouraging to the many grocers who go in for flour on fairly large plans, as it will no doubt act as an impetus to trade.

Millers have expressed their surprise at the decline in flour, although the drop in rolled oats was not so unexpected. It was hinted by one dealer that trade relations might have been partially responsible for the drop—or cut—but this was denied in other quarters.

Speaking of the market in both oats and wheat, a prominent follower of the trade expressed the opinion that lower prices were to be expected.

Wheat is above the export price and that figure will have to be dropped if there is to be any appreciable movement or foreign markets will have to move up. The former though is the movement to be expected. This will enable some of the wheat held to move from the country, and after that there should be a return to better prices. The idea is feasible, and has often been followed before. But in any case opinion is pretty well divided. While some were expecting even a further drop in prices the wheat market braced in Liverpool, Chicago and Winnipeg, and there was a buying flurry in some parts by millers, who believed they saw in this reaction the first of a general advance.

MONTREAL.

Flour—The feature of the flour market of late has been the increase noted here in export demand. As navigation season draws to a close there are many belated orders to be filled, and apparently the last few days have brought a number of such. Prices dropped again on Tuesday, 20 cents a barrel The cause is attributed to price-cutting, and that millers believe that a general reduction was the best method to apply in such a case.

Rolled Oats—The continued weakening of the oat market has finally had the expected effect on the prices of rolled oats. Prices are down this week 25c. They are holding fairly well at this figure, but there is still a feeling of uncertainty as to the future movement. Sales at the reduction are light, and little export demand is noted.

TORONTO.

Flour—A decline of 20 cents in all grades of Manitoba flour was announced locally this week, and first patents are now down to $5.70. Local trading is reported good and demand has been brisk. Local millers express themselves as pretty well satisfied with business. Some have not been quite as well satisfied with the passing demand, and are more inclined to call it rather quiet. The former is the prevailing opinion, however. The recent decline was not altogether expected, and in fact, might have been termed a surprise.

Following it, however, there were indications of higher prices. On Tuesday afternoon the markets closed firmly showing wheat higher and millers were buying in rather large lots as a result. The British markets were higher, and it was believed that this was but the first intimation of a rather sharp advance. The wheat market during the past two weeks has been fluctuating, but what was lost one day was regained the next, and the price was about normal. At any rate grocers will welcome lower prices, as it should aid their end of the demand to a large extent.

Cereals—Quite a slice was taken from the price of rolled oats and rolled wheat this week, and as far as rolled oats are concerned the decline was not wholly unexpected, although as stated in these columns it was believed to be but a matter of time before lower prices were reached. The oat crop has been a bumper one, and comparing the statistical position with that of a year ago and realizing that the holdover was appreciable it was but to be expected that prices could scarcely hold. Some state that they believe that rolled oats are even likely to go lower. That, they say, is their opinion. Events alone will prove their ability to judge the tenor of the market correctly.

Have you been buying the wrong ticket?

A man swung into the Grand Central Station, New York.

"Give me a ticket to Columbus," he called.
"Columbus, Ohio, or Columbus, Kentucky?"
"Whichever's the cheapest."

No more ridiculous than the merchant who buys flour "whichever's the cheapest," irrespective of relative values or of the object for which he is in business.

Now, Brother Grocer, if you are aiming for Permanence of Profits—which only comes of steady sales of uniform quality—you have been misled by selling "whatever's the cheapest."

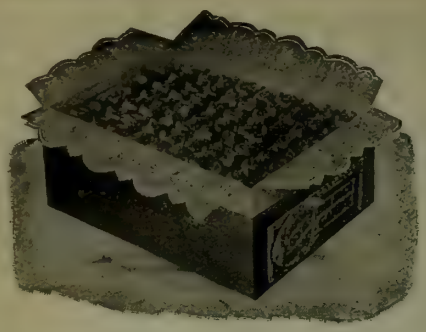
And you have purchased the wrong ticket—you're not on the through train bound for success.

If you should purchase a flour cheaper than FIVE ROSES, be sure that some important step in flour-making has been slighted, the general quality skimped.

Some important step in wheat buying, maybe, in wheat cleaning, in grinding, screening, sifting, packing, delivering.

One of those infinite processes whose rigid and faithful observance makes FIVE ROSES flour what it is.

Flour Satisfaction and low-down price are incompatible, Brother Grocer.



So also near-good stuff and the repeat trade.

Which sufficiently explains why FIVE ROSES costs just a little more than some. And yet pays YOU much better than most.

Grapes are Beginning to Arrive More Freely

Peaches and Pears are Now at the Best of Their Season and Should Hold That Position for a short Time Yet—Meanwhile Ontario Grapes are Showing Better Every Day and They Will Soon be Arriving at Their Best—Apples are in Good Demand and at a Rather High Price — Tomotoes Feature the Vegetable Market.

Peaches and pears are now at the pinnacle of their demand, and as their season is spending itself the grape is coming in more freely and will soon have the centre of the fruit market stage. From reports, grocers are getting a good share of the fall trade in pears and peaches and that there is a great deal of preserving being done is vouched for by the wholesale grocers who say that the demand for sugar is active. The crops of peaches and pears have been about up to the average and good prices have ruled. The grape crop should be fairly large and a big volume of business is sure to result.

Apples are coming more plentiful now but the prices ean scarcely be called low. In fact apples are holding firm and are expected to remain in that condition as a result of the shortage of this year's crop. Cantaloupes are still moving well, but in some markets there has been an overdose. Lemons are moving fairly well, but the weather has not been the right kind for a heavy demand.

Trade in vegetables is running smoothly with tomatoes receiving most attention.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Grapes are coming on the market in considerable quantities this week. The brands mostly arriving are Concords and some of the Rogers varieties. They are selling at from 25 to 30 cents per basket. Delawares are of course still coming in, though the quality of the late arrivals has been somewhat poor.

Sales are small this week, a reaction after the Congress. Practically all lines are showing the effect of the slump.

Apples are arriving in larger quantity, but prices are higher owing to a fear of a short crop this year.

Vegetables.—Sweet potatoes are again on the market, and are selling well so far. The taste for this vegetable seems to be on the increase. It is one of those that has to be cultivated. People are becoming better acquained with them now than they were a few years ago.

Some very large green peppers are appearing, quoted at the high price of $2. They are finding a fair sale at that figure.

The market has not been at all brisk, as a general rule this week, though that was only to be expected. A reaction was sure to come after the visitors had left the city.

Green Fruits.—The delightful fragrance of newly ripened grapes now greets the visitor to the local fruit market, denoting that grapes are coming to their own. Peaches and pears are now at their height and are likely to remain so for a short time yet. The quality of these fruits has been of the best, and supplies have arrived in heavy shipments. Crawford peaches and Bartlett pears have held the market and only the fruit men themselves realize the total amount of fruit that has passed through their hands. Retail grocers report a satisfactory trade. Apples are none too plentiful, although fairly good supplies of St. Lawrences, Alexanders and a few other varieties are arriving. The general opinion is that high grade fruit of either peaches, pears or apples is not going to be what is termed cheap, but is going to hold as at present at fairly high prices.

Grapes are just working their way to a high water mark of supplies, the first shipments being now received. It is believed that they will arrive freely in a short time now. Cantaloupes are quoted at a low figure yet, but the trade look for better prices as soon as the glut that has burdened the market for some time is removed. There is not much trade passing in oranges, and lemons are moving slowly, with but little activity.

Vegetables.—A steady business is being done in vegetables, but on the market they are really secondary to fruit at the present stage of the season. There is a heavy demand for tomatoes and as stated a week ago pickling vegetables are in greatest demand. The trade in the other vegetables is good, but it is not much beyond the normal.

Lack of System Noted in Marketing Canteloupes

No Evidences are Apparent of The Growers' Efforts to Regulate Supply, Quality and Other Points Which Require Consideration If the Canteloupe Business is to Expand—Some Markets Have Been Over Supplied Recently and Prices Dropped—Quality is Not Uniform—Success of the Business will Depend Upon Combined Efforts of Those Handling It.

The canteloupe has been having its innings during the past two or three weeks by reason of the large quantity that has reached the market. Not infrequently has it been said that the supply was too heavy in certain markets and the question follows as to whether the canteloupe business could not be built upon a more satisfactory basis.

At the present time only a small percentage of the people in the cities and towns are eating this midsummer delicacy. If the growers are at all interested in the business it should be greatly to their interest that the canteloupe be impressed upon the people either by themselves or by some of those handling it.

Retailer Does the Selling.

It is the grocer or retail fruitman who calls the attention of the consumer to the canteloupe. The retailer, therefore, should know the talking points that may be used. The grower should accordingly be desirous of cultivating the salesmanship of the retailer and giving him the necessary selling power. For after all it is the retailer who moves out the great majority of the goods stocked on his shelves.

There is money in canteloupes for the retail grocer, but it is one of the lines to which quality is everything. The person who has eaten them before, wants only a good one. And if one of poor quality falls into the hands of a person who is eating the canteloupe for the first time he is lost as a consumer in the majority of cases. Thus quality is a prime essential.

And what is being done to put quality fruit on the market? To the casual observer there is no discrimination being made by the grower who is content to turn in any kind of fruit, his chief care being that he receives the money for it. This is not true in every case but it seems to be the method of some growers.

Made Watermelon Uniform.

In California a big trade was founded on watermelons by the growers uniting in their efforts and determining on a particular kind which all grew and thus an absolutely uniform fruit was grown. A consumer knows that any one melon is practically as good as any other.

If one kind of canteloupe is grown in one field and the next grower has a different kind the fruit from these two fields will be a queer compound, as during the blossoming season the pollen is carried from the flowers of one kind to the other.

The growers surely realize that the grocer is the final medium of getting the canteloupe to the consumer and in order to assist the retailer the grower should put a good article in his hands and tell him about it. It will work for their mutual benefit.

The Canadian canteloupe is grown of good quality and finds a large market. But there is so much that can be done to improve the condition that, from the retailer's viewpoint, the canteloupe demand is only in its infancy.

Outlook is for Higher Prices in Fish Market

Supplies in Some Lines are Not Heavy and if Conditions Hold Quotations are Bound to go up—Lobsters are High, in Fact Have Reached a Record Price—Oyster Season is Opening and Demand Shows Marked Improvement This Week—Fresh Fish is Bought up Practically as Soon as it is Received—Business is in Good Condition.

The trade this week did a good business, there being three fast days. This increase has firmed up the prices of fresh sea fish, as almost all lines are scarce at present. This scarcity is due to the fact that there has been a series of storms raging for the past few days, which have made it impossible for the boats to go out. What fresh fish have put in an appearance have been snapped up at once, and the market already shows great firmness.

Haddock and mackerel are particularly affected. It seems a certainty that these two will be quoted at an advance in the near future.

Pickled mackerel are scarce, and large shipments of imported fish are on their way to fill the requirements.

Pike and pickerel are arriving freely, also brook trout and lake trout. Whitefish are scarce, and the market shows signs of advancing.

Lobsters are exceedingly dear and some of the dealers say they can hardly look at them not alone buy them.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, B.C., September 22.—One halibut boat got in last week from Alaskan waters with 160,000 pounds of fish. Another arrived with 20,000 pounds, the smallest catch on record. The latter spent the time in the vicinity of Hecate straits, but the fish there are very scarce. This feature has happened before, but on past occasions the fish have returned. The prevailing wholesale price is four cents per pound, but from now on it will gradually advance.

Salmon is scarce, and 35 cents apiece is being paid for cohoes. Even at this, the highest price yet, the fish cannot be had.

Smoked fish has made its appearance in the stores, following the announcement in these columns two weeks ago that the fishing firms were about to start the smoked goods again.

QUEBEC.

Montreal, Sept. 22.—Fish scarcity is the cry all over the city, and in fact on the coast as well. Haddock and mackerel especially show this. For the past few days storms on the coast have been so serious that the boats could not go out. If an improvement does not come soon in the fresh fish lines, there will be a very high range of prices.

Business should be good this coming week with three fast days.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 22.—Fish of all kinds, both fresh and frozen, are in fairly good supply at present, though prices are high in most cases. Halibut, cod, haddock, smelt and herring are the most reasonable. A rarity in the fish line for St. John was brought to the city last week. It was a king mackerel, caught off the south shore of Nova Scotia and weighed 455 pounds with the entrails and head removed. The big fellow which was consigned to Smith's fish store was shipped to Montreal.

Canned lobster is now quoted so high that the dealers say they cannot look at it let alone buy. For half pound tins in cases of 8 dozen, $17 to $17.50 per case is asked from the retailer and for three-quarter pound tins the price is $11.50 to $12 for a case of 4 dozen. This is the highest price ever asked for lobster here.

The ruling prices to the retail trade now are :—

Toronto, Sept. 22.—Fall shipments are now coming in and receipts are generally larger. The outlook for the season near at hand is bright but the supplies should be more plentiful for the best conditions. Prices hold firm in all lines of fish and the demand seems to have improved. Oysters have shown quite an improvement in trade and shipments have begun to take on some size. The weather will strengthen the demand for oysters if it holds cool.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax, Sept. 22.—Substantial receipts of dry fish have arrived at Halifax during the past week, 13,000 quintals coastwise largely from the banks by Lunenburg schooners in addition to 3,600 quintals from outside customs ports, chiefly Newfoundland. The largest cargo was 1,960 quintals from Cape Cove by the schooner Renown, another being 1,250 quintals from Harbor Breton, Nfld.

Quotations continue firm at ruling prices, the market at St. John's, Nfld., showing somewhat of an upward tendency. Oversea exports give a good average by the direct West Indies steamers and the Boston and New York boats for trans-shipment in every direction. Landings of ground fish have been rather slack of late, some 350,000 pounds coming from all sources. About 250 bbls. herring have been taken along the western shore recently, but receipts as yet are not abreast of the usual average, partly owing to the rough seas along the coast.

Although extensive preparations for the capture of sword fish have been made by our fishermen, the number secured lately has been much smaller than expected. In lobsters, the only feature of note during the past two weeks is a shipment of 2,000 cases canned for the European markets.

The Value of Cleanliness in Handling Oysters

Much Dependence Should be Placed on this if Confidence of Customers is to be Gained—Talking Points That the Dealer Should Know to Back Up the Attractiveness of His Display—Why Oysters are Dearer Than They were a Few Years Ago.

To the grocer who is contemplating dealing in oysters this season, and that should be practically every grocer who has a business in a good locality, one word should be ever and always before him if he would win the most success. That is "cleanliness."

As stated already in these columns a grocer's business is partially founded upon the confidence of his customers. If they believe in him his success is practically assured. It is in this respect that cleanliness is so important. If you would build up your oyster business you should do all in your power to make the goods attractive to your regular customers and to all who enter your store. If cleanliness go hand in hand with quality your trade in oysters is practically assured.

Oyster companies, when they do anything to improve the business, are not backward in telling it to the retailer and the retailer might to advantage follow this plan. And it does not apply to oysters alone. If you do something to improve the method of handling goods tell your customers about it, otherwise the chances are that they will never know it.

If you take extra care to secure fresh eggs surely that is a matter of concern to your customers. Similarly with oysters. The people are going to eat them and many consumers like them raw. Therefore they are going onto the family table just as they come from your store. Surely it is plain that the more attractively you can present them in your store, the greater will be the appreciation on the part of the customers and your sales will soon show the results that you are after.

No More Watered Oysters.

The oyster jobbers are putting forth efforts to place the oysters in your store just as they came from their shells. They are no longer "watered." In a previous article it was shown that they are of better quality on that account and that they are also higher in price because the retailer gets solid oysters and no water.

Another point with which to impress the idea of cleanliness is that the containers in which the oysters are shipped must, if returned to the shipping houses, be sterilized and cleaned.

The containers are therefore absolutely clean when the oysters are put into them and it is not long after they pass through the various channels until they are exhibited in the retail store.

Know the Selling Points.

The grocer should be able to talk oysters as if he had been in the business for years. No doubt he could sell them without that knowledge, but he has an extra power when he has at his finger tips the selling points, talking points which will not fail to impress the customer. He should be able to explain why they are not watered, how they are handled from the shell to the retail store, why they are dearer and other little points that the consumer likes or wants to know.

If your display container is not clean and inviting, however, you cannot expect that your particular customers will buy. It would be hardly fair to expect the oysters to sell themselves under unfavorable conditions. This does not mean that oysters are difficult to handle, it simply is for the purpose of impressing the grocer with an ideal as far as oysters are concerned and that ideal is to present them to the customer under the most inviting conditions and having done that the battle is more than half won. It is then only necessary for the dealer to add his own salesmanship abilities to make a good profit from oysters.

FREIGHT RATES IN B. C.

On Sept. 27 a special meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade will be held to discuss the advisability of forming a bureau of transportation. This decision was arrived at recently following a discussion on the question of freight rates in the course of which it was alleged that British Columbia shippers were discriminated against.

High Prices are Being Paid the Tobacco Growers

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 22.—Record breaking prices are being paid throughout the western Ontario peninsula for the 1910 tobacco crop. Whatever shortage the farmers may have suffered from the hailstorms earlier in the season is being made up by the exceptionally high price per pound for which they are now disposing of the product.

Representatives of one tobacco firm opened their campaign at Leamington by offering 16 cents. Other companies followed by paying 16¼ and 17 cents. Though the first named price is a remarkable one for the average run of Canadian tobacco, the price for some exceptionally good samples of the weed has gone as high as 20c., while a few isolated growers are reported to be holding out for 25 cents.

A Leamington expert estimates the crop of the entire western peninsula at between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 pounds. His company expects to purchase over $1,000,000 worth.

Throughout the entire tobacco growing section the crop is reported to be of exceptional quality, which to some extent accounts for the high prices paid. The outlook for the coming year is an excellent one, according to tobacco buyers, and there is little doubt that a much increased acreage will be sown as the result of this year's high prices.

The new tobacco curing process is being tried out in quite a few places and is working well. The tobacco is hung in drying houses and subjected to a heat of 200 degrees. In about 60 hours the tobacco is cured out to a bright golden color, suitable for cigarettes and a high grade of cigars.

Are the Profits of the Retailer on the Decline?

Editor Canadian Grocer.—From my experience, the retail grocer is paying more every year for his goods, but his profits have been standing still instead of keeping pace with the prices he is paying out. About seven years ago I was making more money than I am today. That is, my profits were larger, and any grocer in the business then will bear me out in that statement. Butter, eggs, cheese and bacon, consider these alone, and you will find that in each case there has been a decline in the grocer's profit. I could easily give the figures, but every grocer knows them as well as I do. Less than ten years ago I had a turn over of $20,000. To-day it has increased to $40,000, but my profits show but very little gain. I often wonder if other grocers stop to think about this question. I know they must be aware of the circumstances, for I am sure of my figures, and I feel confident that the general trade must be up against the cool facts as I have been.

Not only are the staple goods higher, but changes in the price of other goods have cut down the profit the grocer used to get. It is not long ago since matches for instance were advanced. And there are other goods that the same might be said of. In the majority of cases the advance gives the manufacturer more profit but the grocer cannot increase his price to the consumer.

I have often wondered how long the grocers are going to endure condition of this kind, how long it will be before they will wake up to their possibilities and demand from the manufacturer a square deal.

ORGANIZATION.

Ottawa, Sept. 14, 1910.

SUIT AGAINST WHOLESALERS.

Association to Stand Trial Under the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

In the complex relations between the different factors of the grocery business, manufacturer, jobber and retailer, says the New York Journal of Commerce, the trade organizations have played an unusually important part. Their influence has been so great that during the agitation over the high prices of food products the U. S. Government grasped largely at the suggestion that these organizations might be partly responsible. The suit under the Sherman Anti-Trust law against the organized jobbers bearing the name of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association was the outcome. Evidence in this case will be taken within a short time. There have been rumors to the effect that similar cases against other grocery associations might follow, but no official announcement has been made, and the opinion is that the Government will first justify its charges against the Southern organization.

GRAPES AN AVERAGE CROP.

A large fruit grower in the Niagara peninsula writes The Canadian Grocer as follows: "In regard to the fruit crop in the Niagara peninsula, pears were a heavy crop. Peaches were a moderate crop and paid the growers well; plums a moderate crop and they also paid, the growers well. Grapes promise to be an average crop at least."

TRADE NOTES.

C. P. Wright, formerly of Aylmer, Que., has opened a large departmental store on Rideau Street, Ottawa.

The grocery business of Copas & Emerson, Calgary, Alta., has been sold to the Howson, McEwen Co.

R. A. Lawson, grocer, Bracebridge, Ont., has begun operations on a new flour and feed store.

D. Ferguson has opened a grocery store on London St., Windsor, Ont. The business will be conducted on a cash basis. Mr. Ferguson came to Canada from Scotland about two and a half years ago.

Chute & Wilson will open a grocery stock in a new store in the Dake Block Talbot Street East, St. Thomas, Ont., in the near future.

A GROCER'S CO-OPERATION

RISING SUN Stove Polish in Cakes gives a lustre which far outlasts all others under the heat of the stove, and that is why it has so many friends that call for it over the grocery counters the world around. We believe that the real live grocer wants to push the goods that please his customers, and that is why we have the hearty co-operation of thousands upon thousands of grocers everywhere. It pays you to push it.

2 IN 1
Shoe Polish

The Polish OF Preference

It pays to handle a quick-selling line like "2 in 1" Shoe Polish—a line that's always in demand and that always gives satisfaction.

"2 in 1" is positively waterproof, preserves and softens the leather, does not clog or stain the clothes, and is free from acid or turpentine.

Get a generous supply and display it well.

BRANDS

"BANNER" & "PRINCESS"
CONDENSED MILK

are prepared from the purest and richest country milk, with no addition but that of pure sugar.

St. George Evaporated Cream
(Unsweetened)

The most sanitary conditions are observed in the canning and handling of the milk. The reputation of these brands as genuine satisfaction-givers is unsurpassed.

Lines that mean much in profit and reputation to every grocer who handles them.

Spices, and How to Know Them

By W. M. GIBBS

The only book on the subject—just published. The merchant or salesman, who knows all about spices, can command the spice trade in his territory. To get this information, he should read this work, dealing with PREPARATION, USE and ADULTERATION OF SPICES—a chapter devoted to each spice.

"Calice" Soap

There is no Rosin in it.

Antiseptic, sanitary, clean—all this because "Calice" Soap is made from oil as pure as a drop of distilled dew. Positively fine for complexion and for every purpose; even to the cleansing of the most delicate lingerie it is unsurpassed. Years of experience back of every cake. The soap of common sense—"Calice" Soap.

Bramwell's Epsom Salts

Made by E. Bramwell & Sons, in St. Helen's, England — purified, refined, sifted and containing no moisture whatsoever. As different from the ordinary "Epsom Salts" of commerce as black is from white.

Free from foreign matter——Dry as a Bone.

Open the package at bottom or top and you'll find equal dryness. Epsom Salts that are unique in the invincible strength of their absolute freedom from foreign matter of any sort or substance. Made only for the most particular class of trade—your particular class of trade.

As a rule, wholesalers are always stocked with the articles we represent (as agents) because they are standard goods. Here and there a retailer may find that his dealer (for some plausible reason of his own) can't (or won't) supply him. We want to get in touch with wholesalers of this class because we believe the "proof of the pudding is in the eating" and we solicit the opportunity of "proving."

So then (if you are a retailer) and can't get supplied, drop us a post card, giving your wholesaler's name. A mutual interest will unquestionably be extremely well served thereby.

You make better profits on the better grade peas

INSTEAD of selling imported French Peas to supply the demand for better grade peas, sell our Extra Fine Sifted (Petits Pois) Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted and Early June Sifted.

Not from sentimental or patriotic reasons, but because they will yield you a better profit, give your customers much greater satisfaction and help to increase the demand for the more profitable higher grade peas.

That vivid green color which makes some lines of imported French Peas look so pretty is produced by Sulphate of Copper—a chemical that is not only very injurious to health, but which kills the true flavor of the peas.

We never use sulphate of copper or any other coloring chemicals in our canned peas.

Extra Fine Sifted (Petit Pois), Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted and Early June Sifted are thoroughly sterilized, the very pick of the pack, fine, tender, and of exquisite flavor.

You can materially increase your profits and your reputation by pushing these lines. Try it.

FACTS ABOUT ADVERTISING

By The Advertising Manager

V.

The ——— Co. made investigation and found that nearly all the good merchants in every section of Canada were readers of The Canadian Grocer.

They subscribed themselves, and, after reading this paper for a few weeks, concluded that the merchant who didn't consider it good business to pay $2 a year for the information and pointers to be got from The Grocer, wasn't worth trying to influence through advertising, anyway.

They figured out the cost and found that by using a half-page space 52 times a year they could reach 10 good buyers for every cent the advertising cost them.

"Why," said the manager of this firm, "we can deliver a real strong selling talk to 7,000 of the best dealers in the country at a cost of about $8 a week!

* * *

"To send a letter to each one of them would mean an expense of nearly $140 for stamps alone, not to speak of the cost of writing or printing the letters, cost of stationery, labor, etc.

"At that rate the expense would be about $7,280 for the stamps alone on a letter to this list every week in the year.

"That is, if we had the list.

"We can get a list of 7,000 merchants easily enough, but not the sort of list The Canadian Grocer has.

* * *

"The Grocer has selected, as an audience for our advertising, the 7,000 best and most progressive merchants in Canada. It has furnished the most productive kind of ground for our arguments to fall on.

"It gives us a mailing list that each reader of the paper invests $2 a year to get on—because it pays him to be there."

The ——— Co. decided to place an order with us for a half-page regularly.

"It's pretty reasonable advertising," said the manager, "when you consider that it costs us only $8 per week, or a charge against each one of our 10 travelers' expenses of 80 cents weekly.

* * *

"It is a good investment, because I believe that it will materially increase the efficiency of every traveler on our staff."

Get a firmer grasp on your profits

Are you making money on your oil? Probably far less than you think. If you could ascertain exactly how little, you would be astonished. Remember that EVAPORATION alone may reduce gasolene and kerosene from 5 to 25 per cent. per month. Then reckon overflow, drip, spilling and over-measure on every quart you sell, and even an occasional leak. These little losses combined easily wipe out your few cents of profit. You cannot raise the price to your customers and you cannot reduce the price you are paying for the oil, so the only way left is to reduce the waste and the cost of handling it; it can be done with a

Bowser Self-Measuring Oil Tank

With a stroke of the pump handle you can discharge with absolute accuracy one gallon or any fraction thereof, directly into your customer's can, doing away with the sloppy funnels and measures. The tank is absolutely leak and evaporation-proof. Your increased profits will pay for our best outfit in a year.

Wouldn't you like to sell every gallon of oil with as little trouble, as clean hands and as sure profit as when you hand out a package of tea? The "Bowser" will do it. Over 500,000 outfits now in use. To insure better profits it will pay you to investigate what a "Bowser" will do for you. Acting now means money saved.

A Great Selling Team

¶ Buyers must be moved through several steps to be brought to the buying point.

¶ They must have their attention attracted to the article. They must have their interest in it awakened. They must be informed as to its nature, utility and merits. They must be convinced of its value. They must be moved to action—to closing.

¶ Good salesmen and good trade-paper advertising make a great team to carry the buyer through these several stages to the buying point. Alone, the salesman is at a disadvantage.

Practical Methods Used in Retail Grocery Stores

St. John Dealer Uses Newspaper Readers With Success—Care in Handling and Selling Coffee—Belleville Grocers in Court Charged with Keeping Open After Hours—Merchants Should Study Individual Customers Thinks Galt Dealer—Dried Fruits Placed in Cardboard Boxes

Use Readers with Success.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 30—A method of advertising that has been found successful by a local retail grocery firm is to put small reading notices in the daily papers calling attention to specially low prices on certain lines. For instance now that the housewives are thinking of preserving and pickling, this firm each day advertises something that is attractive in this connection. The advertisements are placed among the "short locals" and read like this:

"————'s are offering choice green tomatoes at 15 cents a peck, choice butter by tub 21 cents a pound."

"Potatoes, 15 cents a peck; apples, 17 cents a peck, at ————'s."

These advertisements take up little room, the cost is not great and they never fail to attract attention. The firm using them say they are sure business getters. In addition to these little readers, which are in the way of special advertisements, the firm carry a regular 3-inch, double column advertisement in at least one of the local papers, and changes are made in the text every day or so.

Care in Selling Bulk Coffee.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 29.—"There are several things to be particularly careful about in handling bulk coffee," said a local dealer recently who has created a good demand for both bulk and package coffees.

"I buy several grades of coffee for grinding myself, roasted in the bean. I can usually tell with what a new coffee customer will be satisfied, whether a 25 cent, 40 cent or 60 cent price. I sell mostly the 40 cent coffee. Once I have worked up a demand for coffee with a certain customer I always know afterwards what to offer her.

"The beans are never ground until I have the order; this always insures freshness and a pleasing aroma and no loss of strength or flavor. It is quite different from the usual method of putting up sugar in the morning for the day's sales.

"To further insure freshness and flavor, the roasted beans are kept in practically air tight tins so that there can be little or no danger of them absorbing any foreign odor.

"If the coffee is being sent out in the delivery waggon, care should be taken not to put it near onions, etc., as it may take up the odor.

"Customers should be told to keep the freshly ground coffee in a canister; although this is expected of every woman, still there are some who, through carelessness or otherwise, overlook this essential.

"Then your coffee grinder is a good advertisement as the customers are impressed with the fact that they are getting a coffee that is fresh and is good in every respect."

Dried Fruits in Cardboard Boxes.

Winnipeg, Sept. 29—A local grocer, about this time each year orders a large number of cardboard boxes in which he puts currants and raisins and offers them for sale instead of in bags. His name appears on the box together with a simple ornament such as a crescent or star and the name Crescent Brand Raisins or Currants.

Then appears his name with his store address. The boxes are made and stamped at a local printing office at a comparatively small cost. A couple of dozen are filled at a time and placed on the shelves, thus the raisins are always fresh and no time is wasted in parcelling.

In the past he used to put three pounds of raisins and three of currants in the respective boxes and sell them at 25 cents a box. The idea is not exactly a new one, but is mentioned as this grocer is highly satisfied with the plan, so he says, and this is the season in which these fruits begin to be in greater demand. He claims that his profit suffers but little through the cardboard box idea.

After Hours Case in Court.

Belleville, Ont., Sept. 29—In compliance with a petition which was presented to the city council, signed by a majority of the grocery dealers in April last, the council passed a by-law which came into effect on May 1st, compelling grocers to close their places of business at 7.30 p.m. The by-law has been fairly well adhered to, but the other day two grocers were summoned before the Police Magistrate to answer a charge of keeping their places open at night after the time specified by the by-law.

The case of R. Fenn & Son was laid over for a few days, but that of Arthur Gaels was disposed of. The counsel who appeared for the accused contended that his client was a vendor of postage stamps and as such under the law he was compelled to keep open later than 7.30 p.m. in order that people could procure if they desired them,stamps at a later hour than that designated by the by-law. The City Solicitor, on behalf of the city, contended that Mr. Gael had violated the by-law. The Magistrate, whilst acquitting Mr. Gael of the charge preferred against him, warned him against continuing the practice of keeping open after the hour stipulated in the by-law.

Study Individual Customers.

Galt, Ont., Sept. 22—"The retail business cannot be learned in a day," said Wm. Mullett, recently, in referring to the numerous things that a dealer has to learn.

"A successful grocer must study his customers," he claimed, "and suit his selling methods to each of them. I find scarcely two alike when it comes to doing business with them and I have been in the grocery business for 15 years."

Mr. Mullet thinks also that the retailers do not get together often enough. By so doing they could adjust many matters of importance which now run along in a confusing manner.

Took Advantage of Fair.

Lindsay, Sept. 29—The Lindsay Central Fall Fair is what it should be to the grocers of Lindsay—a real money-maker. The Lindsay Fair extended over three days and during those three days the grocers made elaborate preparations to cater to the thousands of visitors. Many good displays were made in the various windows, but it was in the sale of fruit that the grocers reaped a rich harvest. Adams Bros. disposed of some 700 baskets of grapes alone. Robson, the West End Grocer, Primeau, Fleury, Campbell and others also disposed of a large number of baskets.

A local dealer who believes in advertising is John Fleury. He likes the short readers or local lines in the daily press, and is now advertising a special kind of cider. His ads. are signed, "at the Oak Front Grocery," which is a standard name in Lindsay. Everybody knows where the "Oak Front" is.

Will Likely be Admitted to the Wholesalers' Guild

It is generally rumored among the trade this week that Fred L. Newman, wholesale grocer, Picton, Ont., will be admitted to the Wholesale Grocers Guild. His aplication has been before that body for some time awaiting approval and, it is understood, will be considered favorably. It has to pass from the local to the provincial, to the Dominion bodies, repsectively for endorsation.

Criticizes Merchants for Losing their Trade

If Mail Order Houses Win Out It is Fault of the Dealers, Says Traveler—Merchants Sending Out of Town to Get Their Printing Done—Buy Outside Goods Instead of Dealing With the Other Business Men—Jealousy The Cause.

By A Traveler.

With all the trouble the retail merchants in small towns are experiencing through mail-order houses, they should not give printers reason to complain that they are giving their orders for the printing of their billheads, envelopes, etc., to large printers away from their own towns.

In talking with merchants all over the country they all agree about the unfairness of the mail order business, and the farmer, whose shoulders are broad, gets the chief blame for the trouble.

Having made this question a study from the farmer's standpoint and also being thoroughly conversant with the merchant's attitude, I am inclined to come to the conclusion that the merchants are the principal cause of the whole trouble. In the first place a great many drifted into the retail trade without any training or fitness and consequently are ignorant of the simplest business principles and inconsistent in all their methods. The farmers are fairer to the merchants and more loyal in many cases to their local towns than the merchants are to each other, and to the town in which they do their business.

Stupid jealousy of each other is the greatest enemy they have, and in order to get ahead of each other, they will rather spend their money anywhere else than among their own neighbors. They expect the local printers to boost their towns, the farmers to deal with them, and the general public to be loyal and support them, but they themselves support outside printers, and many of them quietly send their money away for things they do not keep in their own stores.

Set Example to Customers.

If the merchants had learned to treat one another properly, had understood scientific mercantiling and given the people the service they were entitled to, the mail order business would never have found any support. Even now the character of the stores in a place can be understood by the amount of express arriving from mail order houses at the different towns. Wherever the stores are in the hands of competent, prosperous, up-to-date men, there the mail order business finds little to do. What is needed more than anything else, to secure the trade in the towns where it belongs, is a regular "overhauling" of the merchants themselves. Let them support one another and set an example to their customers and their troubles will largely disappear.

Why should a merchant order his billheads, envelopes, etc., from the cities, when they have printers in their own towns? Do they not realize that the printer can in many ways put in a good word for them which will be infinitely more valuable than the supposed little saving they expect from a bargain printing order.

No class of men are more loyal to their towns than the newspaper men, and the business men cannot afford to give them reason to complain about their support. Support your local paper and be true to your own town.

To be Proceeded Against in the U.S. Law Court

New York, Sept. 29.—A technicality is alleged to have been largely responsible for the victory of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association, who were charged by H. G. Clabaugh, an insurgent wholesaler, with restraining trade and throttling competition. Clabaugh sued the Asscoiation twice, in the Alabama Court and in the United States Court. In the first case he was successful and was awarded heavy damages, but agreed to accept $10,000 and costs in lieu of it. The money was paid but still he went ahead with his second suit, first on the ground that the Association had not paid all it was obliged to pay under the compromise agreement and, second, that the second suit was brought for a different offence and under a differeent law. On this point the court decided against him, ruling that when he had accepted $10,000 after the first suit, he had closed everything.

Clabaugh has appealed this judgment. The Association, however, lost not only the principle involed, but a large sum of money. It also stands convicted of having used what the law considered unfair tactics when Clabaugh was prevented from securing goods from manufacturers. His name was not in the "Green Book" and he was reminded of that fact by manufacturers when he applied for goods.

The United States government prosecution of the Association under the Sherman anti-trust law, will now be proceeded with. The United States attorney stated recently that he felt it would be proved to the satisfaction of the court that the Association had been monopolistic and illegal in its methods.

Some Ancient History Concerning Dried Fruits

A Hundred Years Ago Currants Sold at More Than 25 Cents Per Pound Wholesale—Duty was Very High—Currant Famine in 1855—England a Great Consumer — Raisins Used to be Packed on the Stalk.

During the course of an address on dried fruits, C.L.T. Beeching, of London, Eng., said that about one hundred years ago—in 1814—the lowest price of currants, wholesale, was 106 shillings a cwt. the duty at that time being over 44 shillings.

The history of the century in connection with the article had, in the main, been that of decreasing duties and prices and of increasing consumption. In 1855 there was a currant famine, due to wet seasons in Greece, and the importation of the fruit that year reached only 7,817 tons, with the result that the price was about 110 shillings per cwt. In 1860 the duty was reduced to 7 shillings, and thirty years later to 2 shillings, at which figure it stands to-day.

England is the world's greatest customer for currants. The points to look for in buying currants, says Mr. Beeching, are first, size, but it is important to remember that the largest currant is not always the best. Next color should be looked for, and this should be of a bluish black; currants with a number of red berries amongst them are not of the highest quality The flavor of a good currant should be slightly acid mingled with a pleasant sweetness.

Facts About Raisins.

Spain is the chief source of supply for raisins to European markets, the great province of Valencia giving its name to the rainis or "French plum," as it used to be called. Before 1854 raisins were packed on the stalks in 28-lb. and 56-lb. boxes. This way of exporting the gruit gave the grocer a great deal of trouble, and old-fashioned grocers would still tell of the process of "trouncing" their raisins.

The growers were induced to pack the fruit without the stalk, and although this method at first was looked upon with disfavor by some grocers, in time, it became universal, and now in a box of Valencia raisins one might look in vain for the suspicion of a stalk.

In some of the large salesrooms in London, as many as 300 different samples at various prices are shown at this period of the year, and the grocer who would learn the different qualities, and how to tell them would greatly profit by a visit there. Sultana raisins are grown in Smyrna.

How One Club Handles Fake Advertising Schemes

Commercial Club of Lincoln, Neb., Deals With Everything for the Merchants—Puts the Ban on Such Things as Cook Books—Merchants Thus Have More Money for Newspaper and Other Legitimate Advertising.

By Darlow Adnews.

The Commercial Club, of Lincoln, Neb., has succeeded to a remarkable degree in protecting the advertisers of that city against all sorts of advertising schemes. That word "schemes" is used in this connection to cover the various souvenirs, programs, etc., that formerly were so abundant everywhere, but that are now constantly decreasing in number to the decided advantage of legitimate advertising interest.

We cite the case of Lincoln because Secretary Whitten, of the commercial Club in that city, has with the assistance and co-operation of the local business men, succeeded in building up a most satisfactory plan for regulalating these special prospositions, and has done it without injuring a single permanent interest or causing loss to any deserving local industry.

Must Go to Headquarters.

The system works in this way: Suppose the solicitor for a cook-book advertising scheme goes to Lincoln for the purpose of selling the book to ladies and disposing of advertising space to the by the first man upon whom he calls: "What does the Commercial Club say about your proposition?"

"I haven't seen the Commercial Club," replies the solicitor.

"Then I can't do business with you, for we have an agreement in this city that prevents any of us from patronizing an advertising proposition that does not come under a certain recognized class or that has not the endorsement of the club."

After he has had this from two or three other merchants or advertising managers, the solicitor naturally goes to the club-rooms for the purpose of finding out where he stands.

There he accosts Secretary Whitten, explains hs proposition, and asks for information. He gets it.

"We protect our legitimate advertising institutions," says Mr. Whitten. "We regard newspaper, billboard and street-car advertising as legitimate, because they bring returns. There are certain other publicity media that receive our endorsement, because we believe they produce results that are more or less substantial But we bar your cook-book.

"Your book is printed in another state. That means that Lincoln gets nothing out of it. You expect to sell it here; and you expect to obtain money from our merchants for advertising, and all of that, also, you will send away. Furthermore, we do not consider it good advertising, and we cannot endorse it."

Sure to Lose Money.

If the solicitor continues his work, and tries to sell his space in spite of the Commercial Club and the business men's agreement, he finds the returns far out of proportion to the time and labor expended and soon gives it up as an unprofitable job.

The Lincoln Commercial Club believes that theatre programs are good, because they have a large and dependable circulation. It recognizes one publication for each university and college in the city, but insists that the total charge for advertising space shall not exceed the cost of publication In other words, the students are not expected to conduct their publications for profit. The merchants support them up to the amount of their cost, and not beyond that.

Some of the advertising schemes that are considered "doubtful" by the Lincoln club and, therefore, are barred, are city directories, unless published in Lincoln; hotel registers, desk cards, card cases, room cards, and similar devices; all newspaper schemes, other than those regularly presented by local papers; cook-books, society and church programs, blank books, time cards, etc.; theatre tickets, restaurant tickets and baseball score cards except Western League score cards; dance and all entertainment tickets; irregular publications issued chiefly for advertising purposes.

Advertising Encouraged.

Of course this list does not include any recognized publication and does not interfere with the work of solicitors for outside newspapers and magazines. General advertising is encouraged. The club merely aims to limit and control the special schemes that for years have claimed so large a share of each appropration.

The advertiser can now administer a graceful "turn down," and under protection of his agreement can do so without offending the solicitor or injuring his business. If the club's secretary is in doubt as to the worthiness of a proposition, he passes it on to a committee of three, who are unknown save to the president and secretary of the club. This committee has the final "say," and the solicitor who is denied cannot know just where to place his wrath.

Mr. Whitten says the merchants of Lincoln stand by the agreement very faithfully. They like the plan. Under it they have saved a great deal of money, and they have more money for legitimate advertising.

Interior Decorations for the Hunting Season

Loring General Merchant Displays Trophies of the Hunt—Effect of Interior Arrangement on Sales—Why They are Increased—All Local and National Festive Occasions Should be Made Use of.

Loring, Ont., Sept. 29.—A store interior suggestive of the hunting season is to be seen in the establishment of Capt. E. H. Kelcey, general merchant of this place.

As will be observed from the accompanying illustration, Capt. Kelcey has a fine array of trophies of the chase. These naturally suggest to a person in the store hunting supplies, including canned goods, etc., as well as guns, knives, and ammunition, since Capt. Kelcey's is a general store.

The proprietor is a firm believer in the selling power of attractive and judicious display. He maintains that this is one portion of the salesmanship necessary to sell goods above the actual voluntary demands of his customers.

"Place the goods you want to sell where people can see them in the most attractive form," is a motto which might be followed by every merchant. It is not to be expected that a customer will ever ask for an article which is a delicacy or semi-delicacy if it is boxed up and placed under the counter or in the warehouse. Samples are necessary, combined with the salesman's power to suggest and his ability to give the points in favor of the article when he sees a prospective customer.

Canned and bottled goods can be made into some attractive displays. The dealer should study carefully the labels for one thing and then various designs for showing with best effect those labels.

Interior display plays an important part in sales. Any dealer can readily see this by following the eye of a customer along the counter, shelves or silent salesman. Let him figure out how much he sells in a day which he wouldn't have sold had he shown no goods or samples, and simply handed out what was asked for.

The merchant's duty should therefore be to perfect his interior display. This is one part of the "Science of Retailing" that should be developed at every opportunity and if this is done more extensive sales will surely result.

Capt. Kelcey's idea of catering to the hunting demand by adorning the interior of his store with appropriate trophies is a good one and ought to be carried into the window as well, whenever opportunity affords. This could be done during fall fairs, horse shows, celebrations and on national occasions and it would do much to create a better impression of the proprietor, store and the goods.

CONDENSED MILK AFTER OCT. 1

Manufacturers Going to Ottawa to Have Enforcement of Food Standards Delayed.

Montreal, Sept. 29.—Condensed milk manufacturers say they have been taken unawares by the announcement of the Federal Government regarding the new Pure Food Laws. The authorities have notified these gentlemen that after October 1 all packages containing evaporated milk, which have been, and are at present, labeled evaporated cream must be plainly marked as evaporated milk.

It was understood by the trade that this move was contemplated, but condensing interests claim they were led to beleve that some time would be given them before the law was made effective, to enable them to use up all old labels. Some manufacturers say they received no notice, and that they have on hand several million labels.

Delegations representing some of the interests have gone to Ottawa this week in reference to the matter.

TO STOP ROTTEN EGG TRADE

A Montreal Provision Dealer Received Six Cases Without a Single Good Egg.

Montreal, Sept. 29.—Local provision men are much excited over the quantity of rotten eggs coming in this season. A case came to light here the other day in which a shipment of six cases from Cobourg, Ont., were all bad. There was not a decent egg in the lot. As a result of this and many other instances, there are to be meetings in both Toronto and Montreal this coming week to take steps toward a prevention of this next year.

Power of Suggestion and How a Grocer May Use It

The Value of the Window and Counter in Aiding the Salesmanship of the Dealer or Clerk—A Sure Method of Selling Pumpkins—Display Cards Will Add to the Selling Power—Connection Between the Show Window and the Grocer's Power To Suggest.

By A. H. Harvey.

When a grocer is waiting on a customer he sugests, if he possesses the salesmanship instinct, a number of articles for which he wants to build up a demand, and truthfully states that they are delicious or useful, as the case may be, and he will be appreciated by the customer. That is "suggestion" and one of the best assets a grocer has.

This same principle of sugestion was illustrated in last week's issue, and was no doubt recognized. It referred to a window display of honey, adding a show card with the words, "Delicious with hot biscuits." Grocers will admit that the card and its wording rouses the imagination of the passerby, and not only does he see the new honey, but he almost tastes the combination of honey and biscuits. The window of honey with a price card is of itself a good idea at this season, but there is a linking of ideas in the other window that increases the magnetizing influence of the honey.

Consider another example. If a grocer buys three or four dozen pumpkins at this season, as he is likely to do, he generally puts a few of them in a box and leaves them in a fairly prominent part of his store. Customers who come into the store may or may not notice them. The clerk who takes the telephone order may suggest them. That is the ordinary way of handling them, and as a rule they have been held so long that a few have possibly to be thrown away.

How to Sell Pumpkins

Suppose the grocer has written several cards, something after this idea: "Fifteen Pumpkin Pies for Ten Cents," or "It's Pumpkin Pie Time," and with this card a small price card, "10c. each," or any of a dozen other short phrases that will catch the eye of the passerby.

Then the grocer puts a pyramid of pumpkins in one part of his window, adds a price card, and also one of these "talk" cards. Another of the cards he sticks in the box inside the store, and the clerks, as usual, suggest that a few fresh pumpkins have been received, etc. It will certainly be admitted by the trade that this plan has a great selling power.

This idea of suggestion applies to everything in the store. It is catching the eye of the customer and the passerby, and not only does it catch the eye, but there is suggested something which is good to the taste.

Grocers will themselves admit that the advertisements that attracted them most in magazines were built up on this system. There is hardly a person who has not longed for the goods advertised, so strong has been the appeal these 'ads' make. You almost taste the goods.

Pork and beans, biscuits, beef fluids, summer drinks and many other articles advertised in their respective seasons appear before the reader in what might be termed a most appetizing form.

Show Cards Easily Made.

But some grocers will say "I cannot write a decent show card." The reason is because he never tried. Let this be the duty of one of the clerks. The materials are cheap—card board, ink and a brush—and the merchant that sells them will instruct the clerk what style of brush to buy. Then, he is not attempting a work of art, and plain capital or block letters will serve the purpose admirably. Plainness is not a drawback, but a certain amount of neatness is necessary.

Make the Counter Suggest.

This idea of suggestion applies to counter displays as well as windows. Honey and pumpkins are merely used as examples. A window of goods generally attracts attention, but if the plan outlined is followed the window will talk right to those who happen to pass it. It not only talks to them but it appeals directly to the palate, and therein lies its power.

The grocer should look on his window not merely as a place to display his goods, but more as a medium by which he can talk about the goods displayed to those who notice them. And it is the little sugestion on the show card and the figures on the price card that do this, and the success of the window depends to a certain extent upon the words or phrase used.

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS
Supplied to the Trade by Sellers

Nicholson & Bain, wholesale commission merchants and brokers, with head office at Winnipeg, have opened another branch, this time at Saskatoon, Sask. This makes their fifth branch, the others being at Fort William, Regina, Calgary and Edmonton. Saskatoon has been selected by Nicholson & Bain on account of its growing importance among the centres of the west. J. Clayton is the manager.

At the recent great exhibition in Brussels, Belgium, the Dominion Canners, Hamilton, Ont., had an exhibit of fruits in glass and were honored by an order of their Aylmer brand from the King of Bulgaria. He became much interested in their exhibit and placed an order through the Canadian Commissioner. This proves that Aylmer goods are "fit for a King," because they are actually to be used by a King.

There have been many most ingenious contrivances introduced from time to time into the market for the purpose of providing a foot warmer for the use of farmers, country doctors and others whose duties call them on the road in winter and inclement weather. Most of these contrivances, however, when put to the test have proved quite impracticable, or else have necessitated keeping a supply of special commodities not easily available or usually kept by the farmer or country doctor. The Ontario Lantern Footwarmer, however, is in marked contrast to all other footwarmers heretofore introduced. Coal oil is in almost every household in Canada, and this is the only fuel necessary. Placed beneath the lap robe on the floor of the sleigh, the feet are placed on two copper plates on the warmer base, and only a small flame is necessary to almost instantly cause a grateful warmth to immediately circulate through the feet and lower limbs. Used thus, any person can drive for hours in the coldest weather and warmth and comfort are assured. Although placed under the robe, this in no way interferes with the generation of heat, nor is there the slightest danger of any obnoxious odors or damage to the robe. The consumption of oil is very small, while, whenever necessary, a brilliant light is immediately available. Whilst but a recent introduction in the market, inquiries and orders are already flooding the manufacturers and most progressive merchants are making this a leading line for their fall campaign. The Ontario Lantern & Lamp Co. have not only issued a folder for distribution to the trade, but have also published a nicely illustrated booklet for the trade to distribute to the public. In connection with this booklet there is a competition open to any child under 14 years of age. The only condition being name of dealer from whom the parent purchased the Lantern Footwarmer, with a prize of $5.00 for the folder returned to the manufacturer by December 20th, which in their opinion is the most artistically colored.

THE SUGAR TARIFF.

Montreal, Sept.—One of the main topics of discussion among the sugar refiners is the report of the Royal Comission on the Canadian-West Indian trade. In that report there is a recommendation that the present allowance of the refiners, the permission to import 20 per cent. of their meltings from other sources be dropped. To offset this they are to be allowed to reduce their sugar preference one half. Opinions differ as to what the comparative value of the change would be.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

NEW BEAN PRICES.

When the new crop beans come on the market, which will be in a short time now, they will probably sell at about 20 cents below the present price of old beans.

This is believed to be the situation so far as the eastern Canadian market is concerned, and since the west procures her beans from the east, the opening prices will likely rule 20 cents less throughout the country.

While the crop of beans in western Ontario was not as large as was expected early in the growing season, it is considered to be pretty fair.

CANNED APPLES TO BE DEAR.

Old gallon apples are pretty scarce. In fact, some canners state that they have sold entirely out.

This means that new canned apples will come on a bare market, and since apples are scarce this year, the price is practically sure to be high.

The same applies to evaporated apples. Prices will open high. One broker places the price as high as 9 cents in Toronto. As the Nova Scotia apple crop is poor this year some evaported mills there are closing down for lack of supplies. The opening price in Halifax will likely be 10 cents.

NEW PRICES NEXT WEEK.

The canners have not yet officially announced new prices on canned corn, and tomatoes. They are waiting this year to obtain as nearly as possible the definite packs before quotations will be given out.

It is believed, however, that next week these prices will be quoted. Of course, some retailers are now being offered goods at certain prices, but the official figures have not yet been given.

Last year the opening price on tomatoes was 77½ to 82 cents in Toronto. It is generally believed that this year, however, prices will be considerably above this. Corn last year opened at from 75 to 80 cents. Corn is considered a good crop this season.

THE SELLING OF FISH.

The demand for fish is entirely too casual. Dealers should not be content with the business that comes into their stores, but that is to a large extent the position in which the fish business is today. A woman takes the notion that she would like some fish for a change and if it were not for that "change" she might forget that there was such a thing as fish.

The grocer with the separate fish department should not depend only on that method. Fish is a splendid food, is easily digested and it is cheaper than many other foods. There are many selling points behind fish and if more progressive methods were employed the business would attain greater proportions.

ADVANCE IN PRICE OF RICE

This week's market review shows an advance in the price of rice to the retail trade of about 10 cents per cwt.

The raise is attributed to conditions in the primary markets where crops are reported short. South Africa, for instance, is short and buyers are on the English market for rice.

A WARNING TO RETAILERS.

With many of the grocery markets unsettled at the present time The Grocer would urge careful buying on the part of retail dealers.

For instance, no one knows the exact nature of the dried fruit markets. Raisins and currants are unsettled and buying according to present necessity is deemed advisable.

There is no use loading up on any line where there is any possible chance of the market coming down. Many opening prices are invariably high with a view to creating early interest.

A close study of markets and carefulness in buying ought to be the universal rule.

GETTING RID OF SUMMER GOODS.

Those summer goods that are yet unsold should be helped along now before the season passes and it is too late.

Extra efforts to clean them out rather than carry them over should be put forth. Another window display, prominent positions in the store, more activity on the parts of the clerks—these will help some and by concerted action summer goods can be sold out if the grocer does not leave his little campaign until too late in the season.

Now is the time to go over the stocks find out what condition they are in and then act accordingly.

RESULT OF SURTAX REMOVAL.

About ten years ago inquiry for pickled salmon for German consumption led to the placing of one or two trial orders. The results were so satisfactory that there was a rapid growth in this particular line, one sale leading to another, until last year the volume of trade amounted to about 250,000 lbs.

A peculiar feature of this trade was that most of it was done through France and England. Dealers there bought and reshipped to the German market.

The salmon used for this trade was mostly Gaspe and Moisie river. Fish from these grounds seemed to be the only varieties called for in the early stages.

This year the surtax on fish to Germany has been removed. With the tremendous population crowded into the limited area, the problem of food is one that is continually in the minds of the large provision men there. This has led to several of the more important importers to take trips to this country to look into matters.

Two years ago they commenced to purchase other lines besides the salmon. The first order placed was for smoked eels. This trade has also proved exceptionally good from the start.

It was not until this year that the first direct order for any large quantity of fish was placed. This was for 300,000 lbs. of frozen fish, including haddock, halibut, mackerel, etc., for delivery next year.

This order seems to have given just the needed impetus to the trade, as since then several other large firms have received orders. Of course, as was explained by the buyers, this was only as an experiment, but if successful, there would be a great opening for Canadian fish, both frozen and pickled, in the German market.

If you will hustle you will have no time to spend in idle wishing and you will have no need to spend time so.

The Markets—Sugar Markets Should be Watched

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS.

Coffees—1-3c higher.
Dried fruits—currants ½c., Valencias 1c higher.
Rice—10c. higher.
Tomatoes—10c. higher.

Montreal, Sept. 29th, 1910.—There is a decidely higher tone to the market this week. Wherever changes are reported they show a higher range of prices than formerly. Even the sugar situation shows a decided improvement, though there is still somewhat of weakness evident. Still raws are no longer on the down grade.

Rices are all up 10c. This is perhaps the feature of the week as far as markets are concerned. This is the result of the inroads South Africa has been making on the English stocks.

There is hardly a single market that has not either advanced or firmed up in the primary markets. Of course, some of these changes, notably those in dried fruits and nuts, are the result of the long continued scarcity, which has been emphasized in these columns.

Others are somewhat of a surprise, canned tomatoes being an example. The U. S. market for tomatoes has been advancing for some time past, but it was thought that local conditions were much better here, and the pack would be sufficient to hold prices about as before. Evidently the original estimates must have been slightly astray, or the demand is increasing for that particular line.

The coffee situation calls for attention. Until recently there was little doing in any of the lines. Now the roasters are having their troubles in filling orders on time. It is a welcome change from the summer dullness.

Altogether trade is in a very flourishing condition, nothing sensational, but healthy and active.

Sugar.—Local jobbers say that sales of sugar are on the upgrade. Evidently buyers are becoming reassured by the present state of the raw market. Until recently this has been so weak, both in beet and cane, that a decline has been looked for almost any time. However there seems to be little danger of that now.

Coffee—Coffees are up. Rios, Santos and Maracaibos have advanced from 2c to 3c this week. This is due to the high primary market conditions and is said to be only the first step in a series. How far this is the fact it is hard to say, but there is no doubt that the present indications all point to still further advances in the near future.

Trade has been brisk of late, and local men report about all the business they can handle.

Spices—More business passing than for the past three or four years, is the verdict of local spice men. Even the retailers report that it is hard to know just what to order, as trade is jumping so in this line. As to what lines are most favored it is hard to particularize. Gingers, mace, and peppers are perhaps leaders. Prices are held firmly, and advances would not be at all surprising in view of the state of the primary market.

Dried Fruits—Currants are ½c higher this week. The cause is directly the state of the primary market, which has been advancing for some time past. Primarily, of course, the crop in Greece this year is responsible, having been about 20 p.c. less than was at first estimated.

There has been an advance of 1c in Valencia raisins. Short crop and very low spot stocks are responsible. The primary market has been going up for some weeks past, and this is only the natural outcome.

It is reported that citron and peels are advancing in the primary markets. As yet they have not reached the retailer. Figs are also reported on the upgrade.

Trade generally is brisk, particularly in the lines above mentioned.

Nuts—Bordeaux halves have advanced 2c. This is undoubtedly due to a heavy demand, combined with comparatively short stocks.

In most other lines there is a perceptible weakening. This is pretty good evidence that the reports of short crops were to a certain extent exaggerated. However, dealers say that there will be no change sufficient to affect the price to the retailer.

Evaporated Apples—New crop apples show considerable strength. This is rather a pleasant surprise to local dealers, but it is stated that they are hard to obtain, that is a desirable grade. One export quotation was 8½c, made within the past week.

Demand for the few appearing is very good, and the trouble seems to be to obtain the proper grades in sufficient quantity to fill requirements.

Evaporated apples, prime	0 08

Beans and Peas—Beans are 15c easier. Large quantitiesa have been recently coming to this market, and the demand has not kept pace. Local jobbers still continue to think them good enough to hold for better prices, however, and few sales are reported at the reduction.

Ontario prime pea beans, bushel	2 25
Peas, boiling, bag	2 50

Rice and Tapioca—Short crops in South Africa have caused them to become heavy buyers in England. The consequence is that rice has become a scarce article all over, and prices locally have been advanced 10c. It is also reported that crops in some of the Asiatic countries are short. This may also have helped firm the prices.

The failure of the Reunion crop of tapioca has forced France to buy heavily in the open market. This has caused firmer prices in the primary markets. As yet they have not changed sufficiently to affect the retail trade.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—The tomato crop has evidently not been so large as it was at first estimated, hence an advance of 10c this week. Demand has been very brisk for tomatoes also, which has undoubtedly had its influence. Other lines are firm but unchanged. Fruits are still in good demand, though there is not the call for them there was a week ago.

Salmon presents the feature of the fish market. Red Sockeyes are slightly higher, being now quoted at $2.

The call for meats is slackening somewhat, though there is still a fairly good demand.

TORONTO—The announcement of the price of new tomatoes and corn has not been made but the trade are expecting it every day. Many of the wholesalers have already received parts of their orders but they have of necessity been unable to send any out on account of no prices being quoted by the canners. There are many guesses being made as to what the prices are likely to be, but that is all that is doing yet. It is stated that the canners have intimated that they will not be able to fill the tomato orders in their entirety owing to a full pack not having been made. Toronto jobbers are now beginning to get out their canned goods which have been delayed during the past month owing to late deliveries from the packers. Some shipments have been made during the month but not to the extent the jobbers would have liked.

It has been known for some time that the blueberry pack in New Brunswick was not as heavy as usual. The crop was making good progress, but when near the close of the ripening period frost visited the fruit with fatal results. Deliveries will be away below the orders, gallons being only 40 per cent. of the orders and seconds being 45 per cent. Everything seems to have been working in the same groove this year. Blueberries are in the same boat with strawberries, cherries, plums, etc.

The demand for salmon these days is good and old stocks are about off the map. At least one wholesaler has been selling his stock at a price much below what it would cost him to replace the goods. True they are last year's but for present use they are practically as good as new, for salmon keeps well.

Although the pack this year was better in some lines than was expected, still the demand has grown to such an extent that the improved supplies will make but little difference. Not only is salmon growing in the favor of home consumers but its foreign market will take any surplus. Great Britain, South Africa, Australia and other countries are invading the canned goods market and before long are going to exert an influence that is scarcely appreciated yet.

esting features which are demanding the attention of the wholesale trade, of jobbers and likewise the retail merchant is deeply interested. Quite a few of the markets are just settling under new crops and it will be of some time before a real steady business basis is reached. Until that time the grocer should play the game wisely and should endeavour to follow the market as well as he can.

Valencia raisins are stronger than last week and the price a week ago was pretty high. The reports regarding the crop are being borne out. Currants appear to be a little easier but not to any appreciable extent.

Dried apples and peaches are firmer, prunes are holding their own and California raisins are going up. Rice is quoted at an advance over a week ago due to decreased crops, the result of unfavorable weather conditions.

Nuts with the exception of Brazils are quoted at advanced prices over those of this time last year.

At the same time the wholesalers report very encouraging conditions. Orders are coming in rapidly and the volume of fall business is bound to be large. As the general impression is one of prosperity, payments are being well met and a feeling of confidence pervades the business arena and is likely to result in a splendid trade between now and Christmas. The fall has increased trade in some lies that were quiet during the summer months. Syrups, rolled oats and rolled wheat, beans, etc., are among the list.

Sugar—The sugar market is displaying a weak tendency, particularly noticeable in the raw market, but which is likely to spread to the refined any day now. Demand for sugar has been good. That is admitted on every hand, but the market for raws has been declining. "The situation has not changed materially since last week," said a dealer, "but the week has brought the turn in the road that much nearer." He referred to the fact that about this time of the year refined sugar begins to be affected by the new crop which this year is a good one. A decline in refined is expected, as said before, at any time now.

Syrups and Molasses—All the jobbers report increased business in syrups these days. The demand is coming from all over the country and there is a strong possibility that syrup may be called upon to fill a gap this winter caused by short crops here and there. There is the possibility, but it remains to be seen just what will take place. Table syrup, both corn and maple, are being called for just now and demand has noticeably improved.

Dried Fruits—This market still presents a few interesting features. Valencias are at least a shilling higher than last week and there is more extensive buying this week by jobbers who are more impressed with the idea that currants are going to hold at a high price. First shipments of currants received at Liverpool, according to English journals, were not of the best quality. They were poorly cleaned and altogether were not as satisfactory as they might have been. The strength of the prune market is unchanged. Our own apple market has failed us this year and high prices are likely to rule. Dried peaches are not going to be plentiful and so on. Reports from California give evidence of increased strength in the western raisin crop. There is a little easier feeling in the currant situation but the trade are not paying much attention to it. There is a feeling in some places that after a time currants are likely to be a little cheaper but in that case the difference will not be large.

Winnipeg, Sept. 29, 1910.

Although no recent word has been heard in reference to the cost of living in the west, yet if prices continue to advance in the general line of grocery stock it might form an interesting subject for conversation. The whole matter resolves itself into the fact that this year, particularly, the production in crop centres is much below the average, and also that as international commercial facilities increase, exportations are yearly growing larger.

At this time the great interest centres around foreign dried fruits. Particularly in California the crop is reported light. In other countries as well, crops are not heavy and it has been known for many months that productions in Greece would be light. Notwithstanding this advanced condition of the market the general trade is brisk and merchants are buying freely and the general consumption is heavy. From this fact it would seem that our economical system is not much at fault. Although prices are high the consumer has the money to pay that price.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 29.—Firm prices in all lines with a tendency to advance is the situation in the local wholesale grocery trade. The dealers expect that almost all dried fruit will be high during the coming season, Valencia raisins particularily so. It looks as if nine cents would be the price of fancy stock by the next direct boat.

New evaporated apples are expected to reach the market in about a fortnight's time, and they will likely go to the trade at 10 cents. The receipts from the Annapolis Valley this season will be very small, as some of the factories are not yet in operation, and it is doubtful if they will be. This is due to the shortness of the apple crop.

Canned salmon is practically off the market and will remain so until the first carload of the new pack arrives.

Hams, bacon and lard are all firm, and it is expected that the latter will go higher.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, September 29, 1910—Potatoes show an upward tendency, and the general belief is that the crop will not be large this season. The dry weather lightened the output, and besides prevented growth on sections in the interior which are not irrigated. On the lower mainland, the crop is light also because of the dry weather. Consequently, Ashcrofts are quoted at $31, and potatoes grown on high land in the interior at $20 and $21, with a prospect of going higher. It is not improbable that some one will bring them in from the Northwest or the East where they are less than half the price here.

TO MANUFACTURERS AND SHIPPERS

Dear Sirs,

We beg to advise having opened up a Branch Office and Warehouse in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, to take care of the Jobbing Trade at that point.

We are satisfied a Commission House located in Saskatoon can serve manufacturers and shippers in a more satisfactory manner than Commission Houses located in Winnipeg. Saskatoon is 337 miles from Winnipeg, and you will therefore readily see the great advantage a Commission House located in Saskatoon will have over those located in Winnipeg--"THE MAN ON THE SPOT," all things being equal, Saskatoon will command the business. We are pleased to state our Saskatoon branch will be in charge of a competent and energetic manager, Mr. J. Clayton, who has had thorough training in the brokerage business.

If you are open to appoint us your exclusive agents for Saskatoon, please communicate with NICHOLSON & BAIN, Saskatoon, or NICHOLSON & BAIN, Winnipeg.

WAREHOUSE—We will have ample storage facilities at Saskatoon and can handle on consignment carloads of all kinds of merchandise for sale to the Wholesale Trade or for Distribution.

To the old and valued firms who have for years been doing business with us at WINNIPEG, CALGARY, EDMONTON and REGINA, would ask that you pass all business for Saskatoon through our new branch NICHOLSON & BAIN, Saskatoon, and all letter or wire communicatons will have their prompt and careful attention.

We are open for some first-class Agencies for Saskatoon and solicit your enquiries. Our Saskatoon Manager will also work the Jobbing Trade in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan.

Yours truly,

NICHOLSON & BAIN

Storage Eggs Will Soon Have to Be Called Out

Supplies are Becoming Noticeably Smaller and Will Soon be Down to Nil—Poultry is Plentiful and Market is Easy—September Cheese has Been Sold for October Delivery and Present Business is not Active—Butter Production Keeps up—Prices are Firm—Compound Lard is Higher.

Supplies of select fresh eggs are falling off rapidly and before another two weeks have rolled around it will likely find the produce houses depending upon their storage stocks for supplies. There are still shipments being made but they are decreasing in volume every week. The demand keeps up and as a result there is considerable strength to the market. Higher prices are anticipated before long, particularly for first class stocks.

Butter is also quite firm and although the production is still steady there is a feeling that prices are not likely to remain long around the present quotations. In New York butter is now quoted at 40 cents and dealers are preparing to boost oleo in the face of prices that are too high even at this season. The production of milk has not fallen off to any appreciable extent yet, but the season is nearing its end.

Poultry receipts are increasing every week. Chickens and hens are especially plentiful just now and different houses report a heavy business. Prices are inclined to an easy tone. During the last week cheese in the country markets has brought as high as 11½ cents. September make has been almost all sold for October delivery at a fair advance over spot prices. Otherwise the market is rather uneventful.

Trade in honey is steady. Provisions are firm with a steady demand in practically all lines. Lards are firm with compounds advanced in price. The markets are all rather brisk just now and a satisfactory trade is being done.

MONTREAL.

Provisions—Brisk trade has marked this week in the provision line. As far as prices go there has been no change, except a slight firming in live and dressed hogs.

Country trade has been responsible for a considerable part of the increase in trade noted, though the city trade is also much better.

Butter.—Butter is very firm at last week's prices, though in the country September make is bringing a high price, sufficient to make higher prices a certainty as soon as provision men begin to draw on it. At present most of the butter on the market is last month's.

Inquiries are coming in from the West Coast in considerable numbers. It is stated that they are being filled almost on the present jobbing basis in carload lots.

Receipts for the week are 11,518 packages as against 10,025 same week last year. For the season they are 339,653 packages as against 303,102 same season last year.

Receipts for the week are 77,786 boxes as against 61,773 same week last year. For the season they are 1,504,331 boxes as against 1,507,195 same season last year.

Provisions—The market is fairly active and a good volume of trade is passing. Firmness is noticeable in all prices. Supplies are keping a little in advance of demand. Lard is firm and compounds are quoted at an advance on last week's figures. Live hog shipments are only fair.

Butter—The market is still holding firmly. Supplies are rather free yet, but the end of the heavy yield is beginning to loom into sight. Supplies of creamery are still heavy and the demand for this grade is heavier than for seconds. Prices remain about the same as last week but the tendency appears to be upward.

YOUR TIME

is too valuable to expend in "talking" any particular product. We do all the "educational" work for Shredded Wheat. We aim to sell it before it is placed on your shelves But nearly every grocer has a fussy customer "from Missouri." When she asks you about breakfast foods, here are three things you can tell her about

Shredded Wheat Biscuit

First—It is the cleanest, purest, most nutritious cereal food, made in the finest, cleanest food factory in the world.

Second—It contains all the rich, body-building material in the whole wheat grain—not merely the white flour, which is mostly starch.

Third—Being in biscuit form, it makes delicious combinations with fruits—in fact, it is the only cereal breakfast food that makes wholesome and natural combinations with fruits.

Memorize these three points and be ready for the customer who asks questions.

A Good Demand Now Felt for the Heavy Cereal

Rolled Wheat and Oats are Again Being Asked for After the Summer Months—Trade During Warm Weather Was Better Than Usual But a Noticeable Impetus Has Been Recently Given the Market—Wheat Market is Weak Under Reports of Increased Supplies—Little Canadian Export Trade.

A weakness in the wheat market has been the only change during the past week. Flour has been in good demand according to millers who have, however, nothing to offer in the form of opinions as to further movements of the flour market. Altogether the reports of the world's supply indicate better conditions and one result has been a bearish tendency that has been responsible for lower prices in the wheat market. At Winnipeg grain has been coming in more plentifully during the past week and the receipts have been far ahead of the outgoing stocks. On Saturday and Sunday last the receipts of grain at Winnipeg reached a big figure surpassing by over one hundred cars the receipts during the same period last year. The visible Canadian wheat on Tuesday was 4,198,000 bus., as compared with 3,290,000 bus. a week ago and 5,699,000 a year ago; oats, 7,107,000 bus. against 7,014,000 bus. a week ago and 911,000 bus. a year ago.

The farmer in Western Canada is holding tightly to his grain, looking for higher prices. The Canadian price is too high for export and as a result there is but little export trade. One authority in the flour line stated that there was now more wheat than necessary for the world's supply. Reports from foreign countries have been more favorable of late, and not only are the yields well up, but this year's wheat crop is coming onto a market that has a heavy reserve supply from last year.

The waiting game the farmers played last year was successful, but there must be some movement of Canadian grain, say dealers, in order to start a movement of grain from the country and later to strengthen prices. Other countries besides Canada are heavy growers of grain. Encouraging prospects are received regarding the Australian and Argentine crops. The world's export of wheat last week was 15,169,000 bus, as compared with 9,520,000 bus. during same week last year. Altogether the aspect of the world's crops is such that at the time of writing the market is influenced by bearish forces. But the market has been unsettled of late and it does not take long to change from action under one force to give evidence of the influence of a directly opposite force. In other words the market is strong one day and it is not long until it shows signs of weakness. Particularly the Winnipeg market is influenced by the slightest tendencies.

Lower prices are still looked for by some in the trade on the ground that our prices must follow the general demand and get in touch with the export quotations. As hinted at some time ago, the reports that price-cutting was doing its work have received confirmation by those who are supposed to know. There is a feeling that some are quoting below list prices but it is only a rumour. The feeling is that prices for wheat must decline still and if there is much weakness the flour market is bound to be affected.

MONTREAL.

Flour—Since the decline of last week there has been little change in the flour situation, except that sales seem to show a slight falling off. Export demand still is the redeeming feature of the week's trade, as apparently the approaching close of navigatimon has given the necessary stimulus to this branch.

Local flour stocks show a considerable decrease over last week, but still are considerably larger than the corresponding figures of a year ago.

Rolled Oats—The rolled oat market is at present weak, and though opinions differ as to the prospects, still the majority consider that a decline would not be at all surprising under the circumstances. As yet there is no change, but sales are gradually dropping off in view of the state of the market.

Export demand has been light, considerably more so than at this time last year.

Eighty-Two Elevators buy the wheat to make the flour you sell

There is only one absolutely dependable way to make sure of a uniformly reliable product.

And that is to insure a steady supply, unvarying in quantity and quality, of the raw material.

Which means wheat—Manitoba Spring Wheat.

If we left our wheat buying to others, could we live up to our guarantee of Uniformity?

And Uniformity is the very strongest selling point in the flour seller's dictionary.

There are over 80 wheat buying elevators carrying the LAKE OF THE WOODS standard, distributed throughout the high-quality districts of the wheat belt of the Canadian Northwest.

These buyers of the sturdy Manitoba wheat are your buyers, too, since you are just as much interested in dependable quality as the maker himself, perhaps more so since you are on the firing line.

And there are over 80 of these practiced buyers, men of experience and knowledge, having but one aim in life—to send a steady stream of the best Spring Wheat to the FIVE ROSES mills, plump, healthy, sound, clean berries.

FIVE ROSES flour simply must be uniform.

And your profits permanent, nothing lost in excuses, business so good that you can't help smiling.

"BORDO"

"The Chocolate with the flavor that's different."

Well might the readers of advertisements be mystified—whether to choose this or that brand of Chocolate; fortunately there is the famous "Bordo" about which no doubt as to the quality and unique flavor has ever existed.

Brands may come, and brands may go, but the "Bordo" Chocolate pursues its way serenely with an unbroken record, and increasing success.

When nature has produced finer ingredients, when workmen have acquired more skill, when science has inaugurated greater cleanliness, then, and only then, will "Bordo" be equalled in richness, flavor and quality.

Others have been convinced, and profited by it. Others have purchased small quantities, and increased their orders with increased demands.

A sample won't cost you anything, and may be the means of putting a big seller in your line.

Grapes are Now Coming Freely and are Cheaper

Crop is Good and Prices are Likely to Rule Fairly Low—Peaches are Coming Yet and Trade Will Continue for a Time—Bartletts and Elbertas Nearly all in—Cantaloupe Rush is Over—Prospects are for a Heavy Citrus Yield in California—The Lemon Situation.

And now it is grapes that are beginning to occupy most conspicuous places in the fruit stands and on the markets. Peaches are not yet done, and there is still a good trade passing. Some do not look for unusually low prices in grapes, and it is not likely that they will go lower than last year. Some believe that if there should be any further decrease it will only be slight. The crop is reported well up to the average, and the receipts already are heavy. Apples are holding firmly at a rather high price, and early opinions that prices would rule high are more probable than ever.

There is a fairly good crop of apples throughout the United States, and importations may help the local condition. Pears are moving steadily. They are of fine quality and are bringing a good price. As Sicily lemons are a late crop it is expected that prices are likely to go up before the arrival of any of the new crop.

The citrus crop in California this year promises to be the heaviest in the history of the state. Not only are there the brightest prospects for a heavy yield of oranges, but lemons are also showing well. Northern navels are about due around the last of November. Florida oranges should arrive about the first of November.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits—Grapes in large quantities are coming on the market. Even under these conditions the market retains its former firm condition on account of the heavy demand passing. Apples are coming in freely, and remain at former quotations. Trade for the week has been light in other lines, still dealers state that it is very little worse than was to be expected at this season. Prices in all lines are steady.

Vegetables—Large arrivals and light sales are the features of the week. However, dealers note an improvement from day to day in the demand and hope that the dullness will soon pass off. At present prices are fairly firm and show signs of improvement. Potatoes are in good demand, and supplies are large. The later varieties of corn are now on the market, and are in good demand.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits—The fruit market is still a busy place and during the past two weeks a great quantity of peaches were disposed of. Local grocers have had a big share in the retail fruit trade this summer, and they are not yet through. Peaches are by no means done yet, but it is apparent that Crawfords and Elbertas are just in their zenith and will soon make way for other varieties. It has been quite noticeable that the price has held firmly. Consumers who have been waiting for cheaper prices are likely to end up the season empty-handed. As was previously pointed out, peaches were not a heavy crop, and the expectations of low prices have not been fulfilled, and they are not likely to be, judging by the market this week. Grapes are coming more plentifully and prices have dropped to as low as 17½c. They are a pretty fair price and the shipments during the past ten days have increased with every day and they are now arriving in abundance. Plums are quoted at a higher price and in their case it may be said that low prices did not exist this year. Plums were below the average crop and the price held firmly. Pears have been going well at normal prices. Cantaloupes are practically done. They are still on the market, but they are disappearing gradually every day. "Lemons are cheaper in Toronto," said one fruit broker, the other day, "than in any other place in the northern continent." And such has been the case. Dealers in the small towns have been getting more money for their lemons than the local dealers. October quotations for lemons have been practically withdrawn as the season is late this year and there will likely be a small quantity of fruit offering. More have been sold for November shipment and will be received here early in December. Stronger lemon prices are fully expected by some. Stocks are not heavy here, and with a late crop coming there is almost bound to be a gap during which lemons are likely to come to their own.

Vegetables—There is nothing unusual in the vegetable market. Tomatoes are higher and from all reports there is evidently not a heavy crop left. Business has been good up to the present. Potatoes seem to be a good crop generally, although in some sections the yield has not been so good. Rot has been found in some shipments, due, no doubt, to the recent rains. It is not extensive yet. Cabbage, carrots, etc., are moving in about the usual way.

Demand for Oysters Has Shown Improvement

Weather Has Been Favorable and Business has Shown the Evidences—Some Lines of Fish Have Been Scarce and Prices Rule High—Fish News From Both Coasts and From Inland Markets and Waters—Fall Season of Better Demand is Beginning to Make Itself Felt.

There has been an epidemic of dog fish on the coast of late, which has done serious damage to the fishing. Another cause for the scarcity of fish was the difficulty in procuring bait. When taken together with the bad storms which have been raging on the eastern coast, it can be readily understood why most lines of fish are short, and prices high.

It is somewhat better this week, except in haddock and cod, which still are scarce.

Shell oysters are coming in well, and seem to be popular for this time of the year.

Reports from the east show that there is a great shortage of mackerel and prices are high. The demand for British Columbia halibut is also large and prices are firm.

NOVA SCOTIA

Halifax, Sept. 29.—The fish business is now booming and prices are soaring. Despite the fact that the vessels are returning from the Banks with good catches, the price continues to advance. The vessels of the Lunenburg fleet are now nearly all home, and some of them have landed as high as 2,100 quintals. While the total catch is not as large as that of last year, the higher prices will make up for any deficiency in that respect.

Codfish is now quoted at $5.60 per quintal, which is about $1.50 higher than last year. It is estimated that in the Lunenburg fleet alone the fishermen will receive over a quarter million dollars more for this year's catch than they did for last year's.

There is a marked scarcity of mackerel in Nova Scotia, and also on the U.S. market. All the fish offering, both salt and fresh, are readily bought up at high prices.

In Halifax fresh mackerel are quoted at the highest prices ever known in these parts. Some few fresh fish that were offered here this week sold for forty cents each, which is a record price. The fish were only of medium size. Thirty years ago this week, large mackerel sold in Halifax for fifty cents per dozen.

Oysters are also scarce and high. No Prince Edward Island stock has been received here so far this season. Only U.S. oysters are on the market and they are quoted at nine dollars per barrel.

The receipts of fresh fish are smaller than usual, and a lot of cold storage stock is offering. Halibut is scarce and high on the local market.

QUEBEC.

Montreal, Sept. 29.—The fish situation has been somewhat relieved this week by the arrival of several large shipments. The only lines hard to obtain are haddock and cod. It is thought that the catch of these in the next few days will show a marked improvement.

The last brook trout have arrived here that seem likely to this season.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John, Sept. 29.—The fish market has never been known to be so bare in St. John as during the past week. Strong easterly winds along the coast practically tied up operations among the fishermen. Mackerel have never been so scarce as they are this season. Along the south shore of Nova Scotia, where there is usually a plentiful supply, hardly any have been taken this season.

Fishing in the St. John harbor and along the coast of Charlotte and St. John counties, is at present confined to sardines or small herring. These have been fairly plentiful, though nothing like the past few seasons.

"NIOBE" BRAND, the Best in the Market

D. HATTON COMPANY,
MONTREAL

During the week a meeting was held here by the sardine fishermen and it was decided to notify the canneries that they would not accept the rate which the canners agreed to pay for the fish, namely $6 a hogshead. The fishermen had been getting from $8 to $10 a hogshead, but the canners recently notified them that they would pay only $6. At the meeting held here the fishermen agreed to accept not less than $8, which they claimed was little enough and, pending word from the canneries, fishing was suspended. It is now stated that the canners finding they could not get stock to work with have agreed to accept the $8 rate and operations have been resumed.

Some years ago the fishermen were accustomed to gather in good catches of fall shad, but that is now a thing of the past. The catches have been getting smaller year after year and this season not more than about 500 shad have been taken here. Those that were caught were nearly all taken near Black's Harbor, down the coast. The fish are apparently getting farther away from St. John every year. Some attribute the falling off in the fisheries here to the dredging being carried on in the harbor almost constantly.

There is practically no change in prices since last report.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 28.—One vessel came in this week with 230,000 pounds of halibut, caught in Alaskan waters. The company, which operates this boat, along with others, reports that the demand for halibut is so great that it cannot be supplied. Notwithstanding, the price is still at four cents, though it may go up later. In Boston, the price is 15 and 16 cents.

In salmon, there is also strong demand, with the result that the price is high, thirty cents being paid to fishermen for cohoes. These fish are pink tinted, and are better in quality than the other kinds available now. They are sought by the canners, so that shippers of fresh or mild cured fish cannot get the supply required. Considerable herring are now being caught at Nanaimo and is largely being used as bait for the halibut fishers.

ONTARIO.

Toronto, Sept. 29.—Supplies are coming in more freely just now and local fish dealers are beginning to settle down for the fall business. They say that whitefish and halibut are rather scarce but trout are plentiful and the demand is heavy. Dealers are beginnig to show heavier stocks of cod, haddie, bloaters, and other varieties and this appeal is having a good effect.

Demand for oysters has shown considerable improvement during the past ten days and there have been many orders filled.

MANITOBA.

Winnipeg, Sept. 29.—The fish trade is in good condition notwithstanding the inability to get stocks conveniently. This applies to fresh fish only, as they have to be brought in to a large extent from western waters. The canned fish market is short on many lines just now. Indications point to a stronger salmon market particularly on 1 lb flats.

Display your Oysters in a "Coast-Sealed" Cabinet

This is the handsomest, most practical and convenient oyster display cabinet made
It requires but ONE-EIGHTH the amount of ice used in other cabinets, owing to the vacuum chamber construction.
Ice tank sits in the centre, with three gallons of stock below and two above—thus enabling you to keep your stock absolutely fresh until the last pint is sold.

Sold Outright $17.00 f.o.b. Toronto

No strings attached—no jug-handled loaning agreements with the view of coercing you into buying any particular line of oysters.
Your own judgment will suggest that you handle only "Coast-Sealed" Oysters, because they are the cleanest, fattest, best flavored oysters on the market. They reach you in a container that is sealed at the coast and which holds nothing but pure oysters—no muck or slime—just solid oysters, all over four years old and with the real salt sea flavor unimpaired.

California Raisin Statistics for Three Years

Indications are that Supply Will be Inadequate to Meet the Average Demand—Crops, Shrinkage, Local Consumption and Carry-Over Given—The Estimate for 1910 Below Average of Past Three Years.

The Grocer is in receipt of figures which have been carefully compiled from the records of the transportation companies, regarding the California raisin crop for the past three years, shipments for the corresponding years and the annual turn-overs. The figures show shipments from October 1st for one year, to September 30th next, as in the average year the shipments of seeded raisins are light prior to the beginning of October. The figures represent tons.

1907 Crop	75,000
Shrinkage	5,130
Balance		69,870
Shipments	52,600
Local Consumption	4,400
		57,000
1907 Cary-over		12,870
1908 Crop		65,000
1908 Supply	77,870
Shrinkage	5,670
Balance		72,200
Shipments	59,000
Local Consumption	4,000
		63,000
1908 Carry-over		9,200
1909 Crop		70,000
1909 Supply	79,200
Shrinkage	6,200
Balance		73,000
Shipments	65,000
Local Consumption	4,000
		69,000
1909 Carry-over		4,000
1910 Crop (Estimate)		55,000
1910 Supply	59,000
Shrinkage	5,300
		53,700

Shipments 1909	69,000
1908	63,000
1907	57,000
Total	189,000
Average yearly shipments	63,000

The crops of the various years are always figured on grower's or sweat-box weights, which are the gross weights, while the figures representing the shipments are the net weights of the manufactured products. The shrinkage referred to in this statement is the loss in weight by the stemming and the seeding stock.

The estimate of 1910 crop is stated to be a conservative one, and in fact some packers put it at 5,000 tons lower. The general belief is for a crop twenty-five per cent. less than that of 1909. All estimates are based on perfect climatic conditions during harvest, and were made prior to the recent rain, which may reduce the crop somewhat. There have been years in the past when more than one-half of the crop was damaged to an extent that made it necessary to sell it as second grade stock.

The Demand Increasing.

With no export demand to speak of, the average annual shipments for the past three years have been 63,000 tons, while for the past twelve months it has been 69,000 tons, showing that at reasonable prices the consumption of raisins is increasing; this year, based on favorable conditions, there will be practically 10,000 tons less available, and the shortage may be much greater with unfavorable climatic conditions.

It is known that stocks in jobbers' hands are much less than previous years, and with the serious shortage on the coast, it looks as if it were to be a bare market with strong prices. To-day's prices for loose and seeded raisins, the grower claims nets him but little more than the cost of production, and when this fact is coupled with the fact that in previous years raisins have been produced at a loss, The Grocer has reason to believe that an exceptionally strong market will prevail.

REPORT ON LATE CROPS.

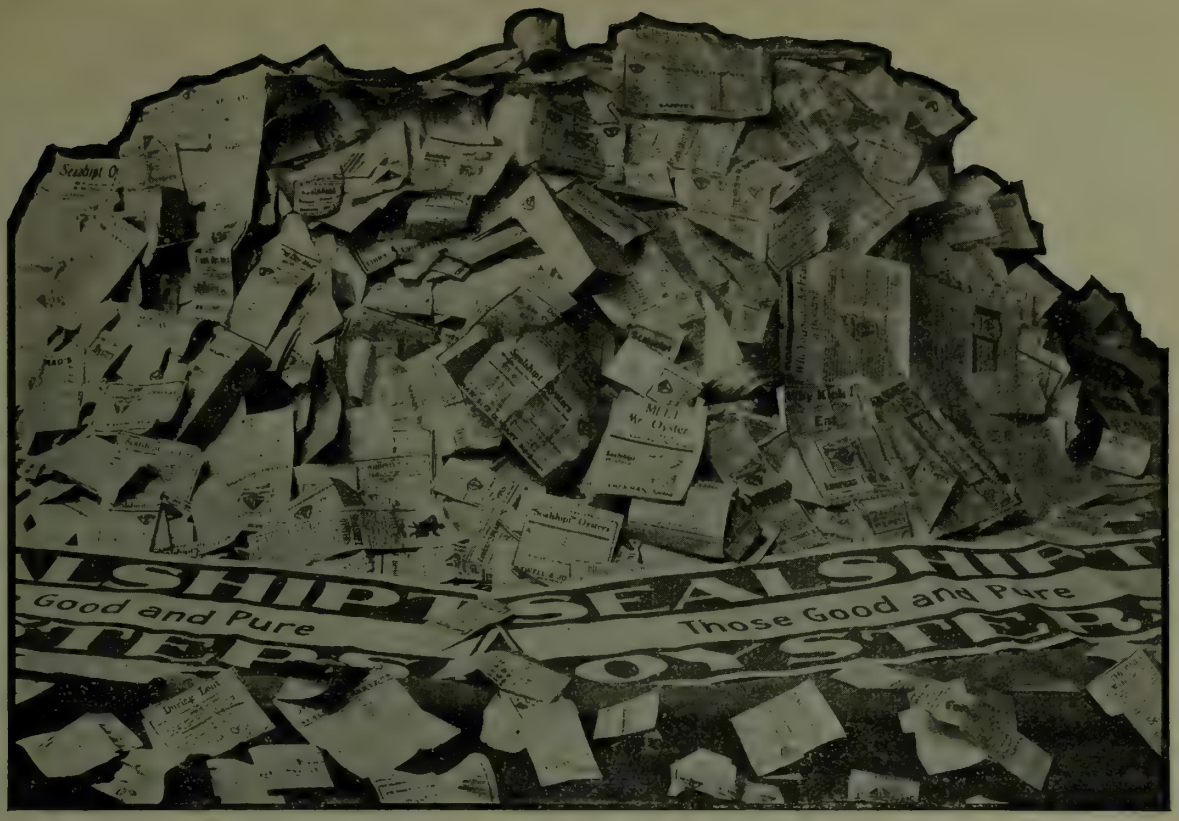
Corn and Potatoes Got Off to Bad Starts —The Tobacco Situation.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture in their last bulletin on Ontario crops report the following about corn, tobacco and potatoes:

Corn—The corn crop got off to a bad start, the weather turning cold and wet just after planting, rotting some of the seed. Complaints of inferior seed are also common. For these two reasons there was a great lack of germination, and considerable corn land had to be more or less replanted. Crows, blackbirds, and grubs also did injury to the young corn. More recent weather, however, has favored the crop, and it was making a rapid and promising growth when correspondents wrote.

Tobacco—While a few promising fields of tobacco are reported, the bulk of the crop is rather backward and uneven in appearance and yield. The early part of the season was unfavorable to growth, and consequently much of the planting had to be done late. There are reports of damage by hail, and grubs and other insects also did injury. However, the crop was picking up with the advancing season.

Potatoes—Early planted potatoes suffered from drouth and will yield lightly, but those planted late will give a fair return. The Colorado potato beetle has been present in unusually large numbers in nearly every section of the Province. So far only slight mention has been made of rot.



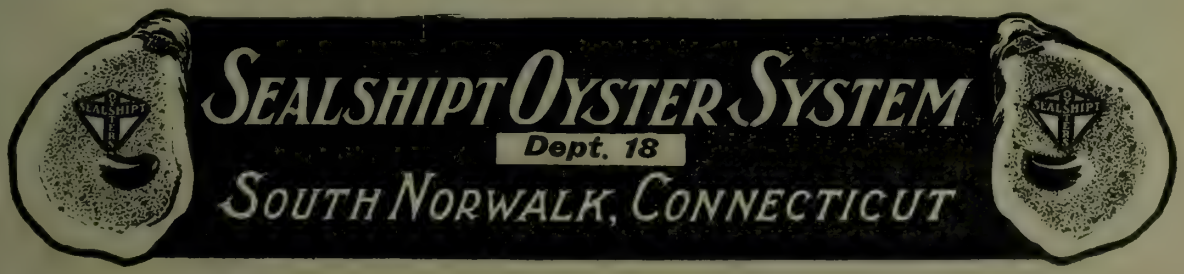
Statistics on Tea Growing in the East Indies

The great advances made in the Indian Tea Industry are represented by figures compiled by the Commercial Intelligence Department. There are 555,305 acres under cultivation, of which 438,000 are in East Bengal and Assam; 53,000 in Bengal; 8,000 in the United Provinces; 9,000 in the Punjab; 16,000 in Madras, 29,000 in Travancore and 1,500 in Burma. Chief interest lies, however, in the great increase in production. The production last year was 262,560,000 lbs., or three and one-half times what it was 25 years ago.

In the same time the area has increased only 95 per cent. The direct shipments to the United Kingdom increased by over 12 million pounds, while direct exports to Russia decreased by over 8 million pounds, or nearly 44 per cent. The number of people employed in the industry last year were 516,000 permanently and 81,000 temporarily.

Handling Fish is Important in the Retail Store

"In no kind of food is freshness more intimately associated with wholesomeness than fish, and in no kind of food is skilled espionage more desirable at every stage in its distribution. In Billingsgate and the central markets of big towns the detection of bad fish is comparatively easy, but fish have to be followed to the premises of retail dealers for it rapidly undergoes deterioration



Many thousands of Advertisements were published by Sealshipt Agents during 1909. The pile from which this photograph was taken was 4 ft. high, 4 ft. wide and 6 ft. long.

The High-Class Advertising Helps we give the Sealshipt Agent

Besides our extensive magazine advertising, which makes SEALSHIPT OYSTERS easy to sell, we help the SEALSHIPT AGENT to draw into his store the sales this advertising creates. We give you a blue and white steel sign and blue and white muslin signs for your store front, transparent sign for your door, so that all who pass through it see the Epicure enjoying his SEALSHIPT OYSTERS, plenty of interesting recipe books, and arrange with you for the installation of a SEALSHIPTICASE. The SEALSHIPTICASE is a beautiful, blue and white, porcelain fixture for the storage and display of SEALSHIPT OYSTERS. It is a feature of all our advertising, and people look for it to identify SEALSHIPT OYSTERS and the SEALSHIPT AGENT. Its wholesome appearance will give your customers immediate confidence in SEALSHIPT OYSTERS, in fact it is the greatest sale-making fixture ever devised.

OUR LOCAL ADVERTISING SERVICE

We supply the SEALSHIPT AGENT with attractive newspaper advertisements, all ready for him to insert in his local papers. These advertisements are well written and "appetizing." They are as successful in bringing business to the SEALSHIPT AGENT as the other helps we give, and the result of our co-operation in giving such local advertising help is that people leave stores where no oysters or ordinary oysters are sold and go to the store where SEALSHIPT OYSTERS are sold—and the SEALSHIPT AGENT often secures their entire patronage. Write for our catalogue and particulars and secure the sale of SEALSHIPT OYSTERS in your locality.

and there is no doubt room for improvement in the mode of dealing with fish even in some of the best shops." This is an extract from the report of an address by Sir J. Creighton-Browne at a conference of the Sanitary Inspectors' Association held in London recently.

On account of the food value of fish, he advocated broader methods to be followed in order to increase the demand and to create new dealers who would by their customers increase the demand. He also advocated conservation of the fish and methods to increase the production in order that abundant supplies will always be assured.

Peculiarities of the Growth of the Smyrna Fig

Male and Female Trees Necessary for the Propagation of This Popular Fruit—One and a Half Million Trees in the Meander Valley—Demand Being Widely Extended.

The Meander Valley in Turkey is the home of the Smyrna fig. The crop is maturing now and the prevalent winds are a big factor in the proper ripening. These winds from the North and West in the Meander Valley are dry and are necessary to make the fig white and mellow.

The Province of Smyrna produces two varieties of figs one of which is consumed in a fresh state in the home market. The other comes in the washed or pulled fig and also the spread figs, ranging from one and one-half inch to the umbrella fig.

In the fig-growing district in the Valley of Meander are about one and one-half million trees. These have a male and a female representation that is vital to one another, and to the propagation of the fig industry. In fact without the one or the other the fig could not exist. The figs of the male trees are sour and pithy and are not edible. The blossoms begin to appear on these trees about the middle of April. This is much before the female tree shows similar signs of production, but this fact is provided for by nature to make possible the proper maturing of the fig of commerce.

Peculiarities of Production.

The figs of the male tree are gathered while green and are then sewn together in wreaths of four or five figs. Between the first and fifteenth of June these wreaths are hung on every female tree. The figs in these wreaths gradually begin to dry, during which time the female tree has produced fruit, although this appears fully a month later than the figs on the male tree.

As soon as the male figs are quite dry, a large number of tiny flies emerge from a hole at the bottom of the fig and fly to the female fig. One male tree will furnish enough flies to nourish 150 female trees and two or three of these flies are sufficient to fertilize, insure the proper growth and bring to maturity the female fig, which is in every case the fig that is sold for consumption.

Frequently it happens that flies do not enter a fig in the manner described and these figs do not mature but fall from the tree and are not used for eating purposes.

About sixty days after the natural process referred to, and as a direct result of it, the female figs are entirely cured and matured. They are then gathered, spread on mats and exposed to the sun for three or four days and sent to the factories to be worked and made ready for market.

Consumption Greatly Increased.

A great change has been noticed during recent years in the condition in which figs have been marketed. Some of the Smyrna dealers realized the importance of the European and North American demand and as a result they are frequently received to-day temptingly packed in boxes and are really a dainty fruit. The result has been that the demand has doubled under the improved conditions.

TRADE NOTES.

"The Big Double Store on the Corner," Alvinston, Ont., is now occupied by R. B. Keeler & Son, general merchants. The premises were vacated some weeks ago by E. E. Spackman & Son.

E. Carter, Toronto, and C. Stevens, Stratford, Ont., were the names given by two young men caught coming out of C. J. Norsworthy's grocery store, corner Elgin and Wellington Streets, St. Thomas, Ont., by way of the rear door, one night recently, laden with biscuits and canned goods. They were later convicted of theft and sentenced to terms of imprisonment.

The grocery business of Hanley Bros., Belleville, Ont., which was conducted for a number of years by that firm, has changed hands. J. H. Conn, formerly of Ottawa, is the purchaser.

William Miller, who has been clerking for D. Graham, grocer, Strathroy, Ont., has purchased a grocery business on Broadview Ave., Toronto.

PERIODICAL DEPT.

THE BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE is the most popular periodical of its kind. Why? Because each issue contains a strong list of original articles of interest to every Canadian. It also reproduces the most timely, instructive and interesting articles appearing in the other magazines and periodicals of the month. The cream of the world's periodical press is too valuable to overlook. BUSY MAN'S is on sale at all news-stands. Better still, send $2 for one year's subscription. Mail it to-day. The Busy Man's Magazine, Toronto.

TECHNICAL BOOKS.

SALES PLANS—This book is a collection of 333 successful plans that have been used by retail merchants to get more business. These include Special Sales, Getting Holiday Business, Co-operative Advertising, Money-Making Ideas, Contests, etc. Price $2.50, postpaid. MacLean Publishing Co., Technical Book Dept., 143-149 University Ave., Toronto.

CANADIAN MACHINERY AND MANUFACTURING NEWS, $1 per year. Every manufacturer using power should receive this publication regularly, and also see that it is placed in the hands of his engineer or superintendent. Every issue is full of practical articles, well calculated to suggest economies in the operation of a plant. Condensed advertisements for "Machinery Wanted" inserted free for subscribers to the GROCER. "Machinery for Sale" advertisements one cent per word each insertion. Sample copy on request. CANADIAN MACHINERY, 143-149 University Ave., Toronto.

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

"Judging from inquiries we have had, your paper must cover all parts of Canada."

The above is an extract from a letter written to The Canadian Grocer by a well-known, London, Ont., firm.

Following is an appreciation from a Hamilton concern:

"We are well pleased with the results from our advertising in The Canadian Grocer. We have received orders and inquiries by mail that have been directly traceable to your paper."

A United States manufacturer writes: "It will, perhaps, be gratifying for you to know that out of seven mediums used in the Canadian field, your paper brought three times the number of inquiries received from any other. We are well satisfied with the results."

Coco-Fruitine

Made in France

For all cooking purposes where butter or pure lard is used, this is unequalled.

It is superior to Butter, Oil or Lard, owing to its extremely delicate taste and flavor.

It is peculiarly nourishing, being superior to any other similar product.

It is extremely easily digested and assimilated by the most sensitive stomachs.

In Tins of 1 lb., 2 lb., 11 lb., 25 lb. each.

Olsen & Kleppe Sardines

The English trade in Olsen & Kleppe's Sardines is enormous and grows steadily from year to year. The product has a national reputation for quality. The two special brands ("Albatross" and "Ambrosia") signify small and medium sized fish respectively—each the best of its kind.

Packed in Olive Oil whose purity can not be questioned. Selected with the skill and care that long experience dictates. Sardines that reach the top-notch of perfection.

Packed in Norway

PURITY FLOUR

Only One Flour To Sell

Every customer of yours who buys PURITY FLOUR will consider you a good friend. For this is the flour that makes good—always—for ALL baking. Yet your profit is the same as it would be on flours you wouldn't care to have the rest of your stock judged by.

This flour you can GUARANTEE to satisfy the buyer is made from the world's best hard wheat—and from only the nourishing part of that wheat. So you can sell it with absolute confidence that it will build trade for you.

You make better profits on the better grade peas

INSTEAD of selling imported French Peas to supply the demand for better grade peas, sell our Extra Fine Sifted (Petits Pois) Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted and Early June Sifted.

Not from sentimental or patriotic reasons, but because they will yield you a better profit, give your customers much greater satisfaction and help to increase the demand for the more profitable higher grade peas.

That vivid green color which makes some lines of imported French Peas look so pretty is produced by Sulphate of Copper—a chemical that is not only very injurious to health, but which kills the true flavor of the peas.

We never use sulphate of copper or any other coloring chemicals in our canned peas.

Extra Fine Sifted (Petit Pois), Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted and Early June Sifted are thoroughly sterilized, the very pick of the pack, fine, tender, and of exquisite flavor.

You can materially increase your profits and your reputation by pushing these lines. Try it.

They are the product solely of luscious, ripe KOOTENAY FRUITS and pure cane sugar, and are prepared by experts in a sanitary and up-to-date factory. Our process ensures the fruit remaining whole after boiling, and retains to a remarkable degree the natural flavor of the fruit. There's a good profit, moreover, in selling "Kootenay" Goods.

Are you handling our 5-lb. tins? They are great favorites.

THE AVERAGE PERSON

Is not a good judge of groceries and knows it.

¶ Therefore, the particular buyer looks for certain "guide posts" to indicate the store upon which he can depend for quality when buying groceries.

¶ He may not know how to select good tea or coffee in bulk, for instance, but he knows he gets value when he buys Heinz Pickles; and is likely to be favorably influenced toward the grocer who sells them and other trade-marked goods of equal standing.

¶ He may not be able to argue for or against Benzoate of Soda, but he knows he prefers to take no chances with drugs in his food, and is likely to read the label on the kind of Ketchup the grocer recommends.

¶ HEINZ PURE FOOD PRODUCTS bring new customers and help to keep old ones, because the 57 Varieties are guaranteed pure and guaranteed to please, or money back.

if you continue to lose money on "bad debts." There's a safe way to accommodate your credit customers—a way that both pleases them and insures you.

Allison Coupon Books

systematize credit accounts, simplify collections, and eliminate arguments. They cost but little and pay for themselves many times over.

HOW THEY WORK

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10 — No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best.

A TEMPEST IN THE TEA-POT

"SALADA" representatives uncover a startling condition in the tea trade of Brantford. Grocers aroused.

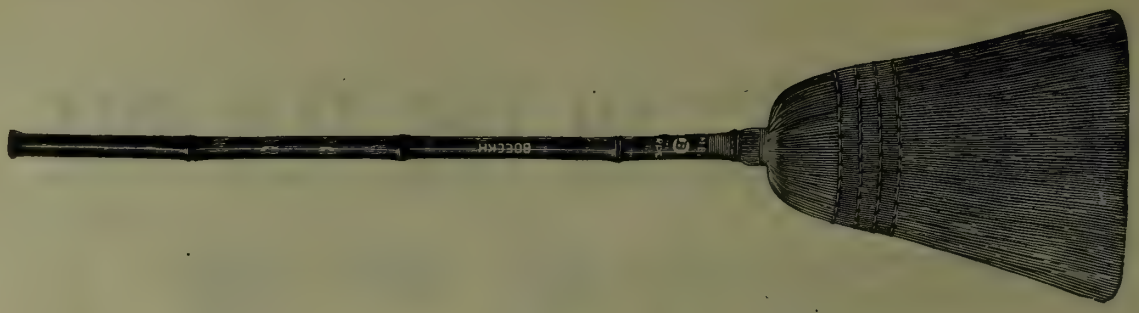
During the past year we have sampled many towns throughout Ontario. Our men have collected accurate statistics showing the condition of the tea trade in each town. They enquire from each householder the kind of tea she uses—before she is aware that our men are in any way connected with "SALADA." By doing this we know precisely the kind of teas sold in each town.

The gathering of this information has brought to our attention a condition of affairs that ought to arouse the fighting spirit of every retail grocer. Our men are at present working in Brantford and so far we find that of 2,326 houses called at 720 purchase tea from peddlers—30.95%, or one-third of the whole tea trade of Brantford, lost by the grocery trade. This is bad business—very bad business—and this is the cure:

Get the people to buy a better tea than the peddler sells—a tea the peddler cannot buy—a package tea of the highest quality—"SALADA."

"SALADA" Tea and no other will regain this trade for you. Every package represents the utmost in tea value. Each package is a miniature tea chest, hermetically sealed. The lead covering seals the quality in and shuts contamination out. It reaches the purchaser just as it left the plantation, its fragrance and flavor unimpaired.

Put a pile on your front counter.



Recommend it to your customers.

And watch the peddler join the largest organization in the world—The Down and Out Club.

Is the peddler bothering you?—we have a plan that will help you greatly. Write us.

Securing Just Profits on all Goods Handled

Merchant of 28 Years' Standing, Maintains That the Dealer With the Independent Spirit is the Man Who Succeeds—It Pays, He Says, Not to Meet a Price Unreasonably Low—Advises Individual Dealers to Stand Up for Their Rights—Retailer Holds the Key of the Situation.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

After one has studied the various problems I have outlined during the past few weeks, and has thereby learned where he is at, what he should have, etc., the proper question is: To what use shall we put this knowledge? Truly, it is one thing to know conditions and realize what we should get out of our business; but if we don't get it, how much better are we off? The old answer pretty nearly covers the ground—"Knowledge is Power."

Once you KNOW these things, a good start towards getting your just profits is made. If the salesman, or the jobber, or the manufacturer, comes to you with such a proposition as a certain breakfast food used to be, you can catch him. He said: "This costs you $1.50 per dozen and sells for 15 cents—TWENTY PER CENT PROFIT!" And, if you were in the well established habit of figuring on your costs, as you probably were, you took the statement at face value. You even went so far as to concede the freight as a "small matter." But to-day you can, by knowing a few things, decline to let the salesman talk on without interruption. You will, in fact, stop him in the middle of his talk to tell him you do not figure profits that way; that, on a cost of $1.50, and a selling price of 15 cents, you cannot figure more than 16 2-3 per cent. gross margin, even if the article be delivered to your door.

Dealers Not so Easy Now.

A few such arguments from every dealer the salesman visits will very soon send him home with the news that grocers are not so easy to figure with now as they used to be, and some change of policy is likely to result. Let that same thing happen to a number of distributors and a revolution will be well started. But remember that your talk must be backed up with your emphatic refusal to buy the goods that pay only 16 2-3 per cent., or your effort will come to naught. And if you say that you cannot hope to accomplish anything single handed my answer is that you can always and ever accomplish the denial of any space on YOUR shelves to any goods which do not pay an adequate profit.

* * * * *

A Spirit of Independence.

This ready acquiescence in conditions as we find them, is the one obstacle in the path of progress, the triviality of which it is most difficult to bring home to the average merchant. Each one feels that he "cannot do anything alone, and the rest of them will not do anything." O, the trouble of the "rest of them," each standing still to see what the others will do. Yet there are men in the grocery business who make big money out of it. There are, in fact, lots of such men. Yet each of those grocers has the same conditions of competition, lack of co-operation among his neighbors, the conspiracy of the distributors, etc., to contend with. Obviously, there must be something about those men which enables them to succeed where the majority practically fail. Yes, there is. They have the character to stick to the rule that, whatever may be the general conditions of trade or demand, they, so far as their individual business goes, will not stock a thing that does not pay a profit.

You might think such men would lose business, thus not having the articles in active demand by their customers. So they do lose a little trade. They lose the same kind of trade that you lose when you do not meet the department, or "Cheap John" cut price on sugar. But it was long ago discovered that the man who tries to meet EVERY low price will have but a short business life, and so the most of us know better than to try to be in a position to throw price-inducement on every hand at the one time.

Dollars to Get Pennies.

Every man who declines to meet a price which is unreasonably low, loses trade; but the question is, does it pay him to lose it better than to keep it—and the answer is, that it most certainly does. For instance: You are getting eight cents for baking soda and you have a customer who declines to buy on the ground that Kaiser sells it at seven cents. You do not sell her, for she will go to Kaiser's before she will pay you the extra cent. Very well; you lose that sale and to that extent you "lose trade." But suppose you thought you had to meet Kaiser's price and lowered your figure to seven cents. You would then make the sale that now you have missed, but at the cost of one cent on each and every package of baking soda you might sell. In other words you would be paying out dollars in order to take in pennies. And that is what the short sighted merchant does—he of whom we later read as having dropped by the wayside—"crushed out by the killing competition of the 'big department store,'" or some similar rot.

* * * * *

It is interesting to note some of the effects of an impression that has become general, such as I have suggested might be general if more grocers should, singly and alone, stand up for what is justly theirs.

Thinks Something Will Happen.

This is observable in general economic conditions all around us. Prior to 1907, prices steadily rose; every day we read of a limit "the highest yet," in this or that line of commodity. And with the rise in the "limit" there arose a sullen protest against conditions. One man grumbled to his neighbor, who maybe had not thought about things very much, and then the neighbor added his wail to the man's. Then each spoke to another, and there were four grumblers. Next day there were eight—then sixteen; and the numbers grew. It was all quiet, almost inarticulate. But the strong sentiment was there, and stayed there until the feeling penetrated "the seats of the mighty,"—and we know the result. "Lack of Confidence" and all that, meant universal protest on the part of the under dog.

This sort of thing is coming again. It is almost upon us now. The protest arises to "high heaven" that things are not evenly distributed, and that somebody is getting rich to fast. The protestors are "not organized," just the same as the grocers are not; but the feeling is becoming universal and in just a little while "something" will "happen" again.

Work as Individuals.

Let grocers learn what is right; what are their rights; what is good for them and what is fair to the other fellow; and then individually hold out for their own dues, and they will get all that is coming to them. It will be an example of the overwhelming weight of a kind of public opinion, which, as you know, even statesmen are bound to respect.

Picture to yourself this situation:

Let all the salesmen for all houses which have not shown a proper regard for grocers' rights go out on their daily mission one day, and be turned down cold by every merchant. Let their reception be about as usual—"Glad to see you, John," and all that — but when it gets down to the order, let the answer be, very quietly: "No; think I don't need anything to-day; can get along until next week all right." Let this continue throughout that day; and the next; and the next, for a week. Do you not think there would be somebody hustling around to see how the grocers might be "placated?" Indeed there would be. And, moreover, he would come prepared to "eat crow."

* * * * *

And the foundation of all this kind of betterment is the individual grocer, standing up, by himself, for his rights.

Strategies Used by Clerks who are Dishonest

One Used to Tear Out Interior of Loaf of Fresh Bread and Fill the Vacancy with Goods From the Shelf — Another Kept Back Money From Cash Purchases—Working in Conjunction with Deliverer to Hold C.O.D. Money—Does it Pay to be Dishonest?

The question of obtaining honest employes is a big one among many retailers.

A dealer in a large Canadian city said recently that nothing so far as he knew could be done to prevent the dishonest employe from committing a theft.

In his long experience he had come across many instances which he maintained were proof of his statements. These were either his personal experiences or those with brother merchants who met the same difficulties.

Devices used to pilfer employer's goods vary a great deal. There is, when opportunity affords, the simple plan of carrying home of a package of this or that in overcoat pockets, beneath wrappers, etc.

But a story related of one method for pilfering package or canned goods shows the stratagem resorted to in order to cover up even the slightest trace of apparent dishonesty.

Canned Goods in The Bread.

A baker's delivery man was on one occasion instrumental in disclosing this unique system.

He brought his goods in at the rear door of the store and three or four times observed in the garbage barrel the soft interiors of loaves of bread. Finally he mentioned the matter to the proprietor who was quite astonished but couldn't account for this waste. He decided to watch proceedings and discovered that one of the employes pulled out the interior of the loaf and filled the hole with canned goods, package goods, etc. Then he wrapped the loaf in paper and while passing the proprietor on his way to dinner dropped the price of the loaf on the counter. Anyone could see that apparently he had nothing but a loaf of bread under his arm.

Employed Detectives.

The story is related of another dealer losing confidence in a certain clerk but after repeated efforts failed to catch him in the act. He was aware of the fact that money was being stolen but couldn't prove it.

He took into his employ a detective who was detailed to watch the young man while he (the proprietor) was absent. A very simple method was shown by which he stole money.

Whenever a customer made a cash purchase he simply waited until the former had left the store until he had an opportunity of pocketing a portion of the money received and of ringing up the balance on the cash register.

Another detective was secured to catch him in the act. One day at noon he came in as a stranger to purchase groceries when this particular clerk was behind the counter. He bought a whole armful. On his way out he met the proprietor coming in. The latter did not, of course, speak to him as they were supposed to be strangers to one another.

Became Badly Tangled.

The proprietor noticed at a glance that the register showed a cash purchase of only 25 cents.

"Who is that fellow?" he asked.

The clerk did not know him.

"Bought a lot of groceries didn't he?" he said.

"Oh, no, just a package of matches; he had the rest in his arms when he came in here," replied the clerk.

Before the words had time to die away, back came the "stranger" stating he had forgotten to purchase something. This time the proprietor engaged in conversation with him.

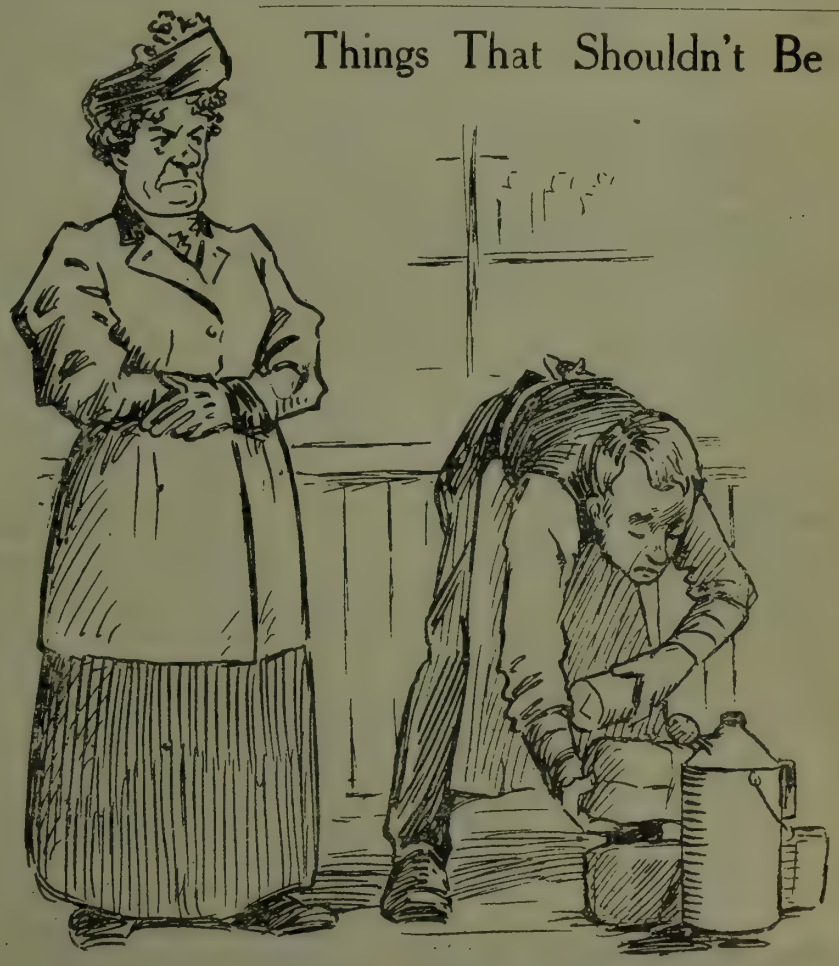
"You have a pretty big armful?" he queried.

"Yes, I have a load all right; I just got these here a few minutes ago but I overlooked buying a pound of butter."

"You're mistaken," said the clerk, who looked somewhat dismayed, "you only bought a box of matches from me. You must have got the rest somewhere else."

He was straightway accused of pocketing the balance and as the web had been woven too tightly about him he was compelled to admit his guilt.

No Returns From C.O.D. Orders.



Dealers have frequently had trouble with C. O. D. orders, relates another grocer. Particularly has this been the case when a driver and a clerk work in conjunction with each other and divide the proceeds. The clerk destroys the duplicate and the driver does not return the money. The books therefore balance without it.

Numbering the C. O. D. slips and enforcing the rule that each be accounted for will go a long way to alleviate this trouble.

Sooner or later the dishonest clerk is usually discovered and when he is, it is a pretty difficult proposition for him to be reinstated. Clerks should remember that honesty and fair dealing with their employers is the best policy in the end and they should also remember that little couplet:

Oh, what a tangled web we weave,
When first we practice to deceive.

Practical Methods Used in Retail Grocery Stores

An Edmonton Opinion on Getting a Fair Profit—Quebec Show Case Aids in Sale of Pickles—Racks Used in Winnipeg For Displaying Fruit—Alarm Clock Used in Stratford to Turn Off Window Light—Halifax Merchant Criticizes Wholesalers Selling Direct.

Should Look to Profits.

Edmonton, Alta., Oct. 6.—"I have been much interested in those articles in The Grocer on retailers not knowing the cost of goods and selling them at a great loss," remarked a local dealer. "One of the most important things to my mind," he declared, "is that the retailer should know what goods cost and get his profit accordingly. Each individual retailer should figure out his own profit and be positive he gets it. I don't believe in handling goods which do not net me fair returns—I am not a free distributing agent.

"That item in The Grocer a few weeks ago about a dealer selling a 25 cent meat sauce for 10 cents because he thought all sauces sold for that much is a good example of the ignorance of some of us. It also shows what some of us are up against when we have to do business in competition with such men, who in time are sure to fail.

"Let every man look to his own costs and profits and then if he cannot sell the goods let him discard them and talk up something else. The dealer who has the confidence of his customers can sell practically what he wishes."

Show-Case Sells Pickles.

Quebec, Oct. 6.—While show cases were being improved some one thought of the name 'silent salesman' for one of the new types and it must be admitted that the term was well chosen. But a silent salesman does not apply only to a show case as every grocer knows, and an instance of the aid of salesmanship that some store appliances give was illustrated recently by a Quebec grocer.

He had a stock of fresh pickles but they were not moving out satisfactorily as they could not be well displayed in the container in which they came. This grocer, therefore, purchased a glass receptacle to display some of the pickles. It holds two gallons and is about ten inches high by about ten inches in diameter. The proprietor has found a new impetus to his bulk pickle sales and attributes all the new success to this glass container—a salesman that does its work well even if it is silent.

Racks to Display Fruit.

Winnipeg, Oct. 6.—While the fruit season is at its height, the grocer must needs carry quite a stock, and as he replenishes it as quickly as it decreases he always has many baskets on the floors, in windows, and in fact every bit of available space is occupied. It is just about the time when fruit baskets hardly leave room for anything else that he begins to wish he had larger quarters. Some grocers find it necessary to store some of their perishables out of sight.

They would rather not do this, for it is known that often the more goods shown, the faster do they sell. The quantity catches the eye, and is, of itself, a selling force the grocer does not like to neglect.

In one store where these conditions prevailed the grocer had several racks made which not only economized space, but it permitted a much larger quantity of fruit to be displayed. These racks were about five feet long and fairly wide at the bottom, in order to be secure.

The shelves were just about wide enough for an ordinary peach basket, placed lengthwise on it, and were long enough to accomodate three of them. Then from these main shelves others were placed at an angle and supported by a brace at each end against the uprights upon which the main shelves were placed. They were inclined at a slight angle, and baskets were placed on them side by side.

The idea was to display the largest amount of fruit in the smallest space, and in such a way that it would be seen to advantage. These racks were not made long, as they would in that case have been clumsy, but this grocer had two made and placed end to end with but room for a person to pass between. If a grocer has a large stock of grapes, peaches, plums, etc., he wants to get rid of them at once, and a silent salesman of this kind should be a help. It proved valuable to one dealer, and the cost was but little. Besides after the fruit season is over they are used to display other articles.

Hand-Bill Brought Business.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—Fred Cox, a Toronto grocer recently adopted the hand bill to announce in his locality that he had opened up with a new stock of groceries and provisions and also to call particular attention to an idea by which he appealed to the boys and girls. It was what he called a "blow-out" and he claims it brought good results.

Of course, this was only one of the purposes. The most prominent part of the bill was devoted to a list of cereals, pickling vinegars, etc., under the heading of "buy here and save money." Prices were plainly quoted.

Clock Turns Off Light.

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 6—The Barnsdale Trading Co. here have a device for automatically shutting off the electric current in their window lamps at a certain time. It is an alarm clock fastened to the wall of the second story just above the window, and to which is fastened a wire connecting with the electric lamps in the window. By it the lights may be turned off at any hour of the night.

The Barnsdale Trading Co. place great faith in their windows as silent salesmen. They always have them neatly dressed, and therefore are anxious to show them at night as long as people pass by the store. This automatic system permits this and at the same time does not necessitate the lamps burning all night long.

Direct to Consumer Question.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 6—A local dealer has strong opinions against wholesalers selling direct to consumers over the heads of the retailers.

He makes the claim that if wholesalers sell to one consumer let them sell all their goods in that way. On the other hand, "if the wholesaler deems that we are necessary in the distribution of part of his goods, then let him sell all his goods through us.

"It is not fair that a wholesaler should take away our best customers and leave us with the worst; if he would make it a hard and fast rule that he will sell only through the retail trade, he would find us a great deal more friendly to him, and a great deal more willing to get behind the goods he turns over to us.

"You will remember that in the address of E. F. B. Johnston before the Wholesale Grocers' Guild in Toronto last April he said: 'A well known and authoritative author, Eddy on Combinations, says:

> 'The right of a combination of dealers to advance their own interests by mutually agreeing to decline to deal with any manufacturer or wholesaler dealer who should sell direct to their customers, has been broadly upheld.'

"Therefore, according to the above, if any body of retailers have trouble over this unfairness they have a perfect right to combine to object to handle a particular wholesaler's or manufacturer's goods.

"I maintain the wholesaler should rigidly protect his best friend, the retailer," he added.

Copas & Emmerson, grocers, Calgary, Alta., have gone out of business. Mr. Emmerson has retired and is living in the city and Mr. Copas is in business on the coast. The firm have been doing business in Calgary for twenty years.

A Window Display to Catch the Huntsman's Eye

The Season for the Chase of Wild Game Now on—Suggestion for a Window Trim of Goods Appropriate to Take Along—Why the Season Should be Taken Advantage of.

"The call of the wild" is now sinking deep into the heart of the huntsman. The whistling wing of the wild-duck, the runway of the rabbit, the swoop of the partridge and the splash of the antlered monarch of the forest in its endeavor to elude the hungry hound, now exist in his dreams both night and day.

Of what significance is this to the retail grocer?

The hunter has to be fed and its up to the grocer to provide him with life's necessity before he leaves for the tall timbers or the rice-beds. The hunter knows his own failing, while in the woods—his appetite is one of great length and he does not buy sparingly.

Methods for Getting Trade.

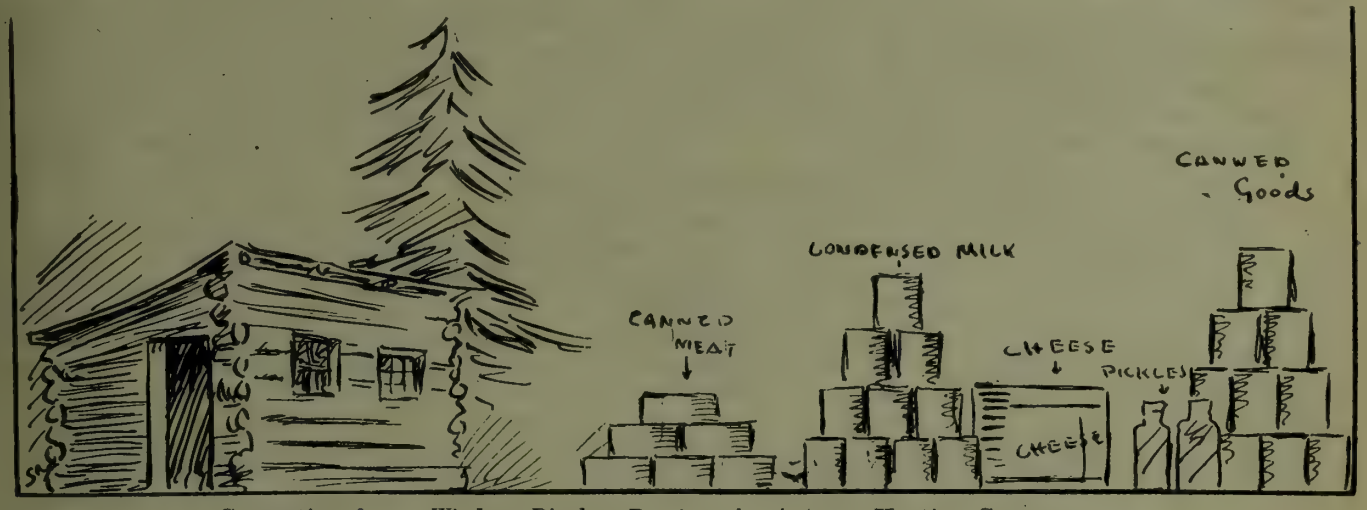
To get the trade of the hunter the retail dealer has several methods to pursue. Among the best are well-dressed and appetizing windows and well written copy in the daily or weekly newspaper.

The window can be made a strong factor in attracting trade. The drawing reproduced here illustrates this fact. For what better attraction for the hunter could there be than a log cabin in the woods? This would catch his eye immediately and it is something quite easy of manufacture. Any clerk with a touch of originality can be the impromptu carpenter.

With the log cabin in one corner and food-stuffs appropriate for the hunt neatly displayed in the remainder of the window, the grocer will have a splendid partner talking in silence to the man with the buck-fever and getting next his heart.

Appropriate Goods.

Place yourself in the hunter's position and you will readily know what goods to display. If you are a general merchant and sell guns and ammunition, stand a few fire-arms against the log cabin, (if it is big enough) and place a few cartons of cartridge and shells in the doorway. Hunting-knives, decoys, pipes and cameras will also be appropriate.



In the food line there are many articles that could be displayed. The drawing suggests canned fruits, meats and fish, condensed and evaporated milk, pickles and cheese. The list might include, ham, bacon, butter, eggs, meat-sauces, quick-pudding material, breakfast foods, cream-cheese, etc.

To make such a window more effective, display cards ought to be used such as "The Hunter's Larder," "Tasty cheese gives a Relish to the Meal," "What about Bacon and Eggs for Breakfast," "Condensed Milk is Economical," etc. Prices should also be given.

Would Interest the Young Men.

Retailers should remember that there are always a number of young men in every centre who go for a hunt. These men may not have any wives, and they have to do their own purchasing. A suggestion such as the above with cards and prices quoted will be just what is needed to catch their attention.

Apart from those who are going hunting this display ought also to create interest among everyone on account of it being out of the ordinary.

Suggestion for a Window Display Dur ing the Autumn Hunting Season.

Want Merchants to Buy Coupons for Free Gifts

Ingersoll, Ont., Oct. 6.—Resembling somewhat the old trading stamp game of sacred memory is a new idea which has been placed before the merchants of this town, and a number have taken it up. At a special meeting of the local branch of the Retail Merchants' Association on Thursday evening, Sept. 29, this new idea came in for considerable discussion.

According to this plan a merchant purchases a number of coupons paying $25 for them. Apparently this entitles him to about as many as he will require. With each purchase, customers upon asking for it may receive a coupon which in reality is a ballot. The customer is supposed to cast her ballot in favor of some local institution and that which has received the most ballots at the end of a certain time will receive a collection or library of books.

About ten merchants took up the scheme which means that $250 was collected by the introducers of the plan who are said to be from the United States.

Merchants as a rule are generous to a fault, but by past experience they are enabled to scent propositions such as furnishing some local institution with a library. It will be readily seen that once an affair of this kind gets underway there would be a certain rivalry among women which would increase to such an extent that possibly every merchant in a town would find it necessary to secure a supply of the ballots. In this case the merchant would have to pay the shot to satisfy the suffragette tendencies of his fair customers who have read so much about the ballot of late, that they would probably welcome this idea even though for that purpose alone.

E. M. Trowern, Dominion Secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association pronounced the scheme similar to the trading stamp proposition, declaring it illegal and further that every merchant who issued these ballots could be indicted for violating the criminal law. This view was upheld by the town solicitor of Ingersoll, whose advice was later sought. Another meeting is to be held to-night to further consider the question. In the meantime Mr. Trowern is sending out letters to the various branches of the association, calling their attention to the scheme, asking them not to take it up, as they put themselves under the law.

At the meeting on Sept. 29, practically every line of trade was represented and listened to an address by Mr. Trowern on the past and prospects for the future of the Retail Merchants' Association.

W. F. Leonard, of Leonard Bros., St. John, N.B., was in Montreal this week.

John W. Guthrie, Dresden, Ont., has disposed of his grocery business to J. Wright & Co. Mr. Wright was a member of the Wright & Hughes, at one time in business there.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

NEW PRICES QUOTED.

Prices on canned corn and tomatoes were officially named during the week, as was forecast in last week's issue.

It was generally considered that tomatoes would open high and this is the case, when compared to last year's prices. Two's for Ontario and Quebec are $1.05 for Group A, and 3's are $1.15. A number of retailers have advised The Grocer that they will sell the latter two for a quarter, or 13 cents each. The cost will be a little over 9½ cents each, so that 10 cents would leave no profit whatever.

Corn, 2's, has opened at 92½ to 95 cents, which, retailers say, will mean a retail price of 10 cents straight.

Last year tomatoes opened at from 77½ to 82 cents, in Toronto, and corn at from 75 to 80 cents. Prices are, therefore, considerably in advance of those of a year ago. Canners say that tomatoes are not a real good crop, but that corn is more plentiful. Corn is the cheapest vegetable on the market this year and sales will necessarily be large.

SUGAR TAKES A SLUMP.

Last week The Grocer intimated that sugar was on the verge of a decline. This has since come to pass, the decline amounting to 10 cents on Tuesday.

The causes leading up to this situation have been outlined fully before. The raw market was weak, having been affected by the new crop, which this year is a good one. This is also one of the between-seasons and demand is slackening for refined. Graunlated in bags in Montreal is now quoted at $4.90. This time a year ago the price was $4.70, a difference of 20 cents.

The fact that a week ago The Grocer pointed out that a lower sugar market was expected is another indication of our proximity to the markets, and another reason why our forecasts should be carefully studied before any buying has been done. A dealer who declined to buy sugar on the strength of our advice saved some money during the week.

GALLON APPLES HIGH.

Gallon apples have opened this year in Ontario at $3 to $3.02½, according to grade, for standards. Last year the price was from $2.40 to $2.50, therefore showing an advance of more than 50 cents.

As was forecast in the last issue of The Grocer, apples have opened high. This has been chiefly on account of the short crop in almost every section of Canada, and hence the scarcity of the raw material.

BROOM PRICES GO DOWN.

Broom prices have come down from the high figures which were the result of crop failure last year in Illinois, Oklahoma and Kansas States.

Brooms will soon once again be sold at 25 and 30 cents, as was the case before last season's peculiar conditions. In fact, manufacturers state that they have been able to purchase this year's corn at such a price as to be able to do this. It may, however, be a few weeks yet before they will be manufactured, although orders are now being taken for them at the lower prices.

Reports from the broom-corn district, however, indicate that the corn for manufacture of the cheaper broom is not more than the average, and it is only being offered in very restricted quantities.

The corn used for the better quality brooms, those which will sell from 40 to 50 cents retail, is fairly plentiful, and the quality is good.

Since the high-priced brooms have been on the market consumers have been accustomed to pay more than they previously did, and retailers say that they do not believe their particular customers will go back to the lower price. They will rather prefer a better broom at 40 or 50 cents. It lasts longer, is much easier on carpets, and gives all-round general satisfaction.

The more a dealer can educate his customers to a better quality of broom, the better will he satisfy them and the more confidence will they place in his judgment on other matters—and he makes a better profit.

PHONE SERVICE TIED UP.

A Kingston, Ont., grocer writes, in reference to the trouble merchants there are having with their telephones, particularly after a violent rain or wind storm.

Sometimes, he says, it is difficult to take an order over the phone on account of the buzzing noises on the line. Lines become mixed up after every little wind storm and it is impossible for some orders to be taken at all. This means that housekeepers often buy somewhere else and the merchant loses money. Last Saturday he had had no service at all and his loss was great. The Royal Commission has been there and he humorously hopes they have taken note of this difficulty which the merchants are up against.

Adequate telephone service is important in these days. It means more money to the merchant because the consumer often orders goods by phones he would not otherwise purchase. But if the service is poor, customers become impatient and disgusted and blame everything on the merchant.

When the 'phone is out of order, complaints should be made to the company as soon as possible so that the matter may be righted at once. It is up to the company to maintain their system and a business man who pays for a service should get it. Probably underground conduits would solve the difficulty?

WHEN OYSTERS ARE "SICK."

With several systems of transporting oysters now successfully employed, it is just as easy to ship them one thousand miles as it is ten miles. Lovers of the succulent bivalve are wont to rejoice when they get a fat, juicy oyster.

New trade ideas, however, spoil all their enjoyment by the assurance that such oysters are not in the best condition. In the language of oyster men they are "sick." Nothing terrible is meant by this expression but this sick condition is brought on by the oysters having been "watered." The really good oyster as it comes from its habitant, is rather thin and saline in taste. The fat oyster is "bloated" after being "floated."

Dr. Harvey Wiley, the chemist of the United States Government ruled a short time ago that when oysters have been floated in pure water that fact must be made known to intending purchasers. As the oyster cannot make this known, the intelligence must be conveyed by tags on the cans.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS.

Sugar—down 10c.

Dates—Up ½c.

Canned goods—New prices on some lines.

Montreal, Oct. 6, 1910.

The feature of the week is the 10c decline in refined sugars. This has been expected for some time past, but has been held off as long as possible, in order that they might clear up on some of the more expensivve raws laid in when prices were high, but they could hold back no longer, and the result leaves the market still in a weak state, even at the decline.

The coffee market is also taking up a good deal of attention, particularly Rio and Santos, which are high and firm. It is reported that the Brazilian government is behind the movement, aided by speculators. Latest advices tend to weaken the situation slightly, but still it looks as if there would be a high market for some time to come.

The arrival of the first Mediterranean fruit boat is awaited eagerly by local buyers. Stocks are running low in these lines, and though there is not likely to be any absolute shortage of any one line, they are all low, and replenishment is necessary.

Trade has been only fair so far this month, dealers being mostly occupied with filling orders placed with them some time ago. As far as new business goes the month has been light, as was also September.

Sugar—Sugar declined Tuesday 10c in all grades. This is only the fitting result of the state of the raw market during the past few weeks. Weakness in all raws has culminated in the forcing down of the refined prices. Refiners held off as long as they could, as their present meltings were purchased at comparatively high prices. Another deterrent influence was the slack condition of trade at present. There was a decided dislike to make the situation worse by any reduction, but it apparently had to come.

Latest cable reports, and New York advices promise little relief in the near future, with the result that buyers are holding off at present.

Syrups and Molasses—The demand for syrups is remarkably good for this time of year. It is usually not for some weeks that this change takes place. Evidently country buyers are laying in stocks early this year. This briskness has had a beneficial effect on city trade, and has served to keep prices firm. Molasses are also in brisk demand, but not more so than is normal at this time of year.

Tea—Reports from the European market say that, while teas are in good supply this year, nevertheless the quantity of good lipuoring teas is limited, and the competition for those appearing is keen. The average grade is poor, so poor that in all probability there will be an extreme range of prices this year, some being very high and others lower than usual. This is the case with most lines except Ceylons, of which the supply is limited more than usual, and the average quality better.

Locally trade is steady, and fairly brisk, particularly for Ceylons and Japans.

Coffee—Coffees are higher and firmer than for some years past. This is due primarily to the unfavorable reports regarding the growing crops, of which it is said that the flowering is unsatisfactory, owing to insufficient rain, and cold, unseasonable weather.

On the strength of these reports the Brazilian government, aided by speculators, is bulling prices in order to dispose of the surplus they took over to help the growers a few years ago, which they have been holding for just such a situation.

Recently the reports have not been so discouraging, and it may be that some slight weakening will occur, though at present it looks all the other way.

Dried Fruits—The only change in market quotations this week is in Hallowi dates, which are ½c higher, owing to scarcity. However, with two exceptions there is the same firm condtion existing that did formerly. The exceptions are figs and malaga raisins, in which lines some concessions are made.

The first Mediterranean fruit boat is expected in the near future, and buyers are waiting its arrival to replenish their low stocks.

It is reported that broken citron is scarce, and the price is on the up grade, though as yet it has not affected the retailer.

Almonds are unchanged, with a slight weakening in Californias.

As to the reported effect of the cholera in Naples and France, it is not thought the nut crop will lose anything by it, except possibly the delay in shipment from the ports affected.

Beans and Peas—Beans are weakening and buyers are holding off hoping for former levels. It seems as if the $2 prices would be back in the near future, as sales are slack at present time.

Peas are selling fairly well at present prices, and there seems to be little likelihood of any immediate change.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—New prices are out for some lines of fruits and vegetables, the lines affected are beans, tomatoes, corn, strawberries, and pumpkins. The last is the only line to show any reduction. All the others are higher. The effect locally has been to rather slacken the demand, but this check will, in all probability be only temporary, as the state of the crops is said to warrant the changes.

Fish are in good demand, particularly salmon, and the prices are being firmly held. In meats there is a shortage of some standard lines, notably lunch tongue. Prices are unchanged as yet.

TORONTO—New prices in canned tomatoes and corn were received this week and as was expected they are considerably higher than last year's quotations. In regard to corn it is stated that it will likely be a full pack, that is that all the orders received will be filled, but there will be no surplus. Some retailers assert that they have been informed that corn may not be fully delivered at first but those in close connection with the canners say that there will be enough corn to go around.

Tomatoes are not going to be a full crop. Judging from the prospects up to the present there will be sufficient to fill about sixty per cent. of the orders, but if the season winds up well that figure may be slightly exceeded, but only slightly. This year's crop has been pretty well gauged by the conditions up to the present, and there is not much left to depend upon.

Canned apples are likewise going to be scarce. The apple crop has been rather short this year as far as Canada is concerned and not only are high prices ruling now, but it should not be long until they go much higher. It is not known at present whether the canners have formed an estimate of what their pack of apples is likely to amount to, but those who are intimate with the apple situation do not look for a full pack. In addition to these limited supplies of canned goods there is the bare market onto which they are coming that must be considered in looking over the entire ground.

Demand for canned goods has greatly increased during recent years. They have come to be considered by the grocer one of the most important lines he handles and for that reason more interest is being taken in them and particularly is that true of the present.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Decline of 10 cents.

Valencia Raisins—(New crop) 8¼ cts.

Nuts—Holding firm.

Canned Goods—New prices out.

Toronto, Oct. 6, 1910.

Sugar declined early this week, a market change that was not unexpected and in fact was due to occur at any time. It is felt that another drop is not altogether unlikely although it is impossible to say when it will be recorded. There is good buying reported among the wholesale trade and, as is often said, October should be a fairly good sugar month. September was practically all that was expected of it and it is likely that the demand will be drawn well into this month.

New prices for tomatoes, corn, apples, etc. have been announced this week and in keeping with the general trend of the markets in general, higher prices are features. In fact, low prices are so unusual that the retail trade would hardly recognize them. Sugar is about the only staple that offers any consolation just now.

Tomatoes are short and only about 60 per cent. of the orders will be filled. There will likely be enough corn to meet the first orders, but it is considered unlikely that there will be any surplus. Apples are quoted at a high figure as a result of the short crop this year. Already there are higher quotations in some of the other lines.

New Valencia raisins have been received this week by local jobbers and are quite satisfactory. In primary markets the price is even higher than a week ago and while reports from Spain would indicate that high prices are going to be permanent, there are some who suggest speculation and for that reason they prefer to hold off a while. The dried fruit market continues to be attractive from practically every standpoint.

There has been an improved demand for syrups of late, this market showing much better returns during the past month.

Sugar—Where there is smoke there is generally some fire which, bearing upon the sugar market, means that the expected decline in prices was announced early this week. Sugar had been manifesting evidences of weakness that were practically unmistakable and besides the market was due to drop. Local houses state that there is a fairly generous demand yet for sugar and at the new price there may be extra business. The recent drop may not be the full extent of the decline at present and further downward action may be reported at any time. The sugar market has not adjusted itself to the new crop conditions yet and until that time the buyer should exercise certain care in his purchases.

Syrups—Sales of syrups recently have been exceptionally large. In fact, syrup has come to its own and from all parts of the country orders are coming in. The past two months have been better than the same time last year and September was particularly good. There is a possibility that syrup may see a change in prices before long but as yet there is nothing definite to state.

Dried Fruits—Valencia raisins are still holding the spotlight in the dried fruit markets. To begin with, some of Toronto's jobbers have already received first shipments of new Valencias direct from Denia, Spain. They are of pretty good appearance and of good size. The ruling price for immediate shipment is 8¼ cents a pound.

In the primary market Valencias have been going up, new quotations having been made early this week. They have been up around 32 shillings and were reported as high as 33s. From what can be learned of the existing conditions the new crop after being gathered is spread out in the open to dry and during that time rains have fallen and are bound to have a deleterious effect on the fruit. Some believe, however, that shippers are trying to make capital out of this state of affairs and assert that the conditions are not as bad as reported. Others state that the raisins are not in the country anyway to admit of an appreciable decline and the reports are true of the present market. It was stated locally that some shippers are out of the market, refusing to quote. "Altogether the situation appears to be an extremely strong one and looks to be making for permanently high levels."

Prunes are also high. Currants seem to be slightly easier and according to the street can be bought around 25 to 26 shillings.

Winnipeg, Oct. 6, 1910.

The feature of the market this wek is the continued advance of foreign dried fruits. For reasons which were outlined last week, prices are soaring, and it is not known what the future will be for most of the lines. The demand for all grocery stocks continues normal, but there is no particular line which is being called for strenuously at the present time. A good deal of trade is going on in a wide range of stock, and as winter approaches, and holiday season comes on, the ordering will be heavier.

Collections are reported to be good, and wholesalers have no difficulty in getting

Secret of a Package Tea Success

Quality Made Trade When the Trade Became Acquainted With the Quality.

That is the history briefly of Red Rose Tea

The retail grocery trade of Canada have found that it pays to push Red Rose Tea because it gives their customers greater satisfaction than any other tea.

It merits your confidence, too, because every package is up to the same high standard. You know you can recommend it to your customers with the absolute assurance that it will please them and keep on pleasing them.

The increase in the Red Rose Tea business has been enormous. Its remarkable success has been due to the confidence and friendliness its quality has inspired in the grocer.

Sugar—The sugar market in the west is quiet. Neither in price nor quantity of output has there been any variation for some time, only a moderate trade is going on, and the demand will gradually increase as present stocks in retailers' hands get low.. There was a slight strengthening on the Montreal market during the week.

Foreign Dried Fruits—Notwithstanding the efforts of buyers to check the impulsive advance in the general line of dried fruits, prices continue to soar. Valencia raisins are expected to open at about $1.90, and all raisin prices will be equally high. This week we quote a change in raisins, pears, apricots and peel. Prices are likely to become easier when the goods are marketed.

Syrup—There is little syrup moving and some disappointment prevails among local jobbers at the present quotations. The stocks ought to go out rapidly, and these prices cannot last much longer. ALBERTA MARKETS.

Calgary, Oct. 1—Local merchants are enjoying a good run of trade at present with steady markets. Standard flour is down to $6.70 a barrel and the indications are that the price will go still lower. The canned fruit is in little demand yet, and in fact little is being sold.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, Oct. 6, 1910.

There was a drop of 20 cents a barrel in the price of Ontario flour last week, the quotation going from $5.80 and $5.90, to $5.60 and $5.70. The wholesalers are looking for lower prices on sugar and in consequence are not holding large stocks. It would not surprise them to hear of a decline any day now. Canned tomatoes are scarce and are quoted higher even than they were a couple of years ago. Canned peas also continue scarce and high and corn and most kinds of canned fruits are likewise higher than usual.

In the fruit line apples continue high, though the quality for the most part is good. Tokay grapes have never been as cheap in St. John as they are this season, the dealers selling them retail at 3 pounds for 25 cents, whereas in other years the price seldom dropped below 20 cents a pound.

TALK OF JOINING FORCES.

Two Grocers' Associations Meet to Discuss the Proposition.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—On Monday night there was a joint meeting of the Grocers Section, Retail Merchants' Association and the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, to talk over the prospects of amalgamation. There were present belonging to the former, J. F. Halloway, F. C. Higgins, Jno. Bond, Jno. W. Nettleton, and Sec. Geo. E. Gibbard. Those present belonging to the latter were: Pres. Donald McLean, F. Johnston, W. C. Miller, David Bell and J. S. Bond. Donald McLean, who is also vice-president of the Grocers' Section R.M.A., occupied the chair.

The meeting was somewhat of an informal character and many suggestions amalgamation. One suggestion was to the effect that occasionally joint meetings be held to discuss trade matters; another was that both meet on equal terms regarding legislative matters, etc., and some want complete affiliation claiming that this is the only method to strengthen the hands of the two bodies.

Each will report to their associations at their next meeting and discuss the matter more fully. The meeting on Monday night was called at the instance of Geo. E. Gibbard, who is a strong advocate of union.

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

Supplied to the Trade by Sellers.

Fussell's Pure Rich Cream, from the highlands of Norway, is the most recent and delicious table delicacy now being sold in Canada. Fussell's Cream, which is contained in four and six ounce tins, and retailing for ten and fifteen cents, is simply pure, rich, cream (sterilized) and free from all preservatives. This sterilized cream is preferred by most people to ordinary fresh cream, on account of its convenience, richness and purity. Every ambitious grocer in Canada, should specify on Fussell's Golden Butterfly Cream, as it shows a neat profit, has no equal, and is so delicious and pleasing to the taste. Pure rich cream like Fussell's is a real necessity on the table in every Canadian home at least twenty-one times a week.

The order for Aylmer Brand fruits in glass, put up by the Dominion Canners, Hamilton, and given by the King of Bulgaria, has been received by Eby-Blain, Ltd., wholesale grocers, Toronto. As was mentioned in this column las week, the order was given the Canadian Commissioner at the Canadian Exhibit, in connection with the recent Brussels exposition.

At this time of the year the subject of syrup comes rapidly to the front, and the festive season brings with it suggestions for making sweet dainties and other things for holiday parties. In Mapleine you have an article which is not only indispensable, but exceedingly popular in the household. It makes delicious table syrup by dissolving sugar in water and adding Mapleine, and is now a necessity in every household as a flavoring for candy, fudges, cakes and other sweetenings. This product is now being advertised extensively in the leading women's magazines, in the Ladies' Home Journal, Woman's Home Companion, Success, Good Housekeeping, and many of the leading Farm Journals, and the demand for it should be brisk.

The managers of the Dominion Exhibition, St. John, New Brunswick, have awarded a gold medal to Walter Baker & Co., Limited. This is the fifty-third highest award from the leading international and local expositions in America and Europe for the cocoa and chocolate preparations manufactured by Walter Baker & Co., Limited, of Dorchester, Mass.

Production of Butter Heavy for this Season

Conditions in the Country Have Been Favorable for Copious Supplies of Milk—The Situation as it Existed in the Summer is Carried into the Fall—Lard is Quoted at Higher Price—Eggs are of Poor Quality, and Supplies Have Slumped Decidedly—Storage Eggs Will Soon Have to be Called into Use—Poultry is Coming Freely.

The manner in which the production of butter is being maintained is probably a feature of the markets just now. The country is reported in excellent condition for this time of the year and the supply of milk, heavy as it has been throughout the summer and early fall still continues steady with the result that the production of butter and cheese, too, has not diminished as much as was expected. While prices are quite firm they are not as high as might have been expected. It is a little difficult to tell how long this will obtain, but beginning of the end of the season is looming into view, but a little later than in other years. As pointed out in the report from Montreal, the total production of butter this year would have been exceedingly heavy had all the cream been used to that end, but as has been pointed out previously, large quantities were shipped across the border.

Supplies of first quality eggs are much reduced and not only are the receipts falling off but the quality is far below the standard. Dealers state that they will soon have to draw from their storage supplies to meet the demand.

Poultry is coming in freely and is in good demand. Prices are slightly easier in some instances.

Lard shows higher prices. Reports from Chicago are to the effect that higher prices are ruling and there has been that influence on the home markets. In addition the demand is good and the question of supply has entered into the situation.

The provision market is pretty firm except for local conditions that may exist in some places. On the whole there is a good demand for the various lines of pork.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—Prices on some lines of hams and bacons have been cut this week, in order to "clean house," as the dealers express it. Trade has been only fair, and some of the lines show an accumulation which had to be disposed of. Since the reductions the packers report a good increase in sales in these particular lines and say also that business has benefited generally by the cut.

Out-of-town buyers are laying in fall supplies to a limited extent, and this has helped general conditions.

Butter.—The market is firming perceptibly and higher prices are expected in the near future. Receipts still continue good, and this in spite of the fact that cream exportation has been exceptionally heavy this year. Just lately the last of the Township boards, Cowansville, closed down, and unless some change occurs before next year all, or practically all, of their cream will find its way across the border as the rest of the Townships' cream is doing. There is no doubt that this year would have been a record one in butter making had not there been this exportation. As it is there is a much larger one than last year.

Receipts for the season show this quite plainly, being 349,727 packages, as against 311,914 same season last year. For the week they also show an increase, 9,516 packages as against 8,403 same week last year.

Eggs.—The result of meetings held here recently by prominent egg packers will result in the forwarding in the near future of a resolution to the government asking that it be made a punishable offence to place or offer for sale rotten eggs. This is the culmination of a season's effort to improve the quality of the average stock, which this year has been unusually low. It is to be hoped that the end will be accomplished, in part at least. Receipts for the week are light, 2,495 cases, as against 3,470 same week last year, and as a result the price of new laids is up 2c. For the season receipts are 166,602 cases, as against 170,857 same season last year.

Cheese.—Prices are being fairly well maintained, and so far the receipts are fairly well up to last year's mark. This is in spite of the increasing business of exporting to the States. The Cowansville board closing down shows to what an extent it has spread in the Eastern Townships. Farmers and other exporters are beginning to learn from experience, and are now getting the allowance for overrun which formerly they could not get from the U. S. importer.

Receipts for the week are 62,684 boxes as against 64,730 same week last year. For the season they are 1,567,941 boxes as against 1,571,941 same season last year.

Poultry.—Lower prices are looked for in the next few days in poultry. The reason is the large arrivals of all lines coming in. Young turkeys particularly are coming in, replacing the old, and thus reducing prices. In spite of the rapid growth of the supplies there has continued a strong enough demand to hold matters level so far, but the increase from day to day is sure to have its effect sooner or later.

TORONTO.

Provisions.—Lower prices in the live and dressed hog market were felt during the early part of this week, supplies coming in rather freely. The result was a decline in those prices with a slightly weakening tendency in other lines. Lard was higher and has been one of the high priced pork products all summer. Higher prices in Chicago were partially responsible for the local change. The fact is that local market conditions warranted the increase according to dealers. The demand for smoked hams and bacon is keeping up well.

Butter.—The butter situation might be termed a little "queer." Some of the dealers state that the supplies have been coming in much more plentifully than they expected and while prices as a whole are firm still there is a slightly easier feeling as the result. The production of butter has kept up well and while the season for lighter returns is not far ahead still the farmers are having a good season.

Eggs.—According to local dealers good fresh eggs are almost a thing of the past. The shipments being received now are by no means heavy and the quality could be a great deal better. Recent receipts have shown considerable waste. Prices as a result are firm and are likely to be boosted at any time. It will not be long now, under these conditions, until it will be necessary to fall back on the storage eggs.

Poultry.—Supplies continue to come in liberally. As a result there is an easier feeling in the price of hens. It is a little early for these reports and nothing authoritative has yet been received in this regard.

Butter.—Butter is getting scarce and the price is going up. It is believed that a high market such as prevailed last winter will rule again. Creamery to-day is 28 cents to the merchant, and a 25 cent market rules on No. 1 dairy.

Eggs.—The demand far surpasses the supply and storage eggs are already going at 26 cents. Stocks from the east and Manitoba fresh are jobbing at 29 cents per dozen.

Cheese.—The cheese trade is excellent and no change is reported on either Ontarios or Manitobas.

Big Flour Contracts will Soon be Signed Up

Bakers Either Buying or Negotiating for Flour Supplies—Canadian Export Wheat Trade Has Not Decreased Much—Good Demand for Heavier Cereals, Such as Rolled Oats and Rolled Wheat—Cornmeal Quoted at Higher Price—Canadian Wheat Collecting at Big Markets.

There has not been much change in the flour market during the past week. Prices of wheat have been declining and with the bearish tendency in wheat there was a similar action in flour, although not noticed to the same extent. Some prominent dealers are holding off waiting for lower prices which they expect will be realized. There is considerable trade passing according to some of the mills and contracts with bakers are being made or are negotiated throughout the country. Canadian export trade has not amounted to much as yet and there has not been the influence behind the market necessary to enliven trade.

Prices have been holding pretty firm, although Ontario wheat is down, but Manitoba wheat has not changed sufficiently to put it in competition with other export markets. The world's shipments of wheat last week totalled 14,544,000 bushels, as compared with 15,360,000 bushels of the previous week, and 13,360,000 bushels of the same week a year ago. Of this Russia had 5,600,000 bushels and the Danubian provinces nearly three million bushels. America was in third position with a small figure compared with Russia's and Argentine was close behind America. The world's export shipments show liberal contributions from the large wheat districts of Europe, while in America supplies are congesting at the leading market centres.

The holding game that has been played so far by Canadian and U. S. farmers is likely to be continued for some time. As pointed out before, reduced prices are practically necessary before the export trade amounts to anything and it is not until after that business is expected to amount to anything. At present, in some respects the market is lethargic. It is true that the mills are fairly busy according to the statements from the millers, but there are others who are not at all satisfied with the condition of affairs. It is these who say lower prices are to be expected, and that even now some mills are quite willing to cut prices in order to bolster their trade. The market is difficult to judge with any degree of accuracy, but opinion seems to be in the majority for even easier prices just now.

MONTREAL.

Flour.—Spot stocks of flour show a decided increase over the corresponding week last year. Demand keeps fair for small lots, buyers seeming to be content to fill their immediate requirements. For export there is a stronger demand, though it is not what might be expected at this season. Prices are fairly well maintained. There seems to be somewhat of an unsettled condition in winter wheat grades, Ontario millers being quoted at two or three different prices.

Rolled Oats.—Owing to the weak state of the corn market, there has been a 20c decline in bolted cornmeal. Began Business on $50 Capital and then Failed

John Sansum, a grocer at Rochdale, Eng., recently failed and the causes of his undoing are assigned to bad trade due to slackness in the cotton industry, insufficient capital, and keen competition. For 13 years he was engaged as a manager of a grocery store and in 1901 opened a business for himself. He had not more than $10 capital, but his wife lent him $40 with which he purchased fixtures. He stocked his store with goods bought on credit. Liabilities steadily accumulated all the time Sansum was in business. He estimated his gross profits during the last three years at $340, $210 and $130 respectively. He had never taken more than five dollars a week out of the business for his personal expenses.

Five Roses Makes Your Sales Stick

THIS, Brother Grocer, we hold to be the essence of all Successful Salesmanship over your counter.

That To-morrow's dividends can only come from To-day's investment.

That it is not enough to collect To-day's profits, if your competitor is collecting To-morrow's good-will.

If, after many years of sweating and straining, you have acquired a cashable reputation—

And falling victim to the ready wiles of a cajoling salesman you are at last induced to stock a faulty flour, which keeps coming back almost as fast as it is sent out—

You are no longer making the Sales that Stick, the only Worth While Sales; you are living on past reputation. shrinking in value with every sack delivered.

Gradually weakening in weight, your personal recommendation under the burden of repeated housewifely disappointment and disillusion.

For every flour defect in baking contributes in driving away not only actual custom, but the future profits possible from the slow seepage of satisfaction from a pleased housewife to Mrs. Nextdoor Neighbor.

Only one man on earth finds profit in driving away customers—but YOU are not in the "cab driving" business.

The sales that stick are the quality sales, and there are the FIVE ROSES sales.

One of the few, the very few good flours, giving Genuine Satisfaction to pastry cooks and bread bakers, a 2 in 1 flour, having in each sack the germ of a re-order.

Saving you the trouble of studying many brands, taking up less store room, tying up less capital, increasing the turnover.

But, Brother Grocer, mere intent to sell FIVE ROSES brings no income.

You must actually stock FIVE ROSES, push FIVE ROSES, sell FIVE ROSES.

"BORDO"

"The Chocolate with the flavor that's different."

Well might the readers of advertisements be mystified—whether to choose this or that brand of Chocolate; fortunately there is the famous "Bordo" about which no doubt as to the quality and unique flavor has ever existed.

Brands may come, and brands may go, but the "Bordo" Chocolate pursues its way serenely with an unbroken record, and increasing success.

When nature has produced finer ingredients, when workmen have acquired more skill, when science has inaugurated greater cleanliness, then, and only then, will "Bordo" be equalled in richness, flavor and quality.

Others have been convinced, and profited by it. Others have purchased small quantities, and increased their orders with increased demands.

By The Advertising Manager

VI

"The relationship of advertising to salesmanship is the closest relationship known—closer than friends; closer than a team under single yoke; closer than brothers; closer than a man and wife, as there can be no separation or divorce; all salesmanship is part advertising, and all advertising is part salesmanship."

The above comes from Hugh Chalmers, regarded as the greatest salesmanager of his day.

He drew a salary of $75,000 a year in that capacity, until he went into business for himself.

What he says about the relation of advertising to salesmanship should be of interest. And it is.

The manufacturer of a grocery line told the writer not long ago that the reading and studying of Hugh Chalmers' article on this subject had been worth a good deal to him.

Here are a few extracts selected from it:—

"Salesmanship and advertising—each is a power alone, but combine them, and you have the greatest business-producing power known."

"Every advertisement is a salesman; every salesman is an advertisement. Advertising is salesmanship plus publicity. Salesmanship is advertising plus getting the order signed."

"Advertising and salesmanship are alike in that in both you are trying to influence the human mind—trying to teach people to believe in you and your goods."

"The whole business world rests on a foundation of confidence.

"If a man has confidence in you, you can sell him."

"Now the greatest builder of confidence is publicity—advertising.

"Unless you know a man well, you haven't confidence in him.

"Unless you know a business house well, you haven't confidence in that house. Advertising gives your probable customers knowledge about you and your goods, and knowledge is absolutely essential to confidence."

"Big advertising looks like big sales; it makes people familiar with you; it unconsciously creates confidence."

"The object of salesmanship and advertising is to teach probable customers to believe in you and your goods.

"But advertising conducts a public school, while salesmanship gives individual lessons."

"I once learned a valuable lesson from a School of Expression. The first thing the teacher told me was that I had to have an object in mind when I was addressing an audience. He said 'Now what is your object? Why are you going to talk to them? Without a definite object in mind, you will never make any impression.'"

"If you are going to write an advertisement, what is the object of it?"

"I have been in the manufacturing business nearly all my life, and it took me some time to figure out that it is much easier to make things than it is to sell them.

"In one case you deal mostly with machinery and metals, while in the other you deal entirely with the human mind.

"When you get to the selling side you deal with humanity. Humanity thinks. It has feelings. It has sensations, decisions, prejudices. It changes its mind."

"A sale does not take place in a man's pocket, or in his pocket-book, or his check-book.

"A sale takes place first in a man's mind.

"In order to make a sale you must convince a man's mind."

The great point for readers of this article to absorb is that every sale must first take place in the buyer's mind.

Advertising in The Canadian Grocer performs actual selling work, because it is read by the dealer at a time selected by himself to study the arguments of the firms that want to sell him goods—at a time when he is open-minded and willing to have his attention drawn to worthy articles of the kind that he makes his living by handling or using.

That's the time the good advertiser with merchandise of merit makes an impression on the dealer's mind that paves the way to the sale his traveler makes.

One illustration of how advertising in The Grocer and its advertisers' salesmen work together every week in the year.

As Hugh Chalmers says, "The relationship of advertising to salesmanship is the closest relationship known."

Large Quantities of Grapes on the Market Now

Are Being Sold at Low Prices—Grapes are Now at Their Best —Pears and Peaches Begin to Decline—Successful Shipment of Peaches to English Markets Indicates the Vast Field That May be Opened up to Canadian Fruit Growers — Cranberries and Quince are New to the Market—Better Feeling for Oranges and Lemons.

The fruit arriving on the market now is of the autumn nature, and in a general sense the market is not as brisk as it was some weeks ago. Grapes are probably holding first place just now as they are arriving in large quantities, but there is also keen interest in apples, although the supply is not the most abundant. Peaches and pears are still passing freely, but not to the same extent as a short time back. The fact is that they have reached their highest point and will soon be on the decline. Cantaloupes are still offered, but in limited quantities. Their days are numbered too. Cranberries are coming in freely. They appear to be of good quality and should bring good sales. The fall trade in fruit is brisk and altogether a good volume is passing.

Vegetables are steady with tomatoes a little firmer. The crop has not been as heavy as as the average crop, but the yield has not been encouraging. The fruit market in Toronto will likely be vacated in a few weeks.

Early Crawford peaches and plums are about over and toward the end the price of plums stiffened. Some of the plums were shipped too green this year and the same may be said of some of the grapes that have been received.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Plums, peaches, grapes and cranberries show a decided decline in prices this week. Plentiful arrivals account for these changes. This is particularly so in plums, the market being heavily supplied.

Cranberries are commencing to arrive in large quantities and dealers are selling present stocks at a loss to make room for the new.

Apples present the only strong feature of the market. They are not only higher in price, but are being eagerly snapped up, and buyers say they cannot obtain anywhere enough.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—The bulk of the present trade is largely confined to pears, peaches and grapes with most of the business centreing upon the latter. There are signs of decline on the market, on the whole, arising from the fact that the season of heaviest production is quickly passing. Grapes are coming freely just now and are passing out just as rapidly with the price varying somewhat. From reports received this supply is expected to continue for some time as the crop has been fairly large. Peaches are not quite as plentiful as they were but there is still a fairly large business being done yet. Canadian pears are coming rather freely and are selling at from 30 cents to $1 a basket, according to quality. Cantaloupes are still to be had and watermelons too. Cranberries are a little easier this week and several large consignments have been received by local houses. Apples are firmer on account of crop shortage, but there is a good demand now with hardly enough stocks to meet it. The lemon market is a little stronger with the demand slightly improved and prospects being for the late arrival of the new crop. Quince are new to the market just now and are selling at from 50 to 75 cents a basket. There is a better feeling in regard to oranges and a good stock is expected with the first arrivals of the new Floridas.

Sweet potatoes are in good demand. The rest of the market is about normal with trade well divided. Celery, cabbage, carrots, etc., are all being asked for steadily, but there is no special feature to the market.

Facts About Fish

Light Catches of Fish Reported from the Coast

Dogfish Interfere With Fishing and are Responsible to a Large Extent for the Conditions Now Prevailing— Supplies So Short That Higher Prices are Expected to Rule—Interior Markets Feel the Effects of Short Supplies—Oysters are in Better Demand as Fall Season Begins to Open Out.

Reports from the Labrador fishing grounds say that the export of this year will be only about one-third that of last year. This means a very serious condition of affairs for the natives there, as it is upon the fish industry that most of them live. The catch is reported to be the smallest in their history. The figures are 50,000 quintals as against 160,000 last year.

In New Brunswick and Nova Scotia the conditions are not quite so bad, though there has been a short season, and a lighter catch than usual. The causes for this have been mainly two, the prevalence of dog fish, and the severe storms prevailing. As an instance of the former one fisherman reports taking only nine haddock and over two thousand dogfish off a 4,500 hook trawl.

The mackerel season is the smallest on record, however one redeeming feature is that the salmon catch has been about normal. All groundfish have been scarce. The general result of these conditions is to firm up the market for most of the standard lines.

QUEBEC.

Montreal, Oct. 6.—There is a scarcity of halibut this week, though as yet prices have not been affected. Fresh cod are also reported scarce, resulting in an increased demand for the frozen article. Brook trout season is closed.

Stormy weather still prevails on the coast and the dogfish depredations are even worse than last week.

Haddies, bloaters, and kippers are arriving, but so far in small quantity owing to the stormy weather. Trade in general shows briskness, and the season promises to be a good one.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John, N.B., Oct 5, 1910. — The scarcity of fish of all kinds continues and the situation is, if possible, worse than at last report. Some cod and haddock came in about the latter part of the week and some fine large mackerel were received, but otherwise the market has been almost bare. Mackerel are quoted at 30 and 35 cents each. In other lines the prices are unchanged. Sardines were schooling in St. Andrew's Bay and along the coast of Charlotte county last week and the fishermen made good hauls. Dogfish have been giving a lot of trouble lately, in some instances fishing had to be abandoned for a time until the pests went away, while some of the fishermen turned to and fished for the dogfish specially and made it a paying proposition by selling the catches to the reduction works. Large shipments of clams have been sent out from Digby recently.

The herring fishing in the bay this year is a total failure, and this means no smoked fish, as even the small herring and scale herring are scarce. The catch of fish for salting has been fair but the demand for export has been so great that the prices locally are higher than usual. The failure of the Labrador and Newfoundland fisheries is said to be responsible for the increased export demand.

ONTARIO.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—There is a firm tone to the local fish market. The fact is that supplies of fresh fish are none too plentiful according to some of the large dealers. Short catches on the eastern coast are felt here and this curtailment of supplies in the face of a good demand gives the market a firmness that will hold unless the situation is relieved to some extent. The demand for oysters has improved and business is noticeably better.

Vancouver, October 6.—A big supply of halibut arrived this week. The Manhattan came in with 170,000 pounds, the Kingfisher with 150,000, and on Thursday, the New England brought 120,000. These were all caught in Alaskan waters. Prices remain the same.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 6.—There is a marked scarcity of fresh fish on the local market at the present time. Usually at this season of the year the receipts are heavy, but bad weather and the dogfish pest have played havoc with the catch. During the week some mackerel struck in along the coast, and the few fish taken found a ready sale. Fresh mackerel are in heavy demand, both locally and in the U. S. markets. The mackerel sold for twenty cents a piece. The receipts of dry fish from home ports during the past week were quite heavy. They include 15,000 quintals of cod, 1,000 quintals of haddock, and 1,000 quintals of green fish.

Advices from the European markets show that prices rule firm for cod and haddock. A fairly brisk demand for pickled fish and smoked fish is reported from several of the West India Islands.

Few canned lobsters are arriving here from the outports, and the shipments are unusually light. For reliable packs the markets generally favor the shippers this season.

While prices remain steady at the present time, some of the dealers are of the opinion that there will be an advance, as the catch and the conditions of the markets favor it.

MANITOBA.

Winnipeg, Oct. 6—The trade is active in all lines of fish quoted below. Halibut and whitefish are greatly in demand and the present long sustained prices may advance. Jobbers are endeavoring to secure some live lobsters as there is a small demand for them at present.

History of the Frog and its Commercial Value

Frog-Eater was Once Used as Term of Contempt — Evolution From Egg, to Tadpole, to Frog Baffles Scientists — Voracious When Hungry—How it is Captured.

By J. A. Paulhus.

"Frog eaters," with the accent on the "frog" was the epithet used as a term of contempt in speaking of the French people of the old country many years ago. In those days it was considered almost as bad to eat frogs-legs as it would be to eat serpents or toads. Today that same term "frog eaters" could be applied with accuracy to almost every race and particularly to the Canadian and United States peoples.

We are in truth a population of frog eaters. And does any one blame us? I appeal to any epicurean who has tasted the delicate flavor of frogs' legs, well prepared and seasoned by a chef of ability, and I know the verdict will be that no other flesh or fish will tickle the palate quite so much, add a relish to a meal, or create such a craving for more.

Origin of the Delicacy.

Where and when has arisen this love of frogs' legs in Canada is purely a matter for conjecture. However, it seems probable that the following paragraph contains a very probable partial explanation:

When the pioneers of this country settled themselves along the rivers and streams of our fertile lands, it is only too probable that there must have been times when food, and particularly meat, was scarce. At this early period in our country's history, frogs were plentiful. Some one undoubtedly investigated their edible qualities, and the report proved favorable enough to gradually develop the taste.

Whether an acquired taste or otherwise, the edibility of frogs' legs is no longer a question, and its value as a table luxury or delicatessen has already been demonstrated to be equal to, if not beyond that of any other flesh, fish, or even game.

The question here naturally arises, is frog's meat fish or game? No authority has taken it upon himself as yet to make this distinction.

The frog is really a wonderful piece of animal mechanism. From its birth to the end of its life it goes through such a series of metamorphoses, that, besides being interesting to the naturalist, it often baffles his learning to explain some things about it.

Changes of Forms.

From an egg, one of a gelatinous mass floating on the water, and hatched only by the sunlight and movement of the waters, comes the tadpole, as the embryo frog is called during his first period of life. Everyone is familiar with the peculiar form of life known by this name, "all head and tail." During this period the tadpole lives like a fish, always submerged, and feeding on vegetation growing at the bottom of the pools.

Later on, as the reptile grows to adult life, he emerges on the surface of the water and lives an amphibian life, taking plunges only occasionally into his old home, the water, usually as a protection from danger.

It has even been demonstrated that a certain species of frog lives at a considerable distance from the pools and streams he originaly inhabited in the tadpole stage.

In addition to the change from the fish to the amphibious form of life, another startling change has taken place. From an herbivorous diet the frog has now become carnivorous, feeding on insects, worms and small living animals which inhabit the marshy sections of country.

Value of the Bull-Frog.

Of the five or six different species of frog known, the bull-frog, called in French "ouaouarons"—no doubt from the Indian—is the most valuable from an economic standpoint. He is the largest in size and is only found on this continent. He is absolutely unknown in Europe.

At one time some of our small streams were infested with this "gentleman." There is a tradition in Quebec that, on a certain river flowing through the counties of Richelieu and Yamaska they were so abundant when the first settlers took possession that they became a pest. Roaring at night, in numberless chorus, they would disturb the whole population night after night for months.

According to the chronicler of the time it was quite a common thing to see, in the dark, a spectral form armed with a long pole, clad only in his nocturnal garments, beating the waters frantically to silence the unceasing chorus of those monstrous "nightingales."

Chateauguay river was famed at one time for having the largest bull-frogs known. It is related that the inhabitants of that section were known, due to the fact, as "ouaouarons (pronounced waw-waw-rong) de Chateauguay" or "Chateauguay bull-frogs."

Ate Chicks When Hungry.

Not only were they a noisy nuisance but they had even developed depredatory instincts. In time of famine, some of the most voracious would even hop to the nearest barns and devour newly hatched chicks, or swim slowly to the surface of pools in which young ducklings were floating, and pull them under water to satisfy their hunger.

To-day, man is taking his revenge with interest and the frog is rapidly becoming more and more a rarity, and eventually, unless protected by game laws as are deer, fish, etc., they will become like the buffalo, a practically extinct race. Why not adopt the "close season" method of protection? It is the salvation of such members of the animal kingdom as quail, brook trout, whitefish, and a number of others. In some sections it has been tried already, but on account of non-enforcement it has so far proved a comparative failure. With a careful study of the frog, his habits and necessities, and a strict enforcement of a close season, frog "farming" is destined to become a distinct financial asset for this country. A frog farmer will be able to raise and handle his stock much as the modern farmer handles and kills his poultry, and a very lucrative business it is.

Average Price Per Pound.

Last year the Montreal market disposed of over $200,000 worth of frogs' legs. We call meat dear at 20c per pound. Frogs' legs are never sold under 30c, and often 40 to 50 cents is not considered an exorbitant price. Of course, prices have increased, to a large extent, because of the decreasing production.

Our rivers and marshes are becoming rapidly depleted, but even with a good supply, frogs' legs have taken their place as one of the costly edibles of this country, and there is little possibility of overproduction.

Hunting the Frog.

Trapping or frog hunting is an occupation which deserves a description.

When the clouds hang low on the river, and the night is as dark as the wing of a crow, the frogger is delighted. The darker the night, the easier it is to attract and approach the frogs. Usually there are two men in the boat, the one in the bow with a strong light which he plays upon the water. The frog is delighted to follow such a radiant path and it comes from the dark to bask in its brilliancy.

With wide open eyes it floats about the boat, immovable, seemingly mesmerized. Nothing seems to disturb it. The second man in the boat spears it or sometimes even picks it up with his hands, and consigns it to a bag. The bag is the only sure way to keep frogs from escaping.

One might think, on a very dark night, when froggers are out in force, that their lights were a flock of stars which somehow had become misplaced or had come down on a temporary visit to the earth.

With the first peep of dawn the catching is over. The frogs are decapitated, the hides removed, and the hind quarters put up in shipping packages, and carried or sent to the market.

Fresh, attractive, well packed in ice, they find ready buyers, and the proceeds go to swell the pockets of producer and commission man to a considerable extent. It is a moderate estimate to say that the industry is worth $100,000 a season to Quebec province alone.

The Lemon Tree at its Home in Island of Sicily

The most important agricultural product of Sicily is the lemon. It is also grown in Italy in the district of Naples, the chief places being Maiori and Sorrento. There are also some grown in Spain but Messina and Palermo are the centres of lemon shipping. The fruit is grown in country districts but the choicest comes from the mountain slopes, where the atmosphere is most beneficial.

Fine oranges are also obtained from similarly situated groves. The country is rich in scenic beauty, the country side being studded with groves and trees of many different kinds. The juice of a lemon freshly plucked creates an exhilaration that is not found in the same degree from those that reach this country, weeks and maybe months after having been gathered.

APPLE SHIPMENTS TO ENGLAND.

According to the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the total shipments of apples made from Boston, New York, Montreal and Halifax for week ending Sept. 17, to Liverpool, London and Glasgow, were 23,338 barrels. Last year for the corresponding week the amount was 24,863 barrels, showing a decrease of more than 10,000 barrels. Since the season opened, however, this year's shipments lead those of last year by 4,000 barrels but are short 44,000 in 1908.

Big Profits in Handling SEALSHIPT OYSTERS

You Can't Make Less Than 25 %

Write at once for catalogue and full particulars of our proposition instead of waiting until "the season" and then doing the best you can at the last moment. The sooner you get the SEALSHIPT AGENCY and start to let your customers know you have it, the bigger and better business you will do all season. In fact, your customers will get hungry for oysters as soon as they know SEALSHIPT OYSTERS—advertised in their favorite magazines as the acme of food purity and deliciousness—are on sale at your store.

Perfect Refrigeration

SEALSHIPT OYSTERS are packed at the oyster beds—(solid and dry)—in the airtight Sealshiptors, which are perfectly refrigerated every mile of the journey to your store. That is why SEALSHIPT OYSTERS taste the same in Illinois or California as the day they were dredged from the deep. The oysters are shipped to you in these Sealshiptors and you empty them into your Sealshipticase (the blue and white porcelain display and selling fixture).

Sealshipt Agents Make Money Because We Help Them

We supply you with advertisements for your local papers, an attractive blue and white steel design and muslin signs for your store front and transfer signs to stick on your door, where everyone will see them. We do all this so the Sealshipt Agent will secure all the sales we are stirring up in his territory by our extensive magazine advertising. Don't guess about the SEALSHIPT SYSTEM or what it will do for you, but write us at once for catalogue, terms and particulars.

NOTE:—People who read our advertising will go from the store where no oysters are sold, or the store where ordinary oysters are sold to the store where they can get SEALSHIPT OYSTERS and, the Sealshipt Agent will sell them other things—may win all their trade.

Proprietor Should be Familiar With Goods in Stock—Resolutions Adopted by Retailers' Associations—General Movement to Get Rid of Trading Stamps in the U.S.—Bananas Sold by the Pound—Allowing Credits Without Discrimination.

"The whole secret of making success out of a store" says L. J. Callanan, a successful grocer of New York, "is not to cut prices, but for the proprietor to make himself familiar with each article he handled and to see that the clerks did likewise."

Even the druggists of Mount Holly, N.J., closed their stores on the occasion of the first annual picnic of the merchants of that town. Every merchant turned out for the affair, including one merchant who had not closed his store during the last thirty years except in cases of death. He, too, joined the throng of business men who thus took a first step towards establishing friendlier relations.

The art of selling goods consists largely in making the goods look just as good as they are. In fact, past masters of the art of salesmanship have a genius of making goods look just a little better than they really are.

Among the resolutions adopted by the retail grocers of the state of Pennsylvania at their recent annual convention were the following:

"Favoring municipal government by commission, coupled with initiative and referendum and the recall features, and recommending to the legislature the passage of legislation of this character.

"Favoring compulsory arbitration of labor disputes and establishment of a board of arbitration by the legislature at its next session.

"Favoring legislation to fix standards of packages in which groceries and produce may be packed, and requiring that the weight or measure be plainly stamped thereon.

"Opposing the passage of any bill to prohibit the sale of patent medicines and common household remedies by other than registered pharmacists. (Grocers and general merchants claim the right to sell these lines.)

"Favoring a Sunday closing law carrying a fine of at least $25, similar to the Ohio law."

The trading stamp is still in vogue in many parts of the United States but the merchants are rising up against the idea and there is a general movement to get rid of them.

The grocers of Clinton, Iowa, have decided to sell bananas by weight, retailing them at seven to eight cents a pound.

The following quotation is from a paper read by the President of the New York State Wholesale Grocers' Association at the recent convention of the retail grocers of that state. He asked the grocers to cut credits, stating that both the wholesale and retail trade are so anxious to sell goods that they induce or invite customers to buy beyond their ability to pay. "One of the greatest perils creeping over our business and every other line of trade is the indiscriminate manner of allowing credits. But that you, we and all of us not only endanger the success of business, but the welfare of those to whom we loosely extend credit. By such methods we practically invite extravagance or induce persons to whom we give reckless credit to live beyond their incomes. You and the wholesale grocer, the manufacturer or the producer from whom supplies are purchased, must bear the burden. Certain it is, that the profit the distributer gets for his work is no more, rather less, than he has ever received, and in addition to this, it is equally true that his expense in marketing those goods is materially higher."

An injuction has been recently issued against a Rochester grocer by a trading stamp company to restrain him from using the stamps of a second company.

The broom should make a daily visit to every square inch of floor space and the dust cloth should be just as intimate with the show cases, shelves, etc. Cleanliness is one point that cannot be overdone in the grocery store.

More than 1900 homes in Indianapolis have been mortgaged during the past year in order that the owners might buy motor cars, according to a statement in the Indianapolis Independent.

Grocers of Nebraskacy, Neb., have decided to charge customers for cans and containers for coal oil, gasoline, etc., that are lost. When the customer returns the can the money is returned. The grocers have lost many cans by carelessness on the part of customers and this method is, it is hoped, will stop the trouble.

Every man and woman on earth has some good quality, if you'll only take the trouble to look for it.

Most of us count up our virtues with the aid of the multiplication table—and the other fellow's by short division.

It is necessary for the merchant to listen to the hard luck stories of many other people, but it is very foolish for him to tell any of his own.

"It seems incredible that manufacturers should ignore the dealer as a valuable selling force, yet many of them do so."

The advertising manager of The Grocer happened into the office of a large firm with a national distribution, just as the manager finished reading our announcement that the Fall Number would be devoted to "The Selling Power of the Dealer." The above was his first remark regarding it.

He went on: "This is something that interests one greatly. There was a time when I held the same views as some other manufacturers do to-day. I believed that the dealer should be considered merely as a distributor and his profit fixed accordingly; that I should rely on the demand I was able to create among consumers.

"Then I began to study the real science of business-building as applied to my particular business. I soon found that I was getting only a fraction of the possible demand for my goods, and that what I did get was costing me more than it should. Yet I was doing good business and making money, just the same as others are doing now under similar conditions, who give scant consideration to the dealer and believe that their selling system is the correct one.

"I changed my plans so as to allow the dealer a fair profit, though not an extravagant one, and then earnestly and persistently sought his co-operation.

"I do not exaggerate when I say that for every $100 it has cost me to get the dealer interested I have got back $1,000."

The Best Proposition!

Looked at any way you please, no line of goods holds out the same inducements to the Grocer as

UPTON'S

Jams, Jellies and Marmalade

First, they are made from the finest fruits in the world—Canadian Fruits—selected by experts and preserved and bottled in an up-to-date, sanitary factory, which is a model of cleanliness. Second, the "Upton" line never 'sticks,' because our extensive consumer advertising has created a demand for these goods; and third, selling "Upton's" specialties invariably leaves a satisfaction and profit-margin behind that makes trading a pleasure.

Are you featuring "Upton's"? If not, fall in line with the "wise" ones.

A Faultless Product

¶ There is no better factory in the world adapted solely to the production of Macaroni and similar pastes than that of Felix Codou in Marseilles, France. Every modern appliance is there—it is scrupulously clean—the original has been enlarged several times to meet the steadily increasing demand from particular people.

Codou's Macaroni

¶ Vermicelli, Spaghetti, Fancy Letters and Figures, as well as Macaroni, are the specialties produced—each one has a national reputation for high quality.

Taganrog Russian Wheat is used exclusively—the wheat that yields the BEST results—the wheat that is peculiarly adapted to the desired purpose. "Codou's"—that is the name to think of when the best is wanted.

You make better profits on the better grade peas

INSTEAD of selling imported French Peas to supply the demand for better grade peas, sell our Extra Fine Sifted (Petits Pois) Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted and Early June Sifted.

Not from sentimental or patriotic reasons, but because they will yield you a better profit, give your customers much greater satisfaction and help to increase the demand for the more profitable higher grade peas.

That vivid green color which makes some lines of imported French Peas look so pretty is produced by Sulphate of Copper—a chemical that is not only very injurious to health, but which kills the true flavor of the peas.

We never use sulphate of copper or any other coloring chemicals in our canned peas.

Extra Fine Sifted (Petit Pois), Sweet Wrinkle Extra Sifted and Early June Sifted are thoroughly sterilized, the very pick of the pack, fine, tender, and of exquisite flavor.

You can materially increase your profits and your reputation by pushing these lines. Try it.

Dominion Canners, Limited

'REPEATS'—the order of the day!

No more convincing proof could be produced of the sterling merit of

BRAND'S ESSENCE OF BEEF

than the fact that in a number of instances where this product has been introduced to the Grocers of the Dominion, repeat orders have poured in.

The reason is not far to seek. Brand's Essence of Beef is unlike the meat extracts you are familiar with, and is on a plane by itself as a food for invalids and convalescents.

Every bottle or tin sold RECOMMENDS ITSELF and creates further custom, and the profit for the dealer is an excellent one.

Don't imagine it is out of your line. Although it is sold in immense quantities by druggists, a much larger quantity is handled through grocery stores. We, on our part, are doing all we can to help YOU to dispose of Brand's specialties.

Don't lag behind! Here's a splendid opportunity for further profit making.

When you do—get a good one, as good as you can afford.

If it's an "Enterprise" it will be backed by the oldest and largest manufacturers of these goods in the country.

Note the style illustrated. The grinders are connected direct to the shaft of the motor. No belts or gears to litter up the store and make it look like a machine shop and fewer parts to wear.

Perhaps you'd be glad to look over a catalog of electrically driven Coffee Mills, Meat Choppers, etc. Glad to send it.

THE GREAT BAKERY QUALITY BUILT

From a tiny shop in 1858 to this mammoth plant—the largest biscuit and candy manufactory in Canada, the most modern on this continent—growth due to QUALITY and square-deal methods

JERSEY CREAM SODAS and FANCY SWEET BISCUITS

McCormick's Biscuits are made from Best Blended Flour, First Quality June Creamery Butter, Fresh, Sweet, Whole Milk, Pure Sugar, etc.

Great numbers of discriminating American women-visitors to Canada have pronounced McCormick's Jersey Cream Sodas vastly superior to the American Crackers. They have even insisted on the factory shipping a supply to their grocers, stating that they were willing to pay the duty if, by so doing, they could enjoy such a luxury.

We have appreciated the confidence and assistance of the Grocery Trade in Canada in placing our biscuits before the consumers, and hope still further to merit your approval in our present efforts to assist your sales of our biscuits by advertising them extensively amongst the consumers. We hope you will keep on hand a good supply of these lines.

One Canner's Reasons for the Present High Prices

This Year's Quotations, he says, Includes Freight Allowance and Wholesalers' Profits—Law of Supply and Demand Another Reason Given—Last Year Pack Was Large and Carry-over From Preceding Year Heavy, he Claims—Comparisons With Past Seven Years and With U. S. Prices—Says That Machinery Promoters are Responsible for Some Canners Losing Money.

By W. R. Drynan.

No doubt there has been quite a deal of discussion over the opening prices of canned fruits and vegetables. Prices appear high contrasted with those of last year, for one reason, especially, that this year's prices include allowance for freight, wholesalers profit, etc., whereas last year's prices were net F.O.B. factories.

Moreover, last year on top of a large carry-over, the pack was probably the largest in the history of the industry. This year when the new pack came on the market there was not a single case of corn, peas, tomatoes or beans in packers' hands, and the pack, notwithstanding a heavier acreage than ever before, is very much lighter than that of last year. Although the total orders of the trade are not heavier than last year, the pack of peas only permitted a delivery of about 65 per cent., tomatoes promise only 60 per cent. and corn between 80 and 90 per cent.

If the pack had been normal, that is to permit of a 100 per cent. delivery, prices would have been correspondingly low, but unfavorable crop conditions are not confined to Canada only as the U.S. packers are only able to make pro rata deliveries in some cases as low as 40 per cent.

Supply and Demand.
